LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

Vol. 47 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1914.

MOST NOTABLE FLYING CONTEST IN MODERN HISTORY

"Aerial Rally of Monaco" Will Bring Together Leading Aviators of all Nations in Western Europe

LONDON, April 1.—Special—One of the most remarkable flying contests in the history of aviation begins today. It is known as the "Aerial Rally of Monaco," organized by the International Sporting Club at Monaco. The first prize is £1,000. Seven courses have been set out, converging on Monaco, from London, Paris, Brussels, Vienna, Madrid, Milan, and Gotha. The course from London has a distance over 800 miles. The other courses are made circuitous so that each will be approximately the same distance.

There are about twenty competitors. The British representatives are Verrier, Hamel, Gilbert and Lord Garberry. Verrier will start, as at present arranged, at four this morning, and hopes to reach Marseilles before dusk. From Marseilles the last section of the journey will be over the sea. The aviators arriving there are allowed forty-eight hours to fit their machines with floats, or twenty-four hours if they change from an aeroplane into a hydroplane. The competition is open for fifteen days.

BELLEVILLE BOY AGAIN EVIDENCE

The following, from the Owen Sound Sun, relative to Mr. Reginald Geen, son of Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Geen of this city will be of interest to our readers:

"The members of the Ladies' Music Club had the pleasure of hearing another very interesting and educative paper on Monday afternoon when Mr. Reginald Geen briefly described the life of Bach, of whose works several of the former's pupils gave examples afterwards. The writer did not touch to any extent on the works of this great composer as they were of such a wide and varied character but instead gave an interesting resume of his life. Bach's beautiful and complete home life was one of the outstanding features emphasized as having an effect on his work. The fact that some of his best loved compositions were dictated by him after being stricken with blindness was commented on. Bach, it may be noted, was the first of his contemporaries to use the the thumb in playing compositions. Gounod's well known Ave Maria, the Prelude by Bach, was sung by a Boy's Choir with violin accompaniment by Mr. Brookes and the clear sweet voices took the beautiful melody very effectively. Miss Marion Frost played the prelude and Frigue in C. Minor and Mr. Albert Clow gave the Prelude and Fugue in G. Major both having mastered the difficult and exacting technique in an appreciable manner. Miss May Warrilew's number was the Echo, very well executed and Miss Gertrude Runnings played two movements from Suite in G. Minor, her interpretation being as artistic as always Miss Kathleen Robertson sang Bach's composition Each Blade is Wet With Showers, very sympathetically and Mr. George Brookes in excellent voice gave My Heart Ever Faithful. The tea table was very pretty with baskets of deep crimson tulips and crimson candles in carved wooden candlesticks and was presided over by Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. W. P. Telford and Mrs. . Asselstine.

DIFFUSING IDEAS

Organization Launched in Connection With the High School

TRENTON, Mar. 31.—At Stirling an association was launched which is the first of its kind in Ontario. It is the Hastings County Junior Farmers' Improvement Association. This step follows the annual banquet held at the close of the class agriculture in the Stirling high school. The organization is at present comprised of those who have graduated in the agricultural course but the intention is to broaden out and take others. Volney Richardson a bright and active young farmer is president. The new movement, which will doubtless spread to other centres, may mean much for the agricultural advancement of the province.

A Bar Association for all Canad was ormed yesterday at Ottawa and W. Mikel, K. C., was elected a member of the Council for Ontario.

BRITAIN'S REVENUE NEARLY A BILLION.

London, April 1.—Special—The Treasury statement for the fiscal year seems to justify the much-criticized optimism of David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, which led him a year ago to decide to meet the heavy increase of expenditures by a natural growth of revenue from the existing taxes, instead of imposing new taxes.

The total revenue for the year was £198,212,897 ($991,214,485), an increase of £9,440,898 over the previous year. The total expenditure was £197,493,969 ($987,469,845), an increase of £8,871,000.

INCREASING INTEREST IN SPECIAL SERVICES

Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church was last evening filled to overflowing with an audience which assembled to hear the soldier evangelist Mr. W. R. Lane. Nearly all the pastors of the evangelical churches of the city were in attendance, occupying seats in the chancel. After the singing of a hymn Rev. C. G. Smith, pastor of the Baptist church, offered prayer, following which was a Bible reading.

Mr. Lane's address was both interesting and full of meaning and was listened to with rapt attention by the congregation. His text was from St. Luke viii:45—"And Jesus said, Who touched me? When all denied Peter and those who were with him said Master, the multitude throng thee and press thee, and sayest thou Who touched me?"

This was one of the Lord's busiest days and the throng was great about him. A woman, frail from years of sickness, would fain get to the Saviour, but was unable to do so for the multitude. The Saviour, however passed by where she was and as He did so she touched the hem of His garment, and immediately was made whole. It demonstrated that Christ had to get at those who cannot get at Him. If man will not come to God God will come to you. No angel's ear heard the contact when the woman touched the Saviour's garment, but the bloom of youth and health came to her cheeks again. The Saviour said "Who touched me?" Why did he say that, knowing well who did it and that He had passed by where the woman might touch him? He said it for the sake of the disciples, the multitude about Him, and for our sakes He was not tied up for that passing hour but for all poor hopeless people of all ages. When she touched Him she opened up the floodgates of eternal power. What did the Saviour mean when He said I perceive some one has touched me, for virtue has gone out of me? He meant that His power for good had gone forth, and that He can be touched by us, no matter where we are, in the office, work shop, among the multitude or in the quiet prayer hour. Some have thronged about Christ but they have not touched Him. By faith we can touch Him and be saved. This woman touched Christ in secret as the ceremonies at the time prevented her from doing otherwise and she endeavored to get away in secret, but Christ said "Who touched me?" The woman returned and publicly acknowledged that she had touched Christ's garment. She was going away without another great blessing which was in store for her. "Daughter," said Christ, "be of good comfort or cheer; thy faith hath made thee whole. Go in peace."

In concluding his address Mr. Lane exhorted all to follow Christ and to walk in the King's highway. Touch Christ by faith and a new life will be given.

PRAYERS IN CHURCHES FOR PEACEFUL ENDING

Archbishop of Canterbury Issues a Pastoral Letter to the Clergy.

LONDON, April 1.—(Special.)—The Archbishop of Canterbury has issued a pastoral letter to the clergy in which he recommends that they invite the congregations to pray next Sunday for a peaceful solution of the perplexities and anxieties in regard to Ireland.

TRICK ON RIVAL LANDED HIM IN JAIL

Sent False Telegram Ordering a Large Consignment of Fish--a Belleville Firm Involved

TORONTO, April 1.—(Special.)—Keen business rivalry between two Elizabeth Street fish merchants resulted last night in the arrest of Samuel Warnolinsky and his 12-year-old son, Solomon, of 104 Elizabeth Street. The man is in the cells at Agnes Street station on a charge of conspiring to defraud. A second charge of forgery will be laid against him this morning. A third charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor may be also be laid against him. The boy, who is being held as a material witness was placed in the care of the Children's Aid Society. The complainant is Jacob Robinsky, 93½ Elizabeth Street.

Warnolinsky and Robinsky conduct fish stores opposite each other on Elizabeth Street. The rivalry existing between the two was so keen that according to Robinsky and the police, Warnolinsky negotiated a "fishy" deal with the intention of gaining the control of the "Ward" trade.

With the assistance of his son he sent a forged telegram last week, to a fish firm in Belleville ordering six boxes, or $50 worth of fish in Robinsky's name. The goods were shipped, but when they arrived the mystified Robinsky refused to accept them or to pay the charges. The Belleville firm then threatened to commence proceedings. Robinsky appealed to the Detective Department, and voiced his suspicions of Warnolinsky to Detective Twigg. Twigg commenced work and unraveled the mystery, which resulted in the arrests last night.

After a long interview at headquarters last night, Warnolinsky's son admitted that his father had told him to write and send the telegram, but at the same time gave him strict instructions not to say anything about the transaction.

PRESENTATION TO POINT ANN PASTOR

Rev. H.B. Neal Made Recipient of Purse of Gold by Congregation

On Thursday evening of last week, Mr. H. B. Neal, the pastor of the Methodist church at Point Anne, was presented with a handsome purse of money at the end of the reading of an address. This took place at the close of a cottage prayer meeting at the home of Mr. F. Graham, which was the termination of a series of special services which Mr. Neal has been holding in the church here for three weeks. Greatest success attended these meetings and to show in a tangile manner their appreciation of the arduous work of their minister, the congregation tendered him the following address read by Mr. Darlington, and a purse presented by Mrs. F. Graham:

Dear Pastor and Friend.—You have endeared yourself to the congregation of this place so much by your untiring efforts and holy zeal for our spiritual benefit, and also sharing our joys and sorrows with us all in our homes, that we sincerely pray that God in bountiful goodness and love may grant you a long and useful life. In conclusion we would ask you to favor us by your acceptance of this purse as a small token of our sincere thanks for your service.

DESERTED WIFE ASKS FOR HER LITTLE SON

Man Who Married Her in Cobalt Pointed Out to Police Who Hold Him

TORONTO, Mar. 31.—For two years Douglas Ferguson has abondoned his wife, whom he married in Cobalt seven years ago, but last night she saw him on Adelaide street, west, and handed him over to a police constable. In police court this morning he appeared on a charge of non-support. The wife, an attractive-looking young Scotch woman told the story of her matrimonial vicissitudes in a sob-choked voice. Since the prisoner had left her, she said, she had several times been on the verge of destitution; but she was now in regular employment.

"I am fighting to get my baby boy," she said. "My husband's mother has him, and I don't want them to bring the little fellow up in the same way that the mother brought up her own sons."

The Magistrate remanded Ferguson until April 2, bail being fixed at $500.

A VETERAN SHERIFF

Arthur M. Jarvis, Toronto, Has Been Visiting Kingston for the Past Fifty-Two Years

KINGSTON, March 31.—Arthur M. Jarvis, deputy sheriff, of Toronto, has been bringing prisoners to the Portsmouth penitentiary for fifty-two years. He is eighty-two years of age, but still as active as a man of seventy. Last Saturday he brought down three young men who were sentenced in Toronto to serve time at the prison at Portsmouth.

During the years that Mr. Jarvis has been in the employment of the government he has brought a very large number of men to serve time at the provincial penitentiary. When speaking to a newspaper representative, Sheriff Jarvis stated that he could well remember the day that he brought down twenty-one men to serve time. They were Fenian raiders who were sentenced in Toronto in the year 1866. A special over the Grand Trunk railroad brought the men to the city and they were later transferred into hacks at the Grand Trunk station. On that occasion he engaged Richard Boyd, the veteran cabman, to take some of these men in his hack from the station to the prison. Eight cabmen were engaged. Out of that number Mr. Boyd is the only one doing business at the present time. The men who accompanied the deputy sheriff were all armed.

Sheriff Jarvis also recalls the occasion when he was forced to sleep in a farmer's home over night, as a result of the train breaking down en route to Kingston. It was in the early days of the Grand Trunk railroad. The roadbed was far from being in good shape, and as a result, the rails spread and threw the engine off the tracks. When the accident happened the passengers were informed that the break would not be fixed for some time, and Mr. Jarvis accompanied his prisoners to a farmers home where they rested over night.

On a couple of occasions the sheriff has brought as many as thirteen men to serve time at the provincial institution. He brings an assistant with him, but is responsible for the delivery of the prisoner at the big prison. On Saturday afternoon two assistants accompanied him.

During the past couple of months, a very large number of men have been sent down from Toronto. For the past seven weeks Mr. Jarvis has made weekly visits.

Mr. Jarvis said that a large portion of those who are being sent down to serve time are young men who are just commencing life.

The veteran Toronto deputy sheriff has never lost a man in all the years he has been coming here. He takes no chances, and treats all alike.

APRIL SHOWERS OF SUNSHINE A good many substantial April Showers of Sunshine — the sunshine of real dollars — are going to come to advertisers this month.

This is because they are shrewd enough to advertise in the modern way — through the newspapers — frequently with direct co-operation between manufacturer and merchant.

Results can almost be forecast — for this kind of advertising is going directly into the homes when the people are in a mood for buying.

And this means that business will come to the men who are going after it.

TWO FATALLY BURNED THIRTEEN SCORCHED

QUEBEC, Mar. 31.—Cyril Belanger and A. Poirer were probably fatally burned yesterday and thirteen other workmen suffered minor burns in a fire which destroyed a building on the Harbor Commissioners Indian Cove property where seventy men were engaged building scows. Some of the men were using dry oakum. A dropped match fired the oakum and a fire ensued which trapped the man in a hall as they tried to escape After a desperate fight the men were got out the clothing of Belanger and Poirier being a blazing mass, while the garments of the thirteen others were smouldering. The victims of the fire were rolled in the snow, which put out the flames.

Belanger and Poirier were taken to the Hotel Dieu at Levis where it was announced that there was little chance for their recovery. Of the thirteen trapped the most severely injured are James Langlois, Napoleon Fertin and Odilion turgeon, who are suffering from burns on their hands and face.

PARCEL POST SERVICE TOBE OF REAL VALUE

First Evidence of its Worth is Beginning to Show Now

TORONTO, Mar. 31.—That the parcels post service of Canada may have a material effect in reducing the high cost of living was shown yesterday, when it became known that a Toronto man intended to enter the produce business, and supply city customers with his wares, with the parcels post as the medium of delivery.

This man plans to start a business somewhere out in the country, outside of Toronto, where he will raise chickens, produce eggs and butter and other products. He will then work up a clientele in Toronto, supplying his products by parcels post. It is said that he will be able to deliver goods much more cheaply through the parcels post route, and there is little doubt that his business will grow extensively. It is likely that regular deliveries will be made each week—on Tuesday and Thursday of each week, for instance.

"This is a bright young man who has seen the opportunities", a post office official said, refusing, however, to divulge his name, claiming that it was the private business of the coming farmer, who is a personal friend. "The idea is his own, and he expects to develop it."

RELIGIOUS TEACHING IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Methodist Speaker Advocates Instruction Being Given on the Bible

TORONTO Mar. 31.—Rev. Dr. Graham of Victoria College, in the course of an address on the Methodist Ministerial Association yesterday on "The Bible," spoke strongly in favor of religious instruction in schools. He urged that any inaccuracies to be found in the Bible should not be allowed to affect its spiritual power.

The ministers discussed the McConkey case, and on the motion of the Rev. R. J. Treleaven, supported by Rev. John Locke, it was unanimously decided to protest to the License Commissioners against the renewal of the liquor license. A committee, consisting of Rev. J. C. Speer, Rev. R. J. Treleaven and Rev. A. G. Hudson was appointed to wait upon the Commissioners.

MAN DID NOT KNOW HIS OWN SIGNATURE

Action Over Two Notes Hinged on Whether Defendant Had Signed One of Them

TORONTO, Mar. 31.—Judgment for the plaintiff, amounting to $3,835 was given by Mr. Justice Lennox in the case of B. S. O'Neill against R. S. Lang in the Assize Court to-day.

The action was over two notes which the plaintiff claimed were given him by the defendant and defendant denied have signed them and declared they were forged.

In giving judgment, His Lordship declared that the defendant whose evidence was very unsatisfactory, showed clearly that he did not know his own signature The Judge was supported in this, by the opinion of Mr. C. H. Shaw, a writing expert.

"I don't think the defendant was absolutely dishonest in giving testimony as the occasion of signing these notes was a long time time ago; nevertheless his evidence is so unreliable that I must give judgment in favor of the plaintiff," said the Judge in conclusion.

BEWARE OF CANNED GOODS AND FOOD

Dr. Hastings Issues Warning to the Citizens in Health Bulletin

TORONTO, Mar. 31.—"Beware of canned goods and foods put up in packages that have been kept for too long a time.

"During the past two weeks the Chief Inspector of Foods in the Medical Health Department on two occasions has found pork and beans which had been canned over eight years. At the same time he found fermented canned strawberries and on investigation discovered that they had been purchased by the dealer over two years ago.

"Our inspectors frequently find that this class of goods is often held, either by the canners, the wholesale or retail merchants, for very long periods," Dr. Hastings declares in the March Bulletin of the local Health Department.

The department is communicating with the Inland Revenue Department at Ottawa with a view to obtaining legislation "requiring cans and packages for all goods to contain the date stamped on the bottom and tops of this, and blown in the glass of bottles and jars, of the year at least that they were canned.

A NOVEL SCHEME TO PREVENT WAR

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 1.—Special—Before a large audience here Rev. Albert Wickman presented for the first time a novel scheme to prevent war by means of a voluntary so-called "White Army," with the object of throwing it between two fighting armies. Wickman, assuming the title of General, is touring the whole of Sweden making the propaganda and organizing his army. So far only a few hundred soldiers have enlisted and signed the pledge. The General's conviction is that when a White Army is sufficiently large it will be psychologically impossible for fighting armies to attack it, thus making war impossible. Wickman is evidently an eager candidate for the Nobel peace prize.

The Charge Was Made by Mr. Sevigny--Premier and Sir Wilfred Will Close Debate

OTTAWA, April 1.—Special—Interest in the debate upon the report of the Transcontinental Railway Investigating Commission now centres in the speeches of the leaders of the two parties, which will be delivered in the Commons to-morrow. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it is known, has been for some days engaged in the preparation of an elaborate defence of the policy of his department and the practice of his Transcontinental Commissioners in the construction of the railway between Moncton, N.B., and Winnipeg. The Prime Minister whose predictions in regard to cost of the road have been verified, will make an important address in closing the debate and in opposing the motion of Mr. George P. Graham to condemn the investigators and their findings.

Yesterday six speeches on the subject were delivered in the House, three in the French language and three in English. Mr. Sevigny, the eloquent Conservative member for Dorchester, Quebec, was the first speaker, and he calculated that Canada would suffer a loss of $45,000,000 before the fifty-year lease of the Government section of the railway to the G.T.P. had expired. He declared that the Laurier Government had appointed as chairman of the Transcontinental Commission Hon. S. N. Parent, a lawyer who had never pleaded a case and a politician who had been ousted by his fellow Liberals from the Premiership of Quebec. Mr Sevigny also charged that favored contractors were given advance information about the engineers' estimates which helped them in the preparation of their tenders.

THE SLAUGHTER OF YOUNG BABES

MONTREAL, Mar. 31—"The Slaughter of the Innocents" continues in Montreal. This morning, the body of another abandoned baby was taken to the morgue, making a total of 11 cases of this nature since the beginning of the year. The body of the latest victim was found by James Gillette, 1206 St. Urbain street and the police of No. 6 station, Chaboilleb street, have taken charge of the investigations.

This morning an inquest was held on the bodies of three other infants found over the week-end, and verdicts of homicide returned in two cases. In the third instance the child had not lived. In one case, that of a male child, found on Elm avenue, Westmount it was shown that the body had been mutilated the head and one leg being severed. An attempt was made to burn the remains and this failing, they had been parcelled up and abandoned.

Commenting on cases of this nature, Coroner McMahon stated that during his tenure of office, a period of 21 years, he did not remember a single instance in which the perpetrators of crimes of this nature had been brought to justice. The authorities were always in the presence of the same difficulty. The police work up the case for a few days, and do not discover anything. Thus the culprits consider themselves fairly secure, and the epidemic of infanticide continues.

300 TONS OF RIFLES FOR IRELAND LOST

Denmark Authorities Fail to Hold Lighters on Which Arms Were Stored

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Mar. 31.—A mysterious cargo of 300 tons of rifles supposed to be intended for Ireland, disappeared from the vicinity of the Danish Island of Langeland during last night after an embargo had been placed on it by the authorities.

The rifles were brought to Langeland on board a lighter from Hamburg which anchored off the Island. A short time afterwards the Norwegian steamer fanny drew up alongside and proceeded to take the arms on board.

The Danish authorities then came on to the scene and seized the papers on the lighter and the steamers whose commanders were ordered to await further instructions.

Today the two vessels had vanished.

KINGSTON COUNCIL SITS ALL NIGHT ON TAX RATE

KINGSTON, Mar. 31.—The City Council held one of the longest sessions on record, not concluding until two forty-five this morning. The principal discussion centred around the budget, with a view of finding a way of keeping down the tax rate. The Finance Committee recommended an increase of two and a half mills or twenty-five and a half mills in all, but Council decided to make twenty-five mills do.

PARTIES ARE AGREED

Political Contributions Bills Discussed in Legislature.

Details of Measures to Remove Suspicion of Corruption From Candidates by Excluding Interests From Aiding Campaign Funds and by Publishing Expenses To Be Worked Out In Committee.

TORONTO, April 1. — When the political contribution measures came up in the Legislature yesterday they found the rival parties therein in full agreement on the necessity for the reform. The details, however, will have to be worked out in committee.

One of the bills prohibits political contributions by corporations, license holders, and public contractors. The other rules that all contributions received in the recognized fashion shall only come through the official agent of the candidate who is interested, and that a detailed statement of any sums given in this way, either as loans, gifts or otherwise, shall be submitted to the returning officer within two months after the election and be published by him. In addition all such accounts are to be open to inspection after payment of a nominal fee by any interested persons.

These measures passed their second reading yesterday, and with approval from both sides of the House went to the legal committee for discussion. Bills much to the same import were submitted by Hon. Mr. Hearst and Mr. Rowell, and the merits of each will be embodied in the ultimate legislation.

The Minister in speaking to the second reading of the Government measure stated that there had been very little corruption in Ontario for a long time, and that the legislation proposed was not of such pressing necessity here as in the Federal House where millions were expended yearly in the Department of Public Works. The bill as suggested would wipe out the suggestion of wrong as to campaign contributions, if this suggestion did exist.

The Liberal leader was not so sure of the limited nature of political corruption. He felt that there had been some among the ridings, and whether this was large or small it was still prejudicial to the country's best interests.

He spoke of the wisdom of including license holders, and felt that this was a vital part of the bill as referring to the relationship of the liquor interests and a Government in power. He would recommend that the Government measure be strengthened in this particular.

Toronto University stands to-day at a parting of the ways, according to the representations made to the Government yesterday by Sir Edmund Walker and President Falconer, in presenting a request for further aid. One path stretching before points to mediocrity and an uphill fight to grant Ontario students a higher education; the other leads into the first rank of educational institutions on the continent, they declared. The board of governors yesterday left the course to be pursued in the hands of the Legislature. To advance meant money and a good deal of it; otherwise the progression from the standpoint of both students and professors would necessarily be retrograde.

Sir Edmund said the accommodation was limited and the staff so poorly paid that many were seeking a livelihood elsewhere.

He estimated the total expenditure for the coming year, with necessary buildings included, to be in the neighborhood of $1,400,000, and the deficit of $85,000. now standing would be increased to $120,000.

By a series of comparisons President Falsoner showed that the Toronto University income did not stand in the same class with other large ones across the border. Even Iowa, with 2,000 students less, showed more of an income, and Missouri with 1,500 less had an income of $992,000 in comparison with $839,000 received in Toronto last year.

EPIDEMICS A MYSTERY.

Is Disease in Factories the Work of Russian Malcontents?

ST. PETERSBURG, April 1.—Members of the Douma are urging the appointment of a commission to investigate the cause of a mysterious sickness from which operative in the tobacco and rubber factories are suffering. More than seventy new cases were reported yesterday in one tobacco factory and thirty in a rubber factory. The employes are leaving by the scores.

According to the police the epidemic is the result of a plot to foment strikes by men who have engaged an expert chemist to assist them to bring about conditions whereby the operatives have been overcome while engaged at their tasks. These methods so far defy detection, but it is supposed they consist of the production of poisonous fumes.

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

BY A STOMACH SPECIALIST.

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty is acid in the stomach, usually due to, or aggravated by food fermentation. Acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind, which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your chemist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable pro-

SUGGESTS A SOLUTION

Sir Edward Grey Hints at Federal Government Scheme.

After a Crisis Unparallelled in Modern Times Asquith Government Is In a Better Position to Secure Consent on Home Rule — House Listens to Proposal of Devolution of Britain With Interest.

LONDON, April 1.—A Parliamentary writer observed a few days ago: "This amazing Government seems to thrive upon its blunders," and the net result of a crisis without parallel in modern times has been that the debate on the second reading of the Home Rule bill was resumed yesterday in an atmosphere of unexpected calm with apparently a better prospect of being carried by consent than ever before.

The Unionists are clearly alarmed at the spectre which the Carsonite methods have raised of an election fought on a platform cry of "The Parliament vs. the Army." Even the moderate Liberals are anxious to avoid such a struggle which it is foreseen would leave looze a flood of passion exceeding even that which attended the agitation to abolish the veto power of the House of Lords.

Hence the proposal of Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to the House of Commons yesterday of a federal system of Government for the British Isles as a solution of the difficulty, which he put forward in a most conciliatory speech, has been received on both sides of the House with great sympathy, and it is believed will lead to a renewal of the negotiations between the two front benches in the arrangement of an acceptable compromise.

The large body of opinion, both inside and outside Parliament, supports a settlement on the Federal basis and a meeting of about fifty members of the House representing both parties was held yesterday to discuss a settlement.

It is reported from Dublin that Premier Asquith is to be opposed in the bye-election for East Fife by James Larkin.

Viscount Morley's dicision not to resign as Lord President of the Council pleases the Liberals, as at his advanced age it would have meant his permanent retirement from politics and the party would regret to see the veteran statesman retired under a cloud.

The Cabinet met yesterday, and the strongest pressure was brought to bear on Lord Morley not to add to the difficulties of his colleagues by giving up his office.

Sir Edward Grey, during the debate in the Commons, suggested the resumption of the conversations between party leaders, in order to see whether the lines of a settlement could not be reached on the basis of establishing a federal system for the whole country before the end of the six years named by the Government in its offer to Ulster.

Sir Edward Grey said he believed that if the difficulty was not solved by the introduction of a federal system, the country would go under through the sheer inability of Parliament to transact its business. If, he added, an election could be assured on the terms of securing the abolition of plural voting and of placing Home Rule and Welsh disestablishment on the statute book, the method would be worthy of consideration. The suggestion of a federal system was received by the House with marked attention.

TRAPPER'S BODY FOUND.

TORONTO, April 1.—Shot through the stomach and frozen stiff, the body of Arthur Frampton, a trapper, was found this week on the ice of the Black Sturgeon river, between Nipigon and Port Arthur. The first report of the affair reached the headquarters of the Provincial Police yesterday morning from Constable Symon, the officer who discovered the body.

According to Symon's report, the body of Frampton was lying near a trap in which a weasel had been caught. It was apparent that the trapper had attempted to relese the animal from the trap, and in doing so had let his gun drop in such a manner that it exploded one of it's shells while the muzzle pointed at his body.

HUSBAND AND WIFE REUNITED AFTER THIRTY-FIVE YEARS

Man Supposed to Have Perished at Plevna Locates Helpmeet After World-wide Search

NEW YORK, Mar. 31.—A grey-haired man of prosperous appearance rapped timidly upon a door at 37 South Fourth Street, in Williamsburg, this morning. Confronting the man was a woman of about the same age, grey-haired, too.

"Mary, Mary!" he cried, holding out both hands to the woman. "Dont you know me?

With a great sob, the woman threw her arms about the man's neck and her head sunk upon his shoulder as she recognized her long-lost husband.

More than 35 years ago Alfred Welland then a prosperous British resident of Cairo Egypt, became involved in Eypto-Turkish politics. He enlisted in the Turkish army at the outbreak of the Turkish-Russian war. In 1877 the rumor swept through Egypt that a terrible battle had been fought at Plevna, and that thousands had been killed, among them Captain Alfred Welland. The wife, upon receiving information that her husband had been buried in an unnamed grave, sold her home in Cairo and left the country.

Two years after the battle at Plevna, Welland returned to Cairo, a worn and emaciated veteran of the war. It was Alfred Welland who had been left for dead upon the battlefield and had fallen a prisoner to the enemy. His wife and child had disappeared. Friends told him they had gone to Australia. He followed and heard finally they had gone to America.

From New York he went to Canada and settled in Montreal. The years brought him success. He never married again, and for a long time followed many false clues as to his family.

Today he came to New York and went to the address his friends had given him It was his wife who opened the door to him. She, too, had remained faithful to him and never married.

To-night Mrs. Welland's old home was closed. She and her husband were on their way to Boston to see their son He will not know until to-morrow morning that he has a father.

Mr. and Mrs. Welland will live in Montreal, where he has a home ready for her. He is 60 years old and she about the same age.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND

VINOL FOR RUN-DOWN PEOPLE

If any one person should know the value of medicines it is the druggist who dispenses them and from our experience we want to say if people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) at this season of the year, we would not be able to supply the demand.

This is because Vinol is a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of cods' livers without the oil, and iron for the blood.

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, should try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you—Red Cross Drug Store J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

TROUSERS FOR WOMEN

"The blossom cannot tell what becomes of the odor, and no man can tell what becomes of his example, that rolls away from him and goes beyond his ken on its perilous mission."—H. W. Beecher.

It is stated as an actual fact that the first pair of trousers have actually been worn by a woman in daylight and undisguised. The new costume is invented by a Parisian tailor, of course. It consists of a short coat, and a wrap-over skirt which fastens in front over the trousers. The latter are creased as a man's and turned up around the ankle. Its inventor claims that the costume is practical and convenient, and the trousers being made of the same material as the skirt are not nearly so conspicuous as are the silk stockings which are visible through the slit and slashed skirts and only the turned up ends of the trousers can be seen when the skirt is fastened. There is no doubt that something of the sort is bound to come before long. All women's dress is tending towards the elimination of the skirt. Nowadays with so many professional women, athletic women, women engaged in men's trades, etc., it is inevitable that some form of practical dress will have to be designed to meet their requirements, and a general simplification has been going on for some time past. Skirts without fulness, plain coats, the disappearance of the petticoat, and so forth all show the trend of ideas, while for some time past in Alpine sports, in riding, in mountain climbing and in other occupations where there is risk to life and limb the skirt has been altogether dispensed with and no one has seemed to be greatly agitated or shocked about it. The change has come about so gradually that it has scarcely been noticed, and the eccentricities and freaks of fashion keep the attention of the public rivetted upon them while all the time the real and vital changes are taking place and by the time the public wake up to the fact have become accepted. Bicycling for women was the beginning of it, and sports and professions have developed it. It is no uncommon thing for little girls nowadays to be dressed exactly like their brothers when at the seaside or in the country, and it will not be long before the older girls and women adopt the same costume if they find it practical and comfortable, and so by degrees it is likely that a mannish style of dress will be used for everyday wear, though I doubt if the skirt will ever be abandoned for house and smart wear. But you never can tell.

KEEPING ACCOUNTS

Enter Each Item and Thus Avoid a Muddle

Most women are not nearly sufficiently particular aboutu keeping accounts—they are apt to think it is dull and unnecessary work. It is quite a mistaken attitude to adopt, however, for it is only by keeping accounts that a woman can learn how to manage her money in the best and most advantageous way. Certainly women of every degree and position will find their money covers much more ground when they see the wisdom that lies in keeping regular accounts.

Accounts must be kept in the right way, but that does not necessitate a great deal of work, and any elaborate book-keeping is misplaced. One large account book and a set of small ones are required—the large one to be balanced up once a month, the small ones being for weekly accounts. The small books must be divided up under various headings, according to the various calls that are made upon a woman's pocket. The latter vary so much according to individual responsibilities that it is impossible to generalize. Anyway, one book should be devoted to each department in which money is chiefly spent, and quarterly or monthly or weekly (as the case may be) the money which has to cover certain things should be systematically divided among them. This must be entered into each of the respective books, on one side as "Money received," and on the opposite side must be entered a full and complete account of "Money spent." It is most essential that every item should be regularly entered in the right little book on both the credit and debit sides. It is not an atom of good for women to follow the example of the schoolboy who kept his accounts like this: Collection, 10 cents; car fares, 25 cents; sundries, $3.50; total money spent, $5. That is only waste of time and energy. Accounts are kept so that one can tell exactly how every cent has been spent—the importance of entering each item immediately cannot be too strongly emphasized. The items, however, should not be enumerated when balancing the small books into the monthly one—then it is only necessary to put the covering heading which appears on the outside of each little book.

It is wise to keep all old account books. If some one item of expenditure is shown for no apparent reason, a reference to last year's books will often show where the reason lies. The advantages of keeping accounts are many, and such that no woman can fail to appreciate once she determines to give up a little of her spare time to keeping the books in order.

Do not always judge by appearances. Sometimes the girl with a kodak smile has a cartoon temper.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Powder New Gloves

Powder the insides of new gloves to make them easier to slip on, and also, in the case of colored kid ones, to prevent the dye from staining the hands.

Keep Eggs Cool

The cooler eggs are the quicker they will froth when whipped, so they should be beaten in a cool place. A pinch of salt always cools and freshens them.

Will Remove Fruit Stains

Vegetable and fruit stains on the fingers can be removed by dipping the fingers in very strong tea for a few minutes and then washing them in clear, warm water.

Grease the Saucepan

If bright saucepans and kettles have to be used over a smoky fire, smearing a little grease over the bright part will prevent the smoke from blackening the metal. If washed after use in hot water, the pan will be as bright as ever.

To Improve Cakes

When using dripping for making a cake, add a few drops of essence of lemon or the juice of a lemon, and it will be found that this will not only remove the fatty flavor which cakes so often have when made with dripping—especially mutton—but will very greatly improve the flavor.

Coffee Stains Removable

The most difficult of all stains to take out are those made by coffee. With care, however, the stain can be removed from the most delicate silk or woollen fabrics. Rub the mark gently with a little pure glycerine, then rinse it in lukewarm water, lay a cloth over the damp part on the wrong side, and press with a cool iron until dry. Do not wet more of the material than is absolutely necessary.

Frying Need Not Smell

If the disagreeable smell of frying pervades the house, examine the bottom of the frying-pan, and you will find it covered with burnt fat which smells as soon as it is hot. To prevent the smell, besides washing the pan with strong soda water just after it has been used, it is necessary to boil it out in a larger vessel with soda in the water. Rinse, put in some clean water, and the smell will no longer exist.

China Cement

A tried cement for cracked china is this: Mix the white of an egg with sufficient powdered lime to make a paste. Apply it to the broken edges, press firmly together and place the article where it will not be distuurbed until the paste is hardened.

Starching Dark Goods

To starch black, navy blue or other dark wash goods, use gelatine instead of starch and there will be no streaks. Pour one quart of boiling water over one teaspoon of gelatine which has been soaked in a little cold water. Strain and use lukewarm.

To Restore Black Lace

To freshen old black lace, soak it in vinegar and water—two tablespoonfuls of vinegar to a pint of water. Rinse and iron while slightly damp.

A Dainty Gift

Buy some inner soles and sew pink ribbon about four inches wide around them, closing at the back with an overhand seam. On the upper edge of this ribbon, about a half inch from the top, make a small tuck through which you run a rubber cord that will draw up the ribbon to the foot.

The New Color

"I suppose," said the new saleswoman, "that you want a suit that will make you look attractive to your husband?" "Attractive to my husband!" echoed the shopper. "I should say not. He wouldn't know if I wore a suit ten years old. What I want is something that will make my next-door neighbor turn a pale pink green with envy."

If, instead of throwing away used corks, they are kept in a jar with a little coal oil, they will be found a great help when lighting fires. Also orange and lemon peel, when dried, quickly ignites, and there is not so much wood needed.

A PROGRESSIVE POLICY

From a detailed explanation of the Canadian canal system given in the House of Commons last week, we find that four contracts have been let for sections one, two, three and five of the Welland Canal. These four sections were let first because they are the heaviest part of the whole work. They will take the longest time to complete, and it was considered necessary to have them started at the earliest possible moment.

"Tenders were called for those four sections," said Hon. Mr. Reid, "and I am pleased to say that the tenders received in each case were lower than those estimated by our engineers who have charge of this great work. Based on the tenders received, the four sections are estimated to cost $20,150,000, or several millions less than was estimated. There is another section, known as Number 8, for which tenders will be called in a short time. This is the last of the heavier work, and the remaining contracts will not be let for some little time, as they will take a much shorter time to complete, and it is not thought advisable to have that part of the work under construction until the present works are very much advanced, so that the work may be brought to completion about the same time. It was estimated by our engineers, in charge of this work, before any tenders were called, that the whole when completed would cost $50,000,000. If the contracts yet to be let continue within the estimates to the same extent as those already dealt with, this amount will be materially reduced."

Dr. Reid announced that the Trent Valley Canal would be under contract or completed by the end of the year. An entrance from Lake Ontario to the Trent Canal will be completed by the end of the coming fiscal year.

"The western end, from Georgian Bay to Lake Simcoe," explained Dr. Reid, "is divided into four sections. One section (known as the Severn River) has been let to the York Construction Company, and for sections No. 2 tenders are now being called; the remaining sections will, in the near future, be let, and the whole work will be proceeded with as fast as possible. When these last mentioned sections are let the whole system, from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay, will be under contract or completed, and the work to be done will be pushed forward as fast as possible, and the time is not far distant when the whole canal will be under operation."

LIFTING THE MASK

The Albany correspondent of the New York Herald, reviewing the closing night of the session, says: "Politicians are agreed that Governor Glynn has made clear his decision. He has cast his lot with Tammany and the regulars. Through the patronage he has given to Tammany in the big appointments politicians declare the Governor has built a bulwark around Charles F. Murphy's leadership that will withstand for years the assaults of the Mitchel-Malone combination. The Governor's decision was not made hastily, nor is it uncertain, leaders declare. With the legislature ended and the nomination for Governor only a few months removed, Mr. Glynn has taken his stand with the old organization and has turned his back on the new Democracy of the national administration. Unless all signs fail, Mr. Glynn will be the Tammany stand-pat Democratic nominee for Governor."

WHAT TO DO FOR SORE THROAT

SOME GOOD ADVICE BY A SPECIALIST.

As there seems to be a regular epidemic of Sore Throats this winter, the following valuable recipe will be welcomed by many. A sore throat is a dangerous complaint to trifle with, as the bronchial tubes lead directly to the lungs and the disease often travels along these tubes into the lungs and there sets up an inflammation that invariably results in serious lung trouble.

At the first sign of soreness in the throat or around the tonsils you should secure from your chemist 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take this home and add to it ¼-pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist sugar. Stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will give instant relief and will usually cure the worst throat within 48 hours. The healing and soothing of this formula are unequalled and every person suffering with a bad throat should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, who make a specialty of it.

AN ENORMOUS ANNUAL RENTAL

In his exhaustive analysis of the Gutelius-Lynch-Staunton report, Dr. Reid in the House gave the following statement, showing the cost of the Eastern Division of the National Transcontinental Railway, for the purpose of basing the amount of annual rental which the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will be required to pay under the agreement. Based on the estimated cost submitted by the chief engineer at $161,307,800, and on the supposition that the road will be completed and handed over to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway on the 1st January, 1915, and capitalizing the expenditure at 3%, as provided in the agreement, for the purpose of the rental, the figures are:—

Interest during construction at 3% to December 31st, 1913	15,136,289.00
Estimated interest on expenditure to December 31st, 1914	5,293,322.67
Capital cost for rental purposes at January 1st, 1915	$181,737,411.67
Interest on $181,737,411.67 at 3% capitalized for 7 years (Jan. 1, 1915, to Dec. 31st, 1922)	41,776,681.31
Capital cost estimated to January 1st, 1923, for rental purposes	$223,514,092.98

If the road does not earn 3% in excess of working expenditure for the three years ending December 31st, 1925, and the interest is added to capital for those three years, adding $20,725,791.30 to capital cost, making the estimated cost of the railway for rental purposes $244,239,884.28. Upon this last the Grand Trunk Pacific would be required, under the agreement, to pay an annual rental of $7,327,196.54

It is this tremendously heavy rental which will make low freight rates on the Transcontinental a practical impossibility.

Dr. Reid's statement revealed another source of trouble in the Transcontinental situation from a public standpoint:—

This means, on the expenditure to 31st December, 1914, that there will be a clear loss to the country of $3,393,230,33, and this will continue throughout the term of the lease, which is for fifty years. During the entire period of fifty years this loss will amount to $908,687.00 per annum, or a total of $45,433,900.00 for the entire term of the lease.

One of G. P. Graham's chief grievances lies in the fact that the Borden Government gave to the world the awful details of the carnival of waste on the Transcontinental. Natural enough. The Laurier Government was very strong on covering things up and keeping down lids. They never did like to have the light turned on, and, in view of what is now known can you blame them?

The Buffalo News complains that thousands of appointments have been held up and the only explanation that is available is that President Wilson has waited to have votes on measures that he wanted before he would pass out any of the patronage expected by those who made him President or who supported him as head of their party and the candidate duly chosen. It looks like The News wants something and can't get it.

Woodstock Review: "Undoubtedly there is much to be learned from the experiences of other countries, notably Great Britain, the United States and Germany, and much valuable information might be secured by an investigation of conditions elsewhere to serve as a guide for future development here." DARK BROWN

(By W. Werner)

All day Lina Lee had been happy and hopeful, yet here had been a thousand untoward happenings. Lina had worn her rubbers, but she loaned them to little Eva Allen, who had a cold and went home through the slush with no other covering for her feet than her well worn brown shoes.

Lina's rich Aunt Beatrice had written to say that she was sending her a new gown and some other things.

Just now Lina wanted a new gown more than anything else, for next week there was to be a dance, and Clayton Branch had asked her to go with him. Clayton Branch was the auburn-haired, red-cheeked cousin of the manager and he had come from some place in the country to work in the store. Long ago Aunt Beatrice had promised her a pale blue satin dancing frock, and doubtless this was what had arrived.

She lightly skipped up the front steps. Mrs. Cable sat in the parlor talking to a caller and cried out to Lina. "A box arrived for you by parcel post, my dear, and I took it up to your room."

"Oh, thank you!" chirped Lina, and flew upwards as if on wings.

Mindless of everything save the mystery of that parcel, Lina cut the cords with fingers that trembled. Within was the gown folded under dainty layers of white tissue paper. "Oh, I hope it's got a pink satin rose on the girdle!" she whispered to herself.

Then she snatched away the paper. She did not cry out at what she saw, but she went whiter than anything in the room. Where she had expected to find shimmery blue satin, with perhaps a pink rose, was only a dark brown serge made in the plainest possibly way, most unmistakably an everyday gown to be worn at her work in the store.

Lina was sensible, and she had the most grateful heart in the world. She was only twenty-one, but she had been earning her own living for three years—ever since her father died, and things generally went to smash—and she had learned some things. One of these things was to look a disagreeable fact in the eye and see how much that was not disagreeable could be got out of it.

"I'm glad to get them", Lina said gravely. "I'll try it right on and see if it fits, though it's pretty apt to, for Aunt Beatrice has all my measurements."

But down in the bottom of her heart was a terrible ache. She had so counted on that blue satin. Until this moment she did not realize how absolutely necessary it was to her happiness. It seemed to her now that she could not go to the dance with Clayton Branch. She had nothing to go in.

She knew perfectly well what would happen when she told Clayton Branch she could not go. His red hair spelled trouble when it came to reason and patience. He would be violently angry. And doubtless he would turn right around and ask Alice Edwards to go in her stead.

Lina did not go down to dinner. She had a headache and no appetite, she told the landlady, who lumbered up to see why she was absent, also to see what had come in the box.

"My, that's a nice dress, now ain't it, my dear? What a good auntie you have got! And it's dark brown like all your things, though I've sometimes wondered at your wearing one color so much, my dear, more especially as you're dark complected. But that's according as you chooses, I'm sure."

Lina's pretty mouth gave one quiver. "Oh, I don't choose", she burst out. "It was Aunt Beatrice began it. She wears dark brown, and I suppose she thinks that what looks well on her will look just the same on me. And the first dark brown dress she gave me I had to have things to go with it. And I got them, and I've just kept on wearing them ever since. But some times everything looks d-dark brown to me and I hate it—I hate it!"

And thereupon Lina crumpled up on Mrs. Cable's large shoulder and sobbed a little. And Mrs. Cable, who had been a girl before she was a hard worked boarding-house mistress, patted her shoulder and told her not to mind, it was always darkest just before dawn and so on. Then she went down to set the table for breakfast and Lina was left to try on her new dark brown dress and make the best of her disappointment.

Next morning Lina felt the result of a cold store and a pair of wet feet. She had such a sore throat as she never remembered having, she ached all over and could not get out of bed. Mrs. Cable telephoned to the manager that she was too ill to leave the house; she also called a doctor.

So Lina lay abed and listened to the rain and had feverish, unhappy thoughts of being too ill to go to the dance even if she had the most gorgeous gown in the world to wear. All at once the light seemed to have gone out, she had become unconscious.

It was after four o'clock and night was hurrying out the day when Lina recovered. She heard Mrs. Cable's heavy footed ascent of the stairs. The door opened softly. "Are you asleep, my dear?" came a whisper.

"No. Come in."

Mrs. Cable entered. She lugged a wrapped and corded parcel not unlike the first. "See what has just arrived, my dear", she said. "Another grand parcel!"

Lina sat up in bed, gasping. She rubbed her eyes. "Oh, Mrs. Cable, will you open it?" she begged.

"Surely!" Mrs. Cable knew exactly how to get into an interesting parcel quickly. She cut the cord, ripped off the paper and plucked up the cover. "Shut your eyes till I tell you to open 'em, my dear. I suspect something pretty", she said.

Lina shut her eyes tight. Her heart was going like mad. She heard a rustle, she smelled a scent like flowers. Then all at once the agony of suspense ended. Mrs. Cable commanded, "Look!" and she looked.

Mrs. Cale was holding up a gown, and such a gown! It was a fascinating combination of pale blue satin and fine lace. There was the pink rose, too. And slippers, gloves, stockings, and a scarf—Aunt Beatrice had not only kept her promise, but had outdone herself.

At that moment the door opened and Kitty, Mrs. Cable's maid of all work, came in. She, too, carried a box. But it was a florist's box, long and deep. That Lina would open herself, while Mrs. Cable and the maid looked on eagerly. There were a dozen rubbery stemmed pink roses and a card. If Lina had meant to kiss the roses, she made a mistake, for she kissed the card instead.

"Oh, 'tis grand to be young and have a fine beau!" sighed Mrs. Cable.

Then and there came the doctor. He was an old doctor, yet not so old but that he knew what joy blue satin and pink roses can bring to a girl's heart. He smiled as he looked at Lina sitting in the midst of the littered bed.

"Oh, doctor", cried Lina, "don't you suppose I'll be perfectly well by Friday night?"

The doctor had his experienced finger on her pulse. He smiled again teasingly. "I shouldn't wonder", he said.

A woman without an opinion is like an egg without salt, but much less common.

It now appears that a question arises as to the genuineness of some of the Hoe Books. Experts do not all agree that they are the originals. This should be of slight consequence to those who have paid their thousands for them.

The Secret of Health is Elimination of Waste

Every business man knows how difficult it is to keep the pigeon holes and drawers of his desk free from the accumulation of useless papers. Every housewife knows how difficult it is to keep her home free from the accumulation of all manner of useless things. So it is with the body. It is difficult to keep it free from the accumulation of waste matter. Unless the waste is promptly eliminated the machinery of the body soon becomes clogged. This is the beginning of most human ills.

OIL AND GAS

The Bureau of Mines Reviews Prospects in Canada

The annual report of the mines branch of the Department of Mines makes the statement that Canada possesses gas and oil fields of considerable value, which, if developed, may rival those of the United States. Hitherto, oil as liquid fuel has been used in North America only in the United States, and the report states that there is no reason why Canadians should not also avail themselves of its advantages. It also points out that an increasing demand for liquid fuel has of late constituted one of the outstanding features in power development; and observes that, while the oil business has generally been viewed as a gambling enterprise, and many companies have conducted it as such, the days of taking great chances are past. Dealing with the possibilities of the different Canadian provinces, the experts in the employ of the mines branch, who have compiled the report, say that in Alberta deposits are considerable, but the cost of drilling is high. Of the northern Alberta field, they point out, that it has as yet produced no oil in commercial quantities. The same is true of British Columbia and Manitoba. The district between Regina and Moose Jaw and the Alberta border in Saskatchewan is reported to offer chances for oil operators. The province of Quebec gives no indication at the present time of developing fields of either petroleum or natural gas. New Brunswick oil fields, however, show considerable promise, and of Ontario, the statement is made that "the production both of petroleum and natural gas is on the decline and the total depletion of the underground supply is approaching."

Coals in Baths

At an inquiry into the housing conditions in the Holytown, New Stevenston, Carfin, and Newarthill districts, there was a difference of opinion as to whether baths should be provided. Mr. Hall Nicol, builder, declared that he had provided some of his properties with baths, but he found that they were not made proper use of. In one case he found coals in the bath, and in another bath the feathers of a bed were stored.

THE LOVER IN THE AIR

By GEORGE EDGAR

I.

Miss May Paulton was pursuing her career. The career was art, and at the moment it consisted of earnest attempts to render the sunlight blazing on the downs. There was no particular reason why May should pursue anything in the form of a career, beyond the fact that she was a typical modern young woman, who believed that members of her sex are as capable as men, and that she, a particularly bright member of it, had a destiny larger than being a mere social idler, with marriage as the apex of her dreams. The career, therefore, was painting, and the results justified the choice, for the picture on the easel, unfinished as it was, betrayed considerable knowledge of technique and what some garrulous artists call "feeling."

She had chosen to cycle five miles to the scene she was industriously trying to reproduce, and, for the purpose of making the day longer by being independent of such country places of refreshment as were available on her route, had brought her luncheon, daintily packed in a neat basket. May was having a delightful morning, uninterrupted, in a congenial task, and miles away from anyone, when two things happened.

A gipsy woman appeared, apparently from nowhere. She was dark-skinned, bold-eyed, and had the brazen mysticism which some gipsy women still possess—the gipsies who are nearly vagrants, and exist by hawking trifles and telling fortunes while their men folk idle about small racecourses, or commit petty larceny.

"Cross my hand with a piece of silver, pretty lady, and I will tell you about the husband waiting for you—the handsome, fair man with the blue eyes. I can see him," the woman with the bold black eyes said, mystically—"I can see him in the skies."

It was on the tip of May's tongue to say "Nonsense!" But after all she was distinctly feminine, and at least it promised to be an adventure.

She opened a well-filled purse and passed a shilling across the gipsy woman's palm. The dark woman's fingers closed on the coin, and her eager eyes lit up as they lingered, for a second, on the contents of the purse.

Following the usual nonsense of flattery and prediction, the gipsy droned the fortune out, mechanically: "I can see the life of a pretty girl who is generous, high-minded, and clever. She is not appreciated." May smiled, unconvinced. "She has had her troubles, but they are over. There ar etwo men—one is dark. She must beware of him—he wants her money. Another is fair, with blue eyes; a brave, fearless gentleman. The lady will marry the fair gentleman with the blue eyes; but not before she has trouble with the dark man." And so on.

At first it amused May. But the gipsy wanted her hand crossed with silver again. May tendered another shilling, but this did not suffice. The gipsy departed from her method of fawning flattery, and became rude. May told her very pointedly that the incident had ceased to be a jest.

"If you do not go on at once," she said, stamping her foot, "I'll mount my bicycle and bring the police."

"Not so fast, my pretty lady," said the gipsy woman, with a sneer. "You are a good way from the police, and if you will not cross my hand with more silver, I'll do it for myself."

The gipsy woman's brown hand clutched at May's white hand which held the purse. May struck at her feebly with a light and inadequate paint-brush.

The gipsy laughed. "'Erb!" she cried.

'Erb appeared—he had apparently been concealed in some bushes near by. He was a monstrously big, dark-skinned gipsy, in velvet and corduroy. His movements were slow and lazy. His face was sullen, and his eyes were shifty.

"What's the rumpus?" he growled.

"This hussy has let me tell her fortune and won't pay, and she has struck me. I'm going to help myself."

"That's all right," growled 'Erb. He clutched at May's elbows from the back, and she gave a frightened scream. As she stood there, fixed and frightened, the gipsy woman seized the purse.

"Hurry up, old girl," 'Erb said; "I can hear a noise like a motor."

A voice at the back of the tree startled them. "If I were you," it said, in the clean-cut, even tones of an English public school man, "I should do three things—I mean you two gipsy rascals."

'Erb freed the girl's elbows, and they all turned round to inspect the newcomer. He was a big, upstanding Englishman, dressed in tweeds, and without a hat. His hair was fair, and there was a smile on his lean face, while his blue eyes mocked the gipsy's glowering glances.

"What would you do if you were us?" the gipsy growled, rudely.

"One of the three things you have already done by unhanding the lady. The other duty is to give her back her purse. The last duty is to apologize humbly and get out."

The nonchalant, careless air of the new-comer cowed the gipsies. May, on looking at this six feet of confident manhood, not only recovered from her brief fright, but began to enjoy the situation.

"Suppose we don't?" said 'Erb, truculently.

"There is no supposing," the fair man answered. "This is not a children's game. You just do it now, or——"

"Or what?" 'Erb growled.

"I'll give you the biggest hiding you have ever deserved, you brown-skinned bully, and I'll have you and that black-eyed fury in the hands of the police in ten minutes, or my name's not Rupert for nothing!"

'Erb rushed at the laughing man facing him. It was the mistake of his life. Rupert knocked both his hands up as he came on, with the practised ease of a professional boxer, caught the gipsy a heavy blow in the velvet waistcoat, which sent his head forward, and knocked the head back with a second blow which toppled the gipsy on to the long grass.

"To resume where I was interrupted," Rupert began, turning to the gipsy woman—"the lady is waiting for her purse."

The gipsy woman smiled with the wheedling flattery of the fortune-teller. She handed May the purse.

"It was only a little play-acting," she said.

"Yes," said Rupert, "a melodrama with a comic stage-villain and a second-hand gipsy fortune-teller in it, trying to frighten the defenceless heroine. It is lucky I turned up, because melodrama never goes really well without the hero."

The man rose slowly. "I'm sorry," he growled at May.

"Don't mention it, Mr. 'Erb," she replied.

"Is that enough?—curse you!" 'Erb asked, surlily, turning to Rupert.

"Quite. Take him away before I hurt him," Rupert replied, looking at the Gipsy woman.

They both began to shamble away in the direction of the road.

May picked up her paints and turned to her picture, and, though her hand trembled, Rupert admiringly noted that she was under superb control, and did not show a hint of her recent fright.

II.

After a pause May spoke. "It was very kind of you to get me out of such a difficulty," she began, absent-mindedly painting in a piece of cloud.

"Most opportune," he admitted, "and quite orthodox. Enter the hero, 'Sirrah, unhand that girl,' biff! biff! and curtain, so to speak, with the villain dismissed in ignominy. Still, jesting apart, I'm glad to have been of use."

"Where did you enter?" May asked, curiously. "I thought we had the stage to ourselves, and certainly you were not in the wings."

"I came from the clouds," he answered, airily.

She started. "Now, that's really strange," she began, and laughed merrily.

"There is nothing strange about it," he answered.

"There is," she said.

"Well, yes, he admitted; "if you say so, there is. You might tell me."

"That bold-faced gipsy virago wheedled me into having my fortune told."

His eyes gleamed. "Oh, I know," he answered, readily. "Lovers by the dozen—I'll cut 'em all down," he began, glibly melodramatic. "Troubles with Italian gentleman—I'll smash him. You are going to travel—I'll follow you. You are going to be as rich as Carnegie—I'll stop and share it. But beware of the——"

She put up her hand to stop him. "How absurdly you ramble. But she said my lover was in the clouds—she could see him there."

He stopped his laughing banter.

"She said I should have trouble with a dark man, and I had, immediately, from her bully of a companion."

He smiled, in spite of himself. "Ah! she knew that—the black-eyed minx!"

"Yes, but she described you—a fair man, with blue eyes. Now, isn't it odd that it should literally happen almost three minutes after she had spoken?"

"She was inspired—the jade! But how could she know I was in the clouds?" he asked.

May laughed in turn. "She was not quite right, though. She said you were a handsome man. I'm afraid you are not the right one," she suggested slyly.

He pretended to be very angry.

"At all events, you turned up at the right moment," she said, relenting. "Do you happen to have had lunch?"

"No," he responded, promptly. "The fact of the matter is that I am here for lunch, and I'm as hungry as a lean wolf."

"Then mine shall be the Spartan woman's mission—to feed the warrior." She brought out the neat luncheon basket as she spoke.

Together they sat over an impromptu picnic, and Rupert astonished the girl by the vigor of his appetite.

They made a hilarious hour of it.

"I must be going," she said at length. "I have to get back to Saddleborough."

"What! Five miles?" he asked. "How will you do it?"

"On my bicycle," she replied. "How do you get back?"

"Oh, I shall fly there," he said, in his mock heroic manner. "I shall go wafted on the wings of love—the fair man with the blue eyes riding the gipsy's cloud."

"She laughed. "Well, if you haven't a car or a bicycle, you'll be a long time. I wish I could give you a share of my bicycle."

"Oh, I shall be there before you," he replied.

"Impossible—on foot! The nearest station is two miles."

"Yes, but I'm a wizard. Where do you go in Saddleborough, may I ask?"

"To the Oaks," she answered.

"I know—Dr. Ellimore's place. He's an old friend of mine. We were at Oxford together."

"He is my uncle," she explained. "I am staying there for the summer."

"Well, I'll make a sporting bet with you. I'll give you ten minutes on the bicycle, and undertake to be there first. If I am, you owe me six kisses; if I am not, I'll owe you a dozen pairs of gloves."

She looked around the empty horizon. She remembered the long road to the nearest station, and she was convinced. "It's a bet," she answered.

He helped to pack the easel and paints, and waved his hand as she mounted her machine.

"You are a very reckless man," she suggested.

"I give you ten clear minutes," he answered. "I shall kiss you six times, during the day, or you'll be owing them to me."

"I don't know how you are going to do it, but"—her eyes shot a swift challenge—"I'll pay if I lose."

"Well, good-bye."

"No motor-car and no bicycle—remember."

"Honest Injun," he answered, and waved his hand as he saw her push on, rapidly, along the nearly white highway.

III.

May laughed to herself as she steadily drove the bicycle along the road to Saddleborough.

"It was really astonishing that he should turn up with his blue eyes and fair hair. I begin to believe in gipsies. And he really has a nice smile. Yes, and there's some good in a man after all, when he plies such a—what do the sporting papers call it?—such a straight left. But I shall win my dozen of gloves. I don't think he can possibly arrive. He certainly cannot run there faster than I can cycle, with ten minutes' start. And I know there is no train until nearly six.

She was musing thus as she sped speedily on the way to Saddleborough. She did not lose any time, because she was not quite sure of her knight of the afternoon. He had a whimsical, laughing face, but he seemed to be astonishingly able to take care of himself, and to be an unlikely man to make rash bets, which would result in his humiliation before her uncle, the doctor, and herself.

She remembered also the final assurance that he would claim the kisses. Woman-like she did not wish to see him win, and yet half hoped he would.

She had eaten up a good three miles of her journey—the road winding past her like a piece of white ribbon—when the sound of something like a motor behind made the girl start.

"No, it cannot be him," she thought, as instinctively she associated the noise with her cavalier. "I am sure he would not break the conditions." She tossed her head at the thought of it. "Any way, I shall not pay."

The noise behind her increased, but she did not look round. It was different from any motor she had ever heard. The rhythmic beat of the engine was the same, but there was no noise of wheels on the road, and the sound seemed high above her.

Her doubt was soon removed. The noise behind was rapidly overhauling her. It was practically upon May, but she would not stay her course and turn round. In some instinctive way she associated the sound with Rupert.

Her instinct was right. A voice challenged her. "Hullo! Hullo! Hullo!" it sang out—overhead.

Something dark flew above her, and ahead, in the air, about a hundred yards high. She recognized it at a glance as a very up-to-date form of the biplane. She could see its driver perched on a precarious seat under the big wings. And she would have recognized him, if she had not already recognized his voice. The great fabric dipped a little and swung round. Its driver waved his hand as he circled about her. She could hear the whirr of the engine, and above it all, as the biplane resumed its direction, the sound of his voice.

"Six kisses at six," he was shouting, in a triumphant song.

She stopped her machine and dismounted.

"Bounder!" she cried, half in laughter, half in earnest, and moved her hand menacingly.

He swept round once more, and again, over the whirr of the machinery, she could hear his voice, still singing a sort of chant: "See you at six! Six kisses at six!" Then, with a final wave of his hand, the driver of the biplane turned towards Saddleborough, and the big white wings, gleaming in the sun quickly drew away until they receded to the size of a seagull, and finally vanished altogether.

May did not hurry to her uncle's home. She was feeling, again, the temporary weakness of her sex and the crushing capability of the male. And she was also busily employed on possibilities of evading the price. It was just about 5.30 when she reached the Oaks at Saddleborough. She pushed her bicycle hastily into the coach-house, and went towards the Hall.

Her uncle, Dr. Ellimore, sat under a shady tree and in a big cane chair on the lawn. He was listening and laughing to another man, who sat lazily stretched in another deep chair. As she drew near to him, her instinctive guess at the identity of the stranger was right.

"My niece, Miss Vincent," Dr. Ellimore explained, introductorily. "An old friend of mine—Rupert Dering. He has just dropped in from the skies."

Rupert bowed, and she blushed—ever so slightly.

"His machine is over there, in the Dingle Meadow. It is Rupert's idea of a surprise. He always was a high flier, and now he has taken to it seriously," the doctor explained.

May quickly pointed out to her uncle that she had seen Rupert before, and detailed the adventure with the gipsy.

"I was delighted to be of use," Rupert added. "Saw them from above, just as I was coming down to tighten a stay, and got there at the psychological moment. It was quite melodramatic, wasn't it?"

"Very," she said, grudgingly.

A maid brought tea, and May was busily engaged in serving it out. "There's a serious question I would like to ask you, uncle," she began at length.

"Delighted! I am the human encyclopaedia for Saddleborough," he answered.

"Do you know anything about machinery?" she asked.

"Almost everything," he said. "It is my consuming hobby when I am not filling up Saddleborough with pills and powders."

"Well, you might give me your personal opinion, and give it carefully." She looked at Rupert. "Would you consider that motor-car described a biplane?" she asked, almost in a whisper.

Rupert hung on his answer.

"Good heavens, no!" Dr. Ellimore answered. "No more than I should consider the word duck described a swallow."

"Then I'll pay," she said, demurely, looking across at their guest.

Rupert kissed her six times, and she was unresisting. As he did so, the Saddleborough clock struck six.

"Hang it, sir!" began the doctor. "What's the meaning of this osculatory outrage? Has the world gone mad?"

"Fortune of war, uncle," she explained, adding the details.

"Fortune of love," whispered Rupert into a not unwilling ear in the dusk.

May Dering's career now is not art. It is often spent in wondering, with a certain amount of sporting pride and conjugal foreboding, whether her husband, Rupert, will arrive home safely after his latest exploit in the air; but, as he says, he has all the luck, and she adds under her breath, a share of the pluck as well.

REPEAL BILL PASSES

House of Representatives Gives Big Majority For Wilson.

In Spite of Every Effort of Both Republican and Democrat Jingoes to Prevent It, Plea of President For Honorable Course In Observing Treaty Is Responded To—Senate Fight Will Be Spectacular.

WASHINGTON, April 1. — The House of Representatives last night, after one of the most spectacular legislative struggles in the history of the nation, voted to repeal the provision of the Panama Canal Act, exempting American vessels from the payment of tolls. The vote on the repeal bill was 247 to 161, a majority of 86 votes in support of the personal plea of Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States.

This verdict on the issue which has absorbed Congress for many weeks came at the close of a stirring day, made memorable in the annals of the House by a party division which found Speaker Champ Clark, Majority Leader Underwood and other Democratic chieftains, lined up in open opposition to the President on an issue which the latter had declared vital to his conduct of the nation's foreign policy.

Yesterday's result was but the beginning of victory for the administration, within the party for the first time since democracy took control of the Government a year ago. To-day the bill goes to the Senate, where the fight will be renewed with all the vigor and determination that attended it in the lower House.

On the final vote 220 Democrats in the House stood by the President giving him in "ungrudging measure" what he had asked "for the honor of the nation" in its foreign relations. Twenty-five Republicans and two Progressives also voted to sustain the President. Fifty-two Democrats followed Speaker Clark and Mr. Underwood to defeat in their steadfast determination that the President was wrong in his decision that toll exemption for American ships is a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with Great Britain.

BAR ASSOCIATION FORMED.

J. A. M. Aikins of Winnipeg Is President of National Body.

OTTAWA, April 1.—The Canadian Bar Association, the formation of which has been long the idea of the Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, took definite form at a meeting in the railway committee room of the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. Representatives from all the provinces, including a number of members of Parliament, were present and a constitution based largely upon that of the American Bar Association adopted.

The principal officers were elected as follows: Hon. President, Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice; hon. vice-presidents, the Attorneys-General of Canada; president, J. A. M. Aikins, K.C., M.P., of Winnipeg; secretary, E. Fabre, K.C., Montreal; associate secretary, R. W. McCraig, Winnipeg; treasurer, J. F. Orde, K.C., Ottawa, and a vice-president from each province.

AGAINST NAVAL AID.

Vancouver Orangemen Oppose It Until Ulster Trouble Is Settled.

VANCOUVER, April 1. — At a meeting of the Vancouver Orange Lodge a resolution was passed pledging the members "individually and collectively to oppose to the utmost of our power any movement on the part of the Canadian Government towards aiding the British navy until the Home Rule question has been submitted to the electors of the United Kingdom."

Money Sent For Both Sides.

DAWSON, Y.T., April 1.—At a largely attended meeting of those in sympathy with the opposition of Ulster to Home Rule a fund was opened and a large sum of money was cabled to Sir Edward Carson. The supporters of Home Rule cabled John Redmond a large sum also.

Fifty Thousand Miners Out.

CLEVELAND, O., April 1.—With few exceptions every coal mine in Ohio was closed down indefinitely last night. Local operators estimate that 50,000 miners are affected.

Recent legislation changing the method of payment of miners from the screen plan to the run-of-mines basis is the cause of the shut down, operators refusing to renew contracts expiring to-day until conditions resulting from the new law became more settled.

Noted Artist Dead.

LONDON, April 1—Sir Hubert Van Herkomer, the famous artist, died yesterday at the age of 65. Sir Hubert, who was born in Bavaria, passed several years of his early boyhood in America. In 1857 the family settled in England, where they lived for some years in great poverty. After studying art at various schools young Hubert rapidly gained celebrity. One of his best known pictures is "The Last Muster." He was knighted by King Edward in 1907.

Extend Time For Payment.

OTTAWA, April 1. — The Senate yesterday gave third reading to the bill extending the time for payment of the $500 in lieu of land for South African veterans scrip. Senators T. D. Davis and Cloran claimed this was merely giving a bonus to land speculators and that this should be eliminated. The bill was adopted, however.

In provisions the outcome varied from 10c decline to an advance of 2 1-2c.

HAS TORREON FALLEN?

U. S. Consul Says It Has, But Officials Are Skeptical.

EL PASO, April 1.—Absolutely no confirmation of the first flash of the Torreon fall has yet been received in Carranza's headquarters at Juarez at seven o'clock last night, though it is believed to be true. The first message read:

"Torreon fell at 1.30 this afternoon. (Signed) Ham."

Ham is the American consul at Durango and outranks Vice-Consul Carothers, who is with Villa. Carothers relayed the message to the American consul, Marion Letcher, at Chihuahua, to send it to Juarez, and it was relayed there to Washington. The words "Torreon fell" were preceded by a code word which could not be deciphered by anyone in Carranza's office, and it is thought to have been a part of a State Department code arranged by Washington for its consul. Juarez continues to celebrate and messages are flying in every direction announcing the capitulation. Federal officers on this side remain skeptical.

"No Quarter," Villa's Edict.

JUAREZ, April 1.—"No quarter" is expected to be the edict of Villa, the reported victor at Torreon. It is stated that all that was left of the Federal army of defence was captured, having refused to surrender, and finding escape cut off by rebel troops. Executions are now anticipated by the wholesale, Villa saving only the enlisted for his augmented army, which will move on to Mexico City. The fight had dwindled to a test of endurance, which the Federals cooped in the three remaining cuartels, and fighting for their lives against the rapidly increasing horde of rebel soldiers who swarmed across the nazas and into the town from all sides.

WOULD BETRAY BANDITS.

Anonymous Postal Card May Result In Arrest of Desperadoes.

MONTREAL, April 1. — "Central police station: Dear Sir: If you are willing to pay the reward in advance to me for the capture of Bourret and Foucault I will take your offer and have the men in your hands in twelve hours' time, that I know. Answer by newspapers."

This message, scrambled on a postcard with the local postmark, was received by the Montreal police yesterday morning. It refers to the two bandits who are alleged to have helped in the shooting of two policemen three weeks ago. Two others of the gang are being held for trial. The police have been absolutely unable to locate either Bourret or Foucault, who are believed to be kept in hiding by friends in the city, but the anonymous postcard is believed to furnish a clue leading to a known underworld resort.

Poaching Schooner Confiscated.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 1.—The American fish schooner Valiant, which was captured May 11, 1913, by the Canadian fisheries protection sloop Jolliffe, was declared confiscated yesterday in the Admiralty Court.

The Valiant was seized by the Jolliffe off the northern end of Vancouver Island, where she was alleged to have been fishing close in shore. She raced for the open sea when the Canadian vessel hove in sight, but was overhauled. One thousand pounds of halibut, some of the fish being still alive, were found below.

Thieves Devastated Church.

MONTREAL, April 1.—Failing to find money in St. Joseph's Church after smashing their way into the building through a window, thieves Monday night took the candles off the altar and by their light played cards. Yesterday morning the sanctuary carpet was covered with candle grease, the cards used were found strewn over the floor, while cigar and cigarette butts were found where they had been thrown away. The poor boxes, emptied several days ago, had been broken open, while attempts had been made to open the tabernacle where the sacrament is kept.

COMMUNITY OF INTEREST BETWEEN TOWN AND COUNTRY

Suggestions for Improvements of Conditions Generally on the Farm

Acting on instructions contained in a resolution adopted by the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade in 1913, a special committee has presented a report at the recent annual meeting of the association. The resolution and report are given herewith:—

RESOLUTION.

Whereas the interests of the farming community and the residents of the towns are interdependent;

And whereas there seems to have been a general tendency of the younger men of the farm to leave and go to the town;

And whereas up to the present time there has not been a perfect recognition of the mutual nature of the interests of the town and country;

Therefore be it resolved that the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade suggest to local Boards of Trade that they make an effort to have members of the farming community become members of their Boards of Trade;

And be it further resolved that a committee of this association be appointed to go into the question and communicate with the various organizations representing the farming industry in Ontario, and prepare a report to be presented at the next annual meeting of the association on what improvements can be made to make life on the farm more attractive to the younger members and also to report with regard to what assistance can be given to the farming community in the way of advertising their farming produce in local and foreign markets.

And be it further resolved that the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade petition and recommend the Federal Government to take immediate steps to establish a Department of Immigration presided over by its own Minister.

Belleville, Feb. 23rd, 1914

To the President and members of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, Toronto.

Gentlemen,—Your special committee appointed at the last annual meeting of the association held in London, Ontario, to report on the resolution pertaining to agriculture and immigration, beg to submit the following report:

1. We recommend that officers of local Boards of Trade attend and speak at farmers' meetings, pointing out the advantages farmers derive from membership in Boards of Trade, Canadian Clubs and other city or town organizations.

2. Acting upon the suggestion as contained in the resolution now being reported upon, your committee visited Cheese Boards, Holstein and Ayrshire Breeders' meetings and various banquets given under the auspices of the farming community where those questions were discussed, to ascertain their views as to how best to improve conditions on the farm and induce the younger men to remain there, and from the information received we believe that the following might be recommended as of assistance in this direction.

2nd—Improved roads, giving them easy access to city and town markets at all seasons of the year.

4th—That a larger proportion of Dominion and Provincial Legislation be devoted specifically to the interests of the agricultural community.

5th—That the county school system be improved to such an extent that farmers' children may have the advantages of taking up such subjects as are now taught in the first form at High Schools.

6th—As to advertising, we recommend the co-operation of cities and towns with their respective County Councils and associations in publishing jointly an illustrated booklet setting forth the advantages of their various localities and products. In this way the maximum results will be obtained at the minimum cost and local interest strengthened.

7th—That your committee might have an intelligent and personal knowledge of the immigration system as now conducted by the Dominion and Provincial Governments, a visit was made to the Ontario Government Office in London, England, by members of your special committee who also attended and inspected the work carried on at Quebec, and we believe both the Dominion and Ontario Departments of Immigration are to be congratulated on the present service they are rendering to this country and particularly to the Province of Ontario.

For the present we do not advise the appointment of a Minister of Immigration, but suggest that instead of having all immigrants forwarded to Toronto, that several centres throughout Ontario be selected and a Government agent appointed for each of such centres, to look after all incoming immigrants to see that they are cordially received and welcomed at their respective destinations, furnished with all necessary information, and finally placed with the farmer to whom they are allotted.

We would further suggest that some prominent citizen, preferably the Mayor of the city or Reeve of the municipality or President of the Board of Trade assist the Government representative in welcoming and advising incoming immigrants, as first impressions are in many instances, lasting. We know of a city where the above methods have been practiced with a great measure of success.

—Committee.
John Elliott, Belleville, Convenor.

The above resolution and report as presented by Mr. John Elliott, President of the Belleville Board of Trade to the members of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade in Toronto at their February meeting were copied from the March issue of the Board of Trade News.

"FISHING EXTRAORDINARY"

Located an Auto and Brought it Up

Dr. Heaslip, of Picton, whose automobile sank through the ice near there a few days ago, is again rejoicing in the possession of his property.

The accident happened on the return journey from Adolphustown, about one hundred yards from the shore, and in forty-three feet of water. The doctor's escape was a narrow one. Feeling the ice to be collapsing under the front wheels of the car, he shouted to his companion to jump. The doctor followed quickly, but was precipitated into the water. His companion rescued him while the auto sank—by the bow.

On Saturday the rescue party under John D. Cuilton, located the spot where the accident had taken place, and, after taking a sounding and adjusting the grappling iron the automobile was brought to the service five minutes after the first "bite."

Then a stout cable was fixed to the automobile and with the aid of a tree, a pulley and a team, the catch was landed. Some of the cushions and one lamp were missing, while the windshield was cracked and the top damaged. The damage is estimated at about $150.

While the Bay of Quinte is noted for its fish, we believe that this is the biggest catch yet made in this district—Kingston Whig.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD"

The offering of the for Friday night, at the Griffin Opera House should lure away from many quiet firesides, all sorts of home loving folks whose contented lives, move in slippered courses around the library lamp; that gently glowing sun, which forms the precious solar system, known as "home." Some there be, who fear that the deceitful attraction of the down town bright lights, has become powerful enough to draw those little human planets, known as boys and girls into eccentric orbits, in their dangerous spaces; which seem so beautifully light but are in reality so hideously dark. But surely in millions of American homes, the library lamp, still potently performs its cosmic duty, that of illuminating with irresistable attractiveness, the safe sheltering walls of "The Old Homestead."

"The Old Homestead" is not a play, it is an Institution, so well known and welded into our lives that it is a yearly duty and pleasure, to welcome it into our midst; if the corner stone that gave it to the American stage, could only set an example to our younger playwrights, to so build that its precepts would ever be set down, in their future works, the future of the stage would be assured.

Clean, wholesome, and a constant delight to all, genuinely amusing, and at the same time edifying presenting "no problems but earnestly amusing what more can be desired.

It is doubtful if Denman Thompson himself, knew, how well he was succeeding, when he presented this truly American homily on the life of New England, and all over this great country from the Atlantic to the Pacific not only the sons of New England who perhaps have emigrated to distant parts of this great continent, but the sons of all the states, as well as the daughters, all testify their appreciation of the moral lesson set down hence the longevity of this unique play.

To analyze the reason thereof, would be perhaps as hard a task as that of dissecting a wild flower, to discover the reason of its fragrance, and therefore, it is sufficient to add, that in matter of cast and production it is always as good as of yore. The Old Homestead will appear at Griffin Opera House on Friday April 3—Prices 25c to $1.00. Seat sale now at Doyles Drug Store.

DEBATE GOES ON.

French Members Contribute Share To Discussion on N. T. R.

OTTAWA, April 1.—Some half a dozen speeches were contributed at yesterday's sitting of the House to the debate on the N. T. R. The majority of these were delivered by members from the Province of Quebec including Mr. Sevigny (Con., Dorchester), Mr. Lachance (Lib., C. Quebec), Mr. Power (Lib., W. Quebec), and Mr. Demers (Lib., St. Johns and Iberville.)

Mr. Sevigny, speaking in French, recalled that Sir Wilfrid Laurier in opening the campaign in 1904 in Sorel had boasted that he would build a line from Moncton to Winnipeg for $13,000,000, but now the country found that the bill was not $13,000,000 but $180,000,000 and allowing for interest and other losses the bill would amount to $250,000,000.

Mr. Lachance followed, also in French, and said that the present Government had degraded the standard of the National Transcontinental between Cochrane and Quebec, and had made changes in the terminals at Quebec City against which the Chamber of Commerce had strongly protested.

Mr. McCurdy (Queens and Shelburne), said as a Canadian he was sincerely disappointed at the failure of the Liberals to explain at all the enormous discrepancy between the estimated cost of the road and its actual cost.

William Power, who followed, declared that in building the N. T. R. the Liberal Government would go down in history as having opened up the great hinterlands of Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Logie (Nothumberland) and Mr. Demers (St. Johns and Iberville) continued the debate, both speaking in support of the Graham amendment.

PREYED ON WIDOW.

Mean Thieves Robbed and Wrecked House of Lonely Woman.

MONTREAL, April 1. — Edward Belanger and Joseph Roy, suspected of being two of the three masked men who last week forced an entrance into a house at St. Jerome, occupied by Mrs. Guenette, a widow, and her little granddaughter, were arrested in the city yesterday. Anton Verdun, alleged to be third of the hold-up trio, was arrested at St. Jerome on Saturday.

The three accused are said to have compelled the aged woman, at the point of revolvers, to get supper for them, and the little girl to go out to neighbors to borrow money, saying it was for her grandmother. The child returned with $2, which the bandits appropriate, together with a purse containing about $40. They sent the woman and child to bed and played cards and smoked and damaged furniture. They slept in the house that night and decamped in the morning.

Shot Two Women and Self.

CHICAGO, April 1. — Mrs. Catherine Morris and Mrs. Sarah Sallans, life-long friends and neighbors in the crowded West Side, were shot to death while at work in their homes about a block apart. Peter Welter, a neighborhood character and a boarder in the Sallans home, was found hiding in a closet of his room mortally injured from two bullet wounds.

Outlook For Early Navigation.

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 1.—According to reports from various points, conditions are favorable to an early break up of the ice. The hold in St. Mary's river is rapidly disintegrating and the open water extends more than half way across from the Canadian shore and down through the old channel to Little Lake George.

Bill Will Be Held Over.

OTTAWA, April 1.—That the C. N. R. bill, as amended by the railway committee of the House so that the capitalization of the C. N. R. is limited to $77,000,000, will not be proceeded with until the new railway act passes, was the statement made to the committee yesterday by W. H. Sharpe of Lisgar, who has charge of the company's bill.

"Too Old."

Eighteen today! Why, it seems to me
But a little while ago
When I held her, a tot, upon my knee.
Ah, how the youngsters grow!
And where am I if she's eighteen?
For she was a child of eight
When twenty summers I had seen
And laughingly said I'd wait

Till she should be old enough to wed.
"You'll be much too old for me
By that time, sir," she wisely said.
But today I bend the knee
Before this sweet and radiant thing
And implore her to be mine.
She shows me Croesus' engagement ring,
And Croesus is sixty-nine!

Time was when governments were expected to originate and execute their policies. The modern way is to turn the task over to a commission and then supply the funds.

RHEUMATISM GOES QUICKLY ITS VIRUS FOREVER DESTROYED

EVERY CASE IS CURABLE

Good-bye to Rheumatism!

Your aching joints, your stiff, sore muscles, these sleepless nights and suffering days—goodbye forever—your day is gone.

"A man met me a month ago, and said, 'don't stay crippled, quit complaining, limber up.' My answer was, 'I'm rheumatic. I can't do it.' He looked me over in a pitying sort of a way and told me to go to the nearest drug store for Nerviline and Ferrozone. 'The combination had cured him. I was convinced of his sincerity and followed his instructions. I rubbed on Nerviline three times every day—rubbed it right into my aching joints. The pain quickly lessened, and I became more limber and active. To draw the virus of the disease from my blood I took two Ferrozone Tablets with each meal. I am well today, not an ache, not a pain and no sign of stiffness at all."

What Nerviline can do in a case like this it can do for you too. For nearly forty years Nerviline has been recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica and Lame Back. It is the one remedy that never disappoints.

Hon. George P. Graham made a profound impression when he argued that the G. T. P. would not have to pay rental on seven years' accumulated interest on the Transcontinental, but that the forty-one millions involved would have to be put by the taxpayers of Canada. This was part of his "defence."

UNEMPLOYMENT MUST BE FACED

Mr. J. E. Atkinson Would Draw Lessons From the Old World

"The Problem of Unemployment" was the title of an interesting address given by Mr. J. E. Atkinson, Toronto. "We have been accustomed to say that in Canada we have not the problems of unemployment and a demand for a rearrangement of industry as they have them in other and in older countries," said Mr. Atkinson, "hence our legislators have paid practically no attention to them. From this comfortable state of mind the people of this city, at least, must have been disturbed during the present winter. Many thousands have found themselves lacking employment through no fault of theirs. Their families have suffered, in many cases to the utmost extremity. These workers receive wages that, even in times of work, are so close to the margin of sustenance that it is a mockery to ask why they do not save enough to tide them over those periods of nonemployment which are as certain and almost as regular as the ebb of the tides. Ontario has not unemployment in the same degree as England, but the large and apparently inevitable degree to which the Province is affected urgently demands some such provision being made by legislation as is already in operation in the motherland."

PAY DAY ON A RAILWAY

An idea of the extent of the operations of a big railway may be gathered by a glance at pay day on the C.P.R., where is paid out over $6,000,000 in cheques, distributed over the system. By actual count this number with the growth of the system and the consequent need of more men, ever grows. A decade ago the total number of employes was something like 65,000. To-day it is over 120,000 in all grades of activity. It might be said that over 500,000 persons are directly interested in, and look forward to, the monthly pay day.

SAVING THE FRUIT TREES

Economy and Common Sense Will Keep up the Orchard

All old fruit trees when they cease to bear good crops of fruit should be grubbed and burned. To keep up the stock of fertile fruit trees there should always be young ones in course of preparation to take the place of those that are worn out, then when an orchard tree fails to bear, the young one can at once take its place. It should be understood, however, that when the old tree has been grubbed up, the soil in which it has been growing should be renewed, and if need be some rough material in the way of broken bricks, etc., put into the bottom to assist drainage if the subsoil is at all heavy and inclined to hold water. Those who like to do home grafting need never to be without young healthy trees. It may be pointed out that old trees must not be condemned until one is quite sure that they are past renewing, as many suffer from pure neglect in the way of food. Orchards in which cattle and sheep are allowed to graze are not so likely to fail, but when the grass is converted into hay and nothing in the shape of food is brought back, then the trees must suffer and fail to crop. Orchard trees that are past recovery should be allowed further trial and rich top dressings given. In many of our farmyards drainings from the cowshed and stable are often allowed to run to waste, whereas these, if saved and diluted applied to such old trees, will work wonders. Sewage from the houuse and the soapsuds from the laundry may be profitably utilized in the same way.

Reservoir For Ink

This isn't a fountain pen. It's simply a regular pen with two pen points in the holder instead of one. It will be found that by using a system like this 60 or 70 words can be written before it is necessary to dip the pen in the ink again. The space between the pens forms a small reservoir that feeds the ink to the points freely and easily. The upper pen point should be shoved into the holder just the least little bit further than the lower with which the writing is done.

New Tax For German Householders

An enormous amount of dissatisfaction has arisen among householders in Germany with regard to the new tax of 50 shillings per annum on every servant kept. For the payment of this sum the State undertakes to relieve the householder of all responsibility when servants become ill.

MILITANTS WILLING TO DIE OF HUNGER

New York is Told by One Who Starved That She Was Supremely Happy

NEW YORK, April 1.—"All the women are willing to die. We are fighting with our lives."

These statements characterized the defence of militant suffrage methods in England by Miss Dorothy Pethick, follower of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, at a meeting here of the Equal Franchise Society. In answer to a question as to what the British Government could do to the women whom they imprisoned, Miss Pethick replied: "Let them die". Then she added that she was never so happy in her life as when she thought she had been so reduced by forcible feeding that the end appeared near. Continuing Miss Pethick told of the first woman who undertook a hunger strike and existed until the doctor said that he would not be responsible an hour longer for her life, and told of her own hunger strike.

Miss Margaret Hodge, who is with Miss Pethick, also made an address. The women are going to oppose Mr. Asquith in his coming fight for election, she said.

PART OF TORREON IN VILLA'S HANDS

EL PASO, Texas, April 2.—Special—"In answer to your message of yesterday, I wish to reply that although we have taken a part of the City of Torreon, the struggle has not yet been concluded. I hope that to-night we will obtain a complete triumph, of which I will notify you."

This message was received by General Carranza from General Pancho Villa in Juarez late this afternoon, and was first definite news from the rebel commander now investigating Torreon that had been received since Monday night.

It set at rest the various reports that have been prevalent since yesterday afternoon that Torreon had fallen ino rebel hands; that the rebels had been defeated and driven back; that Villa had been killed.

Juarez was apprised during the afternoon that fighting continued at Torreon, but the above message was the first one direct from Villa. He did not say a word about Herrera's command, which was sent last night to intercept Federal reinforcements supposed to be coming to Torreon. A message this morning, unofficially, said the command had met the Federal reinforcements at San Pedro and had blown up their troop train, killing hundreds.

Other messages received this afternoon, official, but not from Villa, stated that the rebels held the Salvador Hotel, the Garcia warehouse and several other buildings in the heart of Torreon. The Salvador Hotel is a five-storey rock building and affords the rebels an excellent fortification.

WOMEN CROWD IN AT MURDER TRIAL

Growing Practice of English Women is Manifested at Old Bailey

NEW YORK, April 1.—A London cable to the Tribune says: The growing practise of English women of attending murder trials was strongly manifested in Old Bailey yesterday, when Starchfield was put on trial for the murder of his little son. For some time prior to the opening of the court little crowds of women gathered outside awaiting an opportunity to enter and watch the man being tried for his life.

Several of the women were of the better class, and were attired in fashion's latest styles, and these were given seats behind the imposing array of counsel occupying the front benches.

At the back of the court too, where the ordinary public is placed, and from where practically nothing can be seen and very little heard, many of those present were women.

RECOMMENDS IODINE AS CURE FOR COWS

PARIS, April 2—Special—The Academy of Sciences came out yesterday in advocacy of the use of iodine on diseased cattle. The academy asserts that iodine is a radical cure for anthrax and other ailments. Prof. Porrier said that all cattle which showed signs of eruption on the hide in the shape of boils or other sores should be lanced in the sore places and a cubic centimeter of iodine applied.

TRENTON MAN'S LIFE MYSTERY FINALLY FOUND DEAD

Practised as "Dr. Grey of Oklahoma"--Body Brought to Trenton for Burial--Deceased Had Romantic Career

The man who was found dead in the Blossom House in Kansas City on the morning of March 9th, was not Dr. H. H. Grey, but his right name was Dr. William M. Ireland, the name under which he had registered when he went to the hotel. He had been known here during the past thirteen years as Dr. Grey, and the fact that he was masquerading has only leaked out in the past twenty-four hours, although it was suspected by some of the physicians here.

When the physician came here and opened an office he hung up a diploma showing that he was Dr. Henry Hedd Grey and that he had been graduated from Trinity College, of Toronto, Canada.

It has since became known that there was a Dr. Henry Hedd Grey, but he died more than twenty years ago in Canada under peculiar circumstances. He was the boyhood companion of William M. Ireland, the man who afterward took his name. This man, a reputable physician, an active member of a church and widely known in Oklahoma city as a lecturer, is now known to have left Canada more than twenty years ago. Why he left and why he assumed the name of another man are not known, but it is known why he registered at the Kansas City hotel under his right name.

William M. Ireland was a native of Trenton, Ontario, where his father was Mayor, and of an old and aristocratic family. He was educated in the schools there, spoke English and French and when a young man was sent to Trinity College. With him went Henry Hedd Grey, a boyhood companion and a member of another old family of the Dominion.

The two young men were graduated from Trinity in 1890. They began the practice of medicine together and were always close friends. About that time Dr. Ireland married a girl to whom the members of his family objected, but they only lived together a short time.

DR. GREY FOUND DEAD.

One morning Dr. Grey was found dead in his room and an autopsy showed that he had taken a drug.

Shortly after this Dr. Ireland left Canada and went to the States.

First he practiced in Chicago and then in San Francisco. Although he did not know it at that time, his wife in Canada, from whom he had been divorced, had given birth to a baby boy and the infant was raised in an orphan asylum in Chicago.

When the physician left San Francisco he went to South Africa and became a surgeon in the British army. He participated in the Matabele rebellion and the Jamieson Raid, but left before the Boer war began. He went to New Orleans, where he married the woman who is now his widow, and the mother of their daughter, Cecile Grey, who is now a student at a technical college.

FOUND HIS BOY.

After he returned from South Africa Dr. Ireland learned of the action of his Canadian wife in placing their baby in a Chicago orphan asylum. He found the boy after a long search, and took him to the new home he had established. He moved to Beaumont, Texas, and from there came to Oklahoma City.

Until a few days before his death Mrs. Grey, now the widow of the dead man, did not know that he had married her under an assumed name. Then he confessed to her that his right name was William M. Ireland, and that some one in Oklahoma City had discovered his identity.

The physician had started for California when he died in Kansas City. He owned a handsome home here and some other real estate. The life insurance he carried, all of it payable to his widow, is said to amount to between $20,000 and $30,000.

Something has turned the physician's hair as white as snow, although he was not an old man and had a youthful face. He was active in church work.

It's easy for a woman to discover that a boy has brains—if she is his mother.

CANDIDATE TOLD TO DROP CAMPAIGN

Warned That if He Did Not Retire the Field Life Would be Taken

MONTREAL, April 1—Three threatening letters were sent to Hyman Steinman, of 99 Rivard street, before the attempt to abduct his three year old child was made yesterday. "Resign from the aldermanic candidacy of St. Louis Ward," was the order in the letter, "or a life will be taken"; each letter concluded with the words, "Resign or life."

Mr. Steinman, who attended a committee meeting last night, paid no attention to the letters, and only informed the police of the threats when the child was enticed. He wished to follow up the investigation by leaving his son in the street with a close watch, hoping to get the man in a second attempt. The proposal frightened Mrs. Steinman too much, so Moses, the son, and the other seven children, are kept inside all the time.

Two men approached the child while he was playing near his home yesterday. They gave him a cent and asked him to get into a wooden box which stood near. When the boy hesitated he was given other coppers, and he soon entered the box. Telling the child he could play in a new game and have a fine ride in an automobile, the men picked up the box and made towards an automobile.

The action frightened another child who saw everything. She ran to Mrs. Steinman with the alarm. The mother and several neighbors ran in pursuit of the men, who dropped the box as soon as they became aware of it. They entered their automobile and drove away.

COLT SAVED FARMER FROM SUFFOCATION

J.W. Vout, Overcome by Smoke is Dragged From Burning Barn by Animal

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 1.—One of the largest barns on the farm of J. W. Vout, six miles from Brockville was destroyed by fire entailing a loss of $3,000. Vout lost a quantity of grain, hay and farming implements, but saved all his horses and cattle, with the exception of three thoroughbred Holsteins, which perished. Mr. Vout himself had a narrow escape from death. He had removed two horses to a place of safety, and on returning for a colt was overcome by the dense smoke. Fortunately he had wound the halter around his wrist and when he fell the colt dragged him out of the building. The fire started from spontaneous combustion in a quantity of ensilage.

BAN ON LABORERS EXTENDED SIX MONTHS

Ottawa, April 2—Special—At a meeting of the Cabinet this afternoon the order in Council passed last October restricting immigration arriving on the Pacific coast by prohibiting the landing of all laborers was renewed for another six months. The new order is in the same terms as the one passed six months ago.

BLAMES WOMEN FOR OFFICERS ACTION

John Ward, M. P., Declares Intrigues go on That Will Not Bear Light of Day

LONDON, April 1.—Womens intrigues are in no small measure responsible for the action of the Currah officers who last week resigned their commission rather than agree to shoot "loyalist Ulstermen." According to John Ward, who made the historic speech in the House last week, it is known that certain ladies-in-waiting had been for some time passing backwards and forwards between Aldershot and the Curragh.

"We knew that these ladies-in-waiting", he said, "were experienced in political intrigue, and we concluded that they were using the influence of the Palace for their own party ends."

Mr. Ward adds that things were going on behind the scenes that would not bear the light of day.

WELL KNOWN BROKER TAKES HIS LIFE

COBOURG, April 2—Special—W. B. Spader, formerly a partner in the late brokerage firm of Marshall, Spader & Co., of New York and Toronto, committed suicide at his residence here to-night by shooting. Mr. Spader, who had dwelt in Cobourg for a year or more, appeared in excellent spirits during the day, although he had been in ill-health for some time. Late this afternoon he retired to his bedroom, undressed, lay down and blew out his brains. A short note was found beside the body, addressed to a local friend. It is said that the note merely wished the friend "good-bye" and gave no reason for the suicide.

Mr. Spader, who was 54 years of age, is survived by a widow and three daughters, all living here. The family is well-known and popular in Cobourg's American colony. The remains will be taken to Rochester for interment Friday.

WELL KNOWN IN ROCHESTER

Rochester, N.Y., April 1.—Willard B. Spader was well known in Rochester, where he was at one time prominently connected with business enterprises up until the time of his departure for New York.

After moving to that city he was identified to some extent with one of the brokerage firms doing business here. Mr. Spader came to Rochester in the late '80's, and in 1890 entered into a partnership with C. Henry Amsden, the new firm doing a general brokerage business. In 1891 he moved to New York and became a member of the firm of Marshall, Spader and Company, with office in Rochester. Four years ago the firm was disolved, and since that time Mr. Spader has been connected with a number of Canadian enterprises, living most of the time at Cobourg.

Mr. Spader was married to Miss Frances Berthoff, of Rochester.

ANOTHER CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Montreal Bacteriologist Will Try Serum on Animals First

MONTREAL, April 1.—Samples of the serum and vaccine for Tuberculosis discovered by Dr. Allesandro Bruschettini, of Genoa, Italy, and recommeneded by Dr. Ehrlich, of 606 fame, have arrived in Montreal, and are in possession of Dr Caramelli, local bacteriologist

Mr. H. Vallee, who brought the serum to Dr. Caramelli, said that Dr. Bruschettini would arrive in New York in about three weeks, and would come to Montreal, where he would test his vaccine and serum on about two hundred patients.

Dr. Caramelli refuses to discuss the merits of Dr. Bruschettini's discovery. "I must first analyze and inspect them," said he. "I condemned Dr. Friedmann's serum because I had tested it before he came to this country, and I knew how little worthy it was of the claims that were made on Dr. Bruschettini's discovery. I have tried it on animals at my private institute, and when I have fully tested it I will make known my results to the public."

HEART ON RIGHT SIDE APPENDIX IS LOST

MALDEN, Mass. April 1.—Physicians at the Malden Hospital announced today that Charles A Walker was recovering from an operation which disclosed that his heart was on the right side of his body. The appendix also was in an abnormal position and could not be located. It was found in the middle of the abdomen.

40 CANNERIES POOL OUTPUT THRO' SELLING CORPORATION

Latest Organization Will Leave Only Half a Dozen "Independent" Plants in Ontario

TORONTO, April 2.—(Special)—Forty of the "independent" canning companies in Ontario have entered into an agreement to market their entire output through a new sales corporation which has secured a provincial charter under the name of Canned Goods, Limited, capitalized at 100,000. The company will have a board of twelve directors, representative of the partner factories, and its general sales agents for Canada will be W. H. Millman and Sons, 27 Front Street east, Toronto.

Mr. Millman said last night that the new company will be making a public announcement in the course of a few days. At the same time, it will announce its schedule of prices for canned goods for the season, which, he promised, will produce a favorable impression from the standpoint of cheapness. The company proposes to keep its prices down to a small margin of profit, securing greater economy by the pooling of the partners' output, thus regulating the supply more accurately to the demand and eliminating losses through the fierce competition which lately has been prevalent in the industry. It is said that each partner factory is to retain full control of its own administration, the pooling agreement extending only to the sale of products.

The completion of this organization will reduce the number of "independent" canning factories in the province to about half a dozen, chiefly in Western Ontario, all the others being already organized along somewhat similar lines in the Dominion Canners Limited, and kindred corporations.

LOOK TO CANADA TO SUPPLY OIL

Royal Society Hear Plea for Surveys in British Dominions

LONDON, April 1.—"At present our eyes are turned to Canada, for if the rosy hopes obtaining in this connection mature, a vast addition will be made to the scanty supplies."

This statement, made by Dr. Parkin, before the Royal Society of Arts yesterday, had reference to the oil supplies of the empire. In view of the ever-increasing use of oil by the naval and merchant fleets, and also by heavy engines and aeroplanes, Dr. Parkin urged that careful geological surveys be made in all the British dominions, with test drills where conditions appeared favorable. The output in Canada had declined from 788,872 barrels, in 1907, to 243,614 barrels in 1912.

Referring to the Alberta oil prospects Dr. Parkin said that it was important that the Canadian government should encourage the opening up of new fields, thus preventing wildcat schemes of exploitation.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR POTATO CROPS

ST. JOHN, N.B., April 1.—Special—With the production last year of over 10,000 bushels of potatoes, Premier Fleming anticipates a great development in the potato industry of the Province. The completion of the St. John Valley Railway will open up and develop a large area of productive land, and the premier looks for a yield of 20,000 bushels of potatoes in a few years. An example of a crop grown by a Sunbury County farmer may be quoted. On seventeen acres of land he raised two thousand barrels, 6,000 bushels, of marketable potatoes, which netted on the wharf, directly from the harvest field, $1.08 a barrel, a return of $2,115. The other crops grown on the farm considerably more than paid the rental of the whole farm, and the only labor employed was two men and a two horse team, outside of some extra help in planting and harvesting. His total estimated expense including seed, fertilizer and labor did not exceed $1,240, which left him a surplus of profit of $925. In addition to this he had 200 barrels of small blemished potatoes, which he disposed of for $90, a total of $60 profit per acre. At present the best markets for the New Brunswick farmer are those of the towns and provinces, the demand for New Brunswick potatoes moving rapidly to Montreal and Toronto, and through St. John to Havana and other southern ports. The urban population has grown steadily, through the mistaken idea held by young men in the country that great riches are to be won in every town. The direct effect of this migration has been that producers have become consumers, and demand for all kinds of farm products is greater than the supply. The prices current on what the farmer has to sell in New Brunswick is today 100 per cent higher than it was ten years ago, and the producer of hight price goods can get practically his own price for his own offerings. At present a considerable proportion of the foodstuffs consumed in New Brunswick is imported. Great Britain is a large buyer of New Brunswick products. The transatlantic steamers coming to the farmer's door give him a decided advantage over his western competitors. The United States, adjoining the New Brunswick boundry on the west, is yearly increasing its imports from this Province, and Cuba takes annually upwards of a million bushels of New Brunswick potatoes.

"ECHO OF HIS SOUL" IS WITH MARRIED ELOPER

PORTLAND, Me., April 1.—Professor Emil Watzlaff and Miss May Hooper, a manicurist of Manchester, Eng., who came here from Liverpool on their way to Victoria B.C., were ordered yesterday to be deported. Professor Watzlaff, who is 50 years old and married, described Miss Hooper to the immigration officials as the "echo of his soul." She is twenty-one He left four children in England.

GIVEN PERMISSION TO VISIT CANADA

NEW YORK, April 2—Special—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals issued an order today granting Albert Freeman permission to go to Canada for two weeks providing he could get the consent of as many of his bondsmen as represented $60,000 of his $150,000 bail bond.

Freeman was convicted with Julian Hawthorne and Dr. William J. Morler of using the mails to defraud in the sale of bogus mining stocks. The other two men served their terms in jail, but Freeman, who was sentenced to five years, was granted a re-trial. He wants to go to Canada on business in connection with the silver and iron mining companies whose stocks he was convicted of selling. He says that his trip may lead to the rehabilitation of the companies and eventually to his own vindication.

An interesting feature of the situation is that Freeman, once in Canada, need not return if he doesn't want to, as mail fraud cases are not extraditable.

WILLS $335,000 TO BROTHER'S ESTATE

Titanic Widow Benefits by Unusual Bequest Made to Keep Promise

NEW YORK, April 1.—To keep a promise to remember his brother in his will, the untimely death of whom, he said, in no way relieved him of the obligation, Eugene Meyer, jr., a banker, had added $335,000 to the estate left by Edgar Meyer, who died when the Titanic sank.

The estate so suddenly swelled from $185,063 to $518,063, goes to the widow and daughter of Edgar Meyer.

When the Titanic struck an iceberg and women passengers were being put in small boats, Edgar Meyer, like Colonel John Jacob Astor, Captain Archie Butt, Isidor Straus and others, refused to leave the ship while a woman or child was aboard.

Mrs. Meyer was one of those picked up by the Carpathia. Edgar Meyer was twenty-nine years old. He was a member of the stock exchange.

HELD TO POST WHILE CLOTHES ARE TORN OFF

Lucknow, Ont., April 2—Special—Joseph Hanna, a farmer, living on the tenth concession of Kinloss township, narrowly escaped death when his coat caught in the mechanism of a windmill he was repairing. He seized hold of a post when he felt the pull of the wheels and managed to hold on while his clothes were torn from his body.

POST OFFICE RETAINS LETTERS WITH COINS

Thousands Held at Dead Letter Office Because of Breach of New Rule

OTTAWA, April 1.—Thousands of letters are lying in the dead letter offices in Ottawa, Montreal and other cities, because they contain money. It is contrary to a regulation recently put in force to send money through the mail, unless by postal order, cheque or in a registered envelope.

The order was issued to stop the sending of cash through the mails, the idea being to remove temptation as far as possible from postal employees.

Many retail houses do a good deal of rural business in this way. Many of their customers enclose coins in envelopes and send them through the post to retail houses.

There is no penalty attached to the sending of money through the mails, but the sending of it is contrary to the regulations, and unregistered letters which are found to contain money are sent to the dead letter offices.

It is not expected that the order will remain long in force. Strong representations against it have been made to the Postmaster-General.

FEW IMMIGRANTS ARE LURED BY FARM WORK

Only Fifty Out of Eight Hundred Were Sent to Rural Districts

TORONTO, April 1.—"Only about half true," said Mr. Robert Birmingham Superintendent at the Dominion Government Immigration Offices at the Union Station, when shown an article in a morning paper in which, among many things, it was stated that "out of eight hundred immigrants who arrived at the Union Station yesterday there was not one who expressed willingness to go farming."

"As a matter of fact," continued Mr. Birmingham, "we sent fifty of those new arrivals to the farmers all round Ontario. Not to any one particular part, but spread out over the Province. Some of them went to York, some to Peel, some to Simcoe, and others to the Niagara district."

Mr. Birmingham says a fair number of farm laborers are coming in now, although perhaps, not as many as was the case at the same time last year. All, he said, were first-class settlers, and the Department had nothing to complain of in that respect. The only regret was that there were not more of them.

"During the month of March," said Mr. Birmingham, "3,861 immigrants, mostly from Britain, came into the Province, and the large part of them stayed here."

CELEBRATED THEIR ANCIENT BARGAIN

Anniversary of Sale of Manhattan Island for Three Hundred Dollars

Lineal descendants of the Indians who sold Manhattan for $24 worth of gauds shook hands at the Hotel Astor the other day with gentlemen whose forbears made the best real estate deal in the history of North America. Iroquois in deerskin eagle feathers, wampum and paint mingled with city officials and many of the best known men of business, commerce and the professions in celebration of the three-hundredth anniversary of the granting by the States-General of the United Neverlands of the first charter for trading to what is now the State of New York.

The tercentenary celebration was the outgrowth of the work of a citizens' committee appointed in 1912 by the late Mayor Gaynor.

WANTS WAR SHIPS FOR MAIL SERVICE

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts has come out with an idea for the practical use of United States warships in time of peace. His plan is to have our fighting craft carry on a mail service between the United States and South American ports via the Panama canal. He believes the scheme could be put into profitable operation and that it would cement friendly relation between Uncle Sam and his southern neighbors.

TIME YET THIS YEAR.

Radial Deputation's Requests May Be Granted Now Says Beck.

TORONTO, April 2.—Hydro radial enthusiasts from all over the province, but in the great majority hailing from points in western and central Ontario, swarmed into the Parliament Buildings yesterday in a huge deputation, urging tangible Government assistance to the promotion of publicly-owned electric lines.

The requests were in brief as follows:

(1) That permission be granted to the Hydro Commission at once to proceed with the development of power at the spillway of the new Welland Canal, and that such funds as are necessary be placed at the disposal of the commission.

(2) That the model agreement which authorized the commission and the municipalities to enter into a contract for the construction and operation of such railways be adopted as the standard and be ratified by legislation.

(3) That the Government guarantee bonds approved by the commission and the municipalities to form a security, to be sold in the market.

(4) That the Government, by legislation, authorize such bonds for 50 years, and that no sinking fund be provided for the first ten years.

(5) That legislation be passed to divide the province into electoral zones so that one municipality could not hinder the construction of a radial that was desired by the majority of those concerned. The zones would be outlined by the commission.

The reply of the Government came through Hon. Dr. Pyne, as senior member of the Cabinet, and Hon. Adam Beck, who was forced to respond, because of the insistence of the audience. The very serious consideration of the whole matter and a careful study of financial obligations involved was the promise of Dr. Pyne, and Mr. Beck stated, in addition, that the move had his sympathy, and that there was yet time during the session, he would think, to come to some conclusion.

CHINESE IN BOND.

Fifty Celestials On Their Way to Jamaica Like So Much Baggage.

MONTREAL, April 2.—There are fifty Chinese in the immigration quarters of the C. P. R. at the Windsor station here waiting for the first ship which, touching at New York, will take them to Jamaica, where they will work on the sugar and coffee plantations under a system which is not unlike that of the "padrone" with the Italians. They are virtually enslaved. At the same time they are, in their own philosophical and stoical way, having a good time. Their food is brought to them from the outside, rice, and fish cut up in the rice.

Every one of the Chinese is under bond. He comes in like a piece of baggage. If the C. P. R. lost one of them the company would have to forfeit $500 and a fine besides. For that reason they are carefully watched; the windows are barred; the attendants can shoot, and would shoot, if necessary.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD"

For over a quarter of a century Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead" has been seen in the various cities throughout the country and the desire to witness it does not seem to show any abatement. It may well be called a problem play, the problem being how to account for the really phenomenal success which it has enjoyed through all the theatrical seasons that have intervened since Mr. Thompson first presented it to the public at the Boston Theatre in the spring of 1885. In speaking of the success of the play, Mr. Thompson once said he never doubted the success of the play if only he could succeed in convincing the theatregoing public that he was presenting on the mimic stage real live people and not the venerable pictures which our fathers knew in the days of John Owen's "Solon Shingle" with his "bar'l of apple sass." And when people began to realize after a while that way back in boyhood days they had known characters like Uncle Josh, Cy Prime, Seth Perkins, Aunt Matilda and the rest, they were not slow to come to the conclusion that at last the real Yankee farmer had been transplanted from the New England farm to the stage. "The Old Homestead" became a success from the start, and the reason it is so successful in this its twenty-eighth season is due to a great extent to the fact that the same attention is paid to detail as at the beginning and that Mr. Frank Thompson, son of Mr. Denman Thompson, is, and has had for years, the personal direction and management. This geatest of American rural plays will appear at Griffin's Opera House tomorrow night. Prices 25c to $.100. Seat sale now at Doyle's Drug Store.

BOYS ACTIVE IN THE Y.M.C.A.

"These club were formed so as include all fellows not interested in the Scout Movement in the social and spiritual activities of the Association. At present there are about twenty boys embraced by these clubs.

For the spiritual end of things they study the Men who dared (a course of heroes from the Old Testament) under the leadership of Pat Yeomans. There is at least an hour spent weekly on these lessons, as well as daily readings by the boys at home. Such a keen interest is taken in these lessons that the boys much prefere their Bible Class to the social time which follows, and quite frequently prolong their classes to such a length that their social work has to be dropped.

These clubs meet on Friday afternoons between half past four and six o'clock and, after a short business meeting have their Bible Class and then a social good time. A point system of giving marks for attendance and attention insures good order but it is seldom necessary to deduct any points whatsoever.

After the Bible Class, in the social work which follows, pencil and paper games are the general favorites, but active group and individual games are also used to a large extent.

The boys elect their own officers and handle their own business affairs entirely. These clubs have been running thus for about three months.

Harold Woodley, Secretary of the delegation to the Brockville Conference enthusiastically reports that they have brought 226 into the Pocket Testament League, the results of an address by Mr. Harold Waite of the Y.M.C.A. New York at Brockville. The above number includes a Chinaman, also every boy in the Baptist Sunday School. Further the boys have broken the Canadian record. A great credit to the Belleville boys. The organization of Sunday School Classes has been increased by fully half a dozen. As a result of the talk by A. E. Roberts nine boys have been influenced to abandon their cigarette smoking. Twenty others have been influenced to cut out swearing and profanity. The Prayer Circle and Personal Workers Club has increased, two new clubs have been formed and are doing great work towards helping the other fellow.

In Brockville, we made such an impression that they decided to hold the Conference here next year. Some people think that these Conferences are quite unnecessary for boys. I hope that they will change their minds.

Yesterday the Ladies Committee on the Banquet for Monday night met and arranged several details, then adjourned until Friday 3 p.m.

The High School and the Y.M.C.A. basket ball teams are having a short practise game at half past eight this evening in the Gym in preparation for the game with Kingston in Kingston on Saturday next. Any who would like to take advantage of the club rates which will be available can make arrangements by seeing or phoning Mr. Powers at the Building. The game this evening will be well worth watching as these teams always put up a good game.

PRINCES' TRUST BROKEN.

Royal Germans Fail In Their Ambitious Investments.

BERLIN, April 2. — Negotiations have been concluded in Berlin which mark the final collapse of the great German "Princes' Trust," consisting of the Kaiser's best friend, Prince Max Egon zu Fuerstenberg and his Majesty's kinsman, Prince Christian Krafl zu Hohenlohe. The princes, who have been in financial difficulties for months, have parted company and the control of their vast properties passes for the most part to the hands of the Deutsche Bank.

The "Princes' Trust," which came into existence seven years ago, represented an attempt on the part of its royal founders to emulate the "high finance" methods of American money makers. They organized a huge "community of interests" which comprehends de luxe hotels in Berlin, a Hamburg bank in Palestine, a steamship line to the Levant, huge department stores in Berlin, a realty and building company, the Berlin Omnibus lines, tin and copper mines in Silesia, breweries in the Black Forest and other vast concerns. Only one or two of these enterprises proved successful. The rest have gone steadily from bad to worse owing to the princes' incapacity as managers of affairs. They are said to have lost sums estimated as high as several million pounds.

ASSISTANCE TO C.N.R.

Hon. Dr. Reid Tables Figures In Reply to Question by Burnham.

OTTAWA, April 2.—The Dominion Government has thus far granted cash subsidies amounting to $28,354,942, and bond guarantees amounting to $59,746,582, to the Canadian Northern Railway Co. and its subsidiary lines. Of the total of the cash subsidies granted, the amount of $21,378,534 has thus far been earned, while on the bond guarantees the company has so far raised $39,937,822. In addition to this the company has received from the Federal Government land grants of 4,002,846 acres originally granted to the Lake Manitoba Railway & Canal Co., the Winnipeg & Hudson Bay Railway Co., and the Manitoba & Southeastern Railway Co., which roads were taken over and completed by the Canadian Northern Co.

This information was given in the Commons yesterday afternoon by the acting Minister of Railways, Hon. Dr. Reid, in reply to a question by Mr. J. H. Burnham (Peterboro). The details given, however, do not, of course, include public aid received by the Canadian Northern system from the various provinces or from municipalities.

TO HANDLE SMALL SUMS.

Amounts Not Exceeding $1 May Be Sent In Letters Soon.

OTTAWA, April 2.—The recent regulation against sending money through the mails, save by registered post, will be modified so as to exempt amounts not exceeding $1, said Dr. Coulter, deputy postmaster-general, yesterday. The change will be officially announced at an early date."

The regulation against sending money in unregistered letters was designed to remove the temptation from postal employes to steal from the mails, several cases of this kind having been detected in various cities. At present, letters violating the rule are being sent to the dead-letter office. It has been pointed out to the Department that it is a hardship to compel the registration of trifling amounts, as the hazard of sending them unregistered does not justify the extra expense.

DON'T WANT NAME CHANGED.

St. Jean Baptiste Society Object to Renaming Historic Gate.

QUEBEC, April 2.—The St. Jean Baptiste Society of Quebec has adopted a resolution to the effect that while it is animated by the deepest respect for the Duke of Connaught, it objects to the proposal to change the name of the historic St. John's Gate to that of Connaught Gate, and thinks that another occasion, another site, and another edifice should be chosen to do honor to the Governor-General, as the people of Quebec are practically one in demanding that there be no change.

Mayor Drouin was the first to suggest that the name be changed to Connaught, and wrote to the duke to ask if he would allow his name to be used in this way.

Export Trade Grows.

There is a decrease in imports of $30,000,000, but the exports show an increase of almost $90,000,000.

THE THORNED-CROWNED CHRIST DISCUSSED

Evangelist Lane's Theme Last Night in Bridge Street Church

The message of Mr. W. R. Lane, the Soldier Evangelist, last evening in Bridge Ct. Church was founded upon three texts: Gen. 3: 18; John 19: 2, and Isaiah 55:13. The thorns that the ground produced as a result of Adam's sin are a type of man's utter ruin. His works are nothing but sin and death. Neither is it necessary that a person's life be absolutely vicious and immoral. The fig tree was cursed not because its fruit was poisonous, but because it bore no fruit. On it the Master found nothing but leaves. Nevertheless the Master's curse fell upon it and it withered away. So we may be guilty of no great crime; we might even in this day be a member of the church, or a steward, or a singer in the choir. Nevertheless there may be in our lives no fruit unto holiness. If the Master finds our lives to be only a form of godliness then are we nigh to cursing. "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit He taketh away." "It is cast into the fire and is burned." It was more than a coincidence that it was of thorns that the crown was made that the soldiers pressed upon the Saviour's brow.

There was not one moral thorn in all His life. But all our iniquities were laid upon Him. They vexed and took his sinless heart. It is by His stripes that we are healed. This alone is the ground for our redemption.

The third passage serves to illustrate to us that the life that has been redeemed by the precious blood of Christ is a regenerate life. "Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree." The only remedy for the thorn cursed life is the thorn-crowned Christ. A friend went to comfort the great Spurgeon as he neared the eternal reward. Spurgeon's testimony was summed up in four words, "Jesus died for me."

The Evangelist closed his message with a very earnest plea for decision for Chirst. Several asked for prayer.

In spite of the downpouring rain a good audience was present. An increasing interest is being manifest in the meetings.

At four p. m. in the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Lane gave a pointed and powerful exposition of Rom. 6: 21,22. The word of God makes plain the only way of life. If Chirst is in us by faith we will not only do the works of God, but what is more fundamental, we will be spiritually alive in God.

These meetings are held every afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. at 4 o'clock, and are seasons of great spiritual power and illumination.

The meeting to-night is in the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church at eight o'clock.

AFTER SIXTEEN YEARS

KINGSTON, April 1.—To meet one's brother, and still recognize him after not having seen him for sixteen years, during which time neither knew the other's whereabouts was the experience of Mr. Mullen, an undertaker from Jersey City, who is in the city arranging for the taking to that place for interment the remains of John Oskey, who was electrocuted at the Floor and Wall Tile Co. on Sunday morning.

It was a great surprise to Mr. Mullen to find that the man who was in the next chair to his in a down-town barber shop, was none other than his brother whom he had not seen in sixteen years. Both had entered the shop about the same time but it was not until they had left the chairs and were about to put on their overcoats that the "Jersey City" Mullen recognized the other as his brother. It was the most unexpected meeting as neither had the slightest knowledge of the other's whereabouts. They left the shop together and proceeded up street.

A PLEASING RECITAL AT CITY HALL

The Misses LaVoie, Assisted by Miss Tuite, Entertain Appreciative Audience

The two piano recital at the City Hall last evening, given by the Misses Laura D. and Eva P. LaVoie, was, in spite of the dampness a decided success. The work of these two young ladies upon the piano is certainly worth going a long way, through rain or sleet to hear. When one considers that the selections must first be practiced singly and then as a duo, the performances of the Misses LaVoie were most creditable, in that all of the items were of a high and intricate order. Among the productions was the very latest from the publishers, "Valse Caprice", by Gilbert Spross, last evening's rendition being the first given to the public, thus crediting Belleville with the initial performance. Miss Laura LaVoie had been in touch with the publishers relative to this production since October last, and only on Friday last was it received, fresh from the press. Its reception was most pleasing, the technique, as listened to, being superb. Truly our city is to be congratulated upon the possession of two such perfect pianists.

Miss Tuite, if possible, better than of yore, and Miss Maysell Stork, though suffering from a severe cold, were entertaining in reading and song. It was regretted that indisposition prevented Mr. Dan. A. Cameron's magnificent baritone from being heard on this occasion.

As a whole, the evening was one of unqualified pleasure, and the Misses LaVoie have the thanks of all who were in attendance. It might be in order to state that the recital was tendered in aid of the Children's Aid Society, Mr. Thomas Ritchie preceding the programme with a short sketch of the work and its present needs.

TORONTO PRACTITIONER COMMITS SUICIDE

(Intelligencer Special)

TORONTO, April 2.—Worried because of the fact that he had been summoned to appear in court by the Ontario Medical Council on a charge of practising medicine without being a duly qualified medical practitioner, Thomas Kettele, 60 years of age, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head in a shed at the rear of 25 Queen street west this morning. Kettele was a single man and a well known resident of the west end. For the past year he had been engaged in business with J. W. Black, herbalist, at the Queen street address.

FIVE BUSINESS PLACES IN LINDSAY ROBBED

LINDSAY, April 2.—(Special.)—Five burglaries took place here shortly after midnight last night, the places entered being Britton's jewellery store, R. I. Morgan's drug store, Williams' bowling alley, Maunder & Sons mill, and Wm. Robson's grocery store.

In the neighborhood of six or seven hundred dollars in goods and cash was taken. Two men were arrested in Peterboro' this morning and, it is stated, had most of the goods on them. They were heavily armed, carrying revolvers etc. The names of the suspected are Wilson and Smith.

SAVED COUNTRY $25,000

Postmaster-General's Shrewdness Over Mail-Box Deal

OTTAWA, Mar. 31.—The business acumen of the Postmaster-General, Hon. L. P. Pelletier in saving the country $25,000, after an order-in-council had been passed granting an order for rural mail delivery boxes, is shown in the details of the contract entered into with the International Mail Equipment Company of Toronto. The expansion of the rural mail delivery system has necessitated an order for 100,000 boxes and the tender of the International Mail Equipment Company at $4.50 a box was accepted and an order-in-council passed to that effect. But after the order had been passed, Hon. Mr. Pelletier succeeded in having the price reduced to $4.25 per box, arguing that the department having to transport them to different parts of the country should not have to pay this cost. The difference in price resulted in a net saving to the country of $25,000.

A condition of the contract is that the present rural delivery boxes, purchased by farmers at $3 a piece, may be exchanged for the new boxes provided the Post Office Department returns to contractors the patent automatic self-locking signal device attached to the old boxes. Farmers having the present boxes can exchange them for the new boxes on payment of $1.50 to the Post Office Department.

TO FORM COLONY IN ST. JOHN'S VALLEY

ST. JOHN, N.B., April 1.—Special—A number of British capitalists propose to establish 300 Scotch families in the St. John valley, in the vicinity of Gagetown. The company has already purchased some of the land but wants from twenty thousand to fifty thousand acres of crown lands, to be divided into hundred-acre lots, the Scotch settlers to be placed upon the farms to the number of seventy-five families in five years, or one hundred and fifty in ten years, and to have the whole area settled within fifteen years. The company will erect farms, outbuildings, schools and lay out roads and spend one thousand annually to bring settlers to the new colony.

The history of the St. John valley teems with the attempts of French and Scotch immigrants to colonize it in the seventeenth century. The great settlement of the valley, however, dates from the coming of the United Empire Loyalists in 1783. St. John is known today as the City of the Loyalists. Nearly 12,000 souls arrived at the river mouth in that historic year, that were mostly Scots. One group of lots in Parrtown, as it was called, fell to men of the 42nd Highlanders. In 1784 New Brunswick was created a separate Province, and the Loyalists who settled the St. John Valley and along its coasts proved themselves no mean people. They throve and prospered, and by their success encouraged the settlement of new immigrants from Scotland. The Highlands at that time were suffering from the clearances which swept the glens so pitilessly. Then the distress that naturally followed the great Napoleonic wars forced the Lowland unemployed to emigrate or starve. Driven by such economic circumstances the Scots surged over the Atlantic and on New Brunswick's shores they founded settlements which in later days have sent out Canada's most famous citizens, hard-headed men of affairs, and canny as the Scots that were their forebears.

TAX REFORM IN NEW BRUNSWICK

ST. JOHN, N.B., April 1.—Special—Tax reform is attracting wide attention in New Brunswick, there being a strong desire in St. John for the adoption of a system that would improve the present existing system of assessment which taxes real estate, personal property and incomes. Several commissions in past years have tried different plans to improve the present system, but so far no satisfactory solution of the difficulty has been found that would work out in an equitable way. The return to the Province of Mr. James R. Brown, an expert on taxation, has added new interest to the question and Mr. Brown is to hold a conference with the St. John City Council, the assessors and other officials to consider the application of improved methods to the local taxation methods which exist in St. John as a result of the leasehold system which has prevailed for over a hundred years. Mr. Brown will stump the Province and make addresses in favor of urgent tax reform for New Brunswick.

Liberal Orator Finds Another Remarkable Defence For Extravagance of Laurier Administration—Major Fowler Recounts Story of Delisle Farm—Levis-Moncton Line a Mere Waste of Money.

OTTAWA, April 2.—The debate on the National Transcontinental Railway scandal is nearing its conclusion. One Conservative and three Liberals spoke yesterday and a vote will be reached to-night, after speeches by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Prime Minister. E. M. Macdonald found another way out for the Liberals yesterday. He read Hansard to show that Mr. Borden and other speakers had in 1904 accurately predicted the cost of the line when they were in Opposition, and need not therefore be surprised at the extravagance.

Major Fowler replied to Mr. Macdonald and incidentally ventilated the Delisle farm deal, where $24,000 was spent in placating a farmer who could have been brought out for $3,500.

The debate was resumed by Mr. Gautier (Lib., St. Hyacinthe), who contended that the present Government had no right to degrade the standard of the National Transcontinental without first obtaining a mandate to that effect from the people.

He was followed by E. M. Macdonad (Lib., Pictou), who ridiculed the claim that Parliament in 1903, and the electorate in 1904, had endorsed the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme in the belief that the Government line between Moncton and Winnipeg would not cost over $13,000,000. He then read at length from Hansard to show that Mr. Borden had estimated the cost of the road at $150,000,000, while the late Hon. John Haggart and Speaker Sproule had put the cost at $125,000,000. Sir Edmund Osler, he said, had estimated the cost at $250,000,000. In 1908, when but a small portion of the work had been completed on the National Transcontinental, Hon. George E. Foster had declared in Parliament that the line between Moncton and Winnipeg would cost at least $155,000,000, while R. L. Borden had made the remarkably accurate estimate that the cost would be $161,726,185, exclusive of terminals, which he estimated at $5,000,000 additional. Now, in 1914, the entire Conservative Parliament, from Mr. Borden down, affected to be horrified, and astounded at the announcement that the complete line would cost $161,000,000, including terminals.

"The Laurier Government is responsible for $95,000,000 of this expenditure and the Borden Government for $66,000,000," declared Mr. Macdonald, "but if gentlemen on the other side say that the cost of the road is $200,000,000, $300,000,000 or $400,000,000, so much the worse for them, because for only $95,000,000 of the total expenditure can the Laurier Government be held responsible. In short, the road was little more than half finished when the present Government took charge two and a half years ago."

Major Fowler (Con., Kings and Albert) replied for the Government. After a brief defence of the standing and reputation of Messrs. Lynch-Staunton and Gutelius, he declared that the old National Transcontinental Railway Commission was either inefficient and ignorant, or fraudulent and corrupt. The contractors, he said, with the connivance of the commission, had looted the public treasury of Canada as no South American dictator had ever dared to loot the treasury of his country.

Mr. Fowler next took up the Delisle farm crossing case. Delisle had offered to see his farm of 55 acres to the N. T. R. Commission for $3,500. The right of way agent reported that this price was excessive and the Parent commission had accordingly purchased five acres from him at $100 an acre, and paid him damages aggregating in all $700 more. Then Mr. Delisle insisted upon having a crossing, so that he could drive his cattle to water. To meet this request the commission had enlarged a culvert so that the cattle could be driven through it, and in the end had expended $24,000, although the entire farm could have been purchased for $3,500.

Mr. Fowler said that he was not afraid to say that the $35,000,000 expended on constructing the line from Lewis to Moncton was a mere waste of public money. He had opposed its construction in 1903, and, notwithstanding the fact, had been reelected to the House by his constituents in 1904. In conclusion, he said the salient facts which would remain in the public mind long after the debate was over were that the road was to cost but $61,000,000, and it would cost, including interest, $240,000,000. Moreover, there had been, beyond any dispute a wanton waste of $40,000,000, a large portion of which, in his opinion, had been actually stolen.

Judge McKenzie (Lib., N. Cape Breton and Victoria) followed, and Mr. Nesbitt (N. Oxford) moved the adjournment of the debate.

Engineers Negligent.

MONTREAL, April 2.—The Board of Control, which investigated the break in the water main, which plunged the city into a drought at Christmas time, finds that workmen were allowed to cut too near the conduit, causing it to collapse. George Janin, chief city engineer; Thomas Lesage, superintendent of the water department, and all the city engineers in charge of the work are found to have been grossly negligent in not compelling the workmen to follow lines laid down for the work.

THE REGULATION OF RANCHING

For years the great ranching industry of the West has been greatly handicapped by obsolete regulations. This mammoth industry was being wiped out, and the West is suffering in consequence of the decreased production of horses, cattle and sheep. When the Government came into power a commission was appointed to investigate the industry. Insecurity of tenure of leases was one of the greatest drawbacks to the development of the stock industry. After carefully revising the recommendations of the Commission, and consulting with the best authorities on this subject, Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of Interior, drafted new regulations.

In future the maximum areas granted under lease to any one person will be a half section. No particular part of the provinces is set aside for ranching, but the regulations apply to the whole of the three. Applications for grazing leases on any land will only be granted after inspection to determine whether the land in question is grazing or agricultural land. Where the farmers adjoining grazing land express their desire that this be retained as a commons for all to use for their stock, no lease will be granted. Lessees must fence the area they obtain under lease. Leases will be granted for ten years, but existing leases will not be disturbed until their expiration.

West of the Calgary-Edmonton and Calgary-Macleod Railways, what is known s the foothill country, is now nearly all under lease and in very large blocks. Here the lessees of these great areas have signified their intention of giving up a part of their grazing lands as soon as the farmers acquire stock. These areas will likely be held as commons, and will be for the use of all the farmers engaged in stock raising.

Lessees will be required to have one head of horse or cattle or five sheep for every thirty acres. Where the inspectors believe that the land will not carry that amount of sock they will fix the number they consider should be grazed on each area. Thirty-three per cent. of the required stock must be placed the first year on each leased area granted. At least twenty-five per cent. of the stock must always be breeding stock.

It is believed that these new regulations will give an impetus to the ranching industry by giving a permanency of tenure to the leases. They will also greatly stimulate mixed farming by securing ample grazing land to the farmers for their stock.

It is expected that under these new provisions the West will again take its place as one of the great stock-raising countries of the world. The development of this industry will add to the prosperity and permanency of the Western settler. The farmer who wishes grazing privileges is protected, the agriculturist has still access to all arable land, and the rancher is given a permanency of tenure that will encourage him to develop his industry.

Time was when governments were expected to originate and execute their policies. The modern way is to turn the task over to a commission and then supply the funds.

TYRANNY OF SUNDAY DINNER

"Men have many faults, women only two,
Nothing right they say and nothing right they do."
—Old Proverb

Why is it that in most households all the menfolk are supposed to have a claim to make Sunday a day of rest and idleness? Nothing is ever done by a man on Sunday that can possibly be put off until Monday, but it very seldom occurs to them that their womenkind do not have the same privilege. Always there must be a hot dinner, and an extra good one, and if there is no maid it means that the wife or mother has to spend the greater part of what should be her day of relaxation in preparing the meal, otherwise there will be grievances and grumbles at the table. Breakfast is generally later on Sundays and the morning is shortened thereby, so that immediately the one meal is over and the rooms tidied the dinner must be prepared, and the woman who can manage to get to church in the interim is a wonder and an envy to her sex. Here are a few tips as to engineering the church hour or the rest hour in the morning and still having the hot meal. Partially cook the joint or the chickens on Saturday and leave them in the pan, reheating them for half an hour in a hot oven on Sunday. If a sufficient number of potatoes are boiled the day before they can be browned in the pan at the same time. Green vegetables too can be boiled on Saturday, and if reheated with a little butter will be as good as if they were done the same day, while other vegetables can be warmed up in a white sauce. Very few men will tolerate a cold mid-day meal on Sundays, especially in winter, and some ingenuity must be exercised in arranging everything so that as little time as possible need be taken up in getting it ready on Sunday. I once heard of a woman who, when she was first married, was told by some friends that they only had two meals on Sunday, a late breakfast and a dinner at four o'clock in the afternoon. She determined to try the plan on her husband. The following Sunday they went to church, and on their return he asked how soon dinner would be ready. She said at four o'clock. He looked at her, but said nothing. But he went upstairs and shut himself into his room where he remained while the young wife prepared a rumptuous meal. At four o'clock she went to call him, and was greeted with the reply that if he could not have his dinner at the proper time he would not have it at all—and he didn't. It was her first and last attempt to interfere with masculine feeding hours. She is an old woman now but the memory of that experiment is as vivid as if it happened yesterday.

PEER'S WIDOW ENTERS CONVENT

True Romance Which Reads Like Fiction

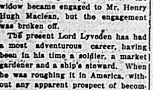
A fascinating romance of the peerage is recalled by the report that Julia Lady Lyveden, has entered a convent in Edinburgh.

Seventeen years ago Lady Lyveden was a pretty assistant of eighteen in a fancy shop at Eastbourne. Miss Julia Kate Emery, as she was then, attracted the attention of the late Lord Lyveden, who was seventy-seven years old and an invalid. He fell in love with her and was drawn in his bath chair every day to the shop.

After fulfilling an engagement as secretary to the aged peer Miss Emery consented at length to accept her patron's name and coronet, and in 1890 the marriage took place at All Souls' Church, Hastings. The marriage lasted only four years, the late peer dying in 1900, and as there was no issue the title passed to a nephew, the present peer. Eight years later the widow became engaged to Mr. Henry Hugh Maclean, but the engagement was broken off.

The present Lord Lyveden has had a most adventurous career, having been in his time a soldier, a market gardener and a ship's steward. When he was roughing it in America, without any apparent prospect of becoming a peer, he lodged over a stable and earned a precarious living as a cab driver.

Heating Curling Irons



There are few devices for heating curling irons over a gas jet that compare with this one that can be made at home out of metal tubing. The tubing should be made of a size that will fit the curling iron and the gas jet. It is cut out in the center, one end being left to fit over the jet and the cut out part bent so that the other end, left whole for the curling iron, comes over the flame. By using a device like this there is no danger of getting soot on the iron and the heating is done very quickly.

If two or three lumps of sugar are placed in kettles and teapots, they will absorb all moisture and will prevent rust and the "fusty" smell which is the result of their being left half dry.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food it turns the fats sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. J. S. McKeown Drug Store and other leading druggists in Belleville and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Cheap Magazine Rate Not Yet.

LONDON, April 2.—Assistant Secretary Farnall of the British General Postoffice yesterday declared that the statement attributed to Hon. Farnall states that negotiations on this subject are even now being actively carried on by cable.

MELVILLE NOTES

A disastrous fire occurred here on Thursday morning, when the dwelling on the farm formerly owned and occupied by Mr. M. McFaul, now the property of Mr. Bruce McFaul, fell a prey to the devouring element. The house, which was a frame structure and comparatively new, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. O. Richardson and little son. Mr. Richardson, having risen early preparing for work in the bush, lighted a kerosene lamp, which exploded and soon all the down stairs was wrapped in flames. Fortunately the inmates escaped from the burning building without injury, but the greater portion of the household effects was destroyed with the dwelling in an incredibly short time.

WHERE TO MARRY

Quebec the Most Expensive of the Provinces

The Province of Quebec is the most expensive place there is in which to be married by license. This is because the Province puts a tax on marriage by license. Six dollars is drawn down every time a license is issued by the Government. The total cost is eight dollars. Two of these go to the issuer of the document. This money does not go into the general fund of the Province, but is devoted to the higher Protestant educational institutions, and is placed at the disposal of the Educational Board. It is given in this way because Roman Catholics do not marry by license.

The tax amounts to many thousands of dollars every year. In one office alone in 1913 no less than 800 licenses were issued. Undoubtedly the total would be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

In Ontario the Government charges nothing for the privilege of getting married. The license costs two dollars, but that goes to the official who issues the document. This, it is understood, is the usual method.

Another curious feature, and one, it is maintained, should not be struck from the code, is the fact that the happy couple must be bonded. The bridegroom going to the issuer of licenses is astounded, if he has not heard of the law, to find that he must bring two householders who will go bond for him for $800 each, to show that there is no reason why the marriage should not take place. It is to prove that neither of the parties have previously been wedded, that they are of age, or if not, that the consent of the parents has been obtained. It is merely a matter of form. There are no records known of any bondsmen being sued for the amount of the bond by the Province or by an irate parent. Nevertheless, the bond must be given.

MIXED FARMING POPULAR

West No Longer Devoted to Growing Wheat

"Western Canada is turning to mixed farming instead of exclusively raising wheat," said Geo. Bury, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific.

"I have seen no evidence for a long time that is more encouraging for the future of the West. The farmers are not pinning their faith to any one crop, and, what is more, they are not draining the fertility of their land by lack of rotation of crops from year to year.

It is nearly certain that there will be about 2,000,000 acres more under cultivation this year than ever before, and although the effects of the money stringency have certainly been felt in the West as elsewhere, there is a solid foundation for the prosperity of the Western farmer that cannot be disturbed by the flutters of the stock market."

ICELANDERS ADAPTABLE

Professor Thinks They Discovered America

"Icelanders and their contributions to History" was the theme chosen by Professor A. Holmes, Ph.D., M.D., of Queen's University before the Ottawa Teachers' Association in the Toronto Normal school hall. "The Commonwealth of Iceland was created owing to the irresponsibility of a woman," quoted Mr. Holmes. "'Only will I say yea to being his sole and lawful wife,' said a maiden exceeding fair to Harold Hairfair, 'when he brings to subjection all Norway as freely as does King Eric rule the Swede realm.'"

After a brief historical sktech of the history of Iceland, and upon observations made during the course of a tour of the country last summer, Professor Holmes asserted that there was no doubt in his mind that the Icelanders were the first to discover America. "Their newspapers," continued the speaker, "excel in terseness, capacity of action and passion, and powers of description."

"It is no wonder that the modern Icelander should so excel in matters of learning after so many centuries of educated ancestors."

His "One-Hoss Shay"

When the history of London street traffic is written, it will probably be recorded that Lord Rothschild was the last person to ride daily through the City in a brougham. Motor omnibuses are all careful to give the blue brougham plenty of elbow room, for every driver on the road knows Lord Rothschild's carriage, and thinks kindly of the generous donor of phesants who rides inside. Although he is now in his seventy-fourth year, Lord Rothschild is regular as a clock in his attendance in the City. About four o'clock in the afternoon the blue brougham takes him home again to Piccadilly.

Naturalists say that a single swallow will devour 6,000 flies in a day.

A woman without an opinion is like an egg without salt, but much less common.

PAIN IN MY BACK IS ALL GONE

Since I Got a Box of Gin Pills

CHURCH ST., CORNWALLIS, N.S.
January 23rd,

"About a year ago, I was suffering so much with a dreadful Lame Back and Hips, that I could not stand up straight. I was informed by a friend about GIN PILLS. I got a box. It helped me immediately. I have taken about twelve boxes and the pains in my back and hips are all gone. I cannot speak too highly of the wonderful effects of your GIN PILLS".

B. C. DAVID.

Liniments and plasters won't cure Lame Back — because they never reach the part that is causing the pain. The whole trouble is with the Kidneys and you must cure the Kidneys in order to stop the pain. GIN PILLS cure weak, sick, strained Kidneys as nothing else will. GIN PILLS drive away the pain every time—or your money promptly refunded. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Sample free if you write National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto.

Cure For Militancy

The Woman's Homestead Association of Boston have sent an appeal to King George of England to aid the single women of that country to migrate to Western Canada to become the wives of settlers.

Resolutions adopted by the association expressed the belief that if the movement were "carried out seriously" the militant women of England would cease their warfare on Parliament, "Discontent generally reigns where there is a surplus of female population," said the resolution.

Retiring Author

If John Keble had had his way it is possible that his famous "Christian Year" might never have been published. He was extremely averse to it, and only yielded to the importunities of his friends and the pleadings of his father. Even so, he refused to have his name on the title page. In forty-five years it went through 158 editions and since it went out of copyright they have ceased to be counted.

Japs Never Swear

A lecturer in the Edinburgh Philosophical Institute recently said that there were no "swear words" in the Japanese language, and that one seldom heard angry words, and never cursing or swearing in a Japanese crowd.

Origin of Greenbacks

Few people, perhaps, are aware why the national American currency is printed with green backs. Ever since the adoption of paper currency it has been the constant study of bank-note engravers to get up some plan of printing bills that could not be counterfeited. In this they only partly succeeded till as late as 1857, when a man named Stacy J. Edson invented a kind of green ink, which he patented June 30th of that year. It is called anti-photographic ink, because it cannot be photographed and cannot be dislodged with alkalies by counterfeiters to get a complete facsimile of the bills. As it is a secret known only to the American Bank Note Company and the inventor, it is impossible to counterfeit the greenback money.

Even if the composition of the ink was known, it would be of no use, as the work could not be copied from the genuine bills with any other kind of ink.

Rat Plague at Kingston

Protests have been made to the medical officer of health for Kingston-on-Thames with regard to the number of rats on a piece of land in Lower Marsh lane, used by the corporation as a dust-heap. More than 1,000 rats have been caught alive, and numbers are killed daily.

WELDING THE ELEMENTS

Great Task That Confronts the Dominion of Canada

A word picture of the great task which awaits Canada in welding into one the varied elements from Europe, is given by Mrs. Donald Shaw in the National Review. "Probably very few of those resident in the British Isles, and certainly only a very small percentage of Canadians," she says, "are as yet fully awake to the national problem that is rapidly crystallising into definite and tangible shape, through the almost overwhelming flood-tide of immigration which has poured, and is still pouring, into the dominion. At the present moment forty-eight different languages are in daily use in Canada, and practically every known religious creed is represented.

"So far there has never been a country which was in the position of Canada to-day, for the civilized race is a mere unit, and is being overwhelmed by an avalanche of races drawn from almost every quarter of the globe. How, then, is this small unit of thinking, organized, and civilized people going to remain predominant, and to mould the superabundance of ignorance and diversification of races into one united Canadian whole?

"Canada has long since realized that there is no need for her to subscribe to foreign missions, for she has the foreigner on her very doorstep, and she has to deal with him on a more difficult and dangerous basis than do the workers in the missions established amongst these people in their own lands. For the Chinaman, the Japanese, the Hindoo, the Jew, the Ruthenian, and the Italian slips his shackles off him when he enters Canada and becomes a free man. Those who understand what the ignorant conception of freedom is will realize what the possible result of this may be to the life of a country if steps are not taken in time to counteract it."

NEGLECTED SHADE TREES

Large Percentage of These Want Doctoring

According to Dr. Fernow, in the small towns of eastern Canada it is safe to say that at least seventy-five per cent. of the shade trees need attention, for, unlike the cities, these towns employ no "tree doctors" to guard the health of the trees, and even trimming is done but irregularly and often carelessly. Yet if the shade trees in many of these towns were destroyed one of their chief attractions would be gone.

There are several reasons why the trees in these old towns require special attention. The chief is probably due to defective crown development, the result of overcrowding. Misshapen and weakened crowns result in excessive windbreak and ragged breaks, if left untrimmed, provide the best possible entrance for fungi and insect pests, so that a great number of these fine old shade trees, which because of their very age are unable unassisted to shake off these foes, are slowly dying through neglect.

34 YEARS IN MINE

Chinaman Make Pile and Becomes Citizen

Out of the Omineca after 34 years spent in gold mines, Ah Luk, a Chinese, has returned north to his Siwash wife and young son. For the first time in his life he traveled on a railway train, got his first sight of an automobile, street cars, electric lights and all the conveniences of the modern city.

In Vancouver Ah Luk made application to become a Canadian citizen as he never intends to return to China. He plans to send his young son to Vancouver to school.

Ah Luk went into the Cariboo mining district when he was 17 years old. Later he travelled into the Omineca, where he has been placer mining ever since. He is settled on Germansen Creek where his summers are spent in washing the golden gravel, his winters in trapping. On Vital Creek in the early days he took out $11,000 in one season. His gains from mining are now more modest.

Twelve years ago, the lonely Chinese miner fell a victim to the charms of Josephine, a belle of the Babine Indians and they were married by a missionary priest of that country. This marriage forms an effective bond to keep him in British Columbia and he has given up all hope of ever seeing China again.

NEARLY IN CONVULSIONS

NEWBURY, ONT., MAY 29th. 1913

"I am not a strenuous user of medicines or patent medicines, but I have taken nearly everything recommended for Indigestion and Constipation.

I have been so bad with Acute Indigestion that I was nearly in convulsions and had to be held. I have used "Fruit-a-tives" and I have not had another attack nor suffered at all with Indigestion since taking them.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy I ever used that did me any good, and I am grateful to "Fruit-a-tives" for making me as well as I am today, and everyone agrees that I look in firstclass health.

My husband likes "Fruit-a-tives" very much and takes them whenever he has occasion to use a remedy for Constipation"

MRS. D. MCRAE

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or will be sent to any address on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

GERMANY AND THE LATE KING EDWARD

Prince Von Bulow's new book on Germany contains the following reference to the late King Edward: "He was a monarch ofextraordinary insight into the character of men, who knew to a nicety the art of handling them, and had a wide and varied experience. English policy (under King Edward's influence) did not so much aim at directly opposing the interests of Germany as at gradually checkmaking her by shifting the balance of power in Europe. By a series of ententes, for the sake of which considerable British interests were several times sacrificed, she sought to attach herself to other States of Europe, and so to isolate Germany."

LIEUT. J. C. PORTE

Noted for his fearlessness and his quick judgment in an emergency, Lieut. J. C. Porte of the British Royal Navy was chosen as one of the two pilots to guide a hydroplane across the Atlantic as part of the celebration of the British-American Peace Centenary.

TRICKS TO GET ASLEEP

The Purposes of Lord Rosebery's Motoring by Night

Inability to sleep, which is proving a serious complication after Lord Rosebery's operation, has been his enemy for years. To combat it he has been in the habit of taking motor car drives just before bedtime, changing his bedroom, and counting imaginary sheep passing one by one through a gate.

"Insomnia is one of the penalties of the increasing strain modern life throws upon our brains," said a physician of St. Bartholomew's Hospital. "The man who works with his muscles and lives in the open air is rarely a victim of sleeplessness.

"The essentials for a good night's rest are mental repose, a requisite amount of muscular fatigue, comfortable body heat, and plenty of ventilation. The most difficult to secure is lessened brain activity. An excellent plan, is to take a brisk halfhour's walk just before bedtime, followed by a hot bath and a rub down, and then a cup of warm milk and a biscuit or two as one gets into bed. If, in addition, the mind be focused on some pleasant but not exciting topic a night's rest is assured to all but the most chronic sufferer.

"The type in which the sleeper suddenly wakes an hour or so after having fallen asleep, usually means that more outdoor muscular exercise is required."

Fire to Frighten the Ghosts

A seventeen-year-old domestic servant, Agnes Mabel Smith, who was bound over at Staffordshire Assizes for setting fire to a clover stack, pleaded in defence that when left alone in the evening in a large house near the churchyard, she became nervous and frightened of ghosts.

LONGING FOR WORK

An Oxford Man's Appeal to a Town Council

The following letter from Mr. H. E. Lee, Guildford, was read at a meeting of the Guildford Town Council: "As a resident in Guildford I am writing to offer my services to the town in whatever capacity they may be of use. I came to Guildford three years ago, and hoped I should in time find employment of some kind here, but have found very little after much search. I am a teacher by profession, with a university education (Oxford), 47 years of age. I want remunerative work, but have a greater wish to be of some use in the town, and am quite willing to work for nothing if I can help in such ways as checking the abuse of public advertisements, suggesting improvements in roads, etc., traffic, especially motor traffic. I should like, of course, to be given some definite work. I am not a fanatic, and, being quite unconnected with trade or business, I have no axe to grind." On the suggestion of the Mayor the letter was referred to a committee for consideration.

MRS. ROBERT BALFOUR

Social London showered congratulations upon Mrs. Balfour on her good fortune in having Queen Mary as godmother for her youngest child. Baby Balfour is the great-granddaughter of the late Duke of Cambridge, and therefore, a cousin of Her Majesty.

Cinemas Give Musicians Work

There is a scarcity of musicians in Birmingham owing to the large number of picture palaces which have been built there during the last few years (over seventy now hold licenses), and which need an orchestra of three, four, or even more players. Strenuous efforts are being made to obtain instrumentalists, and a kinema palace made unsuccessful application to a professional violoncello player in Germany to come over at a salary of $32.50 a week. Several amateur orchestral societies are threatened with extinction, some of their players having given up their ordinary callings for kinema engagements.

Girl Shot Dead

A shooting accident occurred in Campbell's fish shop, Belfast, resulting in the death of Miss Campbell. A brother of the girl, who had been out shooting during the day, entered the premises and put down the gun he had been using. A boy named Thomas Campbell, said to be a nephew of the deceased, took up the weapon and was examining it, when the gun went off in the lad's hand, the shot hitting deceased full in the face just as she as entering the premises.

Killed by a Tombstone

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned at an inquest at Skerries on a boy named Joseph Flanagan, who was killed at the monumental works owned by Mr. P. Mathews. The boy, while playing with other youths in the locality, went over to read the inscription on an unfinished tombstone. When he placed his hands against the upright slab the latter shook and fell forward. Death was instantaneous.

Death Coincidences

After fifty-four years of married life Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jones, of Cheltenham, have died on the same day, the husband being seventy-eight and his wife seventy-seven. Mr. Jones became ill through worry over his wife's illness, and when he was told of her death he began to sink at once, and died just before midnight.

Dead Bittern Confiscated

Edward Patch, a gamekeeper was fined $5 and costs at East Harding, Norfolk, for shooting a bittern, an exceedingly rare bird which is protected under the Wild Birds Act. The bird, which had been sent to Sir Edmund C. Nugent, was ordered to be forfeited.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, April 1.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending March 28 were 700 cattle, 110 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 1250 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale were 800 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 1200 calves.

There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle since Monday, prices being about steady, because of the smaller offerings. The demand was principally for small lots to fill actual wants for the balance of the week, owing to the near approach of the Easter trade, when butchers generally lay in large supplies in order to make a good showing.

Altho prices for hogs in the Toronto market advanced 15c per 100 lbs. yesterday, there was no actual change in the local market, except that the feeling was a little firmer for Ontario stock.

Killed By Fall From Trapez.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Ella Hackett, 19-year-old equestrienne, was killed almost instantly by a fall of fifty feet from a trapez to an improvised platform in the arena at the Barnum and Bailey circus at Madison Square Garden late yesterday. Ambitious to appear in a trapez act she was rehearsing after the afternoon performance, and while on a "revolving swing" she fell head downward.

SENATE FIGHT BEGINS.

Panama Canal Tolls Bill Will Have a Spectacular Trip.

WASHINGTON, April 2—The fight over the repeal of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama Canal act shifted quickly from the House to the Senate yesterday. President Wilson was undoubtedly delighted at the heavy majority polled for his measure in the House, and the opposition was proportionately discouraged. But yesterday the opposition in the Senate rallied, and the indications were that only a stubborn fight, long drawn, as all battles in the Senate are, would give the President a victory by a small margin, that so far cannot be accurately estimated.

INQUIRY NOT NEEDED

Opposition in Legislature Would Probe Rural Conditions.

Hon. James Duff in Exhaustive Analysis of Reports of Department of Agriculture Shows That Wealth and Productivity of the Province Is on Ascent and Proposal Is Defeated.

TORONTO, April 2.—After a long debate in the Legislature yesterday afternoon and evening the Ontario Government decided that a commission to investigate rural conditions in Ontario was not needed, and an Opposition resolution calling for one was defeated by 51 votes to 16.

Col. T. R. Mayberry (Lib., S. Oxford) presented a motion calling for the appointment of a non-partisan commission of practical members to enquire and report on the remedy of present conditions of rural depopulation. Col. Mayberry said the farmer was not gaining a fair share of attention. Although the wage of farm laborers had been increased, it had been a vain attempt to bring the men back to the farms, and the only solution in his mind was that specially fitted men be brought from the old country by the Government. This had been tried in counties and had worked well.

In replying, Hon. J. S. Duff made a vigorous defence of the work of his Department as far as it affected the question. He cited figures showing decreases in rural population of 51,400 from 1881 to 1891, from 48,257 from 1891 to 1901, and from 1901 to 2911, 52,161, which showed materially better conditions under the present Government. Proceeding, he quoted more figures showing the agricultural production of the province, and while there had been decreases in cereals and grains, including both spring and fall wheat, he maintained that the increased production of live stock and dairy products by feeding, more than compensated for the shortage. Mortgages were decreasing year by year. Only 45 per cent. of the farms were now mortgaged to 33 per cent. of their value, meaning that only 15 per cent. of the farms in Ontario were now under mortgage. He found that the total amount of farm moneys on deposit had increased from 15 to 30 per cent., the aggregate amount being over one hundred millions, and the aggregate wealth totaling $1,405,950,940.

Mr. Duff turned to the problem of rural depopulation and said that what was Ontario's loss was the Dominion's gain. The province was entitled to great credit for her share in Canadianizing the west.

In following up the Minister Mr. Rowell stated that there were many things in the Government policy with which he could agree. The support which was being granted to the O.A.C. was very commendable, and would always be assured of Opposition unanimity. The Government, however, was not doing all that it should, and the appointment of a commission would work well towards the solution of some of the agricultural problems.

Hon. Mr. Duff, he said, had missed the point of the Opposition motion in making such a vigorous defence of the work of his Department. They faced a condition, he said, that was not confined to Ontario, but was almost world-wide. A good commission would help to bring out the facts upon which action could be based.

George Pattinson (Con., S. Waterloo) and W. McDonald (Lib., C. Bruce) also spoke.

Radical legislation regarding inspection of boilers was introduced in the Legislature by Hon. Mr. Duff yesterday. Every boiler in Ontario and not only those in factories, shops or offices, must be annually inspected henceforth by qualified engineering inspectors. This will include theatres, hotels, schools and show building of all descriptions, and all come under a provincial supervision independent of insurance companies.

Children who work in canning factories during the summer months will have the hours of labor cut down from 12 to 10, and elevator operators must be over 18 years of age.

GREY IS CONCILIATORY

Offer of Federal Solution Interesting to Unionists.

General Feeling In Opposition In British House Is That Offer of a General Election If Plural Voting Bill Is Agreed to Would Be Impossible — Asquith May Not Be Opposed In East Fife Election.

LONDON, April 2. — Sir Edward Grey, appearing in the House of Commons yesterday as spokesman for the Government on the second reading of the Home Rule bill, showed that the Cabinet was in a conciliatory mood. His proposal to the Unionist party, to hold an early general election, if the Opposition would allow the plural voting bill, as well as the Home Rule and Welsh Disestablishment bills, to go through, before the end of the present session, is regarded by the Unionists as preposterous, for the enactment of the plural voting bill is just what the Liberals want to insure their continued ascendancy in power.

Sir Edward Grey's other offer of a federal solution in six years was far more interesting, and, in the opinion of the Unionists, much more satisfactory.

This means that Ulster could secure her own separate government, and most of the speakers from either side of the House supported the possibility of a federal scheme being worked out in the six years during which the option to the Ulster counties would be operative.

The first act of Premier Asquith in his new capacity as Secretary of State for War was to clear up the mystery surrounding the instructions given by the War Office to Gen. Sir Arthur Paget, commander-in-chief in Ireland. Home Secretary McKenna announced yesterday that all Gen. Paget had done was to ask the officers whether they would put their duty before any other considerations. Refusal, he told them, meant dismissal.

The result of the day's debate was to confirm the impression that an understanding will eventually be arrived at. A large meeting of Unionist members in favor of a settlement on the federal plan was held in a committee room of the House of Commons yesterday. The proceedings were private, but it is understood that an amendment to the Home Rule bill carrying out the views of the meeting was approved, and will be placed on paper after the bill has been read a second time for discussion in the committee stage.

Polling in the East Fife bye-election has been officially fixed for April 15. Until the meeting of the East Fife Conservative Association to-day, it cannot be definitely stated whether the Unionists will run a candidate, but the probability of their doing so now is extremely remote.

The association practically advises the Unionists to refrain from opposing Asquith on condition that he repudiates michievous anti-army propaganda of some of his colleagues. The position, says The Scotsman, calls for wise action on Asquith's part and it adds: "But if there is any whisper of people versus the army in the Prime Minister's manifesto the rejoinder of Unionists should be instant and determined."

TORREON NOT TAKEN.

Villa Denies Report But Expresses Optimism.

JUAREZ, Mex., April 2.—Reports that Torreon had fallen were definitely denied by Gen. Villa late yesterday afternoon. His telegram was based on a message of congratulation on the "fall" of Torreon despatched to him Tuesday by Col. Fidel Avila, chief of arms of the garrison here. Gen. Villa replied as follows:

"In reply to your message, I wish to state that while I have taken a part of the city of Torreon the struggle is not yet completed. I expect to obtain a triumph, of which I will advise you."

The telegram is dated Gomez Palacio, yesterday.

Details of the struggle received yesterday was brief and showed that the relative positions of the contending forces have not changed to any extent in the last five days.

Great Paintings Bought.

OTTAWA, April 2.—Several notable art purchases are announced for the National Gallery here. They include:

"Oedipus," by Jean Francois Millet; "A Governor of Cadiz," by Goya, the last of the great masters of the Spanish renaissance; "Waterloo Bridge on a Foggy Day," by the father of the modern French impressionist, Claude Monet; and a Spanish picture of the seventeenth century, attributed to Herrera the younger.

Denmark Ratified Treaty.

WASHINGTON, April 2. — Danish Minister Brun yesterday corrected a misapprehension which has arisen from cable reports concerning the status of the new arbitration treaty between the United States and Denmark. The treaty which was signed in Washington on Feb. 3 last was ratified unanimously and with great enthusiasm by both Houses of the Danish Parliament, and was approved by the King of Denmark on March 7 last.

Lt.-Col. King Dead.

QUEBEC, April 2. — Lt.-Col William M. King, brother of Rural Dean King of Quebec, died Tuesday at Georgeville, Beauce, in the Eastern Townships. The deceased raised the first company of the Lotbiniere and Megantic Regiment during the Trent affair, and after commanding it as captain rose to the command of the regiment. He served during the Fenian Raid and was awarded the medal for this service.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS' CLUB SALE BRINGS LARGE RETURNS

Seventy-Seven Head of Cattle Sold—Editor Kingston of Campbellford Herald Lands $1,050 for Best Cow—Many Buyers Present From Ontario and Other Provinces

The fourth annual consignment sale of Holstein cattle, held under the auspices of the Belleville District Holstein Breeders' Club, took place here yesterday. Although the weather was by no means favorable, there was a large attendance and many purchasers from various parts of Ontario and other Provinces were present. The sale was conducted beneath a large tent in the Kyle House yard, adjacent to the stables, where the cattle were kept. Mr. Norman Montgomery was salesman and he is certainly an adept in his profession. The prices obtained seemed to generally please those who consigned the animals. Princess Helene of Harlaam, a fine cow owned by Mr. G. A. Kingston of Campbellford, who, by the way, is a newspaper man, was the highest priced animal. She was sold for $1,050.00 to Mr. B. Leavens of Bloomfield, P. E. county. The cow has a record of 103 pounds of milk in one day and 304 pounds in 3 days. Another cow consigned by Mr. Kingston brought $435. A male animal, Francy 3rd's Admiral Ormsby, consigned by Mr. James A. Caskey, brought $405. This animal is exceptionally large and weighs over a ton.

Seventy-seven head of cattle were sold and a few small calves. The sale realized about $14,000, making the average price of all the animals slightly over $172 each. It was a successful sale in every respect and the cattle were of a fine type. The price realized for each animal and the purchaser of the same were as follows:—

STUDENTS FINED FOR RUSH

KINGSTON, Ont., April. 1.—The executive of the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University met to investigate the recent inter-faculty rush between Science '17 and members of the different years of the Art Faculty. It was found impossible to find those directly responsible for the affair, so the committee recommended to the Senate that a fine of $50 be imposed on Science '17 and on the entire arts faculty.

IMPROVING THE ROADS

Autos and Farmers Responsible For General Zeal

The most conspicuous thing about the sessions of the Ontario Good Roads' Association was the business-like way in which the delegates discussed practical ways and means for road improvement. A few years ago it would have been necessary to have shown reasons why roads should be so improved, and what economic benefits would have been conferred upon the farmers by that improvement. All that is now admitted. The public interest is keenly fixed upon the practical side of financing and constructing improvements. The automobile is in large measure responsible for this awakening of general zeal, because to the natural desire it has added the energetic backing and influence of powerful urban associations and interests.

TYPHOID VACCINE

British Army Pathologist Tells Results of Studies

Col. Sir Wm. Leishman, F.R.S., K.H.P., professor of pathology at the Royal Army Medical College, London, England, who is generally recognized as one of the greatest men in the medical profession in Great Britain, told a meeting of the Association of Officers of the Medical Services of Canada at Ottawa many of the results of his experiments with typhoid vaccine, of which he has made a special study. He claimed that the success of the vaccine has been demonstrated in a remarkable way, especially in tropical countries where typhoid or enteric fever is more rampant than elsewhere.

Pulling His Ears

It is said that the German Emperor has a habit of gently tugging at his left ear when anything bothers him. One day, some years ago, when he was on a visit to England, he was handed a telegram. The contents of the message apparently displeased him, for he immediately began tugging at his ear. The Prince of Wales, then a small boy, watched the performance with considerable interest. "Uncle," he said at length, "why are you pulling your ear?" "Because I'm annoyed, I suppose," replied the Kaiser. "And when you're very annoyed," persisted the young Prince, "what do you do then?" "Then I pull somebody else's," announced his Majesty viciously.

Origin of "Deadhead"

The origin of the word "deadhead" takes us back to the theatres of ancient Rome. R. H. Broadhead, in "A History of Pantomime," gives the following realistic explanation. He says: "Persons were instructed to give applause with skill. The proficient hired themselves out to the poets, authors, etc., and were so disposed as to support a loud applause. The free admission tickets were small ivory death's hands, and specimens of these are to be seen in the Museum of Naples."

Why They Are Cold

Do you know why a dog's nose and a woman's elbow are always cold? Because, according to an old country superstition, when Noah went into the Ark he found that he had forgotten his tools, and had to use first a dog's nose, and then his wife's elbow, to stop a leak.

SPELLING REFORM

Authors Listen to an Appeal For Simpler Spelling

The Authors' Club of London discussed with considerable seriousness and occasional hilarity the subject of "Spelling Reform." The chairman, Professor Walter Rippmann, said authors and writers would welcome the proposal to determine what is good English speech, because a little reflection showed that a well-established standard alone would prevent the splitting up of English and restore the dialects to honor. He would not talk glibly about the "natural growth of language" in connection with spelling and standard speech without a careful study of linguistics, which showed in how limited a sense the expression was true. Being accustomed to the present look of the printed language, the first appearance of words in their own guise would distress the author, but his common sense would tell him that there was no intrinsic beauty in the printed word, and that those accustomed to words in a garb more fitting to the sounds would consider that spelling beautiful—with better reason. On the other hand, the author would recognize that the long hours now spent in our schools over the mechanical drudgery of learning to spell would be better employed in learning to speak clearly and in reading good literature; that, instead of the distaste for reading often engendered by our irrational spelling, the taste for good literature would be fostered; that the writer would come to think more of the sound of his words and make them more pleasing to the ear; that with a spelling that consistently represented the sounds it would become far easier to teach our language to our fellow subjects of alien race and the great obstacle would be removed to English as the language of international communication. Thus the adoption of a rational spelling would bring about a more intensive and a more extensive appreciation of our literature; there would be more time for its study in our schools, more care for its beauty in speech and writing, and a vast increase in the number of those who read English books. No man of letters could afford to remain indifferent to such an appeal, coming as it did not from a body of cranks and faddists, but from men and women whose ability and judgment none would dare to question.

ONCE PROUD WARSHIPS SOLD TO HIGH BIDDER

Renown in Her Day the Best Ship Afloat, Carried King and Queen to India

LONDON, April 2.—Four superannuated British warships, famous in their day, were sold by auction yesterday to the highest bidder. The most notable was the battleship Renown, which had several claims upon the public interest. For five or six years she has played the unheroic role of training ship for stokers at Portsmouth, but when in 1895 the Renown was first commissioned she proudly ranked not only as the most beautiful ironclad afloat but also the fastest vessel of the British fleet, being capable of 18½ knots.

The Renown also holds a unique position as the only modern British battleship sent to the North American station which she left for the Mediterranean when carrying Lord Fisher's flag. The Renown was, indeed the favorite ship of the father of the Dreadnoughts, and Lord Fisher cherishes a silver model of her, a gift from officers who served under him.

The Renown was also the vessel in which the present King and Queen made their journey to India. At the auction yesterday she realized $195,000.

The other ships sold were the Resolution, which brought $178,250; the Ferte, for $92,500 and the Medes for $51,895. The Scylia was also offered, but the bids did not reach the reserve, the best offer being $59,000.

HUGE PAPER MILL AT IROQUOIS FALLS

Excavations for Mill will Begin There in a Few Days

IROQUOIS FALLS, Ont., April 2.—Excavations for the foundation of the paper mill, the largest of the several buildings composing the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company's plant at Iroquois Falls, will commence within the next few days, the mill to be ready for occupancy on June 1st, but the construction of this building will not interfere with the starting of the pulp machinery some time in May. Present plans are that wheels will turn at the pulp mill some time in May.

The paper mill will be 500 feet in length and nearly 300 feet in width, being much larger than any other of the buildings, of solid concrete construction, absolutely fire-proof. Forty thousands cords of pulp wood are piled on the banks of the Abitibi and tributaries waiting to be floated down the river to the falls when the ice leaves.

It has been decided to keep a gang of 250 men at work in the bush during the summer months cutting wood on the large reserve of the company. The total now cut awaiting the spring freshets will be increased by thousands of cords of settlers' pulp to be shipped in by rail. At the plant at Iroquois Falls 475 men are now employed, with 250 men in the bush and at the Couchiching Falls dam.

CUSTOMS COLLECTORS

To be Forbidden to Give out Monthly Returns

An Ottawa despatch says:

In view of the fact that from time to time erroneous reports have been sent out from different ports, it has been decided by the customs department as well as the inland revenue that no reports are to be given the newspapers in future except at the discretion of the minister of customs himself. The same rule will in future apply to the department of inland revenue.

In the past it has been the custom for the collectors at different ports in Canada to issue monthly statements in which the amounts collected were stated The general aspect of trade, and the larger exports and imports were usually mentioned and were found to be very useful for the business men, as they enabled the merchants to feel the pulse of the foreign and domestic trade.

REDISTRIBUTION MAP OF ONTARIO

The Two Elgins are Likely to be Joined Into One Constituency

OTTAWA, April 3.—(Special.)—The redistribution map, so far as Ontario is affected, is nearing completion. Some of the more important changes, in addition to those which have been already mentioned will be found in Western Ontario The two Elgins will, it is expected, be joined into one riding, while Middlesex, Huron and Grey Counties will each have a North and South riding, the suburbs of London remaining in the new South Middlesex constituency. The proposal to mark out a North and a South riding in Kent has been abandoned in favor of an east and west riding, as at present.

The disappearance of East Grey will leave the Speaker of the House without the constituency with which he has been associated for so many years. It is reported that he will go to the Senate at the close of the Parliamentary term.

SNOBS' MAGAZINE COMING IN GERMANY.

Berlin, April 3—Special—What is described in today's papers as "a magazine for snobs," will shortly make its first appearance in Leipzig. It will consist of a monthly publication in the form of facsimile of hand written letters, which will be sent to subscribers as individual communications from the author.

The subscribers are to be limited to 260. The magazine will be called "Orion, the Orbit of the Year in Letters."

INDEPENDENT FLEET HAS SEVEN BOATS

Opposition Line to Canadian Steamship Merger Organized by J. Playfair and James Robertson & Co.

KINGSTON, April 2.—Much speculation is rife in steamboat circles with respect to the identity of the steamers that will compose the fleet to be operated in opposition to the Canadian steamship merger by James Playfair, of Midland, and James Richardson & Sons of Kingston. The latter concern will be associated with Mr. Playfair in the new independent line, which has acquired a fleet comprising seven steamers, with options on several other vessels.

The fleet of the new company to date comprises the steamers Minnekahata and Minnetonka, formerly of the Chicago and Duluth Transit Co., and the Wahatam, of the Pittsburg Steamship Co., Glenmavis, Glenfoile, Toiler and Calgary.

The first three, which are of larger dimensions than the canal size, will be used exclusively in the upper lakes, and the four other vessels of canal size will be put into commission between Montreal, Kingston, and all intermediate points on the upper lake service.

The Playfair-Richardson interests are connected with the coal docks at Fort William, which will give them cargoes for their boats on the west-bound trips, while eastbound the boats will carry grain to the Richardson elevators. A few of the smaller boats will handle pulp.

UNION OF THREE MARITIME PROVINCES

Recommended by Mr. Turgeon is Attracting Public Attention

GLOUCESTER, N. B., April 2.—Special—Public attention is centered upon the recommendation made by Mr. Turgeon regarding the union of the three Provinces and the bringing into the confederation of Newfoundland, as a desirable policy in preserving the balance of power between East and West. At the present time, however, Newfoundland seems less disposed to give up its position as an independent, self-governing colony than it was in times when it was less prosperous, when the absence of international railways and capital was an obstacle to its development. It is nevertheless a fact that confederation in its existing condition to day, despite the anomalies prominently featured by the Redistribution Bill, has fewer opponents to-day than it had at the time of its start. The resuscitation of widespread interest in the Maritime Provinces and the appreciation of the great opportunities they offer the mixed farmer and fruit grower have been strikingly recognized in the past five years.

Indications now point to the fact that the movements of the natives of the Maritime Provinces to the United Sates and the west has been stopped, and there now seems every reason to believe that the population will now progressively increase, not by immigration but by repatriation. The Maratime Provinces and their access to overseas ports and internal transportation facilities, as well as in the diversity and extent of their natural resources possess advantages which are now being carefully weighed by those whose attention in the past have been given to other parts of the Dominion.

PRODUCE TO BE MARKED "COLONIAL"

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, April 3.—A bill has been presented to Parliament, promoted by several members representing agricultural constituencies, providing for the marking of all imported meat and agricultural produce with the word "colonial," to be marked before shipment.

TWO KILLED; FIVE HURT IN BOILER EXPLOSION

Nova Scotian Colliery Scene of Disaster With Many Men Eating Breakfast

NEW GLASGOW, N. S. April 2.—One of the large boilers in the Blankhead plant at the Drummond Colliery Westville, operated by the Intercolonial Coal Company exploded to-day and spread death and disaster about the plant. Two of the employes were killed outright and a number of others were severely injured.

The explosion occurred between 8 and 9 o'clock when many of the men were in the vicinity of the boiler house at breakfast. The dead are:

Daniel J. McMillion, single, aged about 40, and a resident of Westville.

J. Ryan, also of Westville.

The severely injured number five, and they were hurried to Aberdeen Hospital. The boiler was one of the bank of five that supplied the power to the collieries, hoisting machinery, and this accident completely disabled the hoisting equipment of the mines.

FIVE TOURIST HOTELS BURNED IN FLORDIA

Guests Were Driven Scantily Clad Into the Streets

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., April 3.—Special—Flames that swept through two long blocks in the heart of St. Augustine along the bay shore early to-day destroyed five tourist hotels, a theatre, the courthouse, and numerous residences, with an estimated loss of $500,000 to $750,00. There was no life loss, but numbers of guests in the hotels were forced to flee scantily clad into the streets, while others wer caried down ladders by firemen and volunteers.

Two persons who jumped in their flight form the flames were seriously injured. Miss Alice M. Smith, of Amherst, N. S., who leaped from the second-floor window of the Florida House to escape the fire, suffered a broken back and leg, and will die. Several other persons sustained minor injuries.

The hotels destroyed were the Florida House, Munson House, Clairmont Hotel, Central Hotel, and Atlantic House.

DR. ELLIOT'S ASSAILANT HAS ACTED STRANGELY

COBOURG, April 3.—(Special.)—Wm. Bamford, accused of shooting at Dr. Elliot with intent to do grievous bodily harm, came up here in the Police Court this afternoon in adjourned hearing before Magistrate F. D. Boggs, and was further remanded until Monday next. In the meantime he will be medically examined as to his sanity.

Mrs. Bamford, mother of the prisoner, stated that there was no reason that she knew of why he should wish to shoot Dr. Elliot. Of late accused man's mind had seemed to be affected. He had wanted to have prayers and Mass in the home. He had complained of Dr. Elliot and others watching him. After Christmas he was in Port Hope and complained of people watching him there.

A brother and two sisters of the accused gave evidence corroborating their mother. The family had not apparently thought that danger was to be apprehended from what they had noticed in his conduct.

PARLIAMENT RECESS ONE WEEK AT EASTER

Ottawa, April 3—Special—Parliament will adjourn for the Easter recess on Wednesday next until the following Wednesday, April 15. Premier Borden's motion in the Commons this afternoon was originally for an adjournment till Tuesday, the 14th, but after Mr. E. M. Macdonald and Hon. Frank Oliver pointed out that another day should be allowed the members from a distance in order to get back to Ottawa after Easter Monday, the Premier consented to make the recess one day longer.

LAST SPIKE FOR NEW TRANSCONTINENTAL

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 2.—The last spike connecting the rails of Canada's new Transcontinental railway, the G. T. P., will be driven about April 7, probably on Fort Fraser townsite, according to the latest estimates of railway contractors.

Putting forth their best efforts in the keenest rivalry two firms, Stewart Brothers in the West and Bostrom and Green in the East, are striving to reach the bridge that crosses the Nechaco River. It is thought they will meet about the centre of the bridge.

The first train will be that of the President, Mr. E. J. Chamberlain. It is reported that in August there will be a special ceremony in honor of the organization of a regular passenger and freight service between Prince Rupert and Edmonton.

APPOINTED TO INSPECT EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES

Toronto Man Named to Take Charge of the Work in Ontario

OTTAWA, April 3.—(Special.)—Mr. James Mitchell, of Toronto, has been appointed inspector of employment agencies in Ontario under the Department of Immigration.

Under an order-in-council passed last year the department undertook the supervision of employment agencies by license, this supervision being exercised in relation to the employment of immigrants. The work is being carried out by inspectors, with a definite territorial area assigned to each, and Mr. Mitchell will have charge of inspectors in Ontario He takes over his duties on the 15th of this month. The department is arranging for the systematic inspection of all employment agencies licensed to transact business with immigrants.

BLACK DARKNESS AT ROCKWOOD HOSPITAL

KINGSTON, April 2.—Rockwood Hospital was in total darkness for almost two hours last night, the power going off about 7 o'clock and no lights were to be had in the big institution until almost nine. This was the first time since the installation of the electric lighting system that such an accident has occurred in the Asylum. Lanterns, as many as were available, were utilized by the employees in going about their duties.

IMMIGRANT LADS CONFESS ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAIN

Plead Guilty Under Section Which Imposed Life Sentence, But a New Indictment is Ordered

PERTH, Ont., April 2.—At the Criminal Assizes for the County of Lanark, Sir Glenholme Falconbrige presiding, James Sutton, aged 18 years, formerly of Wexford, Ireland, and William Evans, aged 19, formerly of London, Eng., were found guilty of having attempted to wreck a Canadian Pacific Railway train on March 16 last. The youths placed bolts and spikes and a steel plate on the track between Carleton Place and Smith's Falls. They were indicted by the Crown under section 262 of the Criminal Code, which provides a penalty of life imprisonment and when they pleaded guilty Sir Glenholme refused to accept their plea and assigned counsel to the case. With the consent of the Crown Attorney, the pair were re-indicted under another section of the code which provides a lighter penalty and pleaded guilty. They were remanded for sentence, his Lordship intimating that he wished to send them to the prison farm at Guelph, if the regulations there permitted of their acceptance.

BAY CLEAR OF ICE BOATS READY TO SAIL

TORONTO, April 2.—The Bay is now clear of ice, only a flew floating remnants in sheltered slips along the shore now being seen.

Lake navigation is to open next week, when the Dalhousie City is expected to arrive, probably on Monday, on her first run from St. Catharines, and during the week the Macassa, of the Canadian Steamship Line, will clear for Hamilton. The Macassa would have departed yesterday but the presence of ice in the Hamilton harbor prevented it.

The indications along the waterfront of the opening of navigation are of a very active character, scraping, painting and general overhauling being the rule among all the craft which has wintered here. The freight sheds are said to contain an unusual amount of goods, and a very profitable season is anticipated on all hands.

MAY ABANDON CHEAP MAGAZINE SERVICE

LONDON, April 2.—British publishers fear that the correspondence now passing between British and Canadian Postmasters-General may result in the abandonment of the cheap Canadin magazine post under which an immense quantity of British literature goes to Canada.

One house alone sends 130,000 periodicals weekly.

Some difficulty arises from the inadequate British contribution to the cost of the service.

LORD STATHCONA HAD JOKE ON HIMSELF

MONTREAL, April 2.—A London cable to The Gazette says: Lecturing on "Canadian Jottings", at the Wesleyan Church in Sheffield, Rev. Dr. Sutliffe, a former pastor of Douglas Methodist Church in Montreal, told of inviting the late Lord Strathcona to lay the foundation stone of a new church some years ago. The late High Commissioner, in consenting, remarked that it was the first time he had been asked to officiate at such a function. When the ceremony was over Lord Strathcona felt in his pockets for some money to make a donation, but could not find a single copper. He thereupon wrote a subscription for $1,000 on a card which was duly honored. Being reminded later of the incident, Lord Strathcona replied: "It was the first corner-stone I laid, but not the last. They must have heard of that card trick."

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS COVERED WIDE FIELD

LINDSAY, April 3—Special—The youthful burglars who operated here Monday night, and were captured in Peterborough, were brought to town last evening by Chief Chilton. This morning they came up before Magistrate Jackson, and were remanded until Tuesday next. It is said they have admitted carrying out burglaries in stores in Gravenhurst, Barrie, Bracebridge and Orillia.

It is also said that they have given information of a startling nature which will give the provincial police some important work to perform.

All the goods taken from the Lindsay stores were found in their possession.

MILITANTS SET FIRE TO IRISH CASTLE

Edifice Was About to Become a Public Technical Institute

LONDON, April 3.—(Special.)—Suffragettes tried today to burn Lisburn Castle County Antrim, Ireland which was formerly owned by the late Sir John Murray Scott who bequeathed about $5,000,000 to Lady Sackville, and over whose will there was a bitter contest last July. The castle was about to become a public technical institute. Inflammables and the usual Suffragette papers were found in the vicinity. The damage to the castle was slight.

May Richardson, the militant Suffragette who slashed the Rokeby "Venus" in the National Gallery, has been on a hunger strike since she was sent to jail for six months on March 12. The authorities have now resorted to forcible feeding.

TRAIN WRECK DUE TO BUFFALO HERD.

Batavia, Java, April, 3.—Special—Twenty natives were killed and fifty others injured today by the derailment of a train while it was crossing a bridge near Tanjong Priok, about six miles from this city. The accident was caused by a herd of buffalo, into which the locomotive ran. A number of Europeans travelling on the same train escaped injury, as they occupied the rear cars.

ALL COAL MINERS HAVE LEFT PITS

Stocks of Coal at Yorkshire Pit Heads Will Only Last a Week

LEEDS, Eng., April 2.—All the coal miners in Yorkshire, numbering $170,000, had left the pits today when the last of the notices to quit work expired. The men demand the introduction of a minimum wage scale.

The stocks of coal at the pit heads are only sufficient to last about a week. After the expiration of that period the railroads and steel works depending on the Yorkshire collieries for fuel will be seriously hampered and many of the men employed by them may also be forced into idleness.

BLEW UP SAFE AND GOT ONE CENT

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 2.—Disregarding a big sign saying: "No money kept here," yeggmen blew open the safe of James Davidson, coal dealer, early this morning and extracted therefrom the sum of once cent in cash.

From the way the job was done it is believed that it was the work of the same gang that cracked the safe in the office of the Hamilton Sash and Door factory about 3 weeks ago, when about $3 in stamps was taken.

Mr. Davidson kept no money in his safe and wished to let any would-be cracksman know the fact. No arrests have been made so far.

HEIGHT OF HEEL CHANGES COMPLEXION

NEW YORK, April 2.—The height in heels makes a difference in the color of the complexion, according to Dr. Mary Crawford who makes physical examinations of women applicants for civil service positions.

"Women who wear low-heeled, comfortable shoes are healthier, have better complexions and are happier than those who wear high-heeled shoes," she avows.

"When a woman's feet feel comfortable she doesn't hesitate to walk. Walking makes the blood circulate and good circulation aids the complexion and general health." There you have the philosophy of Dr. Crawford.

FELL TO DEATH IN CIRCUS

Girl Equestrienne Wanted to Be Trapese Artist

NEW YORK, April 2—Ella Hackett, nineteen-year-old equestrienne, was killed almost instantly by a fall of fifty feet, from a trapeze to an improvised platform in the Arena at the Barnum and Bailey Circus, at Madison Square Garden late to-day. Ambitious to appear in a trapeze act she was rehearsing after the afternoon performance. While attempting a "revolving swing", she fell headdownwards.

Boys and Girls Smoking Cigarettes

(Intelligencer Special)

FORT WILLIAM, April 3.—That many boys and even girls in the public schools are smoking cigarettes was the statement of Dr. R. Harrison, supervising principal, in addressing the Trades and Labor Council last night. He asked for co-operation in stopping the practice.

FATHER ORDERS SONS' ARREST

OTTAWA, April 2.—Jack and William Waddell, of Montcalm street, Hull, who were given in charge of the police by their 80-year-old father on a charge of being drunk and disorderly in their family home, appeared before Recorder Desjardins this morning and were fined $25 or two months.

The brother did not have money and will break stone for two months.

HIGH SEAS PIRATES CAUGHT IN 'FRISCO

Are Accused of Theft of Money Orders Worth $50,000

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—(Special.)—David Williams was arrested here today for the robbery of Australian registered mail on the high seas, it being alleged that he stole cheques and money orders worth from $40,000 to $50,000 on the liner Ventura.

The Federal authorities are working on the theory that he was one of a gang of sea mail pirates. A hunt for the higher-ups in the ring has been started. With Williams there was arrested Joseph Hearn, a vaudeville actor, who is alleged to be an accomplice.

After subtracting what valuables they wanted, it is said the thieves threw the mail sacks overboard.

To Foster the Dairy Factories

HALIFAX, N.S., April 2.—Special—Steps towards the fostering and establishment of creameries and dairies throughout the Province have been taken by the Nova Scotia Government and one of the first matters taken up by the Government will be the building of a demonstration factory. Farmers who follow the proper methods of feeding and breeding dairy cattle can produce milk more cheaply in Nova Scotia than in any other equal area of Canada. This is owing to the fact that the Province raises superior root and forage crops, while the pastures are well clothed with sweet nutritious grass. Farmers who provide sufficient succulent feeds, such as turnips, mangolds, and corn silage for winter use can produce milk almost as cheaply in winter as in summer, the month of June excepted. The conditions in the Province are especially suitable for dairy cattle, a class of stock which, under proper management, invariably pays handsome profits. Indeed of all the classes of live stock industry, Nova Scotia is best adapted to dairy husbandry. Of late the mining, manufacturing, fishing and lumbering business have developed more rapidly than the agricultural industry and the demand for dairy products, as in fact for all other farm products, is much in excess of the supply. Moreover considering the nearness of foreign markets being developed, it is doubtful if any part of Canada offers a better chance for the extension of the dairy industry. The best farmers in the western end of the Province are obtaining an average of 28 cents a pound for their butter all the year. Dairymen in the eastern part, especially near the industrial towns of Cape Breton Island, sell milk at 6 to 10 cents a quart and butter at from 25 cents to 40 cents a pound.

The average dairy cow in Canada produces 3000 pounds of milk per year. Last year the whole dairy herd at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College Farm, consisting of pure-bred Ayrshires, Jerseys and Holsteins, averaged nearly 10,000 pounds of milk per cow, this being produced at a cost for feed of about $60 per cow, leaving a profit of from $40 to $100 per head, according to the manner of marketing.

ASKS $7,000 DAMAGES FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

MONTREAL, April 2.—Before Justice Beaudin and a mixed jury, the hearing was begun to-day of a suit at the instance of Madame F. X. Durand against Ross Emmans. Madame Durand sues for $7,000 claiming that on July 16 last her husband was killed by an auto belonging to Emmans and driven by him on Craig street, near Voltigeurs street. The question before the jury is the apportionment of the blame for the accident between the deceased and Mr. Emmans. Madame Durand sues on behalf of herself and three minor children, who have been left destitute by their father's death.

LONG DEBATE IS ENDED

Leaders at Ottawa Meet in Final Battle on N.T.R. Report

Graham's Vote of Censure of Government for Probing Extravagance of Late Administration Is Defeated by a Poll of 105 to 87—Government Cannot Repudiate Mr. Graham's Contracts, Says Premier

OTTAWA, April 3.—By a vote of 105 to 87, the House of Commons last night voted down the resolution proposed by Hon. Geo. P. Graham, censoring the Government because of the Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton report upon the National Transcontinental Railway. Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke for nearly two hours, but added little, if anything, to the argument for the Liberals delivered by Mr. Graham ten days ago.

Mr. Borden in reply stated that Sir Wilfrid by his trade policy of 1911 had thought to destroy the National Transcontinental by transferring all its traffic to the railways of the United States.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie (Lib., S. Wellington) resumed the debate yesterday afternoon. He said there could have been no undue extravagance in building the road, because the Grand Trunk had tendered upon 17 of the 21 contracts for the express purpose of keeping down the cost of construction. He criticized the action of the present commission in introducing momentum grades in spite of the protests of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Evidently this had been done in order to give the Grand Trunk Pacific the opportunity to refuse to lease the Winnipeg-Moncton line for fifty years under its contract with the Government.

W. H. Bennett (Con., E. Simcoe) said the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme had been devised in order to make a lot of Liberal campaign followers rich. The Yukon had played out and the western lands had been exploited to the limit, so some new get-rich-quick scheme had to be invented. The Government had a complacent Minister of Railways in Mr. Graham, and a commission was quite ready to join hands with the contractors in making party favorites rich. At the head of the commission was placed the "precious Mr. Parent," who was discredited and discarded by the Liberal politicians of the Province of Quebec. It was this same Mr. Parent who, in behalf of the Government, promised a charter to the Banque Internationale upon condition that Sir Rodolphe Forget did not run against Mr. Geo. Parent in Montmorency in 1911.

Hon. H. R. Emerson asked whether the Government believed that $35,000,000 had been wasted in constructing a line between Levis and Moncton. If it did believe that why was it spending $50,000,000 more in terminal facilities at Halifax, and $30,000,000 more in improving the port of St. John, N.B.?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier received an ovation from his followers upon rising. Sir Wilfrid went over the careers of the two investigators to show that they were biassed politically, and had not given the accused a fair trial.

"What is this report?" he asked. "It is an unblushing partizan libel, reeking with unfair inuendoes and untrue insinuations, but nowhere is there a direct open page of dishonesty or graft."

The charge against the late Government, Sir Wilfrid continued, was that they had built too good a road, that they had too much faith in Canada and to much hope for her future. For himself he was here to say that the National Transcontinental would realize the fondest hopes of the country unless the men now in charge of the road degraded its high standard.

Sir Wilfrid then dealt with the points in the report.

The commissioners well know that the 450,000 for the Transcona shops had not been illegally expended, and that the present Minister of Justice had so declared. They also knew that the present Government had expended $1,500,000 upon similar shops at Quebec, but that fact was not mentioned in their report. They also knew that the present Government had sent an impartial expert to examine the Transcontinental shops, who had reported that they were not too large.

As for the statement that the Moncton-Levis line was a sheer waste of money, that was only an echo of Lynch-Staunton's speeches in Ontario in 1904 and 1908. At that time Ontario Conservatives had favored breaking off the line at Quebec.

In conclusion, Sir Wilfrid said that it had been repeatedly charged during this debate that he was responsible for the construction of the National Transcontinental. If that was intended as a stigma, he accepted it as an honor. No greater service could be performed for the confederation than to connect Quebec and Winnipeg with a continuous chain of settlements. "It is our responsibility, the construction of this road; it is for the Government to accept the responsibility from degrading and destroying it," he said.

There was a great demonstration from the Government benches when the Prime Minister rose to reply. Sir Wilfrid's speech, he said, was an admirable though abbreviated edition of the speech delivered last week by Mr. Graham, with a few decorative flowery statements from the ex-Premier's speech in introducing the Grand Trunk Pacific legislation in 1903.

Referring to the attacks made upon the commissioners, Mr. Borden said that either Mr. Gutelius or Mr. Lynch-Staunton, or both, were equal in integrity, character, record and reputation to any member of the Opposition, from the highest down. It was said that these commissioners had not been sworn, but he challenged Sir Wilfrid Laurier to name one royal commission that had been sworn during his sixteen years of office.

Of Mr. George Lynch-Staunton, Mr. Borden said, that no breath of scandal had ever assailed his personal or professional reputation, and against Mr. Gutelius no more serious charge was brought than that he was born in the United States. Surely the Opposition's case must be a desperate one when such appeals were made to prejudice.

Mr. Borden then discussed the cost of the National Transcontinental, allowing for interest charges, the cost of the Quebec bridge and the money paid out on account of the construction of the western division between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert. It was not unfair to say that the road would cost Canada $303,000,000. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier had estimated the cost at $13,000,000 he was a trifle inaccurate, to say the least.

Mr. Borden, replying to C. M. Macdonald, said it was preposterous to hold the Borden Government responsible for living up to the contracts made by the former Government. Those contracts could not be repudiated.

It had been charged by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the Government had printed and distributed 250,000 copies of the report. As a matter of fact, there had only been 14,000 copies printed all told, 10,000 in English and 4,000 in French. In conclusion, the Prime Minister said: "We have not one, but two transcontinental railways, which we must either see through to completion or leave them uncompleted. We are not afraid of the situation, nor are we unable to deal with it, but we will give to that situation which we did not create, our best efforts as trustees for the Canadian people."

The vote was then taken.

INTERESTING CONTEST BY ELOCUTIONISTS

The Salvation Army Citadel was comfortably filled last evening by local residents all interested in the elocutionary contest under the auspices of the "Y." After singing and prayer by Adjutant MacDonald, Mrs. Alex Ray, "Y" president, read the scripture lesson, after which the following contestants took part in an elocution contest. The music furnished by the Army Band was much appreciated, as were also the solos by Bro. Burse and Mr. Wm Smith. No. 1, Herbert Sword recites "I'll Take What Father Takes." No. 2, "Dropped Stitches," by Flora Burse, was well given. No. 3, Johnnie McDonald recited "True Victory" well. No. 4, How a Little Girl Emptied the Jug," by Doris Willerton. This was given with feeling and expression. No. 5, "A Little Boy's Plea" was much enjoyed as the reciter, Ray Mitts, was the smallest of the contestants but did himself credit. No. 6, "Licensed to Sell a Little Blossom," is a selection capable of being rendered with pathos, and Doris Humphries' interpretation was very pleasing, and the five judges: Misses Craig, Drummond, Stafford, Mrs. Vivian and Mr. A. E. Bailey all agreed that her rendition of this selection was the medal winner. The last recitation, "A Case for Charity," given by Willie Frost. While the judges were out Mrs. Ray made some effective remarks and congratulated the Army on the splendid programme given. Miss Lulu Dyer "Y" Supt., presented the silver medal, pins and a few well chosen remarks.

The "Y's" feel much pleased with the selections chosen and the ability shown and all the music furnished.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The condition of Mr. S. W. Vermilyea, who has been ill for some time remains about the same.

Mr. W. D. Robb, G. T. R. superintendent of motive power, was in the city yesterday making an inspection of the local equipment under his department.

THE LANE SERVICES

The interest in Mr. Lane's Bible readings is increasing, as evidenced by the larger numbers who attended at the Y.M.C.A. building yesterday afternoon. His theme was "Christian Husbandry," taken from I Cor. iii:1-5.

1. There is the distribution of labor. All Christians are ministers or laborers. God often uses many men and women to bring one soul to Christ. Paul said: "I planted, Appolos watered, but God gave the increase."

2. The true spirit of labor. This is lowliness. We are only of use when we are willing to fit in anywhere whether the service be prominent or obscure. We are only tiny links in God's great chain.

3. Underlying unity of labor. There is harmony among the laborers. This is the natural outcome of the lowly spirit of the laborers, each deeming himself nothing but God everything. We take up the work laid down by another and so carry on God's plan.

4. Certain compensation. Each laborer shall receive his own reward according to his labor. As we sow so shall we reap. What ew are here we shall we reap. What we are here we labor that will be rewarded. He will receive the greatest reward who has put the most heart and life into his labor. He who has lived the life that uplifts other lives. The Lord help you and me to live for eternity.

In the evening, Evangelist Lane delivered a stirring address to a large congregation in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, taking for his subject the influence of one life upon another, the good or the harm we may do on our way through life. He illustrated his discourse by incidents from life, vividly portraying the results of our deeds, or the lack of Christian acts, even though we may not be outbreaking in our sins. There were many points from which he viewed the influence for or against right living, the forceful admonition proving of great profit. The chorus choir furnished excellent vocal music. The last service of the series will be held in the Tabernacle church at 8 o'clock this evening, to which all are invited.

MADOC MOVEMENTS

Madoc citizens were somewhat surprised on reading the following bulletin on the doors of J. C. Dale & Co.'s bank on Wednesday, April 1st: "Payment stopped for ten days. Depositors will be paid in full as soon as matters can be adjusted. By order of Shareholders."—Madoc Review.

Dr. Clinton, Medical Health Officer for Ontario, will give an address in the Town Hall, Madoc, Friday at 3 o'clock. He will also deliver an address in the evening.

The McKay Camp, No. 208, Sons of Scotland, held their annual At Home in the Masonic Hall, Madoc, Tuesday evening, March 31st, on the official visit of Bro. Wm. McIntosh, Deputy District Grand Master. McKay Camp issued invitations to over fifty of their friends. Mr. George West, Master of the Camp, gave an address of welcome and the District Deputy spoke of the merits of the order and advised every citizen in whose veins ran a drop of Scottish blood to become associated with the order. Mr. McIntosh then favored the audience with a number on the bagpipes whose thrilling music has always been dear to a Scotchmans' ears. The Sills' Orchestra furnished music for the dances and won encomiums by the excellence of their musical programme. The At Home was voted a great success and the invited guests are indebted to the McKay Camp for a very enjoyable evening, and we have no doubt that the Camp will receive many additions to their numbers.

A YEAR IN REFORMATORY FOR CLOTHES THIEF

On Wednesday the 1st inst., Mr. Frank Palmer, a boarder at the Victoria Hotel, had an April fool joke played upon him which he did not relish—nor would any one else if similarly treated. His room was entered during his absence and a valuable suit of clothing was stolen. The matter was reported to the police with the result that the thief was apprehended yesterday at Trenton. It proved to be Peter Jackson of this city, who was about the hotel that day. Sergt. Harman went to Trenton this morning and brought Jackson back to the city. Later the accused was brought up before Magistrate Masson and pleaded guilty to the theft. He could hardly do otherwise, as he was wearing the stolen suit. He was also charged with breaking into and entering the room, but this charge was dismissed. The Magistrate, after commenting upon the serious nature of the offence, sentenced Jackson to one year in the Provincial Reformatory. The culprit is comparatively young, but is a married man.

Had Painful Experience.

PETROLEA, April 3.—For three or four hours Mrs. Donald Morrison of this town lay in a most painful posture, unable to help herself, as a result of a paralytic stroke. Mrs. Morrison is in her 84th year. She went into the hencoop, and while there was stricken with paralysis in the right side and lay with her feet doubled up and suspended over a railing 18 inches high, until accidentally discovered by Miss Bessie Gregory. Little hope is held for her recovery.

DESERONTO DOINGS

Yeserday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Dr. George Clinton, district officer of health, gave a fine talk to children on the health of the home, tuberculosis, etc., in Naylor's Theatre. In the evening at 8 o'clock he delivered an address in the same place to adults. Both addresses were illustrated with moving pictures. In the evening Mayor Rathbun presided. A short musical programme was also rendered.

The following was forwarded to the 'Post' by one of our readers: "The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hutton, Ottawa, will be pleased to learn that Mr. Hutton has been appointed government photographer in the Victoria Museum at a salary of $1,200 per year, with an increase yearly of $50 to a maximum salary of $1,600. Out of forty applicants Mr. Hutton has been successful in getting this situation."

Sunday was a red letter day in the history of St. Mark's Church, Deseronto, when the Lord Bishop of Kingston, Dr. Bidwell, paid the parish an official visit and administered the rite of confirmation to a class of twenty-seven. The service was marked by solemnity and reverence. The Bishop preached a powerful sermon. The organist and choir rendered the musical portions of the service admirably and about seventy received the Holy Communion. The Bishop addressed the Sunday School in the afternoon, and again at 7 p. m. preached a most forcible sermon on repentance. A reception in the basement of the church after evensong brought a most delightful Sunday to a happy conclusion.

WHADYEKNOWABOUTTHIS?

Fred Acton of the Belleville Club of Chicago, turned around last month and was married to Miss Adeline Virginia Olson of Chicago. Fred never did anything like that before! And believe us, believe us, he is some picker, because his bride is surely a most charming young lady. The young couple have gone south for an extended tour. These Chicago Belleville lads know their book. It is only a couple of years ago since Fred Foster hustled across the border, married a very lovely Toronto girl and romped off to Florida for a honeymoon. And where do you suppose young Mr. Fred Acton has taken his bride? Why, to Florida, of course! We guess these Belleville benedicts are looney, yes? Think of it! Florida, the land of the palmetto and magnolia! Well, anyhow, the "News" most heartily congratulates the young people and wishes them much happiness and many years to enjoy it!—Chicago—Belleville News.

ROYALTY A-SAILING

Every Individual of the Entourage Has Private Cabin

Every individual of the Royal entourage is provided with a cabin to himself on the Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert. They are all prettily upholstered in chintzes or cretonnes, and each is provided with a commodious wardrobe, a marble washhand stand, etc. Writing tables are in some cabins, and the secretary's cabin possesses a large roll-topped desk as well.

His Majesty's sleeping cabin and dressing room are next door to those of the Queen. The latter uses the same room as was arranged for Queen Alexandra, practically no alterations having taken place. It is very prettily upholstered in chintz; private photographs and pictures decorate the walls; and there is a large dressing table replete with all the electric appliances requisite for light and heat. There is also a beautiful bathroom.

Her Majesty's private saloon is like a dainty drawing room in a private house, furnished with drawing room lounges and chairs, pretty curtains and cushions, and a grand piano.

Immediately forward of the dining saloon there is a smoking room. This apartment is also furnished in blue morocco and mahogany, and it boasts of a pretty little fireplace. It was here that the late King lay in bed for some weeks after his critical operation for appendicitis, the cabin having been rapidly and dexterously converted into a sickroom. It had the advantage of being large and airy and free from the danger of having to convey the Royal patient down the staircase.

A STRATHCONA STORY

Lord Strathcona often declared that a Scotsman, though he spent his life abroad, ever remains a Scotsman, and the ubiquity of the race was a favorite conversational theme with him. To illustrate it he told of a Scotsman in Shanghai who betted an incredulous Southerner that he would discover a brither Scot in every Ship in the harbor. Going to each ship in turn and shouting "Are you there Mac?" into the engine-room, he got "Aye, aye" as answer every time.

IN DEFENCE OF LUMBER

Lumbermen Are Fighting Against Substitution of Other Materials

Lumbermen are naturally somewhat perturbed over the onslaught against the use of forest products and are commencing to demonstrate to the public that wood is much superior for certain purposes than any other material. However, in their fight against the substitution of other materials, lumbermen are handicapped through the fact that there is a growing scarcity of suitable material and also to the fact that the cost of all kinds of lumber is advancing year by year. In their efforts to overcome the cost of all kinds of lumber, experiments are being carried on under Government auspices, both in the United States and in Canada for the purpose of finding substitutes for the more expensive woods. By means of creosoting and otherwise treating the softer and cheaper grades of wood, lumbermen hope to demonstrate that the use of their products is in the best interests of the public.

SIR EDWARDS PLAN

It is for Sir Edward Grey to give the first formal and authoritative suggestion of the federation of the United Kingdom. It has been much discussed in the press, especially in the reviews and weeklies, which play a much greater part in the formation of public opinion in England than like publications elsewhere; and influential men in all parties have given a certain hospitality to the idea. But with Sir Edward's speech, made at a time of serious crisis, when parliamentary government had been gravely shaken and when it faced the possibility of civil war with much doubt as to how the danger could be dealt with, the idea emerges as a definite plan, adapted to the actual problem and to other difficulties that have been long accumulating: Sir Edward Grey practically proposes a truce of six years in which the leaders of both parties shall study out a comprehensive and permanent Federal system for the reasonable and efficient administration of the complex affairs of the British democracy.

As a piece of political tactics this proposition has much merit. It tends to calm perilous excitement. It diverts attention from the vexed and vexing questions that have tormented and bewildered Parliament and the people for a long time. In introducing it the Foreign Secretary took occasion to define the Government's policy as to Ulster in a manner that may prove significant. Referring to the exclusion from home rule of Ulster for six years, he said: "The country must settle the question at the end of time." There is a distinct difference between this statement and that of Mr. Asquith, which amounted to saying that the question must be settled now, with no provision for a review by the country. Thus the barrier that separates the two parties seems, as to Ulster, to be still further reduced and the prospect seems brighter for an ultimate settlement by consent. Negotiations for that purpose appear actually to have begun.

Of great permanent importance was the flat declaration of Sir Edward Grey that "if the difficulty was not solved by the introduction of a Federal system, the country would go under through the sheer inability of Parliament to transact its business." The increasing helplessness of Parliament is due to two causes. One is the enormous growth in volume and in complexity of the work of Government. The other is the extension of the suffrage to several classes that 50 years ago had no direct voice in Government. The most striking result of the latter development is the complete breakdown of the two-party system and the introduction of rule by coalition of groups. In the House of Commons at present the Government have a majority of 108 on a full vote, but the Unionists have sixteen more votes that the Liberals. Then Government majority is made up of 265 Liberals, 84 Irish, and 40 Labor men. The life of the Government depends directly on the Irish vote and this has forced Mr. Asquith to a course on home rule to which originally he was far from inclined. Nor it is at all likely that any future Government can maintain itself except by some form of coalition. Whether federation of the United Kingdom will relieve this condition is extremely uncertain, but it would have the obvious advantage of putting off on the various States of the Federation a large part of the work now done by Parliament. Toward his consummation it is quite likely that the plan of Sir Edward Grey will strongly tend. It will bring with it new difficulties and some new perils, especially in the field of international politics, but it is the logical and probably the inevitable result of advancing democracy.

A MINER'S STRIKE

Between 40,000 and 50,000 Ohio miners were thrown out of employment on Wednesday as a result of the decision of the operators to close the mines until the miners agree to a contract on lump-coal basis or until the Ohio screen coal act, which becomes effective on May 20th, is declared unconstitutional. The breach between the Ohio operators and the officials of the United Mine Workers was widened when the miners renewed the lump-coal contract with the operators in the Western Pennsylvania district. Under the terms of the Ohio screen-coal act, miners must be paid for all the coal mined, while under their agreement with the Pennsylvania operators payment is made on a lump-coal basis. The Ohio operators declare that they will be unable to compete with the Pennsylvania mines if they are compelled to pay for slack as well as the lump coal, which has, of course, the greatest market value.

The officers of the union were axious to have the men continue work in order to prevent the markets becoming flooded with coal from unorganized districts.

The operators have apparently good ground for complaint, but they have adopted a costly way of trying to force an agreement with the miners—a method which will work hardship on the miners if, as has been asserted, their union is not in a position to pay benefits. The miners are still somewhat uncertain of the operators' intentions and look upon the threatened idleness as a bluff. The operators will now be compelled to show their hand, and if they carry out their threats, some rapid developments may be expected. It would appear that both the operators and miners can afford to make concessions in order to avoid the period of idleness which confronts them.

A Wonderful Discovery

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. Today—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema.

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

The majority in the Ontario Legislature evidently do not believe that a married woman is as good as a spinster or a widow, or they would not have voted down Mr. Elliott's bill to give the municipal franchise to married women who own property, says the Stratford Beacon. If the Beacon man was single he might take the opposite view. As it is, he doubtless does not dare express himself otherwise than in sympathy for the persecuted matrons.

Ottawa Free Press: "A single speech can make or mar a man. That which Hon. If speaking for seven hours in defence of the most expensive scandal the country has ever known can make a man, then George should be ranked among the stalwarts.

Stratford Beacon: "Hon. It will be remembered that Hon. Frank sat on the lid of the N. T. R. doings while in power, and now that the cover is raised and the hornets are singing about his ears, he puts up a holler. It is always the hit dog that howls.

LITERARY NOTES.

THE CANADIAN COURIER

Heroism of Premiers

When President Wilson said in his Chicago speech "I am the trustee for the prosperity of the United States," he made a statement which every Cabinet Minister in Canada should remember. Our Premiers, if they told the frank, brutal truth would probably say, "I am the trustee for the properity of my party clique." There is a tremendous difference.

Under our system, it must be admitted a Provincial or Federal Premier has not the same freedom as the President of the United States. He has more power to force his measures through parliament, but he is under greater restrictions imposed by the party caucus and the party leaders outside parliament. The President is a candidate chosen for the time being, not a leader who has grown up with the party, progressing step by step to the top. The President may be an outsider, as President Wilson is, and hence comparatively free from past political history. Our Premiers never are. No Canadian Premier could reasonably be expected to take the detached view of public questions that Wilson does.

Admitting all this, Canadian Premiers are not noted for their courage or their leadership. They seldom tower head and shoulders above their Cabinet as Wilson does. More important still, they seldom make a big fight for a public reform to which the leaders of the party are opposel. They are usually compromisers. They think more of winning bye-elections than doing what is best for the people as a whole. They are usually grand men, anxious to serve their fellow-citizens, but not always willing to risk their political supremacy by courageous action. Hence they are more often party heroes than public heroes. Their heroism is for the party than for the people. There are exceptions of course. Sir James Whitney is a notable example of a man who has led his party and has regarded himself as a trustee for his province. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden also have much of the quality implied in the phrase, "A Trustee for the People."

SKIN ERUPTIONS

EVIDENCE OF IMPURE BLOOD AND RUN-DOWN CONDITION

When the blood becomes thin, poor, devitalized nature cries out through such external evidence for help and the safest, surest and most helpful remedy we know is Vinol.

This is because it is a combination of the two most world famed tonics—the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil (without the oil) and tonic iron for the blood. Vinol strengthens the digestive organs, creates a hearty appetite, purifies and enriches the blood, creates strength.

Mrs. Helen Wingate, St. Louis, Mo., says: "I was in very poor health, nervous and run-down, and nothing in the way of medicine did me any good until my druggist recommended Vinol. It built up my health, restored strength and I feel that I owe my life to Vinol. I cannot praise it too highly."

We say positively there is nothing like Vinol to purify and enrich the blood and build up weak, run-down people. If it should fail in your case we will return your money—Red Cross Drug Store J. S. McKeown, Belleville Ont

THE PRINTER'S DEVIL
(From the War Cry)

In the early days of printing this art was much of a mystery, and ignorant people thought the printer evoked the aid of the powers of evil. Aldus Manutius, the famous Italian printer of the 16th century, went to Africa on an exploring expedition and brought back with him a very black negro boy. The Negroes were a rairity ther. The report immediately circulated that the printer had been employing the black art in his work and that the pickaninny was in reality an imp of Satan He was called the "Little Black Devil." The charge became sa serious that the printer was forced to exhibit the negro in public. In his announcement he said:

"Be it known to Venice that I, Aldus Manutius, printer to the Holy Church and to the Doge, have this day made public exposure of the printer's devil. All those who think he is not flesh and blood may come and pinch him."

And that is how the "printer's devil" had its origin.

GRAND TRUNK NEWS ITEMS

An important contract calling for a large expenditure has just been given out by the Ontario Car Ferry Co. Limited of which Mr. E. J. Chamberlin is President and which has its head office in Montreal. This calls for the construction of a new steamship of over 5,000 tons to carry freight and passengers across Lake Ontario from Cobourg to Genesse Dock (Port of Rochester.) The Polson Iron Works of Toronto are to build the steamer, which will be of steel, specially reinforced for ice breaking and three hundred and seventeen feet in length with a fifty six feet beam. With its two funnels and triple expansion engines the new steamer will make fifteen miles an hour. The increases in traffic between these two Lake Ontario points has made construction of this new steamer necessary. It will have to accommodation on its passenger decks and in its saloon for over nine hundred people. Below on the main car deck the steamship will carry up to twenty-eight loaded steel coal cars of standard type. These being on three tracks on the steamer's deck.

A large amount of freight principally coal, coke and steel bars is carried up over the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg to Genesse. The loaded freight cars are there shipped on to the steamships and taken over to Cobourg where the freight is distributed by the Grand Trunk Railway at various points in Ontario. A steamship "Ontario 1" is at present carrying on this service but a second boat has been found necessary and the new boat will be named "Ontario 2" and will be in service in the spring of 1915. The run between Cobourg and the Port of Rochester is made every day all the year round. The passenger schedule is however only maintained in the summer months. For in the winter time with a thick covering of ice on the Lake arrival and departure times cannot be accurately gauged.

Grand Trunk Pacific officials report to head quarters in Montreal from time to time many interesting colonization scemes undertaken by private individuals and companies along the line of route in the rich lands opened out by the new transcontinental line. One of the latest has some novel features. It is to be carried out under the direction of Mr. Albion Hunt and Mr. Hal. Carlton of London, England. They intend to colonize a tract of land of about 14,000 acres lying near Kinsella on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, about 75 miles east of Edmonton.

The novelty of the plain lies in the fact that the promoters will endeavor to attract in particular the man who has not had any previous experience in farming. They will have a model three hundred and twenty acre farm in the centre of the tract. This model farm will be run on a strictly business basis while at the same time it will be of educational value.

It will show the new settler how to erect the best and cheapest kind of houses and other building and the best manner of raising horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry, grain, fodder, crops on a commercial paying basis. The model farm will also teach how to best handle the land itself from the initial breaking to the harvesting of the crops.

Arrangements will be made for the marketing of all kinds of produce and advice will be given as to the necessary equipment of the farm, including both live stock and machinery. If the new comer does not wish to buy equipment for use in the first year, but is desirous of confining his operations to fencing, building and general initial development work, then the model farm will break his land and put in his crop at moderate prices.

It has been arranged to temporarily house at Kinsella any settler while he is putting up a house and if those who are bachelors desire they may board at a low rate at the model farm.

The project is somewhat of a co-operative one as everything will be bought in large quantities thereby reducing prices. Marketing will also be done on a co-operative basis to a great extent.

SEAL HUNTERS LOST

Fifty to One Hundred Perish in Gale Off Newfoundland.

Blinding Snowstorm Overtakes Men at Work on the Ice and Crew of Steamer Newfoundland Are Lost In Trying to Regain Ship—Twenty-Five Bodies Are Recovered—Many Others Are Maimed.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 3.—This year's seal fishery on the Newfoundland coast threatens to be the most disastrous for nearly twenty years. Already one disaster has certainly occurred which resulted in the known death of 64 members of the crew and steamer Newfoundland, and some estimates place the dead at over 100. Fears that the Southern Cross, another sealing steamer with 173 men on board had been lost, were dispelled last night by a bulletin from Channel, Nfld., saying she is safe. The seal hunt is a specially hazardous occupation. The steamers carry unusually large crews of from 150 to 270 men, and when the ice on which the seals are found is located all these men are sent out each morning over the fields of ice to kill the seals and drag them back to the ship or pile them in huge heaps where the ship can get them as it threads its way through the fragments of ice behind them. On any normally favorable day probably 3,000 men are thus occupied in small or large groups over the fields of ice for maybe 50 or 100 miles.

Last Tuesday morning this practice was resumed, as every day before, but after the men had been on the ice some few hours the blizzard broke, and sent them scurrying back, while the ships were also moved to unusual activity to reach their men. The steamer Newfoundland, however, got caught and her men were lost. The ship is one of the old style wooden vessels with less power than the modern steel boats, was caught between some fragments of heavy ice, and could not move, and her men in the dense, blinding snowstorm, lost all senses of the direction, and wandered aimlessly over the ice floes, knowing from sad experience what fate confronted them. Not until yesterday morning, forty-eight hours later, did the weather improve sufficiently for help to be given. Then the Newfoundland signalled to the two nearest ships, the Bellaventure and the Stepheno, both powerful modern steamers, and these at once sent out parties of men to search over the snow-clad ice for the dead. Twenty-five bodies were found and thirty-five survivors, badly frostbitten. Most of these will be maimed for life.

GIRL WAS HAZED.

Indiana Student Claims Damages for Brutal Treatment.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., April 3.—As a result of hazing in the girls' dormitory of Purdue University last January Mabel Rogers, of Shoals, Ind., yesterday filed suit against seven senior girls demanding $7,000. The plaintiff, who is a first year girl, alleges that, up to the time she was hazed, she was a healthy girl with normal eyes, but now her sight is impaired and her health destroyed.

Miss Rogers in her complaint, alleges that on a certain day in January, while she was preparing her lessons, seven girls dragged her from her room, tore off her clothing, painted her chest, back and neck with red ink, poured mucilage on her back and stuck her with pins in an effort to force her to kneel to her assailants. She further avers that she was ducked in a tub of water. She declares she was forced to go to a hospital for treatment following the hazing, and that she has been unable to do her work in the university.

FAVORS REORGANIZATION.

Judge Scores Toronto City Architect's Department.

TORONTO, April 3.—Judge Denton's report upon the investigation into the efficiency of the city architect's department, and into the charges preferred against the acting city architect and the department by Ald. Wanless, was handed to Mayor Hocken yesterday afternoon.

The reorganization of the department into a "department of buildings" is recommended.

Acting City Architect Price comes in for severe criticism; the Board of Control, the City Council and Chief Thompson also.

Judge Denton laconically states in regard to favoritism to builders: "If Mr. Price has shown favoritism and discrimination he does not stand alone in that connection. The Board of Control and City Council have also sinned. Many instances have been given of concessions asked and granted by the property committee or the Board of Control in the face of the opposition of the department."

We Have Faith in This Stomach Remedy

A woman customer said to us the other day, "Say, you ought to tell everyone in town about Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets I would myself if I could." That set us to thinking. So many people have used them and have so enthusiastically sounded their praises both to us and their friends, that we had an idea you all knew about them. But, in the chance that some of you who suffer from indigestion, heartburn, dyspepsia, or some other stomach complaint, don't know about them—we are writing this.

They contain Bismuth and Pepsin two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science. They soothe and comfort the stomach, promote the secretion of gastric juice, help to quickly digest the food and convert it into rich, red blood, and improve the action of the bowels. We believe them to be the best remedy made for indigestion and dyspepsia. We certainly wouldn't offer them to you entirely at our risk unless we felt sure they would do you a lot of good If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets do not relieve your indigestion, check the heartburn, and make it possible for you to eat what you like whenever you like, come back and get your money.

Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only at our store. Three sizes, 25c. 50c, and $1.00—J. S. McKeown.

GALE IN LEGISLATURE

Hot Passage Between McQueen and Machin Stirs House.

Charge of Slack Enforcement of Liquor Laws In Kenora and Countercharge of Prescribing Illegal Dose for "Indian" Causes Excitement—Redistribution Bill Advances a Stage—Big Tract Added to Algonquin Park.

TORONTO, April 3.—There was an exciting passage of arms in the Legislature last evening between Dr. McQueen (Lib., N. Wentworth) and Capt. Machin (Con., Kenora), which brought the members on both sides to their feet and for a time threatened the equilibrium of the Assembly.

It arose over a statement by Dr. McQueen that the liquor laws in Kenora riding were not as well enforced as they might be, and that when excursions passed through the town the inspector was frequently absent.

Hon. W. J. Hanna briefly replied that all appointments had been made in order, and that the enforcement was good in all respects.

Capt. Machin then took the floor, and retaliated on Dr. McQueen to the effect that the member for N. Wentworth had no right to preach temperance when he himself had broken the laws by giving a man on the Indian list more than the legal six ounces of whisky. Capt. Machin produced the orders in question. Dr. McQueen rose to give the history of the affair, which he said had been fully canvassed by his political enemies in North Wentworth. The man had come to the office on a Sunday on the verge of delirium tremens and his priest had urged the prescription.

Finally the uproar calmed and the House returned to business. Z. Mageau's bill to permit local option in assessment in the New Ontario districts was discussed, and defeated on division.

The debate was confined chiefly to two northern members, both of whom represent ridings that would be interested in the proposal. Z. Mageau championed his bill and Albert Grigg of Algoma, was a very vigorous opponent.

Hon Mr. Hanna said the principle of the bill was the same as that thrown out earlier, but that he had heard the case with interest, because of all places in the province the north would without doubt be the most favorable for such a schems. Conditions in the west were partly experienced in the new parts of Ontario. He could not see, however, that it would relieve problems in the way hoped for.

The Ontario redistribution bill advanced another short stage in the Legislature yesterday. The whole matter now goes into the hands of a special committee of the House, which includes members from both parties, the second reading having been passed without dissent.

The members on the special committee which will guide it through the preliminary stages are as follows: Hon. Messrs. Hanna, Lucas and Preston, and Messrs. McDiarmid, Fraser, Hartt, Ross, Rowell, Clarke, Proudfoot and Bowman.

Three hundred square miles of fine timber land bearing great promise of future values will be added to the large preserve now known as Algonquin Park as the latest stroke of the Ontario Government in the conservation of this branch of natural resource. The price of this area is $185,000, and the compact received the sanction of the House yesterday afternoon after a long discussion. The present owners of the land in question are known as the Pembroke Lumber Co., and the matter arose in the House on the solicitation of Hon. W. H. Hearst, who has been negotiating for some time with a view to swelling the tangible assets of the province in the north land.

In criticizing Mr. Hearst's proposal Sam Clarke (W. Northumberland) felt that if they took the Minister's estimate of the situation as matter of fact, they were getting a marvelous bargain, but he advocated a still further report by other forestry experts in the employ of the Government.

"MENACE" IS BARRED.

Canadian Mails Closed to Paper Which Assails R. C. Clergy.

OTTAWA, April 3. — "The Menace," a weekly paper published in the United States, has been barred by the Postoffice Department from transmission through the Canadian mails, and an authorization to establish a similar paper at Aurora, Ont., has been refused. The reason given is that the statements in the paper are found to be so "scurrilous, abusive and derogatory to a great many of the people of Canada that there was nothing for the Department to do but live up to the law and deny it the privilege of mail."

The main subject of the attacks is the Roman Catholic priesthood and the adherents of the Roman Catholic religion generally who are accused of the most obscene, immoral and indecent conduct, persistently carried on. The priesthood are accused of being a lecherous bunch of white slavers.

Coxey Will Lead Another Army.

NEW YORK, April 3. — Jacob S. Coxey, leader of the famous army which bore his name and marched on Washington in 1894, yesterday established headquarters here. He said he would spend several days looking after plans for the mobilization of the New York wing of an army of 500,000 men which he intends to lead into the national capital some time this month.

The main division of the army, he said, will leave Massillon, Ohio, on April 16, and will be joined outside Washington by the eastern division.

Disgraced Soldiers Ended Lives.

VIENNA, April 3.—Lieut. Soltus of the Austrian Gendarmerie, and one of his men, committed suicide yesterday in consequence of the discovery that they and a number of other officers and men have been accepting bribes from the proprietor of an emigration agency at Przemysl, in Gallicia. The agent, with their help had smuggled out of the country a large number of young men liable to military service. Nine gendarmes and several others have been arrested.

TWO MEN KILLED.

C.P.R. Work Train is Wrecked When Track Sank.

TORONTO, April 3.—George Vincent, 484 Clendenan avenue, engineer, and A. Sinclair, St. John's road, Toronto, fireman, were instantly killed, and S. Shenstone, 1,472 Dundas street, Toronto, brakeman, injured, when the engine of a C.P.R. construction train plunged down a 50-foot embankment at Brock road, a mile and a quarter east of Cherrywood, which is 25 miles east from Toronto, at 10.15 a.m. yesterday.

The train had just reached one of the newly-constructed culverts when without warning the track sank beneath the weight of the engine, which broke away from the track and plunged down the embankment to the side of the track.

All three men were in the engine at the time. Sinclair and Shenstone jumped for their lives as the engine started on its downward course. Shenstone was fortunate enough to fall clear of the engine, but Sinclair fell under it and was crushed to death.

Vincent was at the throttle when the engine plunged and did not have time to get where he could jump from the engine.

He was instantly killed.

Shenstone was rushed to Toronto, where he was taken to the Western Hospital. He is suffering from scalp wounds, injured left leg and possible internal injuries.

Owing to the fact that the cars of the train stayed on the road bed the rest of the crew escaped injury.

The cause of the wreck was the collapse of a culvert, the earth around which had been loosened by the heavy rain.

An inquest will be opened in Toronto to-day.

Two Masked Robbers Near Quebec Loot Woman's Savings.

QUEBEC, April 3.—Masking the lower part of their faces with handkerchiefs and with caps pulled well down over their foreheads, two robbers broke into a house at Lauzon, across the river, about midnight Wednesday by making an entry through the coal shed. The house was the property of Madame Bourget, who keeps a grocery store, and only she and her little daughter were in it. Lighting a lamp the burglars awoke the two and roughly demanded money, holding a revolver to their heads.

She had in the house $75, and while she was getting it the child made an attempt to get away and warn the neighbors, but the men caught her and threatened to blow her brains out if she moved.

As soon as the intruders had gone, Madame Bourget went out and told some of her relatives, but their efforts to find the men were futile.

Montreal Star Says Prices Were To Be Raised 15 Per Cent.

MONTREAL, April 3.—The Star yesterday announced the disclosure of an alleged "bath-tub trust" in Canada, whereby prices on all enamelled ware were to be raised 15 per cent. and kept there.

Thirty large jobbers, it is asserted, joined certain firms in a plan to increase the prices on bath-tubs, lavatory equipment, and similar goods in Canada 15 per cent.

The duty on imported goods of this character is 35 per cent., and it is alleged the jobbers agreed not to sell any imported article at a lower price than that agreed on for the Canadian make.

It is further alleged that the collected sums obtained from the increase in price was to be pooled and divided among those in the agreement.

Want

Classy Clothes!

The hardest sort of Suits to provide successfully are the Suits for Dapper Young Dressers, who want the very limit in style!

We've met with great success in clothing these Young Fellows, because we study their wants. There is always a certain "distinguished" "classy" air about the cut and the style of our Young Men's Garments.

We Call The Attention Of Smart Dressers To Our New Spring Suits!

The styles may be called extreme, because they are extreme. Every idea or kink, that's new, is shown here, while the fabrics and colorings are entirely new.

AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

TO-NIGHT THE OLD HOMESTEAD

"The Old Homestead," the greatest of all American successes, guaranteed from coast to coast by press, public and managers for twenty-seven years, comes to Griffin Opera House to-night.

The perennial drawing power of "The Old Homestead" is indisputable and its long success and continuous popularity are due in no inconsiderable measure to the fact that it is a perfect transcript of nature; holding the mirror up to nature as do few other plays of modern times. It was accounted a good play twenty-six years ago as far back as 1886, when it had initial performance at the Boston Theatre, and made the most telling success ever scored by a new production in Boston. Year after year since then it has repeated that success, and it has even improved with age. It is old, yet ever new, and it is absolutely true to the New England country life which it represents.

The musical features are the same as of old, the double male quartette is just has good to-day as it was in the days when Chauncey Olcott, Richard J. Jose, Tom Lewis and others we might mention were members of the organization. The Grand Choir in the Grace Church scene includes twenty trained voices and is as impressive as heretofore. The original company and production will be seen here under the personal direction of Mr. Frank Thompson. Capacity houses will undoubtedly welcome the grand old play—Prices 25c to $1.00

EDUCATIONAL RECORD OF HASTINGS CO.

(North Hastings Review)

On the occasion of the recent visit of Dr. James L. Hughes of Toronto to Avondale Sidney school to present personally to Miss Blanchard the gold medal which she had won for the best essay submitted in the competition for the whole of Ontario, Dr. Hughes called attention to the extraordinary coincidence that the same honor had been won by a boy born in Hastings county and of long Hastings lineage, though resident at present in Midland, Ontario, namely James White, a young brother of Mr. White, of the office of Porter & Carnew of Belleville, and a nephew of the late John White, who represented Hastings in Parliament, and son of Mr. James White, of town, so that these two Provincial honors given by the League of the Empire have been won by a Hastings boy and girl as against the whole province. Our readers will watch their careers with interest, and heartily congratulate the winners, their families and the schools they represent, to whom they have done infinite credit.

DAYLIGHT SAVING GROWING POPULAR

The late King Edward himself practised daylight saving on lines similar to those proposed in the Parliamentary Bill. For many years at Sandringham he caused clocks to be advanced thirty minutes during the summer months, and in the last two years of his life he caused the same rule to be observed at Windsor and Balmoral, and said he was favorably disposed towards the Bill.

So far 285 members of the House of Commons have expressed their approval, including Liberals (Mr. Churchill, Mr. Lloyd George, and Mr. Birrell amongst them), Conservatives (Mr. Balfour, Lord Charles Beresford, and Mr. Austen Chamberlain), Labor members, and Nationalists. Fifty members of the House of Lords have also said "Aye!" including Lord Roberts, Lord Rosebery, the Duke of Devonshire, and the Bishop of London. Many railway companies support the Bill which Mr. William Willett is pushing vigorously while favoring resolutions have also been passed by four county councils, 655 city corporations and town and district councils, 78 chambers of commerce, and innumerable other important bodies.

Everybody now knows the scheme, or should. On the third Sunday in April it is proposed that standard time shall advance 60 minutes, and on the third Sunday in September recede 60 minutes. The little change would be done in the early hours, and we should know nothing about it—except that on every day between those dates we should move about in one extra hour of sunlight. This would mean a yearly gain of 154 hours of daylight, equivalent to 17 holidays of nine hours each. In artificial light alone Mr. Willett estimates that we should save at least $12,500,000 a yeer.

Disappearing Forests

Of the dense tropical forests of mahogany, cedar and other valuable hardwoods that once covered the islands of the Carribean, there are left among the Northern Islands, only Dominica in the Leewards and St. Lucia in the Windwards that have any portions of these forests still standing. In Barbados, Antigua, Montserrat, St. Vincent and Grenada, the forests have disappeared. Trinidad, Jamaica and British Guiana, however, have escaped denudation, on account of the difficulty of reaching the interior since no rail nor waterways exist by which the lumber could be got out. In these colonies although the coast line has been cleared and lumbering operations pushed for a few miles into the back country, a large area of timberland still remains in each colony from which is annually drawn a considerable "cut."

FRONTENAC HOCKEYISTS PRESENTED WITH GIFTS

Banquet Given to the Boys in the Randolph Hotel, Kingston

KINGSTON, April 3—The banquet given by the Frontenac hockey club in honor of the senior and junior players in the Randolph hotel, on Thursday night, was one of the notable events in the history of the club. The splendid menu was enjoyed by about fifty of the hockey fans.

The guests of the evening, including Mayor Shaw, were seated at the end table on either side of George B. McKay the president of the club, who acted in the capacity of toastmaster.

The thirteen players and "Jim" Sutherland, jr., and "Bouncer" Brouse, jr., were seated at a table by themselves. The only missing member of the teams was, "Tim" Ferguson who was transferred to the bank at Cobalt about a week ago.

Immediately after the dinner Mayor Shaw was asked to present the souvenirs to the members of both teams. These gifts were given to the boys by the club and a number of fans in appreciation of what they had done for the city. The mayor, in making the presentation of gold watches, diamond rings and gold lockets paid a tribute to the members of both teams for the manly way in which they had always played the game. He said that the Frontenacs had brought the name of Kingston before the people of Canada from coast to coast as a result of the way they played the game. His worship also made reference to the great good the club had done in furnishing rooms in the general hospital and Hotel Dieu.

Angrove, Derry and "Rubie" Millan received diamond rings.

Brouse, Crawford and Boyer were given gold lockets. Ferguson received his locket before leaving the city.

James T. Sutherland, who has looked after the boys for some years received the surprise of his life, when a number of fans presented him with a beautiful chair. Mr. McKay made the presentation.

HE WAS OBLIGING AND LOST $20

Kingston Man Gave Fellow Passenger $50 on Train and $30 Back

KINGSTON, April 3.—A traveller who got off a westbound G. T. R. passenger train late last night had a little experience which he will remember for some time, inasmuch as it cost him twenty dollars for being obliging to a stranger. It was a case of "I was a stranger and he took me in" with the the commercial man.

He was on his way to Kingston from Brockville and at that place a stranger got on the train. He had a handful of $1 bills and asked if there was anyone who had some of larger denomination to exchange for them, that he wanted to send them away in an envelope and it was too late to get a money or an express order. He explained that he had to get the money away that night, so the drummer, who himself had a $50 bill that he was anxious to get changed, told him that he would give him it for the $1 bills. The stranger took the money and the traveller began to count out the bills which had been handed to him. After making a second or third count he found that there was only $49 in the roll and asked the stranger to count it for himself.

The stranger took it, and counting it over, handed him a dollar in silver and what he thought, the other $49 in bills. Just about that time the train started, and the stranger, thanking the traveller, left the car hurriedly. It struck the traveller after a little while to count the money, and on doing so found out that he had just $29 in $1 bills. Beside this he had the dollar in silver, so it just cost him $20 for his kind act. The stranger had taken the bills while counting them.

DEBTS $4,500,000; ASSETS $125,000

BERLIN, April 4.—(Special.)—W. Wertheim and Co., who conduct big department stores here announced their failure to-day. The firm was apparently involved in the downfall of the Princess Trust. The liabilities are given at $4,500,000 and assets at $625,000. The amount of the assets, however, is believed to be exaggerated, and it is thought they will net exceed $125,000.

"ROYAL" TITLE FOR CANADIAN INSTITUTE

Large and Distinguished Audience Present at Ceremony

TORONTO, April 3.—In the presence of a brilliant and representative assemblage at Convocation Hall last night His Honor, Sir John Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor, bestowed the prefix "Royal" on the Canadian Institute.

In presenting the title the Lieutenant-Governor expressed the hope that the future record of the Institute would amply justify it, and read a telegram from the Duke of Connaught conveying his warmest congratulations on the recognition and honor conferred by His Majesty.

On the motion of Professor A. P. Coleman, seconded by President Falconer, of Toronto University, Sir Sandford Fleming was unanimously elected Honorary-President and his three sons were made members of the Institute. Principal Peterson, of McGill, gave the address of the evening strongly advocated further aid for the Universities and also suggested the institution in Canada of a system of scholarships, on the lines of the Scottish Ferguson Scholarships, in order to raise standards, to encourage research, and to bring the Universities further together.

A reception by the President, Mr. Frank Arnold, K.C., and the members of Council was afterwards held. The attendance numbered over a thousand.

WILL FIGHT AGAIN ON FISHERIES TREATY

Amendment Asked Allowing Traps Nots on Lakes to Suit States Fishermen

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Representatives in Congress from the Canadian border states are preparing for a lively debate on the Flood Bill to carry into effect the treaty with Great Britain, concerning the fisheries in waters contiguous to the United States and Canada signed April 1, 1908.

The bill, which was vigorously contested in committee, is now on the calendar ready to be called up at any time in the House. The Foreign Affairs Committee, which reported the measure, amended it to meet the objection of American fishermen on Lake Erie, who said the bill would bar the use of trap nets—the only kind the fishermen of the American side could use, they explained—while the Canadians use only the pound nets. The lake fishermen asserted that they would be put out of business if the bill passed without the amendment which suspends the regulation prohibiting trap nets in treaty waters, the suspension to continue until the International Fisheries Commission revises the regulations and Congress approved the revision.

SEVEN BITTEN BY TWO PET POODLES

Dogs go Mad at Social Gathering and Hydrophobia is Feared

PITTSBURG, April 3.—At the Mercy Hospital here two Pekinese poodles each valued at $1,000, and seven members of leading families of this city, are under special Pasteur serum treatment as a result of the two dogs suddenly going mad on Tuesday night last during an tentertainment at the home of their owner, Mrs. Robert K. Duncan, a well known member of Pittsburg society, No. 4715 Wallingford avenue.

It was learned later that the Pekinese poodles had been bitten six weeks ago by a stray cur. Physicians at the hospital said last night that the prompt administration of Pasteur toxin practically precludes the danger of hydrophobia developing in the patients.

MAKE CHILD-BEARING A PAID PROFESSION

Women Should Not Have Children Unless Paid for so Doing

LONDON, April 3.—George Bernard Shaw thinks that child-bearing ought to be a paid profession. He told a meeting of the Fabian Society to-night that if he were a woman his fee for becoming a mother would be £2,000 ($10,000). Mr. Shaw said a woman ought resolutely to refuse to have children unless she was paid for so doing.

The prize list is now before the people of Belleville and vicinity and The Intelligencer awaits their consideration and verdict. A large amount of money has been expended by The Intelligencer for the prizes that represent in every detail the best that money can buy. Only prizes of real value and worth were thought to be in keeping with The Intelligencer's determination to launch an enterprise of which it could be proud.

There are no strings to this offer—no difficult conditions with which to comply. It is a perfectly square and fair proposition and will be conducted in a businesslike manner, open and above board to every one.

The race is open to any lady, gentleman, girl or boy of good character residing in any part of the territory covered by The Intelligencer. All that is necessary to nominate a candidate is to clip out the nomination blank from another page of this issue and either mail or bring it to The Intelligencer office.

The territory will consist of two districts of which the city of Belleville will be called District No. 1, and all territory tributory to The Intelligencer outside of the city of Belleville will constitute No. 2. There will be two grand prizes consisting of a 1914 McLaughlin Buick Car and a $400 Bell Piano, purchased from the local agents. The candidate securing the greatest number of votes in the entire contest will receive the McLaughlin Buick Touring Car, and if the candidate having the largest number of votes should reside in District No. 1 the Bell Piano, or Second Grand Prize, will be awarded to the highest vote in the remaining district, or District No. 2, in this way allowing only one Grand Prize to a district. Many other valuable prizes will be announced in Tuesday's issue.

THE FIRST THING TO DO

Cut out the nomination blank, which will be found on another page. Fill in the blank with your name and address, etc., if you wish to nominate yourself, or with the name and address of anyone whom you may wish to nominate. Be very careful to write plainly, so that there may be no possibility of an error being made. We also wish to impress upon candidates the importance of securing the correct name and address of all new subscribers, so there may be no unnecessary delay in starting the papers.

THE SECOND THING TO DO

Send or bring the nomination blank to the Contest Manager of The Intelligencer and you will be credited with 1,000 votes towards winning one of the prizes, and will be given a receipt book to be used in securing subscriptions to this paper. If you cannot call, phone or write, and a representative will call and explain the plan of the contest in detail, and will render you every assistance possible. It is better to ask questions than to have to correct mistakes later.

THE THIRD THING TO DO

As soon as you are nominated, see your friends; get them to subscribe in your favor to The Intelligencer. (The vote scale will be found on another page.) Send or bring all subscriptions to the Contest Department of The Intelligencer, together with the proper remittance, and upon receipt of same, votes will be issued. Once started, do not grow discouraged. Pay no attention to how many votes some one else may tell you they have to their credit; look after your own candidacy and thereby set a good example to other candidates.

THE FOURTH THING TO DO

As soon as you have secured one subscription, go after another; this can be done in your spare time. This contest business need not interfer with with your work. However, if you were to spend your time for the next few weeks doing nothing but securing subscriptions to The Intelligencer the reward for your efforts would quite suffice to pay you many times over. Think what wonderful profit will be yours should you win the automobile fully equipped.

A SQUARE DEAL

That's the motto of the contest. Every candidate will receive equal treatment, and there will be no favorites. That each candidate in the contest may be assured of a square deal, a committee of well known business men will be selected to act as judges to count the votes and award the prizes at the close of the contest.

HOW TO ENTER

By sending in the nomination blank properly filled out you will at once become a candidate in the greatest prize voting contest ever given in this vicinity. You can win one of the valuable prizes which will be given away in a few short weeks. A little effort, combined with perseverence and tact, is all that is needed for you to win the one that you want. The paramount question is to enter your name in this competition NOW. Immediately upon the receipt of the nomination blank bearing your name the necessary books and instructions will be sent you.

Write, phone or, or call on Contest Manager at The Intelligencer Office for full details,

WELL-TO-DO WIDOW ENDS LIFE IN TORONTO RESIDENCE

Shoots Herself in Despondency Over Husband's Death and Litigation

TORONTO, April 4.—(Special)—Mrs. Margaret Jane Durell of 52 St. George Street, committed suicide yesterday afternoon at her home by shooting herself through the heart. While she was in comfortable circumstances she had been worrying lately over a pending lawsuit; and this, combined with despondency caused by the recent death of her husband, is believed to have been her reason for ending her life.

At the time of her suicide Mrs. Durell was alone in the house. The body was found lying on a bed in one of the upper rooms by her sister-in-law Mrs. Wainwright, of St. Patrick Street, to whom she had sent a note stating that she was going to kill herself. Mrs. Wainwright received the letter about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and, knowing that Mrs. Durell had lately been melancholy, she at once preceded to the St. George Street house to investigate. Beside the body was an automatic pistol, one of the chambers containing an exploded cartridge.

Mrs. Wainwright immediately notified the police. They investigated the circumstances and communicated with the Chief Coroner, who decided that an inquest was unnecessary, and the body has been taken in charge by relatives.

In the room were found notes addressed to friends, and though the contents were not divulged, the letters are said to confirm the theory of the suicide. Mrs. Durell was 53 years of age, and was the widow of Melville Durrell, former president of M. Durell and Company, shoe pattern manufacturers, 12 Lombard St. He retired from business early in 1913, owing to ill-health and died in February of the present year. Mr. and Mrs. Durell, who has lived in Toronto for a number of years, were also well-known in Otisfield, Me., and Norway Minn.

FIRE CASTLE AND THREATEN CARSON

Woman Who Slashed Rokeby Venus is Being Forcibly Fed

LONDON, April 3.—Suffragists set fire to Lisburn Castle, County Antrim last night. They left a message for Sir Edward Carson vowing vengeance, Sir Edward having made the announcement several days ago that he was not in favor of the suffragists. The fire was discovered before any serious damage was done.

Home Secretary McKenna informed Parliament yesterday that Miss May Richardson, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment recently for smashing the Rokeby Venus, was being forcibly fed.

According to the suffragist authorities, although Miss Richardson took a complete new outfit of clothes into prison urgent messages have been received within a week for three new outfits and "a strong dressing gown". Nobody is allowed to visit her, the suffragists say, and they suggest that she is being ill-treated.

KINGSTON BOY A WIRELESS OPERATOR

KINGSTON, April 3.—George McLeod, aged sixteen years, a student at the Kingston Collegiate institute, has been appointed a wireless operator on one of the ocean liners. He left to accept his new position. McLeod has been studying the wireless apparatus for the past couple of years. Some time ago, he, in company with a couple of boys from the institute erected a wireless apparatus on the roof at the Kingston Collegiate institute. After considerable work they were able to get in communication with some of the wireless stations in this vicinity.

After perfecting the apparatus G. McLeod decided to enter the profession. He left for the city of Three Rivers, Quebec, where he will sail from that port. His many friends wish him every success in his new sphere in life.

AN EXPERIMENT FOR DEALERS.

Nothing like proving things for yourself, Mr. Dealer.

Suppose you determine for yourself whether it really pays to push goods that are advertised in your home newspapers.

Take an equal number of advertised goods and of goods which are not advertised—and display them on the counters.

Do nothing to push one against the other, but keep careful note of the sales and the inquiries.

See if you do not find that the largest percentage of calls is for the articles with which the newspaper readers of your town are familiar.

Once you have proved this to your own satisfaction, no one will have to urge you to co-operate with the manufacturers who are helping you to make customers for your store.

FLOCK OF GEESE MURDERS CHILD

Hits Boss Gander and Flock Turn Around and Kill Him

RACINE, Wis., April 3.—Frank Cloumiek, ten years old, son of a goose farmer at Wind Point, north of this city, while trying to drive geese from the Lake Michigan shore to front yard of his home just before feeding time, hit the boss gander of the flock with a stick and so angered the huge bird that he turned upon the child with the rest of the geese, and five minutes after Frank was rescued by his father, he died.

Physicians say the boy died of convulsions, but his eyes had been picked out and he was otherwise badly injured. His father killed three of the birds before they would leave the child.

FURTHER LIGHT ON N.T.R. CONSTRUCTION

Mr. German Alleges Reduction for Over-Classification Was Insufficient

OTTAWA, April 3.—Mr. W. M. German, of Welland, in the Public Accounts Committee today got an order for production of all papers and vouchers relating to payments of $18,838,000 to Mr. J. D. McArthur, for N. T. R. contract work. Major Leonard, chairman of the N. T. R. commission; Chief Engineer Gordon Grant and Collingwood Scheiber, C.M.G., will be called to give evidence before the committee next Tuesday.

Mr. German's allegation is that a Board of Arbitration, consisting of Messrs. Grant, Kelliher and Schreiber, found over-classification to the extent of $492,000 that should have been deducted, but that the commission deducted only $150,000.

SETTLERS STILL FLOCK TO WEST

Amount of Land Taken up Last Month Shows Big Increase

CALGARY, April 3.—Evidence of the increasing movement of actual settlers to the land as compared with last year is found in the fact that in March, 1914 the C.P.R. Department of Natural Resources colonized 107,165 acres with 74 families, which is 2,000 more than were colorized in the same month in 1913. Settlers during the month just ended have taken farms going into 32 acres, practically mixed farmers, and are going into stock-raising, dairying, intensive farming, and as they have bought on 20 year contract, it is evident they intend to became permanent residents of this country.

ADVERTISE IN THE INTELLIGENCER

A LOCAL BOY'S MERITED PROMOTION

One of Belleville's progressive young men, Mr. Albert Blackburn, has just received notice of his appointment to the important position of manager of Stroud's china and tea store. This is a well-merited promotion for a local boy, and speaks well for the judgment of this company that they selected one of our local men to manage this large and flourishing store. Mr. Blackburn was born in Belleville, and educated in our public schools. At the age of sixteen he commenced learning the trade of watchmaker, and at nineteen he went to Cleveland to complete his trade. Later he took a position in Plattsburg as jewelry salesman. For the past seven years Mr. Blackburn has been in the employ of his brother, Mr. T. Blackburn, one of the popular jewlers of Front street, as head salesman. Mr. Albert Blackburn will have the hearty good wishes of his many friends as he assumes his new position, and will prove to be a valuable asset to our Front street merchants. It is to be hoped that Belleville can retain the services of more of its popular and progressive young men.

Condensed News Items For Busy Readers

NO BUSINESS FOR P. M.

There was no business for the police Magistrate to-day, for the first time in some days.

A FRIENDLY SHOOT

A number of the members of the Belleville Gun Club will go to Cobourg some day next week for a friendly shoot with members of the Cobourg Club.

A FAMILY JAR

At 9.45 last night the police answered a call, but fortunately their services were not required. A family jar was the cause of alarm, but was soon quieted.

TRAMPS ON THE MOVE

At the police station last night no less than twelve tramps were provided with shelter. Their ages ranged from 23 to 38 years and the majority were foreigners.

THE MARKET

There was a fairly well attended market to-day and considerable quantity of farm produce was offered for sale. Prices were fair for certain products and somewhat high for others. Dressed chickens sold from $1.25 to $1.75 per pair; butter from 27c. to 30c. per pound, according to quality, and fresh eggs 18c. by the basket lot and 20c. per single dozen.

WEST BELLEVILLE LEAGUE

A large crowd attended the League last evening. Some business was then attended to; Mr. Poulter, the President, is leaving the city for the summer months, and Mr. Maas was nominated to act in his absence. The League then proceeded in a body to the Tabernacle church, where a most helpful talk was given by Mr. W. R. Lane on "From the Gambling Table to the Cross".

DEATH OF INFANT

Vincent Black, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Black residing on St. Charles street, died this morning.

BELLEVILLE SHOTS HONORED

On the 7th of April an international rifle shooting match will take place between England and her colonies, including India and the United States. Fifty in Canada will take part in the competition, and of this number five will be from this city. This is indeed a great honor, and demonstrates that Belleville certainly has a number of fine shots.

WILL U. S. ANNEX CANADA?

Uncle Sam has about as much chance to do so as a cheap acid salves has of curing a corn. Nothing gives such satisfaction as Putnam's Corn Extractor, which cures painlessly in twenty-four hours. Use only "Putnam's" 25c at all dealers.

BELLEVILLE RIFLE ASSOCIATION

A practise shoot was held by the above last evening at the indoor range of the 15thRegt. Armouries. 10 shots each at 25 yards. Scores:

THAT LITTLE SPOT ON YOUR SKIN; BEWARE, BEWARE!

Because—the smallest spot of infection means danger. That blotch on your arm that itchy place on your leg, beware lest soon it spread, covering breast, face, body.

Because the curse of skin disease is growing. It's estimated that millions of our people are infected and spreading the disease.

Because—unlike the established doubt in regard to Dr. Friedmann's experiments with the "Great White Plague" the research work in the D.D.D. Laboratory, Chicago, has proven definitely that D.D.D. Prescription is a specific that cures skin and scalp disease.

Your own druggist will recommend this soothing, cooling liquid.

If you come to us for the famous prescription and the efficient D.D.D. Skin Soap, we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone to judge.

KISSED CHILDREN THEN HANGED HIMSELF

BELLEVILLE, N. J., April 3.—Henry Melchoir, 40, of Hillside Pleasure Park, sent his children off to school saying: "Kiss papa, you'll never see him again."

When the children, Walter and Eleanor, returned from school they found the house locked and Water saw his father's body hanging inside against the window. He called his uncle, William C. H. Hahller, president of the Park Association, and the body was released from a noose made of parlor portieres. Melchoir had been ill for six months and despaired of getting well.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD"

There was by no means a large audience at the Griffin's Opera House last evening to witness the production of the "Old Homestead." The play was presented in a clean and capable manner and was splendidly staged. Every detail of stage setting was in keeping with the scene presented, and all the accessories, incidental music etc., were in excellent keeping with the character of the play, whose features were fruitful portrayals of humble rural life, rapid alternation of uproariously funny and touching pathetic situations, and running through all, a strong thread of wholesome philosophy of life and principle and deep moral teaching. One can go to the "Old Homestead" for far more important products than grain and fruits, and screaming funny Reubs—clean entertainment and high moral lessons.

"FOUNTAIN OF MIRRORS" HAS BEEN DISCOVERED

ROME, April 4.—(Special.)—Professor Boni believes he has succeeded in his search for the so-called "Fountain of mirrors" in the Farneso Gardens on the Palatine Hill, which was constructed during the Pontificate of Pope Paul III. He has found a nymphaeum with stalactite niches and heraldic beasts and a conduit through which water passes to a great fish pond.

SAVED WIFE FROM DRINK

How terrible the effects of the curse of drink when a woman is afflicted. Wives and daughters often save their husbands or fathers from the drink habit through giving tasteless Samaria to them in their tea, coffee or food. But this is the story of a young husband in Winnipeg who overcame all difficulties and saved his wife

Winnipeg, March 18th.

"The treatment of Samaria Prescription which I bought at Gordon Mitchell's Drug Store has saved my wife, who is still a young woman. It is only twelve months ago that she took to drink through trouble. I cannot thank you enough, for she never even thinks of it now, and if she goes near anyone who has had a drink, she always says how sick she feels. Do not use my name, as we are so well known."

—. ———, Winnipeg.

Samaria Prescription stops that awful craving for drink, restores the shaking nerves, builds up the health and appetite and renders all alcoholic liquors distasteful, even nauseous. It is tasteless and odorless and can be given either with or without the patient's knowledge in tea, coffee or food.

If you know of any family needing Samaria Prescription, tell them about it. I you have a husband, father or friend who is becoming a drunkard, help him to save himself. Used regularly by hospitals and physicians. Has restored happiness to hundreds of homes.

Free Trial package of Samaria with Booklet, giving full particulars, directions, testimonials, price etc., will be sent in a plain sealed package to anyone mentioning this paper. Correspondence sacredly confidential. Write today. The Samaria Remedy Company, Dept 99 142 Mutual street, Toronto, Canada. Also for sale by Albert L. Geen, druggist Belleville, Ont.

If your nerves are all crippled from attacks of Rheumatism, Neuritis can easily get a strong hold on the nerves. This most painful disease is one of the hardest known to expel, but RHEUMA can reach it if given a chance. This testimony is positive proof:

"Last May I was so crippled with Neuritis in my left limb I could walk scarcely at all. Tried all remedies I heard of and had two physicians. Nothing did me any good until I used RHEUMA; $2.00 worth of your medicines surely cured me—Mrs. C. E. Hayes Russell, Ky.

PARTY POLITICS IN CIVICS

One of Chicago's representatives in the Assembly of Illinois has recently advocated the "active participation in city politics by national party organizations," and defends this on the ground that some organization is necessary for a municipal campaign, and it is better to use the existing ones than to create a new and special ones.

Fortunately in very many places in Canada, party politics do not enter into the municipal field directly to any extent; and that is a good thing for the citizens.

In Federal politics, parties are indispensable, because the policy advocated by one man may be opposed by another, and the members of Parliament are forced to show their preference, and so to divide into parties.

In Provincial politics, the same obtains in a modified way; though many men vote for the man, rather than the party, in Provincial elections.

But municipal politics should not admit of the intrusion of party politics. The only question for the voters should be the integrity and ability of a candidate, and the way he proposes to handle the civic business. As to his belonging to the Conservative or Liberal party—that should not be allowed to enter into the question.

Of course, in cities in the United States, where federal, state and municipal elections are decided on the same way and by the same ballot papers, the elimination of partizan elections is impossible. With the absurd and complicated ballot paper, the great majority of the voters are expected to mark their ballot papers in the party emblem, which carries all the party candidates. Thus party and machine government are inevitable.

But with the short ballot, and the separation of federal and state from municipal elections, party organizations should be barred from civic elections most rigorously.—Canadian Municipal Journal.

ROCKEFELLER INSTITUTE'S NEW WORK

The stirrers up of antagonism to the doctors for their experiments upon animals with reference to treatment of human diseases never dwell upon the fact that the nature and cure of diseases that torture animals are thereby discovered. Those who are honest and not hopelessly prejudiced will see a new light in the announcement that Mr. Rockefeller will devote $1,000,000 primarily to this work of mercy.

Much has already been done to relieve the ills that dumb brute flesh is heir to. Anthrax, the scourge of cattle and sheep from the earliest times, yielded to the successful vaccine treatment of Pasteur. Chamberland reported in 1894 that 1,988,677 had been inoculated in France, diminishing the deaths of sheep from 10 per cent. to but 1 per cent., and of all cattle from 5 per cent. to but a quarter of 1 per cent., and saving over $2,000,000 to the breeders. In this way the epidemic of anthrax in 1906, breaking out on eighty-four farms in Northern New York, was speedily conquered.

Contagious pleuropneumonia of cattle, which cost England $450,000,000 in the first quarter of the nineteenth century, was not understood until Pomeraye's experiments in 1851 confirmed by the work of Dr. D. E. Sallmon in 1884 on Barren Island. Six years later every trace of this disease, which threatened to invade the Western plains, was wiped out.

The production of mallein from cultures of the glanders bacillus proved its infectiousness both in horses and in man, and its early diagnosis and control in the United States resulted from the experimental work of Loeffler and Shuetz in the early eighties. Similarly important work has been done to check rabies in dogs, hog cholera—to prevent which Mr. James J. Hill has added $50,000 to Mr. Rockefeller's fund—the Texas cattle fever, tuberculosis in cattle, and other diseases like blackleg and lockjaw, trichina in pork, and the ailments of poultry.

REPLENISH YOUR BLOOD IN THE SPRING

Just now you are feeling "out of sorts"—not your usual self. Quite exhausted at times and cannot devote real energy to your work. Sleep does not rest you and you wake up feeling "all tired out." Perhaps rheumatism is flying through your muscles and joints, or may be your skin is disfigured by rashes boils or pimples. Headaches, twinges of neuralgia, fits of nervousness, irritability of temper and a disordered stomach often increase your discomfort in the spring.

The cause—winter has left its mark on you. These troubles are signs that your blood is poor and watery, that your nerves are exhausted. You must renew and enrich your blood at once and restore tone to your tired nerves, or there may be a complete breakdown. The most powerful remedy for these spring ailments in men, women and children is Dr. Hamiltons' Pink Pills for Pale People, because these Pills cleanse bad blood and strengthen weak nerves.

New, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring—is plentifully created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and with this new, pure blood in your veins you quickly regain realth and increase your strength. Then your skin becomes clear, your eyes bright, your nerves strong, and you feel beeter, eat better, sleep better, and are able to do your work.

These Pills are sold by most dealers, but do not be persuaded to take "something just the same." If you can't get the genuine Pills from your dealer they will be sent you by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE SEED BRANCH

Since Hon. Martin Burrell became Minister of Agriculture he has greatly strengthened every branch of his department. One branch which has been particularly strengthened has been the seed branch.

At the present time arrangements are being made for a more thorough inspection of the seed trade to secure observance of the Seed Control Act. A new feature of the inspection work this season will be an investigation into the sources of supply for Canadian grown seed corn. The farmers in south western Ontario who have seed corn for sale will be visited by the inspectors to secure information regarding methods adopted for drying and stowing seed corn, the varieties and strain grown, and the general quality so far as can be ascertained.

Last year, in carrying out his general policy of closer co-operation with the provinces, Mr. Burrell extended it to the seed branch. Seed growing competitions were held in nearly all of the provinces. To meet prizes both in field competitions and at seed fairs, the Dominion provides now two-thirds of the amount awarded.

These competitions have, in addition to creating large supplies of excellent seed grain and other seeds in almost every farming district, have served as an excellent object lesson, and tended to stimulate interest among farmers in general in the agricultural practices of their successful neighbors.

Hamilton Herald: "If all is true that is charged against the waste in construction work it would not be the worst feature of the N. T. R. enterprise. The great blunder was the original one made when the project was conceived. Badly as the work may have been carried out, it was worse planned. So huge a blunder did the project appear to the Hon. Mr. Blair, Minister of Railways, that rather than share the responsibility for it he withdrew from the Laurier Cabinet. All that the Grand Trunk wanted the Government to do was to build a line from North Bay to Fort William, a line which could have been used jointly by the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern; but Sir Wilfrid insisted upon the construction of a road from Winnipeg to Moncton, the eastern section of which, between Quebec and Moncton, would parallel the existing Government railway and would be comparatively useless."

Liberalism excuses anything in the estimation of such party organs as the Beacon."

Toronto Globe: "If Sir Melvin Jones, who speaks for some 9,000 men and twenty-five or thirty million dollars of capital engaged in implement making in Canada, feels so strongly regarding the proposed changes in the tariff of which he has been an honored member, how can he expect hundreds of thousands of people engaged in grain growing to continue paying the implement manufacturers protectionist prices for the plant with which they produce grain while the grain itself must be sold at free trade prices? Sir Melvin revolts because it is proposed that he be left out of the circle of protection. Is not the grain grower equally justified in taking a like attitude? Why should he be asked to build up Canada by paying inflated prices for everything he has to buy when there is no possibility of securing inflated prices for the greater part of his product which is sold abroad?" It is quite natural that The Globe should disagree with the action of Sir Melvin, who foresees the ruinous effect of attempted competition with the United States on an equal basis, or reduced tariff.

CUT THIS OUT

Famous Specialist's Recipe for Catarrhal deafness and Head Noises.

If you know someone who is troubled with head noises, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferers perhaps from total deafness. Recent experiments have proved conclusively that catarrhal deafness, head noises, etc., were the direct cause of constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporise with the complaint, and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money has been spent of late by a noted specialist in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would quickly dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The effective prescription which was eventually formulated, and which has aroused the belief that deafness will soon be extinct, is given below in understandable form, so that anyone can treat themselves in their own home at little expense.

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist or granulater sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose promptly ends the most distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are quickly overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh, therefore there are but few people whose hearing cannot be restored by this simple home treatment. Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c. to the International Laboratories 74 St. Antoine St. Montreal, P. Q. who make a specialty of it.

GRAND TRUNK R. R. NEWS ITEMS

VICTORIA, B. C. April 3.—Eighty thousand acres of land adjacent to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, which is to be completed from ocean to ocean on April 10th, a large portion bordering on the railroad, will be opened to pre-emption in the valley of the South Fork of the Fraser River in June, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Hon. William R. Ross, Minister of Lands.

When the work of building the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway was begun, this valley, which contains a large amount of agricultural land, favorably situated, was placed in reserve. In 1907 a reserve was created under which a strip of six miles covering the valley was reserved for the pre-emptor. Now that the railroad is completed the agricultural lands are being opened to the settler.

The land being opened to settlement is in two parts, the eastern half stretching on either side of McBride, the young city 90 miles from the eastern border of the Province, where a divisional point has been created, car shops, large yards, etc., are being built, and a city is in its infancy. The western half stretches from Willow Station on the G. T. P., not far east from Fort George to join the other part of the tract.

The lots in the eastern half will be opened to entry by pre-emption at McBride on June 1st at 9 A. M., a special office being opened there by the Land Commissioner of the District for one week in order to give those who seek a homestead there an opportunity to file their records at the nearest city to the land, and after a week records will be made at the office of the Government Agent for the District at Fort George. The lots in the Western half will be opened to entry by pre-emption on June 15th, at 9 A. M., at the office of the Government Agent at Fort George.

McBride, where the lots in the eastern half will be opened for a week, beginning at 9 A. M. on June 1st., was the first townsite laid out in the district, and the first post office in the district created there. It is a bustling young town, and, as it is in the heart of the agricultural land, is expected to become a great centre. It is 145 miles from Fort George, 50 miles from the eastern border of the Province, 345 miles from Edmonton.

The town, named in honor of British Columbia's Premier, is both the passenger and freight divisional point, and a large amount of money has been expended by the railway to make preparations for the future, all its construction being of a large type. The yards cover eight miles, and the station, yards, roundhouses, shops, etc., are the largest between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert. The G.T.R. have a hospital and there are a few permanent builidngs, the number of which is being increased. There are some rooming houses and three or four well stocked stores.

The valley of the South Fork of the Fraser in which the large area of land, set aside when the railroad was begun and held until transportation facilities were provided for the preemptor, varies in width from one to two miles in its upper part at Tete Jaune Cache to five miles at McBride, six at Goat River and about ten miles at the Canyon. It lies at a mean altitude of 2,250 feet above sea level.

The main industry of a great part of the valley, other than farming, will be lumbering, and this should reach considerable proportions. There is a large amount of good timber, and the lumber mills built to handle it, together with the towns along the railroad between Fort George and Mount Robson Park, which, before long will prove a great tourist resort reached from the west through this valley, should prove a ready market for farm produce from this district. A large mill with maximum daily capacity of 100,000 feet has been built by the Upper Fraser River Mills Company at Mile 142, near Dome Creek. Another big mill is projected for Mile 128 and a number of other sites are being sought for mill purposes.

A pamphlet descriptive of the district, with special maps showing the various lots which will be available for preemption in this valley in June, is now being prepared and will shortly be issued by the Department of Lands.

HOW OTTAWA MAN FARED IN NORTH

Broke Snow Trail 253 Miles From Port Nelson

By breaking trail on snowshoes for 253 miles and following the government road for the rest of the way, an Ottawa man, M. J. Jenkins, of the R.N.W.M.P., with three companions, have arrived safe at Winnipeg after walking the 469 miles from Port Nelson to Le Pas, through desolate country, in mid winter. Jenkins wants his friends in Ottawa to know that he is safe. He expects to arrive here about April 10.

When Jenkins and his friends started from Port Nelson in December, Mr. McLachlan, chief engineer at that point, wired to the authorities here to acquaint them of the whereabouts of the men.

"If that was published in the papers," says Jenkins in a letter to The Free Press, "I wish my friends in Ottawa to know that we arrived safe in civilization again."

In his letter, Jenkins tells an interesting story of the journey. He is modest, though; he does not mention hardship.

"I undertook to make my way out from Port Nelson to the dog trail," he writes. "I succeeded after 22 days' continuous walking to the government Goat road (the right of way). We broke trail on snowshoes for 253 miles, and the balance we did on the government road, walking altogether 469 miles. There are four of us, and we are now resting before starting on the final 80 miles to Le Pas, where we catch the train for Winnipeg, and then home to Ottawa.—Ottawa Free Press.

WANTS PUBLIC 'PHONES.

But Mr. Elliott Doesn't Say How To Get Them Says Hon. Mr. Lucas.

TORONTO, April 4.—After a brief debate yesterday the Ontario Legislature rejected J. C. Elliott's resolution regretting that Hon. I. B. Lucas had not submitted a report to the House on his investigations in Great Britain two years ago into the public ownership and operation of telephones, and urging that immediate steps be taken to establish a public-owned and operated service.

The debate was continued from Thursday night's adjournment. Mr. Elliott maintained that under proper administration the cost of this service would be greatly lessened and the benefit of the telephone extended to almost every home in the province.

Hon. Dr. Lucas, in continuing the debate, referred to the vague nature of the resolution. There was not a single suggestion what the Legislature should do except think about it. The whole matter, said the Minister, was one which came under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, which had granted the concessions in the first place. As for buying out the company, it would take probably $30,000,000 to buy the Bell Telephone Co. Should they take up the long-distance and fight the thing out whith the Bell Telephone Co. It would mean duplication of plant, immense economic waste in this province, and years of bitter fighting.

The amendment of Mr. Pattinson was carried. It was to the effect that the House approve of the report of the Provincial Treasurer, made to the House in 1913, that experience in Great Britain justified the conclusion that it was not desirable for the Government to duplicate existing lines and enter into competition with the telephone system, owned and operated by a corporation over which the province had no jurisdiction.

Further amendments to the motor vehicles act are sought by Mr. Wm. McDonald (Centre Bruce) to reduce the speed of cars to four miles an hour when passing horse-drawn vehicles, and to prohibit the use of streamers and pennants.

NO HALF MEASURES.

Wilson's Supporters Stand Out For Flat Repeal of Tolls Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 4. — In the Panama Canal toll exemption controversy two salient points were emphasized in the under current developments of the day. One was the concerted effort being made by Republican Senators to unite against the President's repeal policy on the ground of political expediency, and the other was the reinforced determination of administration leaders to yield to no compromise on the House bill providing for flat repeal of toll exemption for American ships.

Among Republican Senators who have been classified as doubtful with regard to their intentions concerning the repeal, there is a general tendency to line up against the President. Democratic Senators who are championing the President's cause assert that they welcome this movement, confident that it can have no other effect than to solidify the Democrats and aid in assuring success for the administration. These Democrats, while admitting that five of their number cannot be induced to abandon their opposition to the bill, insist that there is every indication that all other majority Senators eventually will support the bill.

They also are assured of support for the measure by some of the Republican Senators, despite the effort of some of the minority to unite against the President.

GRAHAM DENIES STORY.

Sir Hugh Offers Big Forfeit If He Owns Tramway Stock.

MONTREAL, April 4—For months The Montreal Herald before it was merged with The Telegram, printed this query in connection with its campaign against the street railway system: "Who owns ten thousand shares of Tramway stock?"

A "reader" has now written to The Montreal Star asking if it is possible that Sir Hugh Graham, its head, owns the stock, and Sir Hugh has issued a specific denial with the offer to give $800,000 to different hospitals and $200,000 "for a fund to provide a decent living for the blackmailers of the Montreal press," if his denial is found incorrect.

Sir Hugh's denial follows:

"Not only do I not own ten thousand shares of Tramway stock, but as it happens, I do not own one share and have no option promise, or expectation of shares. I remember some years ago my secretary having bought in the open market for my brother a small lot of street railway shares. That is the nearest I ever got to owning Tramway stock."

May Expropriate Company.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 4. — The president of the Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railroad Co. has refused an offer of $155,000 made by the civic light committee for the company's lighting plant, and expropriation proceedings probably will be taken. The object is to eliminate competition to the Hydro system.

Windsor Wants Member.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 4. — The city council last night adopted a unanimous resolution to present a claim for a separate member of the Provincial Legislature in the next redistribution of seats. The last Government census showed the population to be 19,000, but it has grown, and now has reached the 25,000 mark.

Blacks Kill Missionaries.

PERTH, Australia, April 4.—It is reported that the blacks have destroyed the Drysdale River mission and murdered two priests and lay brethren and many half-breeds.

Two Fell Dead of Fright.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 4.—Patrick Eagleson, 70 years of age, of Duggan street, Spencer, and Mrs. Bennis Arseneault, 60 years old, of 48 Maple street, Spencer, dropped dead from fright in the street yesterday afternoon as they witnessed a three-cornered fight between Martin Niederberger, a chauffeur employed by Walter Watson, of Leicester, and Stanley Orutt and Chas. Barmon, employes of a Niagara cereal company who were distributing samples in the town.

The three fighters are under arrest.

HOUSE HAS QUIET DAY.

After Sitting Until 3 a.m. Yesterday Nobody Felt Like Fighting.

OTTAWA, April 4.—The House of Commons having been in session until after three o'clock yesterday morning all contentious matters were avoided at yesterday's sitting. Several Government bills were advanced yesterday afternoon, including Mr. Nantel's bill to amend the Adulteration Act, which was given a second reading. The bill is introduced to protect the manufacturers and vendors of maple syrup, and prohibits the use of the word "maple" on any brand or label upon any syrup which is not boiled down syrup of the maple tree. The bill was referred to a select standing committee on agriculture, and all persons desiring to be heard for or against the bill should notify Mr. Sexsmith (East Peterboro), the chairman of the committee.

Mr. Pelletier's resolution making some slight advance in the pay of certain postal employes passed through committee and the bill founded thereon was introduced and read the first time.

At four o'clock the House went over to the Senate chamber, where the royal assent was given to a number of bills, including the interim supply bill.

In the public accounts committee yesterday W. M. German of Welland, after securing an order for the production of all papers and vouchers respecting payments of $18,858,000 to J. D. McArthur, railway contractor, had the committee summon Major Leonard, chairman of the Transcontinental commission; Gordon Grant, chief engineer, and Collingwood Schreiber, C.M.G., to give evidence on Tuesday next. The subject of the enquiry will be payments made in the McArthur contract in respect to overclassification.

GOULD GETS SIX YEARS.

German Spy Goes to Prison But Wife Is Set Free.

LONDON, April 4.—The trial of Frederick Adolphus Gould and his wife, charged with spying on the British navy, supposedly in the interest of Germany, was begun and ended yesterday at the Old Bailey.

Gould was sentenced to six years' penal servitude, to be followed by deportation. Mrs. Gould was discharged, the indictment against her being withdrawn.

The fact that Gould's arrest followed upon an investigation by the secret service police indicates that he obtained possession of important naval documents, and the serious view taken of the case was shown by the sentence, the maximum penalty being seven years.

A Question of Reliability.

LONDON, April 4.—The Spectator, commenting upon the status of the Panama Canal tolls repeal bill in the United States Congress, says in an editorial yesterday:

"The honor of the United States is now at stake before the whole world. We do not think we shall be charged with affectation if we say that the question whether British ships are, or are not, to pay more than their share for the up-keep of the canal is as nothing compared with the question whether the United States can or cannot be counted upon to accept the obvious meanings of treaties and scrupulously to observe them."

Have you seen this Car?

THE man with $1,650 to invest in a car cannot find a more substantial proposition than the McLaughlin-Buick Model "3."

We say "substantial." What other word could describe the quality that makes a car just as comfortable, easy-riding and reliable after a few thousand miles travel as it was when new?

Model "3" at $1650 has more life in it than a good many higher priced cars. We can show you why.

In the first place, it has the McLaughlin-Buick unit power plant—proven to stand up under years of service—full 32 h.p. for very low fuel cost. Such a motor will be a smooth-running machine when many another is ready for the scrap heap.

The body has wide U-shaped doors. It rides easy on extra long springs fitted with rebound snubbers. The wheels are large (35 x 4). This car will not jolt you or the machinery. It keeps its good appearance.

Model "3" has electric lights all 'round, canopy light under cowl, and extension trouble lamp. It is equipped with Gray & Davis Electric Starter, clear vision built-in windshield, mohair top with dust hood, besides the usual accessories, tools, etc.

$1650 f.o.b. Oshawa

By all means have a good look at Model "3" —the best $1,650 worth we ever offered.

FINAL MEETING OF THE LANE SERIES

A Large Attendance at Y.M.C.A. at 4 O'clock—Tabernacle Packed at Night

There was a large gathering in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon to hear Mr. Lane. His theme—"The crown of life given to them who endure temptation"—was taken from James 1:12. Eternal life is a gift pure and simple. None are worthy of it, but all may have it by simply accepting it. Paul says the gift of God is eternal life. The Christian life is here represented as a race. It is as if Paul stood at the beginning of the race and said only those could enter the race who had the gift of God—eternal life; and James stood at the end or goal and said only those who had endured the trials and temptations of the race received the victor's crown.

So many have endured the frowns, oppositions, crosses and losses of the world but have miserably failed when tempted with the allurements, friendships, smiles and favors of the world. Some think environment makes character. Character is formed from within; it does not grow out of environment. A similar set of trials will enable one man to rise to spiritual attainments while another man will sink under them to the lowest depths.

It is possible to degenerate in spiritual life. The weakness of the church of to-day is the tendency to develop the social life to the neglect of the spiritual life. It is much easier to get a large gathering to a social than to a prayer meeting. Read the history of the church and you will find there was a time when the Epworth League stood for the salvation of souls.

It is not so essential to the church to have the best choir, to have men of wealth, of social standing and intellectual attainments, but it is most essential to have the power of God within the church, to have men and women of prayer and consecration and godliness. Let us get back to God. Let us be veterans on whom God can rely. Then we will be approved of God and hear "Well done, good and faithful servant.

AT THE TABERNACLE

Standing room was at a premium at the Tabernacle church last evening, the pews in the large auditorium being comfortably filled at an early hour, and ere the time for opening arrived the Sunday School room had been sacked of its chairs and every foot of room was occupied by old and young, anxious to hear the closing discourse of Evangelist Lane, "From the Gambling Table to the Pulpit". A mixed chorus choir filled the chairs before the organ, at which Mrs. M. P. Duff presided, and preceding the address of the evening stirring gospel songs were rendered, and a selection by a quartette composed of Mrs. J. Grant, Mrs. Nicholson and Messrs. Moorman and Sherman.

The scene of Mr. Lane's subject began at Windsor Castle, London, where he and others were engaged at the gaming table, the speaker, then about 18 or 20, having his money at stake, which he finally lost; He related how a mission worker entered the room, apparently becoming interested in the game, and finally offering to contribute of his pack of cards, i.e., a series of religious tracts. The visitor was certainly an adept in the art of winning men, eventually attracting the attention of young Lane, who was led to the cross, withstanding the temptations of army life for two years, taking up his cross before his comrades, and being the means of leading many to a higher standard of living. The talk, simple in nature was extremely interesting, at times tragical and then pathetic, all tending to the probing by the Holy Spirit into the hearts of those present.

It was over an hour of heart-to-heart intercourse—never sermonizing—yet most effectual, concluding with an appeal to all to rise to the privileges of the Chirst-life, which held for each, pleasure, influence for good, and eternal life.

The coming to Belleville of this earnest worker has resulted in great good; and the visitor expressed his appreciation for the cordiality extended on all sides, particularly on the part of the Belleville Ministerial Association. He came a stranger, he said, he could go away with a deep love for those among whom he had labored—his hands had been upheld, his heart had been made warm, and his memory of our city and its people would ever remain a tender experience in his work for the Master.

Mr. Lane left this morning for London, Ont., where he begins to-morrow a week's series of evangelistic meetings, from there going on through to the west to the Pacific Coast, where he will visit his sons. The best wishes of many of our people go with him.

FOSSAL BALM
Goes Right to the Spot

If you have a cold in the head—if your nasal passages are inflamed, stuffed up, smarting—or if you suffer from chronic nasal catarrh—you can get quick relief by using Fossal Balm.

This is an antiseptic, healing salve put up in a collapsible tube so formed as to make it remarkably easy to use. When the elongated cap is removed it uncovers the nozzle-shaped end of the tube, about half an inch long. This is inserted in the nose and the tube squeezed gently, depositing a little of the Balm well up in the nasal passages. A little rubbing of the nose, and the indrawn breath, distribute the Fossal Balm throughout the passages, where it comes directly into contact with the inflamed membranes and the germs of disease. The latter it kills—the former it soothes and heals. The smarting irritation disappears—the nostrils are cleared, making breathing easy—and the catarrhal conditions, if they exist, are corrected.

Get a 50c tube of Fossal Balm from your Druggist, or write for it direct to us. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 1

Stomach Troubles Due To Acidity

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary.. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids—M. F. P.

Baby's Own Tablets Used for Years

When a mother uses only one medicine as long as there are little ones in the home it certainly bears grand testimony to the value of that particular remedy. Thousands of mothers use nothing else but Bay's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. M. LeBlanc Memramcook West, N.B., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones for the past ten years and know of nothing to equal them during teething time or for colic, constipation and indigestion. All my neighbors who have used them think as I do." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

TO MAKE TEST OF HUSBAND'S BRAINS

CHICAGO, April 3.—Chicago's new psychopathic laboratory, the first of its kind in the United States, will be established soon as an auxiliary to the municipal court.

Husbands who fail in their obligations to support their wives will be taken to the laboratory on the theory that they may require mental treatment as a substitute for punishment. Those arrested on other charges may receive the same treatment.

"The backward boy may be backward because of defective sight or hearing," said Chief Justice Olson. "Persons who come into the police courts, the Boys' court, the Morals Court and the Court of Domestic Relations will be subject to examination in the laboratory if it appears probable they need it."

Do not always judge by appearances. Sometimes the girl with a kodak smile has a cartoon temper.

Below that price you meet with every "cheat" in the cheapening and quality-subtraction known to the wily maker of shoddy and ready-mades.

Semi-ready Tailoring has all the glowing style and flowing grace of kingly art. Starting at $15, you may select finer woollen weaves and patterns at $20, $25 and $30.

"MY ONLY MEDICINE"

Says Mrs. Corbett, Are "Fruit-a-tives" "They Keep Me In Perfect Health"

MRS. ANNIE A. CORBETT

AVON, ONT., May 14th. 1913

"I have used "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. I am highly pleased with "Fruit-a-tives" and am not ashamed to have the facts published to the world. When I first started, about six years ago, to use them, I took four for a dose, but I cured myself of the above troubles and gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night.

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives" I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the disease as from these treatments.

Finally, I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised with a letter in which someone recommended them very highly, so I tried them. The results were more than satisfactory and I have no hesitation in recommending them to any other person. They have done me a world of good. I get satisfaction from them, and that is quite a lot". ANNIE A. CORBETT.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-west Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

WOULD TAX ACCORDING TO ABILITY TO PAY

Herbert Samuel Says That is the First Test of Fairness—Taxation on Personality

In the course of a debate in the British Parliament Mr. Herbert Samuel said that within the last 20 years in England and Wales the expenditure on main roads, police, poor relief, and education had risen from £19,000,000 to £53,000,000, and, while there was a larger assessable value, and an increased subvention from the Exchequer, the burden on the local rates had become very heavy. The increase had been largely due to the higher standard, for the public rightly needed more. It was not ultimately an evil that a larger proportion of the growing wealth of the community should be spent socially through the State and local authorities instead of being spent individually. A great deal of that expenditure, and a great deal of the expenditure which the House was asked to find for armaments, was beneficial and advantageous to the community as a whole, and its growth was not a matter to be regarded as an unmixed evil. We had an immense deal of most devoted labor being given by the members of the local governing authorities both in town and country to the improvement of the environment of the people, not only by country gentlemen, whose work had been rightly praised, but in the towns also.

Fundamental Principle

It was impossible to praise too highly the amount of voluntary unpaid labor thus willingly given by no fewer than 100,000 people in the United Kingdom—that was apart from the parish councils. If, however, we were to enable local authorities to improve still further our system of education, to strike even more efficiently at the causes of ill-health, if we were to enable them to develop our towns on worthy lines, we must not only enlarge the powers of the local authorities, but also give them more elbow-room in matters of finance. It had been suggested that national services should be taken over by the Imperial Government, but that would not be consistent with local management. Where they had local management there must be local responsibility for raising the money required for carrying on those services. We had come to a moment when the whole system of local taxation must be reviewed in the light of the fundamental principles of taxation. And the first of those principles was that the contribution, whether for national or rural purposes, must be according to ability to pay. That was the first test of fairness.

Taxes From Personality

One method of reform must be to secure a larger measure of contribution to local taxation from personality. In the view of the Government the same principle applied to land, in a large degree, as to licensing. Apart from the improvements which the efforts of expenditure of the individual owners might have made the value of land itself was a socially created thing to a larger degree than any other value. Therefore the Government held that, supplemental to the first principle that men should be taxed according to their ability to pay, there was this principle, that land and other socially created values might justly be made the objects of special legislation. To the Government it appeared that the right method at which they should aim was neither a single tax on land values nor a single tax on incomes, but that our local system of taxation like our Imperial system, should be a mixed system and combine within itself the various elements each of which were just, and each of which might be made the source of a proper and useful revenue to the local authorities. The broad lines on which the Government would proceed had been indicated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and had been received with approval from all quarters of the House. To this great and difficult question the energies of the Government would this year in a very large measure be devoted.

Probably no City in the world has been born in such magnificent potentialities as Prince Rupert. It is fed from the silver spoon of good fortune and is heir to a goodly portion of the world's treasures. As the converging point of international and world-wide traffic it has the basis of a moderately sized City.

Climate Conditions: The climate of this northern Country is really an asset of no mean proportions. Its mild winters and cool summers are going to be an attraction ere long to world-wide tourists. Prince Rupert is in the 55th latitude with a mean temperature of 44 degrees in the month of February and about 60 degrees in the summer. During the 12 months ending August 1912, rainfall was 73.38 inches, with 96 clear days, 36 partly cloudy days, 115 cloudy days, 114 rainy days and 4 days with snow.

RESOURCES: Prince Rupert is surrounded by a country whose natural resources are more rich and varied than those of any other country known to the present generation. It is the natural shipping centre for an immense mining territory, the fishing banks right at her very door are the best yet known and farming has been proven very successful in this vicinity.

FISHING INDUSTRY: There are at present time four Companies engaged in the fishing industry in Prince Rupert to wit: The Canadian Fish & and Cold Storage Co., The Atlin Fisheries Ltd., The Alliance Fish Co. & The Ocean Fish Co. About 25 vessels are at the present time engaged in the Halibut trade out of this Port. They are principally dories. The depth of the bank where the Halibut is caught is from 5 to 200 fathoms. These Halibut banks are located from 20 to 250 miles from Prince Rupert.

The fishermen are usually paid by the pound of the catch, 1 cent and a quarter a pound and other facilities free. At this rate they are making an average of about 1500 dollars a season.

The accompanying photographs will north. About 2000 persons are employgive an idea as to class of vessels and the equipment employed in this trade.

The annual report of the President of the Prince Rupert Board of Trade shows the following figures as to the catch for 1913: Salmon, 161,300 cwts; Halibut, 75,768 cwts.; Herring, 93,39 cwts; Cod 1,655 cwts.

The fishing industry as far as Prince Rupert is concerned is still to be considered in its infancy. With the opening of the Transcontinental Railway and thereby greatly improved transportation facilities this item is bound by the natural conditions to become one of the chief industries of this Port.

SALMON fishing and packing is the biggest industry in Prince Rupert today, but it is only one part of the great adjacent fisheries. There are now in operation 12 canneries on the Skeena River, 4 on the Naas and 8 among the Islands. The Skeena is 15 miles South of Prince Rupert and the Naas 30 miles couver, B. C. prior to his coming to ed in the industry on the Skeena River and 1000 on the Naas. The Canneries operate 4 to 8 months.

Of the great number of people now engaged in the fishing trade out of this port a good majority are Norwegians. They are always found to make the best fishermen as well as Captains and Mates Norwegians will also be found in almost any other line of business, mining, farming as well as commercial lines.

In the Fishing trade on the coast of British Columbia Capt. Peter P. Rorvik is to be considered as one of the pioneers Having passed through the different stages at sea as a sailor, fisherman, mate and master for about 15 years Capt Rorvik now owns and operates a company of his own known as the Ocean Fish Co. of this City. For about five years Capt. Rorvik was a master of fishing steamers out of the Port of Var Prince Rupert. (Born near Aalesund, Norway.)

Another Norwegian who has gained prominence in Prince Rupert is Alderman John Dyblhavn. In January 1912 he was elected a member of the City Council, and was reelected in 1913 and 1914. In the early days of the history of Prince Rupert he entered into the Real Estate & Insurance Business. In September 1913 his business was formed into partnership that of Dyblhavn & Hanson.

Messers Larsen & Jamno are engaged in the business of painting contractors in Prince Rupert.

Taking the natural as well as the climate conditions into consideration Prince Rupert and vicinity is bound to become a natural place for Norwegians. Great number of our country men have taken advantage of the new regulation relating to Home Stead lands and have taken up free government land in the vicinity of the city.

"CATCH-MY-PAL"

"There are five men at the lamppost you ought to get to sign the pledge," said a workingman to Rev. J. R. Patterson. He went back with the speaker to the group. They talked the matter over. Signed the pledge within a week. "Next week I want you to bring in a man each ea sign the pledge," said Mr. Patterson to the group. Next week there were eleven, six new men and five of the first lot. One man was away looking after a sick relative. Next week there were thirty-one men, boozers, topers, soakers of the worst type. Next week one hundred and five. Within five weeks six hundred men had signed. Within one year 140,000 men had signed the pledge in Ireland."—"Catch-My-Pal Movement."

CONSERVING THE RACE

New Prison Treatment Economic of Citizens

Col. Clark in responding to the toast, "Canada," at the annual dinner of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association said that while in the past Canada had been profligate of its great assets, the problem of conservation was being taken up and that the idea of conservation included the men, women and children, living and working in Canada. The speaker asserted that the new idea in treating prisoners and criminals was that every prisoner was not a criminal and that every criminal was not a prisoner. In connection with this idea he spoke of the Guelph prison farm, where men are given a fresh start.

Great Britain, Col Clark asserted, had made mistakes, but was still the greatest single secular force for good in the world. As long as Britain retained that distinction, so long would she occupy the position of leadership.

Careful But Lose

That the fruit growers who take the best care of their orchards will be the heaviest losers on account of the damage to the fruit crop, was logically explained by Prof. W. T. Macoun of Ottawa at the convention of the growers of the Niagara district, the opening session of which was held at Grimsby. The progressive grower who cultivated and pruned for fruit development, cutting back the wood, assisted in the early advance of the buds brought on by the unusually mild weather of the early winter, which was followed by an unprecedented season of zero weather which killed the premature buds.

Realistic Dogs

A few friends were discussing the merits of great painters the other night. A gentleman in the company said that Machael Angelo once painted a cherry tree outside his house which was so natural that the birds used to try to pick fruit from the tree. A carpet weaver in the company said that was nothing for being natural. He was weaving some rugs with dogs in the design, and every time the wire came across the hindquarters of the dogs to cut the pile the dogs yelped. Then there was a silence in the company that could be felt.

WHEAT CULTIVATION IMPOVERISHES SOIL

C. C. James Raises the Question as to Whether It Pays the Farmer to Grow Wheat

New light was thrown by Mr. C. C. James upon the necessity for mixed farming in Canada. Mr. James stated in an address that one year's wheat crop when sent to England carried with it $25,000,000 worth of the best soil material of the country. In the meantime, Canada with its comparatively costly lands and labor, was competing with the cheap lands and labor of the Mediterranean and other countries from which Great Britain obtained one-half its wheat. The statements of Mr. James led to the pointed question as to whether it pays Canada to grow wheat. He referred to the excessive cost to the whole nation which comes from the constant opening of new wheat lands, with the consequent railway extension and the cost to the country to keep the new settler on his land until he is well established. The most important problem for Canada now was to convert the wheat-grower into a farmer, a fact which was not evident to the majority of Canadians, as the people in general failed to consider that wheat growing was mining the land.

To Mixed Farming

The efforts being made by the various departments of agriculture to turn men from "land mining" to mixed farming were referred to by Mr. James, who declared that the occupier of the land has no right to destroy the natural resources. This fact was learned in England 150 years ago, and has been known in France for generations. The solution lies in mixed farming, which necessitates cheap money for the Western farmer, that he may speedily acquire stock. Most authorities on agriculture in Canada, practical farmers, bankers, railroad directors are agreed on the desirability of more mixed farming and less wheat "mining." The general tendency is towards greater diversity of crops and more attention to stock. Undoubtedly, the introduction of the big gasoline tractor has encouraged the growing of very large areas of wheat with little attention to the soil, often by its absentee owners. In one of the newer sections of Saskatchewan, a man who was turning ten furrows with a tractor, was asked casually, what length of furrow he could make, and he replied "Forty miles; the only thing that can stop me is the Saskatchewan River. There is not a stone or stick between me and it."

the Best Farmer

Miss E. Cora Hind stated that the average tractor used in the Canadian west is 15 horsepower, so that the machines that have been in operation during one recent season represent 97,500 head of horses. Horses suitable for this work could not be bought under $300 apiece, making an outlay of $29,250,000 and in addition they would require their keep. The average price of the motor tractor is $2,800, making an outlay for the machine in the West of $18,200,000. Describing these operations on certain farms in the west, Miss Hind says: "There is an element of chance in these large operations, but when success is achieved the results are so gratifying that it is not to be wondered that men with capital are willing to take the chance."

The best interests of the country at large are served by the comparatively small farmer, who is cultivating mixed farming, giving individual attention to his farm and residing on the farm for the greater part, if not all, of the year.

A Long Acquaintance

A celebrated actress tells an amusing story of a young "nut" who fell in love with a certain leading lady who was appearing in a provincial town. He sought out the manager of the company—a fine-looking, bearded man—and tried to get an introduction to the lady. "I expect you, who see her so often, are very fond of her?" he suggested. The manager admitted that he was; he had known her for a long time. "But it can't be so very long," protested the other; "she's little more than a girl." "Well, I've known her ever since I was born!" replied the manager. "You see, I'm her son!"

CANADIAN NATIONAL THEATRE

English Actor Regards It as Imperial Need

In an address on "The Empire and Drama" which Mr. Martin Harvey delivered at the Empire Club, Toronto, the English actor spoke of the awakening of interest in dramatic art in Canada and the need of a National Theatre. The country had no call to worry about its material affairs, but there were other things that went to make up a nation besides material things, and art in all forms was a spiritualizing and humanizing power. The theatre was a force in forming the character of the nation, and therefore an effort should be made to have the theatre foster Imperial ideals.

The speaker went on to say, that Canada was beginning to feel its "life in every limb," and the time had come for the young country to express itself in art. Some forms of art were already alive, but as yet the voice of a national drama had not been heard. The Dominion, with its picturesque history and unusual racial characteristics, possessed inspiring themes for the Canadian playwright.

Thus the foundation of a chain of National Theatres would do more to tighten the bonds of Empire than all the utilitarian and political schemes put together. It meant a common meeting ground for the British people in an atmosphere of art and culture. "And remember," said Mr. Harvey, "the great States of the world have covered themselves with more glory by their encouragement of the arts than by anything else."

FEW CHANCES FOR MARRIAGE

Women in England and Wales Outnumber Men by Over a Million

In his pamphlet concerning the Suffragette agitation Sir Almroth Wright advanced the suggestion that the true remedy for the superfluity of women in England—which he regarded as the cause of all trouble—was for the superfluous ones to remove themselves to the Dominion and marry there. This view is examined at some length in the Second Interim Report of the Dominions Royal Commission.

The Report points out that there is a superfluity of 1,179,000 women in England and Wales and a deficiency of 226,000, as compared with males, in Australia. But of the surplus women in this country it appears that 610,000 are over forty and for the most part are to be found in two classes, "elderly ladies and women servants," of whom the former are "hardly possible migrants" and "the latter can now ill be spared."

The fact is that domestic servants are becoming scarce in the mother-country because here as in the Dominions, "the tendency is for women to adopt industrial and commercial life and to abandon domestic service."

Moreover, in Australasia the same problem which exists in England has arisen. "The proportion of unmarried women to married women between the ages of 25 and 50 is practically identical with the proportions in England and Wales." And, the Report adds, "it would seem that, statistically speaking, the chances of marriage for women emigrants are only slightly higher in Australasia than at home."

If there is no great demand for wives in Australasia there is an "imperious and practically unlimited demand for female domestics. In some cases before a ship carrying women emigrants sights the land a large number of its passengers have been engaged by wireless telegraphy."

Yet complaints are made that the women who go out "know too much or too little." They are either factory hands and country girls with no experience in service, or else skilled servants in some one department and unwilling to undertake general work in the Australian house.

So urgent is the want of servants in Australia that it was stated to the Commission in evidence that the lack of them "seriously affects the health of housewives and even acts as a check upon the growth of population."

Value of a Rat-catcher's Dog

A Birmingham rat-catcher, who obtained $100 damages at the Birmingham County Court from the corporation for the loss of his dog which was killed by a motor ambulance, said the animal was worth $200 to him. It earned for him from $10 to $12 a week by catching rats. "To lose such a dog," he said, "is like losing my right arm."

IMPERFECT WOMAN

Noted Scientist Says Ideal To-day is Defective

"The imperfect or defective type of women is that represented by the very slight, thin-chested and nervous woman, at present so favored by fashion," declared Dr. Richard Root Smith, of Grand Rapids, in an address at the National Conference on Race Betterment. Dr. Smith added, however, "that we have no reason for believing that woman is worse off now than she has been for many generations."

The conference aimed to bring humanity to ultimate physical and mental perfection through eugenics, chiefly, and eugenics, incidentally.

At the opening session Dr. Stephen Smith, vice-president of the New York State Board of Charities and president of the conference, despite his advanced age of 92, read a typewritten manuscript of 43 pages devoted to the idea that 100 years is man's nominal age.

Modern methods of living, Dr. Smith said, have not proved more disastrous to women than to men. He added that the most perfect type of woman is "that represented by individuals compact in build, deep-chested with steady nerves and fleshy enough for the anatomical angles to be nicely rounded out."

Of the imperfect type in favor, he said she exists not because of any modern fad or fashion, or of diet, or of diversion; but because her deficiencies existed in her progenitors. The only time to correct faults, the speaker said, is in childhood or before.

Dr. Smith spoke of the hook-worm disease. She had recently completed an extensive investigation through the hills of eastern Kentucky, and the information which she gathered was given to the conference.

WASHING IN GOLD

Winners of Money Take Baths in Gold Coins

A French journalist who had speculated in railway shares won a large sum of money from a lucky venture. Drawing it in gold, he proceeded to an hotel, emptied the bags of gold in the bed, and went to sleep in it.

Paganini, the violinist, when he received the proceeds of his concerts (he insisted upon being paid in gold), used to wash his hands in sovereigns. A French novelist, Soulie, wrote a book called "The Memoirs of the Devil." It was successful; the publishers paid him for the first volume $10,000 in gold. The author carried the gold to his bedroom, poured it into a foot-bath, and enjoyed for half an hour the excitement of moving his feet to and fro in a bath of gold coins.

A Chicago merchant of great wealth, believing certain symptoms indicated that he would become insane, consulted a specialist and under his advice became an inmate of a private asylum. For twelve years there his recreation was piling up gold coins and then knocking them over. At times he washed his hands in gold eagles and half-eagles. At the end of the long seclusion he returned to business, and in twelve months confirmed the thoroughness of his recovery by amassing $500,000.

BISHOP'S PLEA FOR SUNDAY

The Bishop of Willesden presided at a conference called by the Harrow and District Free Church Council to consider the question of Sunday defence. The Bishop said that it was absolutely necessary to stir up a large body of opinion in favor of keeping Sunday as a day of rest, for owing to the apathy of electors, time after time the legislation on the subject was not being carried out. With regard to the question of Sunday cinemas in Middlesex, he rejoiced at the action taken by the county council, and could assure the members that they had the solid support of all the religious bodies behind them. In Canada public opinion had been so far influenced as to preserve the Sunday for the working man, and the churches had successfully protested against the opening of any places of amusement.

They wanted to see to it that in England Acts of Parliament were carried out, so that the working man should have his recognized day of rest. The appalling monotony of going on day after day without a break led to terrible results, and he welcomed the proposal to form a committee for Sunday defence.

EMPRESS OF RUSSIA

The Czar May be Succeeded by His Daughter

Strong representations are being made to the Czar to have him issue a proclamation revoking the Salic law, and declaring the Grand Duchess Olga heiress to the imperial throne, according to a report current in diplomatic circles in Paris.

The Grand Duchess Olga, who would thus succeed to the throne, now is nineteen years old and is remarkably clever. She has evinced a striking aptitude for taking hold of the interior affairs of the imperial palaces, and in view of the semi-anarchical condition of Russia, political refugees here say by enforcing constitutional humanitarian measures, she would have a superb opportunity of outshining Catherine the Great.

NO TROUBLE BREAKFASTS

"If any of you are married let me give you this piece of advice; leave the purse also to your wife and take nothing out of it which she does not give to you. From the very first I left my wife in charge of the purse and laid myself out for politics, and I have always found that this was a very good arrangement."—Bismarck.

"You would not have so much trouble over your breakfasts if you got things ready overnight," said Mrs. Experience to Mrs. Hausfrau, in answer to the young wife's dismal lament that breakfast was the worry of her life. "I don't like getting up early any more than you do, but I can quite understand that your husband gets tired of boiled eggs and fried bacon day after day. Personally I always choose dishes that can be got ready the night before and all there is to do is to heat them. Here are two or three of my staple dishes which I think you will find will break the monotony and will really be less trouble in the morning than preparing eggs. For ham cakes, for instance, take ½ pound cooked ham, four tablespoonfuls of mashed potatoes, one teaspoonful of grated onion, pepper, salt, milk, one egg, some breadcrumbs and fat for frying. Overnight I chop the ham very finely, and mash the potatoes free from lumps, then mix the potato with the ham, and onion, season and mix all these ingredients carefully, and add just enough milk to bind the mixture and prevent it crumbling. Next I divide the mixture into even-sized pieces, and shape these into round flat cakes. Brush each over with beaten egg, and then coat them with crumbs, and place them ready on a tin covered with paper, on which to drain them after frying. I put a deep pan of frying-fat all ready. In the morning I put the pan of fat on the fire to heat, and when a faint smoke rises from it I put in some of the cakes, and fry them a pretty golden brown—then I lift them from the fat, drain them on paper, and serve neatly arranged on a hot dish. Boiled lean bacon, tongue, cold meat or poultry can be used instead of ham. For Fish Croutons you want ½ pound of cooked fish freed from bone, a tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a little fish stock or milk, one hard-boiled egg, two teaspoonfuls of anchovy essence, salt and pepper, and some slices of bread cut about ¼ of an inch thick. Overnight I chop the fish finely, melt the butter in a saucepan, stir in the flour smoothly, and add the milk, heat and stir this until the sauce boils. Then add the fish, shelled and chopped egg, anchovy essence and seasoning. If the mixture seems too dry add more liquid, for it should be stiff, yet creamy and leave the mixture in a pan in a cool place. I cut the bread into pieces about three inches long and one and a half wide, and lay these on a tin with about an ounce of bacon or beef dripping, in which they will be fried. In the morning I heat the mixture thoroughly, remembering that it is thick, and so will stick and burn if not stirred; heat the bacon fat in a frying-pan, and when a faint smoke rises from it lay in the bread, and fry it a pretty gold color. Then drain the pieces on paper, and neatly heap on them the hot fish mixture. Any fish, or mixture of fish, will do. If there is any suitable sauce, white or brown, ready, use it instead of making fresh. Toast can be used instead of fried bread.

UNIVERSITY GIRLS TRAINED IN ECONOMY

Being Taught Marketing and Cooking and How to Make Clothes Cheaply

The chief aim of the Home Economics department of the University of Omaha is to teach members of the class how to purchase food at the lowest possible price and to cook and bake in the most scientific manner. The girls are taught the principles of economic marketing, what foods are best fitted for the different classes of working people, and the chemical composition of the staple foods. These things must be learned before the young women take cooking practice.

The students are taken to groceries and taught how to pick out bargains. They are also taught how to find bargains in newspaper advertisements and how to watch these announcements.

Then comes the teaching of the art of cooking. At first they practise on soups and relishes. Later come the more difficult foods.

After that comes the scientific study of foods. Chemical composition and food value are studied thoroughly.

How to combat the high cost of living still further is taught. The pupils are shown how to use substitutes for the foods which reach prohibitive prices. Cooking of cheaper cuts of meat is carefully taught.

Not only are the pupils taught how to purchase and cook food; they are shown how to take care of a home in the most sanitary way. Under this head how to have plumbing arranged and how to dispose of garbage.

NORTH HONAN MISSIONS

Very Few Lepers Now, Says Mrs. McClure

Mrs. McClure, who has been for 25 years engaged in mission work in North Honan under the Presbyterian board, said that owing to the coldness of the climate, there were very few lepers in North Honan, and during her whole 25 years there had only seen two lepers. But in the southern part of Canton there are lepers by the thousands and one is in the midst of them with a spirit of dread. There are beggars there in large numbers, lepers, insane and others, thronging the streets and market places. In Canton there is a leper settlement and children's home under the American Presbyterian Mission and is aided by the Mission to Lepers.

BEECHER'S FARM CREED

We believe that our soil loves to eat, as well as its owner, and ought therefore to be liberally fed.

We believe in large crops which leave the land better than they found it—making the farmer and the farm both glad at once.

We believe in going to the bottom of things, and, therefore, in deep ploughing and enough of it. All the better with a subsoil plough.

We believe that every farm should own a good farmer.

We believe that the best fertilizer for any soil is spirit of industry, enterprise and intelligence. Without this, lime and gypsum, bones and green manure, marl and guano will be of little use.

We believe in good fences, good barns, good farm houses, good stock, good orchards and children enough to gather the fruit.

We firmly disbelieve in farmers that will not improve; in farms that grow poorer every year; in starving cattle; in farmers' boys turning into clerks and merchants; in farmers' daughters unwilling to work, and in all farmers ashamed of their vocation or who drink whiskey until honest people are ashamed of them.—Henry Ward Beecher.

For Baking Success
—This Oven Test

Success on some baking days can be expected no matter what flour you use. But constant success is rarer. It can be assured in only one way. The miller must select his wheat by oven test.
So from each shipment of wheat we take ten pounds as a sample. We grind this into flour. Bread is baked from the flour.
If this bread is high in quality, large in quantity, we use the shipment from which it came. Otherwise we sell it.
Constant baking success comes as a matter of course from flour bearing this name

NO MORE PAIN

KEPHALDOL CAN NOW BE HAD AT YOUR DRUGGISTS

Herr Doctor Stohr the famous Austrian nerve specialist, first used KEPHALDOL prescription in his private practise and hospital work in Vienna. Other noted physicians and surgeons adopted this formula in treating severe cases of Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago, LaGrippe and Colds, Neuralgia and Headaches. The wonderful properties of KEPHALDOL became known in England, where a company was formed to prepare KEPHALDOL TABLETS and supply them to the public at nominal price.

Canadians, visiting the Old Country, heard of KEPHALDOL—tried them—and brought them back to Canada. So great became the demand for KEPHALDOL here, that a Canadian office was established to distribute these tablets on this side of the ocean.

So what one famous physician did in Austria, has resulted in thousands and thousands of sufferers being cured of pain.

If your druggist should not have KEPHALDOL, a 50c tube of tablets may be obtained by remitting the price to Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

GREATER BRITAIN

Royal Colonial Institute to Change its Name

The Royal Colonial Institute proposes to change its name to the Royal Britannic Institute. When the society was first founded some fifty years ago, it had two rooms above a shop in the Strand; it now occupies a large building in Northumberland avenue, and has the best library of colonial information in the world. Since its foundation, however, the institute has extended its work so greatly that the word "Colonial" is felt to be no longer applicable. In the first place it does not include India, although a large portion of the library is devoted to Indian literature. In the second place, Canadian and Australian members resent the word "Colonial." And, finally, the institute has a large number of members in South America, which is in no sense a British colony.

Lame Back Strengthened 2 Stiffness Taken Right Ou

WAS RELIEVED IN AN HOUR, AND CURED OVER NIGHT.

A lame back? Quite unnecessary. All you have to do is to rub on Nerviline. It's simply a wonder for backache—relieves after one rubbing. "Nothing possibly could cure an aching back faster than Nerviline," writes Mrs. Arthur Kobar, of Lower Chelsea N.S. "I caught cold and was so prostrated with pain I could not bend over. We always have Nerviline at home, and I had the painful region rubbed thoroughly with this grand liniment. At once the pain departed. The lameness was rapidly reduced and in an hour I was able to be about my housework. I was rubbed again just before retiring and awoke as usual in the morning without a sign of my back trouble."

There is no sort of muscular pain that Nerviline won't cure quickly. Thousands swear by it for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and lumbago. It sinks to the core of the pain—right through muscle, tissue and nerve—it penetrates where no oily, greasy liniment can go and invariably cure quickly. If you have an ache or a pain anywhere—use Nerviline—it will cure you. Family size bottle, very large 50c; trial size 25c. at all dealers.

SOME REFLECTIONS ON COST OF LIVING

Mr. Flavelle Thinks Inefficiency of Consumers Has Much to do With It

J. W. Flavelle, Toronto, in discussing before an audience the cost of living said the consumer was supremely inefficient. He spoke of the large number of young girls employed in factories and offices until they were ready to set up housekeeping for themselves, when they found themselves almost entirely ignorant of the economical purchasing and preparation of food. There was almost as great ignorance on the part of their more fortunate sisters who did not have to work, and in this connection Mr. Flavelle referred to the habit of housewives doing their purchasing by telephone, and ordering half a pound of beefsteak to be sent up. The consumers themselves, Mr. Flavelle said, were to a great extent responsible for the "cruel and improvident waste identified with the consumption and preparation and purchasing of food products." The fundamental cause of the high cost of living, Mr. Flavelle said, was an underproduction of the primary farm products. The problem was a social problem, even more than an economic problem. What was needed was a greater feeling of fellowship between the farmers and the people in other callings. The farmer should live just as well, and should have just as many comforts in his home as the man in the city. Mr. Flavelle spoke of the ten million dollars of farmers' money in the banks of Ontario drawing interest at three per cent., "practically every dollar of which should have gone back into the land, or into stock or improvements on the farms." What was wanted was some way to check the flow of people into the cities and towns from the land "that ought to be flowing with milk and honey."

FARM AND CITY

A Contrast of the Lives of Farmer and Citizen

Only those who have been reared on a farm, and who subsequently have entered commercial life, can properly appreciate the important differences between the mercantile and the agricultural methods of doing business. It is this very inability which leads to so many to erroneous conclusions with respect to farmers and farming. The ordinary business man lives two lives—one at his home, the other at his office. Practically all his daylight hours are spent at the factory, at the office or the store. These are remote from his home, and other activities all little known and less understood, in most cases, by those who comprise his family group. The home of the farmer, on the other hand, is his office, his laboratory, his club. All his activities centre round it and radiate from it. His plans are familiar to all his family and their progress watched with appreciative interest by every adult member of it. Details are discussed freely around the evening lamp, and thus from earliest childhood the members of the household become identified with parental plans in a manner impossible in any other calling. To this may be attributed in large measure that sober sense of responsibility which, more than mere physical fitness, gives the country boy pre-eminence in the larger sphere he may subsequently enter. It further explains, in some measure, the gratifying response to reputable advertisements in the farm press, for these are read and discussed, together with the problems with which the paper deals, and receive a sympathetic audience possible in few other publications.

It's a poor rule that hangs fire when its marker tries to apply it.

There's just one question to ask after you've heard an Edison Phonograph
"How soon can I get one?"

The wonderful new hornless instruments have talked and sung and played themselves into popularity. The silent, smooth-running motor, the diamond reproducing point that does away with bothersome changing of needles, the beauty of design and the sweet-toned, unbreakable Blue Amberol Records require no argument.

Listen and see for yourself. Any up-to-date phonograph dealer will be glad to give you a free concert on the Edison today. Insist upon hearing the Edison. You can get one without delay.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Mrs. Julian Health's Advice to Canadian Women

To deal with the cost of living, says Mrs. Health, President of the Housewives' League of the United States in a talk to Canadian women, one must first begin with the leaks, and none is greater than the leak through false weights. In Washington in one year a million dollars was wasted in that way. The only way to wipe out that evil is for each consumer to see that she gets honest weight. It cannot be left to inspectors.

Impure food, Mrs. Health said, is a question of supply and demand. If we would not buy it it would never be manufactured. In a so-called pure food show, got up by dealers and held in New York last year, samples of impure foods were placed on the tables. They had to be renewed every morning because the women ate them all up!

Mrs. Health told some interesting stories of the state of New York stores three years ago, when the Housewives' League began its campaign there, of the uncovered food, the unprotected goods, and the store cat that slept on the wrapping paper or in the box of prunes. It is all different now.

Not a single tradesman was unwilling to co-operate in reforming these conditions. "We didn't know you women cared," they said, of "my ladies order by telephone and don't care whether the shop is clean or not." So it all comes back to the housewife.

SIR JOHNSTONE FORBES-ROBERTSON

(as Hamlet) and his wife, Gertrude Elliott.

The following poetic appreciation of the great English actor, Forbes-Robertson, was written by Andrew Rae Macdonald, a Canadian journalist upon learning of the knight-tragedian's determination to quit the stage.

To Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson (As Hamlet)

Life knows but two great moments—
Birth and Death—
One joyful and the other—tragedy;
Yet in thy hands what great nobility
Is given to that hour when Hamlet's breath
Leaves the cold clay, but living, wandereth
A glorious spirit through Eternity,
Living a life beyond Death's sovereignty,
There earth-bound shell no more encumbereth
The soul's far flights. The body borne on high
Above the warriors on a flaming shield,
Speaks in a hush'd and breathless eloquence
Of Tragedy's grim dictum—"All must die";
Yet whispers of the glad soul, far afield
From petty strife against the world's pretence.

Prince and Farmer

During army manœuvres in a country district Prince Arthur of Connaught and some brother officers lunched on top of a haystack. Presently the farmer appeared, and as he drew near he could be heard expressing some forcible opinions on the subject of his haystack being used as a mess-room. An orderly hurried up and explained who the officers were, and in an undertone he added that one of them was Prince Arthur, King George's cousin. The indignant farmer flatly refused to believe him. "Anyway, prince or no prince, they've got to come off my stack," he declared, and, turning to the amused officers, he added: "Dash it all, from the looks of you, the next thing you'd do with the stack would be to eat it!"

A wise maid rejects the silly youth who is willing to die for her, and cleaves to a man who is willing to earn her a living.

Ten-year-Old Pickpocket

An extraordinary case of juvenile pocket-picking was dealt with at Clydebank Police Court, a girl of ten years of age being charged with four different thefts of purses with money from women who were making purchases in various shops. The fiscal said the girl was nothing short of an expert pickpocket. The first [illegible] she placed on the [illegible] in order, when a car [illegible] over it, that all trace of it [illegible] destroyed. It was proposed to send the girl to a reformatory.

Advantage of Weak Whiskey

At Kirkcaldy James Anderson, grocer, was fined £40 for having sold a bottle of whiskey adulterated with water. Mr. Thomson, on behalf of the accused, said he got in a quantity of whiskey which he believed to be considerably over proof, and added water without testing. Mr. Thomson thought it was possibly to the advantage of those who got it, as it would do less harm.

W.B. NEWSOME DEAD FROM PNEUMONIA

Pioneer Law Stationer of Toronto and an Active Conservative

TORONTO, April 6.—The death occurred yesterday morning of W. B. Newsome, 109 Gloucester Street, from pneumonia following a week's illness. Mr. Newsome was well known in Toronto as a law stationer, in which business he had been occupied for upwards of thirty-five years. Born at Charlottetown Prince Edward Island, in 1849, he came to Toronto about the age of twenty-five and resided here continuously ever since.

For many years Mr. Newsome took a prominent part in politics, and for two terms was president of the Young Men's Liberal-Conservative Club of the city and was active in the Conservative organization, although never seeking office He was a member of the Board of Trade but took no part in fraternal societies of any kind. He attended the Central Mthodist Church. He is survived by three sons, Mr. John Newsome, of Toronto, Mr. Gordon of Spokane, Washington, and Mr. George, of Chicago. The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon from Stone's undertaking parlors, 32 Carlton Street to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

FACES EIGHT SPOUSES

Rancher Had 16 Wives in 15 Years and no Divorce

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 4.—Ludie Arnold was tried before Federal Judge E. R. Meek to-day for violation of the Mann Act. Arnold is charged with having married sixteen wives in fifteen years and having neglected the little detail of divorce. Divorces take up too much time, he says.

Eight of the sixteen wives were present at the hearing. They will all be permitted to give evidence against Arnold, according to the ruling of Judge Meek. The defendant's attorney fought for admissibility of testimony from only one wife on the ground that the alleged crime was the same in each case. The eight wives, all handsome and sitting in a row, smiled at the announcement of the decision, while Arnold looked dumbfounded.

Arnold is an Arkansas rancher, 45 years old. His marriages extend from Illinois to California, and he with great difficulty recalled most of their names today.

Grace Huffine whom he married about a year ago in Oklahoma City said he won her hand by first arousing her sympathy by weeping as he described his mother's death.

"The day we were married," she continued, "he took $35 of mine and also $200 from my father to keep it from being stolen, he said. He has kept it ever since."

Hazel Hearn, of Kingsville, Ia., also testified that Arnold was always weeping when he courted and won her.

Arnold's wealthy mother caused a scene in court today when she tried to kiss the daughter of one of his wives. The mother angrily protested that she must kiss her and the other seven wives started to help her when court attendants interfered.

BOY PLACES HEAD ON THE TRACK

Father is Lifer and Mother Died in Mad House Years Ago

WINDSOR, Ont., April 4.—Students of sociological subjects are given much food for thought in the attempt of Mason Brown, a nine year old boy, to commit suicide here last night.

The lad lay down on the street car tracks on Woodward avenue and deliberately laid his neck across the rail with the idea of being decapitated by a car. By-standers pulled him aside just in time.

Young Brown, who is a small, undeveloped child, for his age, has a long criminal record in Detroit. He has been arrested at least a score of times for minor offences and for one or two serious ones. Three times he has escaped from the detention home. The boy's father is a "lifer" in Jackson State prison while his mother died in a mad house a few years ago.

NEED NO LONGER EAT HORSE MEAT AS BEEF

MONTREAL, April 4.—Eaters of horse flesh will in future be such from choice, as the meat must now be stamped with the name of the veterinary surgeon who passed it as eatable.

The matter came up before the council meeting of the Provincial Board of Health yesterday, and it was decided that, in future, all horses killed for eating purposes must be examined before death. The name of the examining surgeon must then be stamped upon the meat which will be labeled "horse meat" for the information of the public.

EXPOSED DECEPTION OF REALTY AGENT

Secretly Dealt With Property Entrusted to Him for Sale

Mr. Justice Lennox, in a judgment delivered at Osgoode Hall, Toronto on Friday in connection with a real estate transaction made some scathing comment on the conduct of the agent, who was the defendant in the action. His Lordship said the defendant was not entitled to commission, as he had deceived the plaintiff and secretly dealt with his property as though it were his own. The defendant was bound to account to the plaintiff for all moneys he had received beyond actual disbursements. He admitted having received $466.33, but had paid the plaintiff only $275. Prima facie, the defendant was bound to account on the basis of the consideration of $23,500, but it would involve a reference to the Master which the plaintiff did not press. Judgment would be in favor of the plaintiff for $466.33 and costs on the High Court scale. Thirty days' stay was granted for purpose of appeal.

The action was brought by Isaac Brodley against Edmund LeFeuvre to recover $3,832.48 said to have been received by the defendant, a real estate agent for the plaintiff in connection with the sale of property on Gerrard Street east. The case was heard in the Non-Jury Assize Court this week.

BANK OF MONTREAL TO HANDLE LOAN

City Treasurer Recommended the Highest Bidder, Difference Being Slight One

MONTREAL, April 4—Even though better terms were offered by a New York banking concern for the City of Montreal issue of 1,500,000 pounds sterling, or $7,300,000, the Board of Control yesterday, on recommendation of City Treasurer Arnoldi, decided to allow the Bank of Montreal to float the inscribed city 4½ per cent. stock in London.

The difference was .25 per cent., making a difference on the face of the loan of $18,250. The reasons given by the city treasurer for favoring the higher bidder is that the difference is too small for the city to desert their regular banking agency.

The New York concern, Harris and Company, offer to take the stock at 97.65 net and the Bank of Montreal at 97.40. The city treasurer also points out that the exchange rates might perhaps favor the city.

DROP DEAD WHILE THEY WITNESS FIGHT

Old Man and Woman Collapse From Fright on Seeing Blows

WORCESTER, Mass. April 4.—Patrick Eagleton, 70 years old, of Duggan street, Spencer, and Mrs. Dennie Arseneault, 60 years old, of 48 Maple street, Spencer, dropped dead from fright in the street yesterday afternoon as they witnessed a three-cornered fight between Martin Niederberger, a chauffeur employed by Walter Watson, of Leicester, and Stanley Orutt and Charles Bannon, employees of a Niagara cereal company, who were distributing samples in the town.

Orutt and Bannon had been distributing samples in Leicester earlier in the day and called at the home of the Watsons. Mrs. Watson claims she was insulted by one of the men, and she informed her husband when he returned home. Mr. Watson and Niederberger boarded a trolley car and followed Orutt and Bannon to Spencer and located them in the trolley waiting room. The Leicester men charged the strangers with insulting Mrs. Watson and it is charged Orutt retaliated with a punch that sent Niedergerer to the floor.

A fight followed and Mr. Eagleton, who was waiting for a trolley car, went into the street and collapsed on the sidewalk from fright, and died before a doctor could be called. Mrs. Arsencault sank to the floor of the waiting room during the row and was dead before help could reach her.

The three fighters are under arrest.

$50,000 FOR A GOBLET

British Museum Said to Have Offered it for Hungarian's Find

VIENNA, April 4.—An ancient glass goblet, ornamented with splendid reliefs, was recently found near Sepron, Hungary. Archaeologists think it dates from the third century of the Christian era. An inscription goes to show that it was made by Licinius Diecus. It was found by Herr Zettel, a manufacturer living in Sopron.

It is said that the British Museum offered him $50,000 for his find. The Sopron Museum, desirous of acquiring the goblet, applied to the Director of the National Museum at Budapest with the request that he move the Hungarian Government to forbid its sale outside the country. That would be possible, according to Hungarian law, which allows the National Museum at Budapest to claim every unique object found in Hungary, but meanwhile Herr Zettel has got the goblet out of the country.

THE TOWN MARKET.

The modern successor to the old Town Market are the advertising columns of the daily newspaper.

They are as much an improvement on the old system as the news columns are an advance over the Town-Crier.

Wise people nowadays consult the advertising in their newspaper before they purchase. It saves time and money.

It is economy and convenience in the best sense of the word.

Advertising has become a fixed factor in the science of domestic economy.

WOMEN FORMING DEFENCE SOCIETY

LONDON, April 3.—A special correspondent who has just returned to the Metropolis after a tour throughout Ireland, expresses surprise at the fact that Englishmen are apparently not aware that there are two sides to the "fighting" question. He says that the Nationalists are blithely prepared to tackle the Ulster Volunteers in the event of the formation of a "provisional government", and drilling is proceeding daily, especially in the east and south, and recruits are increasingly numerous.

At a meeting of the women of Dublin last night, Miss Agnes O'Farrelly, a handsome bluestocking Master of Arts, presided, and delivered a patriotic oration, while Mrs. Dudley Edwards, a portly middle-class matron, in her speech expressed the hope that the women of Dublin and the South would provide the women and children of Ulster with shelter in their homes.

In case of dire necessity, she hoped that the policemen and soldiers would be withdrawn and the two sides left to fight out the issue. Several other speakers approved of this idea.

One suggestion was made that the women learn to fight, but if they did not, at least they could do splendid work as spies. The meeting finally resolved to form a society, the membership to be restricted to women of Irish birth and descent.

NOW COLOR FACES TO MATCH GOWNS

Milwaukee Women Give Paris a few Pointers on Just What is Style

MILWAUKEE, April 4.—Pooh for the green wigs of Paris, or the red wigs, blue wigs, purple or chushed strawberry effects in hair draperies. Milwaukee has Paris looking pale mauve when it comes to a freak fad.

Swains hereabouts now address their Dulcineas, saying: "Ah, Imogene, I adore your sweet Sevres blue countenance!" Or, "Precious Alice how exquisitee is the mandarin yellow tint of your fair face!" Or, "Deborah, thrilling is the spectacle of your purple cheek!" Or, "Gretchen, your violet map certainly gets me."

The answer to this is that Milwaukee girls have gone in for the use of face powders colored to match their dresses. Just now, a lovely shade of lavender has the call.

But mandarin yellow, Sevres blue, purple, violet pea shades of red and pink, cypress green, putty color and almond are also on the boudoir tables of miladies of Milwaukee.

PROPOSAL BY CARSON TO END HOME RULE FIASCO

Exclude Ulster Until Federal System is Applied to the Whole of the United Kingdom

LONDON, April 6.—(Special.)—The Daily Mail says that at the conclusion of the debate on the Home Rule Bill today (Monday), Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, will make another suggestion for the settlement of the question. It will be to the effect that Ulster be excluded from the provisions of the Home Rule measure until the federal system is applied to the whole of the United Kingdom, when the whole question will be reconsidered.

It is now practically certain that in view of Premier Asquith's restrained speech at Ladybank, Scotland on Saturday, the Unionists will not oppose his re-election.

REDMOND'S SPEECH MAY DECIDE ISSUE

Rests With Him Whether Pacific Tendencies Shall be Confirmed

LONDON, April 6.—Debate on the second reading of the Irish Home Rule Bill will be concluded to-night, the Ministerial whip having issued a warning that the division will be brought on not later than 10.30 p.m. Mr. Redmond will have the first word in the debate today and his utterances is being awaited eagerly, since it lies within his power to finally confirm or wreck the pacific tendencies now evident that may ultimately make for a settlement by consent. Sir Edward Carson will be another speaker.

The Daily Telegraph, editorially commenting upon the Prime Minister's speech at Ladybank on Saturday, says that the broad principle which he laid down as governing the relations of the State to the army not only are impeachable, but have never been impeached by the Unionists. "What we complain of," says the paper, "is that the Prime Minister has lent the weight of his authority to the agitation against the army which has been prepared by unscrupulous party organizers."

The Morning Post alludes to Premier Asquith's speech as a deathbed repentance that he doesn't see how settlement of the Home Rule question is now possible.

"PUSSY UHL" DIVORCED

Sequel to Trial of Notorious German Adventuress

BERLIN, April 4.—The trial of the Countess Fischler von Trehbork has had a sequel in addition to the punishment meted out to the defendant—15 months' imprisonment for fraud, blackmail, usury. The Count, her husband, has brought and won a divorce suit on the ground that when he married her he had no idea she was the notorious "Pussy Uhl," well known in most European capitals.

Many were the noble names dragged into the case and it was indeed, suggested that two young officers of aristocratic family had committed suicide through finding themselves involved in usury through the Countess's agency.

The charges ranged from grave to frivolous. Among other things she was accused of calling a telephone girl "saucy creature," with fraud by means of a matrimonial agency, and fradulent bankruptcy. No fewer than fifty witnesses were cited—althcught they did not all appear—including a Princess of Ysenburg-Budingen, aunt of the Princess Sophia of Saxe-Weimar, who recently committed suicide, who was fined for refusing to give evidence.

The Countess is over forty, although she looks much less. The daughter of a shoemaker, at the age of 18 she had already given her parents trouble and the police were invited to supervise her doings. A few years later under the name of "Pussy Uhl," she was the most feted demi-mondaine in Frankfort. Later she removed to Hamburg, where she easily disposed of the thousands supplied by successful admirers. Finally a gift from one of these of $5,000 enabled her to marry a wealthy hotel-keeper. She appeared, however, not longer after in the divorce court and eventually married the Count. At the time of the trial she was said to be living on allowance of $30 monthly given her by her first husband. Three bottles of champagne a day were stated to be her average consumption, while she has had particular weakness for morphine, brandy and tobacco.

HE FINDS MILITANT HIDDEN IN CELLAR

GLASGOW, Scotland, April 4.—The caretaker of a large vacant mansion near Rutherglen, three miles southeast of glasgow yesterday captured a militant suffragist found hiding in a cupboard in the cellar of the mansion. The woman was locked up by the caretaker, who telephoned the police, who arrested her. The police arrived too late, however, to prevent the escape of several other suffragists in the building, who in their hurried flight had left their cloaks behind them.

Search of the mansion disclosed bottles containing paraffin and also cotton wool and matches and other inflammable material, which had been placed evidently with the purpose of starting fires.

HIS CAR RUNS ALONE

Machine Belonging to Airman Tabuteau Surprises Parisians

PARIS, Aphil 4.—Passers-by along the Avenue des Acacias, in the Bois de Boulogne, were startled yesterday by seeing an empty motor car slowly ly moving along the road. Some one jumped into it and put on the brake.

As he did so, a young man stepped out from the footpath. "You need not bother", he said. "It is my car, and it is used to going along like that."

The young man was the airman Tabuteau. He had placed the near-side wheels against the side of the road and left the engine running with just enought power to keep up a speed of two or three miles an hour. He and his friends then strolled in a parallel direction along the sidewalk, with the empty car following at their heels.

SUDDEN DEATH HAS TWO COINCIDENCES

Brockville, April 6—Special—Allan Turner, a member of the local customs staff, died suddenly at his residence last night. He had not been in good health, but was able to be up and around. He was 60 years of age, and was survived by his wife, son, daughter, aged mother and two brothers. Prior to entering the Customs Department Mr. Turner was a druggist. He died in the same room in which he was born, and in the same chair in which his father died suddenly nearly 40 years ago.

DISASTROUS FIRE

(Intelligencer Special)

KINGSTON, April 6.—Fire which broke out at 5.40 this morning did $15,000 damage to the St. Joseph wing at the House of Providence. Heroic work on the part of firemen and Sisters of the institution saved the lives of fifty people who were sleeping in that part of the building at the time. The fire reached the infirmary, where there were a dozen or more invalids, some of whom had not been out of their beds in twenty years. These inmates had to be carried out through windows and down stairways by Sisters and firemen. The fire started from a furnace pipe in the old men's quarters. The men were asleep, but were aroused in time to reach safety.

FLY SWATTING USELESS

LONDON, April 6.—Special—Fly swatting has been declared to be useless in a manifesto issued by 123 medical health officers, who appeal to the public to co-operate with the health authorities in getting rid of the breeding places of the flies. The manifesto gives statistics showing the part played by the fly in spreading infantile and other diseases. In urging measures of household cleanliness, and also instruction in schools as to the habits of the fly by means of moving pictures, the statement is made that experience has shown that it is useless to tackle the individual flies.

CATCHES RUNAWAY WITH AUTO

In Detroit the other day a bit of real drama took place which was an amusing and exciting illustration of the victory of the motor car over the horse in their modern battle for supremacy.

A motor fire apparatus, its siren wide open, started the trouble. It came racing into the downtown section, followed closely by a frantic horse which it had frightened. The fire apparatus turned off at a side street, but the horse kept right on. Over downtown crossings he ran, and behind him, dodging in and out of traffic, came a Paige-Detroit roadster. A traffic policeman lay face downwards on the roadster's left fender holding on by the headlight bracket, while the driver broke city speed records in an effort to catch the fleeing horse. For half a mile the chase lasted, the horse dodging, each time the Paige was jockeyed close enough for the policeman to catch one of the dangling reins. Finally the end of the rein was reached, the Paige gradually slowed down and the horse stopped. The mud-bespattered traffic officer got up from the running board, where he had been showered with snow and dirt in the chase. The man in the Paige extended a hearty hand "You are some policeman," he remarked.

The officer grinned. "Believe me," he returned, "you are some speed driver; that's some horse and that there car is some automobile."

BOMB OUTRAGE BY MILITANTS

Much Damage Occasioned to Famous Church in London

LONDON, April 6.—Special.)—The famous Church of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, on the north-east corner of Trafalgar Square, near the National Gallery and the National Portrait Gallery, was the scene of a bomb outrage by Suffragettes after the services last evening. The outrage was very much like the one perpetrated in the Church of St. John the Evangelist at Westminster on Sunday, March 1, when a bomb which had been placed under a seat near the pulpit was exploded by Suffragettes who had concealed themselves in the building and two stained glass windows were smashed

USED A SHOELACE TO HANG HIMSELF

Ticket to Halifax and Steamer Passage Found in Dead Man's Pockets

MONTREAL, April 4.—An apparent suicide was discovered in Lachine yesterday, when the body of Chris Jensen was found at the rear of the C.P.R. shops. A shoe lace had been fastened around the neck, and to a fence post, death being caused by strangulation. The body had been hanging to the fence four or five days, apparently before it was discovered by Alfred Grunet, of Lachine, who took a seldom used path in the rear of the shops.

A railroad ticket from Winnipeg to Halifax, with a ticket on the "Alsatian" to Liverpool, with $51.05 was found in the pockets of the dead man. The ticket showed that Jensen had left Winnipeg on March 22nd.

No person has been found who had seen the man in Lachine. The body was removed to the Montreal Morgue.

Benjamin Clearmont, of Pillar Point, that he had been kidnapped upon entering Potsdam to deliver an anti-Catholic lecture which he had advertised.

The prosecutor's inquiry was held behind closed doors. The village policeman named Cota, was held for the grand jury on a charge of neglect of duty. The clergyman complainant alleged that he was forced into an automobile, driven into the country and his life threatened.

A FIRE AT ALLISONVILLE

ALLISONVILLE, April 3.—Bruce McPaul's tenement house was totally destroyed by fire on Thursday morning. Orville Richardson had been living in the house since last fall and about five o'clock in the morning he got up and built a fire in the range, and took the lamp in the parlor and moved it on the table, while he put away a book he was reading the night before. In a few minuteh the lamp exploded. His wife and only child were up stairs and he rushed up to get them out and found them sound asleep. Before help arrived the fire was master and all the contents were burned. Mrs. Richardson and son, ten years old, escaped with only night clothes on. She was taken to Bruce McPaul's residence where she was kindly cared for. The house and contents was partly covered by insurance.

LAD SLEW MISTRESS

Chinese Boy Confesses to Terrible Crime in Vancouver.

City Is Shocked by Revelation of the Murder and Subsequent Dismemberment and Destruction of the Victim's Body In Furnace—Many Chinese Servants Are Being Dismissed.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 6.—The shocking murder of Mrs. Charles Millard, the young wife of the chief ticket agent of the C.P.R. at the terminal depot in this city, has stirred the city profoundly. Aside from the question of the crime itself, the fact that she was killed by her Chinese servant, who for five years had lived in the Millard house, has brought the whole burning Oriental question to the fore here. Saturday night the police took special precautions to prevent the slightest chance of a riot in Chinatown, and the night passed quietly enough there. Uptown, however, when a slightly inebriated citizen began to attack every Oriental he met he soon drew a crowd. The police took no chances, but whisked him off in the patrol.

Scores of Chinese servants have been dismissed from residences, especially in the west end and Shaughnessy Heights. Downtown restaurants and hotels are being warned personally by customers and by personal messages that they must get rid of their Chinese or lose business. Never before have Orientals been so unpopular in this city.

The coroner's jury Saturday night brought in a verdict of murder at the conclusion of a three-hours' enquiry over the pitiful little pile of whitened bones that are all that remain of Mrs. Millard. Mrs. Barnard, a neighbor of the Millards, said that on Wednesday afternoon she smelled burning flesh and remarked at the column of black smoke coming from the Millard's chimney. It was during that afternoon that the unfortunate woman's body was cremated by the 17-year-old Chinese boy, and when her husband arrived at 11 o'clock in the evening of that day all the visible evidences of the crime had been wiped out.

Jack Kong, the Chinese boy, in his confession in writing, given to the police on Saturday, says that on Wednesday morning his mistress complained to him that the porridge was burned and ordered him to prepare another dish. He refused to obey and she told him she would have to cut his ear off to make him be good. In a flash the lad says he swung a chair over his head and knocked her apparently dead. Then he got the family carving knife, he says, and cut off the legs and arms and fed them into the furnace. He then dragged the body downstairs and he used there a cleaver to assist the carving knife in the dissecting. He attempted to clean up the stains, both up and down the stairs, but a close examination since made by the police showed many small specks of blood still about.

He took off Mrs. Millard's rings and watch, and these, together with some other trinkets, he had stolen a fortnight ago, were found Saturday afternoon hidden in a corner of the basement.

When Mr. Millard came in late from Victoria, he thought the house looked slightly upset, but he accepted the Chinese boy's explanation that Mrs. Willard had gone out to spend the day with one of her four sisters, who live in different suburbs. That night the Chinese boy crept downstairs and carried into the corner of the attic Mrs. Millard's hat and street clothing and veil, which she would have used had she gone out, and which would have excited her husband's suspicions had he seen them in the house. Next morning the boy refused to go to school, because he had washed his trousers the day before, and they were not dry, for he had gotten them covered with blood while carrying out the murder.

Somewhat dissatisfied by the lad's conduct, but suspecting nothing serious, Millard went down to his office, and from there began to telephone his sisters-in-law, attempting to locate his wife. When he failed to find her, he returned to his home and found the Chinese boy still cleaning up. The lad had a big fire in the furnace, and was much agitated at Millard's unexpected appearance. Thoroughly aroused by this time, Millard telephoned to the police.

When the fire finally died down the Chinese boy, in his confession, said he took out the skull and all the bones. He did not get them all, however, and it was this fact that gave the police their first definite clue. A couple of handfuls of whitened bones still remained in the furnace. The skull and large leg bones, the Chinese boy had stuffed into the flue below the drawing-room grate, where they were found yesterday.

The Chinese boy is a rather pleasing-looking little fellow, who was getting along rapidly at the Lord Roberts School. Saturday on his way to attend the inquest he whistled a popular tune. He made his confession to Mr. Millard in the presence of the police.

Had Hard Trip.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The Cunard liner Mauretania arrived Saturday from Liverpool and Queenstown twelve hours late. She was delayed by a series of terrific storms which lasted throughout the passage. Passengers were forced to remain from the outer decks during practically the whole voyage.

Three days out from Liverpool a stateroom on "A" deck caught fire from a short circuited electric wire. The interior was badly damaged, but because of the construction of the Mauretania it was impossible for the fire to spread. But a few of the passengers knew that there had been a fire.

But the average reformer has no other job!

Even if an up to date woman did look like the pictures in a fashion magazine, she probably wouldn't be satisfied.

W.J. MAGRATH BEGINS DRILLING OPERATIONS

EDMONTON, Alta., April 6.—Special—Official announcement was made to-day by W. J. Magrath, president of the Edmonton Industrial association, that drilling operations at the Edmonton natural gas well, near Viking, Alta., will begin on April 15. The contract calls for a minimum depth of 1,700 feet and a maximum depth of ,500 feet, at $10.50 a foot. Geologists agree that the Dakota sands, the gas-bearing strata, will be encountered at 2,000 feet. The fund necessary to carry on the work was gathered by public subscription. If gas is struck in commercial quantities the city of Edmonton will take over the well and reimburse the subscribers to the fund, but without profit and interest. If the well proves dry the subscribers will lose their money. The municipality of Edmonton has reserved the gas and petroleum rights on 10,000 acres of land in the Viking district, but not an acre of land is held by any member of the industrial association or any subscriber to the fund.

Fell Seventy Feet

KINGSTON, April 4.—A very regrettable accident happened at the Canadian Locomotive Works about 11.30 this morning when Leander Hagerden fell from the top of the new erecting shop to the ground, a distance of about seventy feet and was severely injured. He was in the employ of Mr. Goldmark, in the construction of the fine new erecting shop and was engaged in placing fireproof paper on the roof. With him was working a fellow employee, David Woodhouse, and the job was nearing completion on that side of the structure. Hagerden was working backwards to the edge of the roof and when a short distance from it was warned by his companion. He could not have heard the warning as he went further down and in a short time fell over the edge.

His companion was horrified to see him go over and immediately descended to the ground and with others picked him up. A hurried call was sent for medical attendance and R. J. Reid's ambulance was summoned. His injuries were temporarily dressed and he was rushed to the General Hospital.

At the hospital it was found that he had received fractures of both thighs, had dislocated the right shoulder and received a crushed elbow. He was severely cut under the chin with possibly a slight fracture and was internally injured. His chances of recovery are not stated, but some slight hope of his recovery is held out. The news of the accident was received with much regret on all sides and his relatives at home were horrified.

CHAPTER I

Warned In a Dream

Seven-and-twenty years ago, and a bleak evening in March. There are gas-lamps flaring down in Ratcliff Highway, and the sound of squeaking fiddles and trampling feet in many public-houses tell of festivity provided for Jack-along-shore. The emporiums of slop-sellers are illuminated for the better display of tarpaulin coats and hats; so stoff of build that they look like so many sea-faring suicides, pendent from the low ceilings. These emporiums are here and there enlivened by festoons of many-colored bandana handkerchiefs; and on every pane of glass in shop or tavern window is painted the glowing representation of Britannia's pride, the immortal Union Jack.

Two men sat drinking and smoking in a litle parlor at the back of an old public house in Shadwell. The room was about as large as a good sized cupboard, and was illuminated in the day-time by a window commanding a pleasant prospect of coal-shed and dead wall. The paper on the walls was dark and greasy with age; and every bit of clumsy, bulging deal furniture in the room had been transformed into a kind of ebony by the action of time and dirt, the greasy backs and elbows of idle loungers, the tobacco-smoke and beer-stains of half a century.

It was evident that the two men smoking and drinking in this darksome little den belonged to the seafaring community. In this they resembled each other; but in nothing else. One was tall and stalwart; the other was small, and wizen, and misshapen. One had a dark, bronzed face, with a frank, fearless expression; the other was pale and freckled, and had small, light-gray eyes, that shifted and blinked perpetually, and shifted and blinked most when he was talking with most animation. The first had a sonorous bass voice and a resonant laugh; the second spoke in suppressed tones, and had a trick of dropping his voice to a whisper whenever he was most energetic.

The first was captain and half-owner of the brigantine "Pizarro", trading between the port of London and the coast of Mexico. The second was his clerk, factotum, and confidant; half-sailor, half-landsman; able to take the helm in dangerous weather, if need were; and able to afford his employer counsel in the most intricate questions of trading and speculation.

The name of the captain was Valentine Jernam, that of his factotum Joyce Harker. The captain had found him in an American hospital, had taken compassion upon him, and had offered him a free passage home. On the homeward voyage, Joyce Harker had shown himself so handy a personage, that Captain Jernam had declined to part with him at the end of the cruise; and from that time the wizen little hunchback had been the stalwart seaman's friend and companion. For fifteen years, during which Valentine Jernam and his younger brother George, had been traders on the high seas, things had gone well with these two brothers; but never had fortune so liberally favored their trading as during the four years in which Joyce Harker had prompted every commercial adventure, and guided every speculation.

"Four years to-day, Joyce, since I first set eyes upon your face in the hospital at New Orleans", said Captain Jernam, in the confidence of this jovial hour. " 'Why, the fellow's dead,' said I. 'No; he's only dying', says the doctor. 'What's the matter with him?', said I. 'Home-sickness and empty pockets,' says the doctor; 'he was employed in a gaming-house in the city, got knocked on the head in some row, and was brought here. We've got him through a fever that was likely enough to have finished him; but there he lies, as weak as a starved cat. He has neither money nor friends. He wants to get back to England; but he has no more hope of ever seeing that country than I have of being Emperor of Mexico.' 'Hasn't he' says I; 'we'll tell you a different story about that, Mr. Doctor. If you can patch the poor devil up between this and next Monday, I'll take him home in my ship, without the passage costing him sixpence'. You don't feel offended with me for having called you a poor devil, eh, Joyce?—for you really were, you know—you really were an uncommonly poor creature just then". murmured the captain, apologetically.

"Offended with you!" exclaimed the factotum; "that's a likely thing. Don't I owe you my life? How many more of countrymen passed me by as I lay on that hospital-bed, and left me to rot there, for all they cared? I heard their loud voices and their creaking boots as I lay there, too weak to curse them."

"No, Joyce, don't say that."

"But I do say it; and what's more, I mean it. I'll tell you what it is, captain, there's a general opinion that when a man's shoulders are crooked, his mind is crooked too; and that if his poor unfortunate legs have shri-coats and hats, so stiff of build that velled up small, his heart must have shrivelled up small to match 'em. I dare say there's some truth in the general opinion; for, you see, it does not improve a man's temper to find himself cut out according to a different pattern from that his fellow-creatures have been made by, and to find his fellow-creatures setting themselves against him because of that difference; and it does not soften a poor wretch's heart towards the world in general, to find the world in general harder than stone against him, for no other reason than his poor weak legs an his poor crooked back. But never mind talking about me and my feelings, captain. I ain't of so much account as to make it worth while for a fine fellow like you to waste words upon me. What I want to know is your plans. You don't intend to stop down this way, do you?"

"Why shouldn't I?"

"Because it's a dangerous way for a man who carries his fortune about him, as you do. I wish you'd make up your mind to bank that money, captain."

"Not if I know it", answered the sailor, with a look of profound wisdom; "not if I know it, Joyce Harker. I know what your bankers are. You go to them some fine afternoon, and find a lot of clerks standing behind a bran new mahogany counter, everything bright, and shining, and respectable. 'Can I leave a few hundreds on deposit?' asks you. 'Why, of course you can', reply they; and then you hand over your money; and then they hand you back a little bit of paper. 'That's your receipt', say they. 'All right', say you; and off you steer. Perhaps you feel just a little queerish, when you get outside, to think that all your solid cash has been melted down into that morsel of paper; but being a little light-hearted, easy-going fellow, you don't think any more of it, till you come home from your next voyage, and go ashore again, and want your money; when it's ten to one if you don't find your fine new bank shut up, and your clerks and bran-new mahogany counter vanished. No, Joyce, I'll trust no bankers.

"I'd rather trust the bankers than the people down this way, any day in the week", answered the clerk, thoughtfully.

"Don't you worry yourself, Joyce! The money won't be in my keeping very long. George it to meet me in London on the fifth of April, at the latest, he says, unless winds and waves are more contrary than ever they've been since he's had to do with them; and you know George is my banker. I'm only a sleeping partner in the firm of Jernam Brothers. George takes the money, and George does what he likes with it—puts it here and there, and speculates in this and speculates in that. You've got a business head of your own, Joyce; you're one of George's own sort; and you are up to all dodges; which is more than I am. However, he tells me we're getting rich, and that's pleasant enough—not that I should break my heart about it if we were geting poor. I love the sea because it is the sea, and I love my ship for her own sake."

"Captain George is right," answered the clerk. "Jernam Brothers are growing rich; Jernam Brothers are prospering. But you haven't told me your plans yet, captain."

"Well, since you say I had better cut this quarter, I suppose I must; though I like to see the rigging above the housetops; and to hear the jolly voices of the sailors, and to know that the "Pozarro" lie hard by in the Pool. However, there's an old aunt of mine, down in a sleepy village in Devonshire, who'd be glad to see me, and none the worse for a slice of Jernam Brothers' good luck; so I'll take a place on the Plymouth coach to-morrow mornig, and go down and have a peep at her You'll be able to keep a look-out on the repairs aboard of the "Plazarro." and I can be back in time to meet George on the fifth."

"Where are you to meet him?"

"In this room."

The factotum shook his head.

"You're both a good deal too fond of this house", he said. "The people that hvae got it now are strangers to us. They've bought the business since our last trip. I don't like the look of them."

"No more do I, if it comes to that. I was sorry to hear the old folks had been done up. But come, Joyce, some more rum-and-water. Let us enjoy ourselves to-night, man; if I am to start by the first coach to-morrow moring. What's that?"

The captain stopped, with the bell-rope in his hand, to listen to the sound of music close at hand. A woman's voice, fresh and clear as the song of a sky-lark, was singing "Wrapping Old Stairs", to the accompaniment of a feeble old piano.

"What a voice!" cried the sailor. "Why, it seems to pierce to the very core of my heart as I listen to it. Let us go and hear the music, Joyce."

It's a sort of concert they give of a night; an excuse for drunkenness, riot and low company. If you're going by the coach to-morrow, you had better get to bed early to-night. You have been drinking quite enough as it is."

"Drinking!" cried Valentine Jernam; "why, I'm as sober as a judge. Come, Joyce, let's go and listen to that girl's singing."

The captain left the room; and Harker followed, shrugging his shoulders as he went.

"There's nothing so hard to manage as a baby of thirty years old", he muttered; "a blessed infant that one is ashamed to call master!"

WINNIPEG WANTS TO AID SIR EDWARD

WINNIPEG, April 4.—Friends of the Ulster resistance of Home Rule met here last evening and signified, with wild enthusiasm, their devotion to "the cause."

Two resolutions were passed, one congratulating Sir Edward Carson and his companions on their stand and endorsing the principles of the fight against Home Rule, and another protesting against the attacks on the King and army.

Soon after 8 o'clock the big auditorium profusely decorated with Union Jacks, was filled to the doors with men and women, mostly Irish. It was found necessary to open another smaller hall, where an overflow meeting was addressed by the same speakers that addressed the main gathering.

BANKER AT CORNWALL GETS PRESENTATION

CORNWALL, April 4.—T. E. Fletcher late manager of the local branch of the Sterling Bank, who has been appointed to the managership of the Regina branch of that bank, was last evening presented with a cabinet of silver and silver tea service, accompanied by an illuminated address from the citizens of the town.

The address, which was signed by His Honor Judge O'Reilley on behalf of the citizens, and William Gibbons, president of the board of trade, expressed the regret felt at Mr. Fletcher's removal and the best wishes for himself and Mrs. Fletcher in their new home.

Mr. Fletcher will leave next week for Toronto prior to going west. The presentation was made by His Honor Judge O'Reilley. A. L. McLachlin of Sudbury is Mr. Fletcher's successor and arrived in town on Thursday.

TORONTO DEVELOPING

Toronto is on the eve of great development.

The unsightly and depressing Union Station is to be replaced by a modern one.

The death-threatening lines of railway on the water front will be put upon a six-track viaduct.

Work on the new harbor developments will soon be comenced.

A civic square near the Post Office is contemplated.

All points to great development, and it is estimated that public works to the value of fifty million dollars will be undertaken within the next ten years.

MUNICIPAL COAL PLANT

Matter Being Discussed By Civic Officials.

KINGSTON, April 4.—There is talk in civic circles of the establishment of a municipal coal yard chartering a boat and buying its coal at the mine. Over 5,000 tons of coal is used annually, for which an average price of $4.50 a ton is paid.

It is possible that this matter will be taken up by the mayor in connection with his scheme for a municipal ice plant.

CALLED MASON, WAS HURT

Montreal Lawyer is Awarded $250 Damages Against Newspaper

MONTREAL, April 4.—Judge Charbonneau awarded Gonzalves Desaulnier, K.C., $250 damages in his suit against L'Action Sociale, the organ of Archbishop Begin, of Quebec. Mr. Desaulnier asked for $2,000 in his statement of claim. L'Action Sociale reprinted the statements of a French professor, who accused Mr. Desaulnier of being a Mason and always willing to stir up unfounded secandals against the Roman Catholic Church. These allegations plaintiff denied.

Judge Charbonneau found that Mr. Desaulnier, as a Catholic, had suffered from the statement of the paper.

SLEIGHS CROSSED THE ICE

Cold Spell Gave Islanders a Chance to Visit the City

KINGSTON, April 4.—After being interrupted for several days by the partial breaking up of the ice, crossing to the Islands was resumed this morning when several sleighs reached the city from Wolfe and Garden Island.

Little difficulty was experienced in making the crossing, though a new road was followed. The new ice is about two inches thick, and will not long resist the sun.

SIR WILFRID'S WORK

"The construction of the Levis-Moncton line was a matter of public policy directed by parliament and the Canadian people. The commissioners were not called upon to pass judgment upon that policy."

This, says the Hamilton Herald, was Sir Wilfrid Laurier's comment upon that portion of the Gutelius-Staunton report which criticises the construction of the N. T. R. between Levis and Moncton as unnecessary—as a mere waste of $35,000,000.

Sir Wilfrid is technically in the right. The policy was "directed by parliament." That is to say, it was ratified by a majority of the House of Commons ten years ago. But that majority consisted wholly of the supporters of the Laurier government. Not a member who was in opposition to the government voted for the policy. It is not unreasonable to say that the policy was "directed by parliament," not on its merits, but merely because it was proposed by the government. Government supporters could not oppose it without incurring the odium of party disloyalty. It was really "directed" not by parliament but by the Cabinet. Sir Wilfrid was technically right also in saying that it was "directed" by the Canadian people, for the people returned to power the government responsible for the policy before construction work on the N. T. R. had been fairly started.

However, it would be satisfactory even at this late day, to hear from Sir Wilfrid what there is to be said, if anything can be said, to justify this amazing feature of his N. T. R. policy—to justify the construction of 400 miles of railway which parallels another government railway a large part of that distance and must operate to divert traffic from it and so diminish its revenue. It is hardly a convincing reply to criticism for Sir Wilfrid to say that the policy was "directed by parliament and the people." He was the author of the policy, and parliament and the people ratified it only because they had confidence in him. If he makes no attempt to justify it on its merits, it is fair to assume that it cannot be justified on its merits.

A MEXICAN LAND TAX

While the hot contest of arms has been going on in the neighborhood of Torreon, 600 miles north of the Mexican capital, Gen. Huerta has been carrying on the business of governing Mexico in the manner of a ruler who has no intention of abdicating and no idea that he will be forced out of office. So much of the Provisional President's message to Congress as has been transmitted by telegraph is marked by sobriety of judgment, and the proposal to institute immediately an equitable tax on all uncultivated lands will undoubtedly serve to satisfy his supporters that he is still master of the situation. The chief trouble in Mexico is agrarian. Millions of acres of land which might be made arable are held by hacendados who do nothing whatever to cultivate them and pay little or nothing for the support of the Federal Government. A just tax on lands would inevitably compel hereditary lords of the soil to part with much of their holdings. Madero proposed a land tax, but never instituted one, probably because the members of the prolific family of Maderos preferred to hold their untaxed lands. Diaz, just before his abdication, made plans for the purchase of lands by the State for distribution among the agricultural laborers on easy terms. Obviously, the institution of a tax on uncultivated lands must precede any such wholesale purchase of land by the Government.

Until a serious experiment of this sort has been tried, it is folly to keep on saying that the Mexican people are not fit for self-government. In spite of the Constitution of 1857, and the efforts of many liberators, the masses have been living under a modified feudal system, shut off from the right to own farms and work them for their own profit. Peonage has been the result and peonage has been the cause of the national discouragement. Huerta has gone to the root of the ing in Mexico. Artesian wells driven on any of the now arid northern lands will serve to make them fertile, and the agricultural possibilities of Mexico are not to be questioned.

There is no immediate promise, however, of putting Huerta's plan into effect. While the Federal forces have held out manfully at Torreon and the onslaughts of the rebels have been made at the cost of many lives, the present situation is assuredly not encouraging to the Provisional Government at the capital. Thus far it seems that Villa has suffered only a partial defeat and is in the enjoyment of good health and eager for more bloodshed. All observers who lack faith in the so-called Constitutional cause and the ability of its leaders to put the country in order have been hoping for news of an indisputable Federal victory at Torreon.

TAX ON MARRIAGE

(Canadian Municipal Journal)

The Province of Quebec discourages, as far as possible, the marriage of Protestants by making a license to marry expensive.

While in Ontario a couple can secure a license on the payment of two dollars, in Quebec the cost is eight dollars. And in addition, in Quebec the would-be bridegroom must secure two householders who are willing to become his bondsmen, lest he secure the license by untruthful statements.

Of course, the bonding part of the affair is a pure farce, for though many untruthful statements have been proved at different times, no bondsman has ever been prosecuted.

Because the Roman Catholic citizens do not get married by a license, except rarely, it is really a Protestant Tax; and it is therefore handed over to the Protestant Committee of Education.

It is, of course, one of the anomalies due to the unchanging character of many of the laws in the Province of Quebec.

More than a blanket morgage is needed to keep a house warm in cold weather.

Pembroke, being classically inclined, proposed to build its Carnegie library along lines of Greek architecture. But that didn't suit Carnegie, who was putting up the money. And what has been decided upon is what are known as utilitarian lines, covered with a roof that looks a good deal like a Scotch bonnet. Which suits Andrew Carnegie to a "tee." But Pembroke seems to mourn the loss of its Greek temple.

Naturally a man who leads a crooked life is unable to keep both feet in the straight and narrow path.

It's all right to hope for the best, but hoping is no sort of adequate exercise.

ORIGIN OF DWARFS PUZZLES SCIENTISTS

Dwarfs have always been a puzzle to scientists, whether they are human beings, animals, or plants. Some of the difficulties of understanding the origin of the human ones were cleared away by Professor Hastings Gilford in his lecture at the Royal College of Surgeons, London. Of course, there are whole races of dwarfish human beings, but the kind of person who especially deserves the name is one who is conspicuously small amongst his own people. Most of these eccentric little folk, often called midgets, are really, according to Professor Gilford, endowed with the gift of perpetual youth—not altogether a desirable gift, as any reader of fairy tales will know. It was often thought, he said, that midgets were people whose growth had suddenly been arrested. This was not so. The professor pointed out that in many cases "the so-called dwarfs or midgets are not in reality the result of a stoppage of growth, but rather of a protracted delay in development, so that they remain infants all their lives. When they grow old, as they often do, their infantile characteristics still persist, Dr. Gilford gave many quaint instances Dr. Gilford gav many quaint instances where their smallness and their baby-like minds stood dwarfs in good stead. One mannikin, he said, travelled wherever he cared to go on the railway with half a ticket until he was 30 years old; another intelligent child of 14 years got through more easily still, for his mother or any other woman who cared to assume the responsibility could carry him about as a baby in arms.

This intense prolongation of the period of childhood was really something very much akin to a disease. The lecturer classified it into many forms, but said of the many specimens he had met and examined: "They seem to be intelligent and captivating little people, their intelligence being of the childish pattern, such as might be expected of young people who had gathered years of experience. They never seem to be spoiled or even embarrassed by the attentions they receive from the public, but show quaint childish traits and a charming naiveté which makes them great favorites with those who have dealings with them."

Science naturally divides dwarfs into many kinds, but two of these are quite distinct. In one class the bones grow harder with age instead of remaining, as in the other class, gristly like those of little children. When, as in the first case, the bones begin to harden, other changes often happen, and the midgets become a strange compound of adult and child. "They often rejoice," said Professor Gilford, "in beards and moustaches, and some of them have become the proud fathers and mothers of diminutive beings like themselves."

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

Herbert Morrah Thinks Difficulties of English Are Exaggerated

Mr. Herbert Morrah addressing the Authors' Club in London, thought they were all united in believing in the great mission of English literature, but he was afraid that was where their unity would end. For he did not believe it would go out that they were on the whole very much in favor of the scheme set forward by the Simplified Spelling Society, and this not because it was a reform. They were all conscious of the anomalies of the English language, but they were not prepared for a revolution. During the last day or two he had had the pleasure of reading pamphlets of the Simplified Spelling Society, and he gathered from these that there was a definite scheme for placing the whole English language into the melting pot. Education had largely to do with this subject, and he thought that the difficulty of spelling the English language was enormously exaggerated (cheers). It was not extremely difficult for the average child to learn any subject, and he was not convinced that the average child was stupid (hear, hear). He was convinced, however, that our education in English left much to be desired, and he was quite sure that that should be thrown into the melting pot before they tampered with the spelling. It was admitted that the body of our language had not altered in 150 years, and he supposed the man of all others to whom they owed most for this was Dr. Johnson. There were many people who believed that Dr. Johnson had given them a good working model, and that it would be a good thing to leave well alone rather than enter into a scheme which, whatever else it might do, would involve an indefinite number of complications.

VILLA TAKES REVENGE

Rebel Leader Is Unsparing of Defenders of Torreon.

Victor Is Now In Full Control of the City and Gen. Velasco Is In Full Flight With Pursuers at His Heels—Villa Dines In State With Grime of Battle Still on Him—His Huge Territory.

TORREON, Mexico, April 4.—Gen. Villa, the victorious, took dinner in the Hotel Salvadore last night after two weeks of beans and tortillas, his hair uncombed and his face unshaven. The day was given over to looting and executions. Velasco and his little band of Federals are battling against the inevitable in an effort to gain a friendly port to the southward. In close pursuit is Ortega and Rosalia Hernandez. They have been barking at Velasco's heels all day, and they have orders to take him prisoner at any cost of men or mounts.

In the city the volley-firing against adobe walls indicates the fate of the brave Federal defenders. No "Colorados" are to be taken prisoners. The "Colorados" are the former rebels of Orozco's revolution who joined with Huerta. Villa considers them as traitors, and says that they must pay the penalty all traitors pay. The poor peon Federals, driven to battle by the flats of swords, and impressed from the prisons, are to be spared, for men are needed to repair the line, to bury the dead, and bring in the wounded. How many have been killed, how few have escaped, and how many executed prisoners, no one will ever know. Velasco started the valiant defence of the city with 12,000. He left with less than 2,000, and many of these are dropping on the desert from the fatigue of the long fight and the wounds they received. Villa suffered heavily, and his losses will likewise be countless, as he keeps no muster roll and the unknown dead cover the flats by the river.

The fighting since Sunday week has been almost continuous. Repulse after repulse was suffered by Villa and his forces, but they returned to the fray, and finally triumphed. This victory is the most significant event that has occurred since Madero captured Juarez in his revolution. The revolution of Villa can no longer be classed as one of national importance. Huerta, at the National Palace, faces the most formidable revolution Mexico has ever seen. The very gates of the capital are to be stormed, and by a ragged outlaw brigand who crossed the Rio Grande only thirteen months ago with three mules, a sack of maize flour and a half-dozen followers. Last night Villa was cheered as the greatest military genius of modern Mexico. Recruits are flocking to him from all parts of the war-ridden country to replace the thousand men who were lost in battle. Before the celebration was under way Villa issued orders that Saltillo and Monterey, the two remaining garrisons in the central tier of the States, would be stormed, and he is already preparing to attack these points preliminary to moving on Mexico City itself.

With the taking of Torreon by the rebels the Constitutionalists now control an immense wedge-shaped portion of Mexico, with the point resting on Torreon, 500 miles south of here, and the top extending along the American border, from Nogales, Ariz., to a point just west of Eagle Pass, Texas. At Piedras Negras, known as Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, there is a Federal garrison, but it does not now constitute a menace to the rebels.

Tampico To Surrender?

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Constitutionalist outposts within five miles of Tampico are preparing to attack the city, Rear Admiral Fletcher reported yesterday, adding that he had private advices that the Federals are preparing to surrender without resistance.

CHINESE SERVANT ARRESTED.

He Is Believed to Know What Became of Vancouver Woman.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 4. — A mystery which the police believe must include the murder of Mrs. Charles J. Millard, 1,650 Pendril street, is to-day baffling the entire force of the city.

Mrs. Millard, who is the wife of the chief ticket agent at the C. P. R. depot and who has lived in Vancouver for many years, has disappeared. The police believe she was killed. Not the slightest clue as to what became of her has been found, but the police have arrested a Chinese servant employed in the Millard residence, and they believe that he can solve the mystery of the disappearance would he but speak.

Britain Not Land-Grabbing.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4. — That the principle of the Munroe doctrine is just as alive now as it ever was and that President Monroe's declaration is not an "obsolete shibboleth" was the trend of discussion yesterday at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, which is considering the present international relations and obligations of the United States.

Speaking of Great Britain, in relation to the Monroe doctrine Seth Low said the British "crave no more territory."

Aged Magistrate Retires.

RIDGETOWN, April 4. — When John P. McKinlay resigned the position of police magistrate of Ridgetown, the oldest magistrate in active service in Ontario, ceased his official duties. Mr. McKinlay celebrated his 91st birthday on Jan. 1, and has been holding court and deciding cases regularly.

After getting the worst of it in an argument she says to him, "Now, why can't you be sensible?"

EVERY STIFF JOINT LIMBERED RHEUMATISM CURED

CURES NEURALGIA, BACKACHE, LUMBAGO.

Rheumatism to-day is unnecessary. It is so well understood and so readily curable that every day we have reports of old chronics being freed of their tormenter.

"I can speak confidently of the Nerviline treatment for the simple reason that it cured me," writes Albert B. Cornelius, from Kingston. "You can't imagine how stiff and lame and sore I was. Nights at a time I could not sleep well. I followed the Nerviline directions carefully—had it rubbed into the sore regions four or five times every day. Every rubbing helped to reduce the pain. The swelling went down. I got a fair measure of relief in a week. I also took two Ferrozone Tablets with my meals. They increased my appetite and spirits, purified my blood and toned up my system generally.

"I am as well to-day as a man could be—in perfect good health. I give Nerviline all the credit."

A large family size bottle of Nerviline costs only 50c., of the trial size 25c., and is useful in a hundred ills in the family Whether it's toothache, earache, headache, neuralgia, lame back or cold. Nerviline will cure just as readily as it will cure rheumatism. For family use nothing equals Nerviline.

SUFFRAGETTE IN CUPBOARD.

She and Companions Had Secreted Themselves In House.

GLASGOW, Scotland, April 4—The caretaker of a large vacant mansion near Rutherglen, three miles southeast of Glasgow, yesterday captured a militant suffragette found hiding in a cupboard in the cellar of the mansion. The woman was locked up by the caretaker, who telephoned the police, who arrested her. The police arrived too late, however, to prevent the escape of several other suffragettes in the building, who in their hurried flight had left their cloaks behind them.

Search of the mansion disclosed bottles containing paraffin and also cotton wool and matches and other inflammable material, which had been placed evidently with the purpose of starting fires.

LONDON, April 4.—While rising after having been submerged during a sham attack off Harwich, Essex, yesterday, submarine C 2 struck the propeller of a gunboat. The periscope and part of the conning tower of the submarine were torn away by the impact, and only the coolness of her officers and crew prevented her from sinking.

MOTHER TELLS

HOW HER LITTLE GIRL WAS RESTORED TO HEALTH.

Mrs. Chas. Schriefer of 139 Himrod St., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "My little girl was frail, sickly and all run down after having had the grippe. I was advised to give her Vinol and after the first bottle noticed an improvement. She has taken four bottles and has picked up rapidly, having gained six pounds in three weeks."

The reason Vinol builds up weak, ailing children so quickly is because it contains in a delicious combination the two most world famed tonics—i. e., the strength creating, body building elements of cod liver oil, with all the useless grease eliminated, and tonic iron for the blood added. If you have a weak, puny, ailing child, try Vinol on our offer to

ASQUITH OPENS TO-DAY

Tone of Address Will Determine Action of Unionists.

If Prime Minister Raises "the Army vs. the People" Issue In East Fife, the Opposition Will Put a Candidate Into the Field—Balfour's Speech In Commons Has Put Vigor Into Unionists.

LONDON, April 4.—Premier Asquith was given a big send-off when he departed from London yesterday for his constituency of East Fife, Scotland, where he is to deliver today a speech to his constituents. Large crowds of Liberal supporters gathered at the stations along the line, and at every stopping place the Premier received addresses from Liberal associations, expressing the wish that "the electors of East Fife will send you back to Parliament with redoubled authority to maintain the traditions of the army, the authority of the crown and the power of the people."

Mr. Asquith will make his first speech at Ladybank, eight miles southwest of Cupar-Angus. The Unionists threaten that if this speech is provocative in the sense of raising the army question as an electioneering device, they will end their decision not to oppose the Premier's re-election.

At Edinburgh yesterday Mr. Asquith said:

"I really do not know what is going to happen me in Fife. I have been somewhat diverted as I came along by reading what my friends who are in political opposition to me are going to do. I gather that after some hesitation and much deliberation they have, provisionally at any rate, came to the conclusion that I am to have a conditional walkover; conditional that is upon my being upon my best behaviour during the next two or three days. Gentlemen, this is very alarming. I can only say, and I say it in all good temper, that if they think that either hope or fear of what they are going to do or not going to do will have any effect whatever upon what I say or upon what I do, then it is high time they disabused themselves of that impression."

The Standard says the Unionists regard the big farewell demonstration when Mr. Asquith left London yesterday morning as provocate, and much will depend on whether his speech to-night is as conciliatory as it is hoped for and whether he will have an opponent.

The "die hard" Conservative organs publish warnings against undue optimism as to the Ulster situation. The Pall Mall Gazette, the daily edition of J. L. Garvin's Sunday Observer, declared yesterday that "an election first" remained the Unionist policy, and added: "If an election first be accepted, there will be an increasing movement in favor of the principle of federalism and full co-operation between the parties in working out a great scheme of devolution."

The Pall Mall Gazette reiterates the determination of the Unionists of Ulster to proceed with the establishment and proclamation of the provisional government if the Home Rule bill be passed before an election.

When yesterday's developments in Parliament are reviewed by the newspapers this morning there seems a general concensus of opinion that the politicians are drifting apart again, and that Mr. Balfour's speech has served to stiffen the once slackening opposition. The apparent Unionist support of Sir Edward Grey's federal idea proposition has dwindled away in view of the impossibility of carrying out such a scheme prior to a general election.

The Ulster leaders declare that there are but three alternatives — a referendum, a general election, or the withdrawal of the Home Rule bill and the consequent maintenance of Ulster's position within the Empire.

The Morning Post says the Liberals are now trying to make all possible capital out of Premier Asquith's bold appeal for a vote of confidence from his own familiar friends in East Fife, because the Unionists have not at once decided to contest the seat. The cry is being raised, they are afraid of challenging the verdict of the electors. As a matter of fact, in view of the strong feelings in the constituency, it is by no means certain that there will not be a fight. A contested election would serve a useful purpose even if its result were wholly unfavorable to the Unionist candidate. It is the Liberals who have shirked and who continue to shirk a fair and open trial at the bar of public opinion.

Premier Asquith's progress from London to Fife is calculated to awaken recollections among the elders of the people of Gladstone's famous travels through the country, when every stoppage was made the occasion of a speech from the train window. Addresses of confidence from local Liberals were presented at Grantham, York, Newcastle, Berwick and Edinburgh.

Greeks and Albanians Clash.

VIENNA, April 4.—A report was received here yesterday from Avlona, Albania, that Greek irregular forces were fiercely attacking Koritsa and other towns on the Argyro-Castro Koritsa line. Koritsa was reported to be in flames, and many persons were said to have been killed.

Leaves Money Where Found.

MONTREAL, April 4. — Fifty dollars in bills having been left on the desk of H. M. Necker, city superintendent of motive power, as he believes, for the purpose of corrupting him in connection with the purchase of automobiles, the board of control yesterday morning decided to leave the money where it was found.

Called Mason; Gets Damages.

MONTREAL, April 4. — Judge Charbonneau yesterday morning awarded Gonzalves Desaulnier, K.C., $250 damages in his suit against L'Action Sociale, the organ of Archbishop Begin of Quebec. Mr. Desaulnier asked for $25,000. L'Action Sociale reprinted the statements of a French professor who accused Mr. Desaulnier of being a Mason, and always willing to stir up unfounded scandals against the Roman Catholic Church.

LORD BISHOP BIDWELL DELIVERS APPROPRIATE SERMONS

Right Rev. Dr. Bidwell, of Kingston, Lord Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario, is in the city conducting during this holy week mission services. Yesterday morning His Lordship preached at St. Thomas' Church, and in the evening was at Christ Church. At the latter place a large congregation was present. After the usual prayers had been said and hymns sung, His Lordship preached. Before commencing his sermon he briefly reviewed the object of his visit to the city, namely, to conduct a mission which he hoped all would attend and be profited by. His text was from Revelations iii 20—"Behold I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice and open the door I will come in to him and will sup with him and he with me."

In his opening remarks His Lordship referred to a celebrated painting by a noted painter representing the life of the world. The central figure in that picture was the Saviour of the world, and nearby a door without a handle. There is a power of assurance in that face and a response to His message. From youth to manhood, from the cradle to the grave we may keep the door closed against Him, but He never gives us up. We are entrusted with the power of shutting the door and keeping it closed. It is possible to go through life without having eternal truths impressed upon our minds. We have not learned to open the door. How many have closed their hearts against confirmation, saying it does no good. The door is shut. Some may say they get no advantage from taking the holy communion. Faith being wanted, the door is shut. We should have a receptive heart, not shut the door but open it to Christ. We may close the door by giving up prayer. Some have no heaven in their souls, but are satisfied with the pleasures life gives them. Some there are who say religion is only reserved for the clergy as an occupation, and there is no need of it for them. Such persons shut the door to spiritual things. Some may try to open the door when it is too late. Christ stands at the door knocking and waiting. Our loss of spiritual things is due to some besetting sin. Because we like sin we shut Him out. There is a weakness in human nature that cannot resist temptation. Conscience sometimes speaks, and this is a signal that Christ is at the door and knocking. The cares of this world which we know so well spring up and choke the good seed. We like to live up to a good standard, but we do not often live up to a good life. Our Lord had a particular yearning for those who can rise to a certain standard of goodness, but are not after eternal things. We should not forget that we are spiritual beings as well as earthly beings. He stands at the door of our hearts and knocks that He may enter. There is great solemnity in those words, "Behold I stand at the door and knock." We know that soon we shall have to face death and then we will realise what those words mean. There is no limitation or qualification necessary. Christ says "if any man hears my voice and opens his heart, I will come in and sup with him and he with me." Christ wants the relationship as our relationship is with personal friends. To him that overcometh nothing will be too good and eternal felicity will be ours, and we will sit with Him around His throne.

During the service the Rector, Rev. R. C. Blagrave and Rev. A. L. Geen took part.

LOCAL MAN WRITES ON STREET PAVING

Editor Belleville Intelligencer.

My Dear Sir,—Having travelled by auto over roads in four or five of the United States of America I found the best country road to have a substratum of rock, covered with sand, oil upon the sand, and the road then carefully rolled. The result gave a noiseless and dustless road. The finest and most attractive fifty roads were formed of concrete, generally in six inches square blocks, some not in blocks. These roads, while not free from noise, present a smooth surface. I observed no fissures or cracks. Wherever cracks formed a kind of bitumen was poured in. Asphalt roads which I saw in Paris, Toronto and other places were frequently fissured, holes formed, and often rain rendered it almost impossible to walk without slipping into holes filled with water. What a mixture of asphalt and concrete might accomplish I do not know, but I think that the concrete, stiffening the asphalt, might make an excellent road. I find in a recent article that the adoption by the State of New York of a standard specification for the construction of concrete roads on the state's highway system, emphasizes the fact of the growing use of Portland cement concrete in the building of country highways through the various states. A concrete road had been built about eighteen years ago at Bellefontaine, Ohio. The road was 4,400 yards in area and cost one quarter of one cent per square yard for maintenance. Built in 1893, it is in good condition in 1914 although the maintenance charges have increased one half a cent per square yard per year. Experiments were tried in various places. The most successful experiment was tried at Detroit in 1909 in Wayne County. The Wayne County Highway Commission purchased the machinery, organized a force, contracted for the materials, refused to have the road built by contract. After many experiments, in 1912 they adopted specifications now in use. The specifications called for a mixture composed of one part of the best Portland Cement, one and one-half parts of clean sharp sand, three parts broken stone or gravel, ranging up to one and one-half inches in size.

The concrete is mixed in mechanical "batch" mixers, the qualities and the quantities carefully inspected to secure uniformity. Soft sheet plates are used to protect the corners of the concrete at the transverse expansion joints, which are placed every twenty-five feet apart, and no twenty-five foot section must be left uncompleted at the end of a day's work. Economy was pursued. Broken stone hauled in the winter previous to its use; traction engines hauled dump wagons; water was piped; a plant installed for manufacture of concrete drains and culvert pipes, under a roof when the weather did not permit work in the open. In 1912 and 1913 many highway engineers and delegations visited the work seeking knowledge. Road experts came from Great Britain, Holland, France and Canada. All were interested in investigating to the fullest extent the system pursued. The earliest roads showed the most cracks. The cracks are filled with a bituminous mixture and the state highway engineer of Minnesota states that they do not injure the roads. The most extensive concrete roads are in California; specifications follow Wayne county, but the road is not nearly so thick: the great majority of the mileage is only four inches. In Wayne county, seven inches in the centre, six inches at the sides. Wayne roads are sixteen feet; California roads fifteen feet. In cities and populous centres the depth is increased to six inches. The use of concrete in California was adopted only after the most stringent investigations. The average limit of cost is fixed at $8,620 per mile. The state engineer states in his report: "I have come to the conclusion that the concrete roads are the most practical style of construction for permanent roads. There is the advantage of requiring no maintenance." Mr. Cooley thinks a mixture of one part of cement, 2 parts sand, 4 parts gravel will be entirely satisfactory. To be perfectly satisfactory, a concrete road must be built upon a thoroughly drained and compacted foundation, with expansion joints every twenty-five feet. It must be treated with a bituminous mixture with sand to prevent it from being slippery. It is hard and smooth, requiring no repairs and satisfactory for all kinds of travel. Such is the opinion of the greatest road authority in the United States.

As to Front street, I should think if there is to be a contract, it should, (following the advice of our intelligent Board of Trade) be given to our own citizens, who certainly are capable of doing the work well.

Yours truly,
JOHN J. B. FLINT.

GRAND TRUNK NOTES

TEACH SETTLERS BEST METHODS OF CULTIVATION

Mr. A. H. Tomlinson, Provincial Horticulturist of British Columbia, is busy planning three demonstration farms in the north country. These farms will cover tracts of five acres apiece and will be devoted to work in connection with horticultural and agricultural experiments. One of them is to be situated in the vicinity of Lakelse along the line of the Grand Trunk Railway Pacific Railway. The second on Queen Charlotte Islands and a third at Bella Coola. Every assistance is to be given to the farmers along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in keeping them posted in the best manner of cultivating the soil; in securing the proper kind of seeds, roots and trees for planting and in the care and marketing of their produce.

EXPECT GOOD TRAFFIC EAST AND WESTBOUND

Every effort is being made to develop the mineral and fishing industries in British Columbia. They will provide a large amount of freight traffic for the Grand Trunk Pacific on the eastward run. Prince Rupert is looking forward to being, in the future, the Pacific headquarters from which grain will be shipped through the Panama Canal to Europe. It is confidently predicted that a large percentage of the grain grown in Western Canada will find its outlet on the Pacific Coast. The Grand Trunk Pacific is pre-eminently a grain carrying line. With a grade through the mountains that can almost be classed as prairie grade, it surpasses both its rivals in the handling of this class of freight. The Grand Trunk Pacific also runs through one of the very finest grain growing areas in the world. A few months ago a settler named Paul Gerlach, whose homestead is in the Grand Trunk Pacific zone, captured the blue ribbon for high class wheat. Fish and coal will supply eastward bound freight to augment the large amount of grain that is likely to seek the cool route via the Great Lakes and the Atlantic to Europe.

ARE YOU GOING WEST THIS SPRING?

If so, exceptional opportunities are now being offered by the Grand Trunk Railway System in connection with Homeseekers, Settlers and Colonist excursions. HOMESEEKERS' round trip tickets are issued from stations in Canada to points in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, at very low fares, and are in effect each TUESDAY until October 27, inclusive, via Chicago, St. Paul or Duluth. Tickets will also be on sale on certain dates via Sarnia and Northern Navigation Company. Through Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars are operated to WINNIPEG each Tuesday, leaving Toronto 11.00 P. M. No change of cars. Tickets are valid returning two months from date of issue. SETTLERS' one-way second-ta and Saskatchewan at low fares. Tuesday during March and April from stations in Ontario, Kingston, Renfrew and west to points in Alberclass tickets are also on sale each COLONIST one-way second-class tickets are sold at very low fares from stations in Ontario to certain points in Alberta, British Columbia, Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Texas, Utah and Washington and are in effect daily until April 15, inclusive.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is the shortest and quickest route between WINNIPEG—SASKATOON—EDMONTON, with smooth roadbed, electric lighted Sleeping cars, through the newest, most picturesque and most rapidly developing section of Western Canada.

Through tickets sold and reservations made by all Grand Trunk Agents. Costs no more than by other routes. Trains now in operation Winnipeg to Saskatoon, Edmonton, Regina, Yorkton and Canora, Sask; Camrose, Mirror Edson and Calgary, Alberta, also to Jasper, Tete Jaune and Prince George, B.C.

"TROUSERS FOR WOMEN!"

LONDON, April 4.—The other day a woman appeared in a London street in a trouser skirt which every male observer voted extremely ugly and immodest.

The freak garment soon attracted a crowd, and the woman, to avoid its attentions, entered a store and escaped by way of the roof.

The manager of the wholesale clothing firm which invented this bifurcated skirt now announces that he has received orders for 250 of them. A modification of the garment, available for women not possessing sufficient courage to wear the original in public consists of a loose skirt worn over trousers.

Ignorance of the law excuses no man—unless he has a pull.

Happy is the man who is too busy to make enemies. Also scarce.

Often a woman's silence is more significant than a man's words.

NOT REPORTED YET.

Southern Cross Is Still Missing and Anxiety Grows.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 6.—Anxiety deepened last night for the 173 men on the sealing steamer Southern Cross, which has been missing since Tuesday's blizzard. She was not reported either by incoming vessels of the sealing fleet or by the steamer Kyle, sent out by the Government to search for her. By sunset to-day if she is not heard from, she will be officially posted as lost with all on board. Disaster to her, following so closely on the loss of 77 men of the sealer Newfoundland would bring upon the colony the greatest tragedy in its history, depriving whole settlements of their bread-winners and rendering one thousand women and children dependent upon charity.

As the public learned yesterday from the Newfoundland's survivors, who were landed Saturday, the details of the two days' blizzard and the condition in which it caught the Southern Cross, the first hopes, based on the stoutness of the ship faded.

Capt. Martin, of the sealer Erik, says he parted company from her a week ago Thursday, when the Southern Cross turned homeward with 17,000 seals. She was so deeply laden that all her provisions and part of her bunker coal were stored on deck, so that every available space below could be filled with her catch.

Capt. Barlett, of the Terranova, says the last he saw of the Southern Cross was a week ago Friday, when she was wallowing slowly down the coast. Other ships of the fleet sighted the steamer driving before the gale last Thursday morning. She has not been reported since, and the skippers of the fleet who came through that gale and the storm of equal severity later in the week, say every chance was against a vessel so deep in the water as the Southern Cross.

VELASCO ENTRAPPED?

Fleeing Defender of Torreon Penned In by Rebels Says Villa.

TORREON, Mexico, April 6.—Desperate fighting between Federal forces under Gen. Refugio Velasco, which evacuated this city Thursday night, and columns set in pursuit under Gen. Rosalio Hernandez is reported by couriers from Parras, five miles east of San Pedro, where Constitutionalists cornered Gen. Velasco's rear guard Friday night killing more than one hundred and taking many prisoners. The messengers left San Pedro early Saturday, and state that after the butchery at that place the Federals fell back on Parras, where they were making a determined stand when the messengers left.

Gen. Villa returned to Torreon late Saturday night with news that Gen. Hernandez has Gen. Velasco's army cooped up five miles east of Parras. Another battle is imminent.

Gen. Carranza had nearly an hour's conference with Gen. Villa over the telegraph wire Saturday night. The subject of the conference was that reinforcements shall be sent from here to assist in the campaign against Monterey. Gen. Villa asks that no reinforcements be sent at once, but that 3,000 men be held in readiness to despatch when he sends for them.

Gen. Villa is reported to have said that he will prevent Gen. Velasco's army from making a junction with Gen. Joaquin Maas, at Saltillo, if it takes every soldier in the army to accomplish it.

Villa To Follow Up Victory.

JUAREZ, April 6.—The opinion that Gen. Villa intends to take every advantage of the defeat of the Federals at Torreon was expressed here Saturday. It was based on the intelligence officially announced Friday night that Villa had left suddenly for San Pedro to take personal charge of rebel troops reported to have participated in an encounter with the fleeing Federals.

The departure of Villa from Torreon prevented that promised telegraphic conference with Gen. Carranza.

PET DOG CAUSES ARREST OF MAN

Who is Charged With Breaking Into a Montreal Store

MONTREAL, April 6.—A little pet dog raising an alarm yesterday afternoon in the grocery store at 254 St. Antoine street, was responsible for the arrest of John Kelly, who is said was chased by the wife of the proprietor. He was arraigned before Judge Leet this morning, charged with breaking into the store and remanded until the 14th. Kelly, who is a bright-looking young man, with a clean-cut face, and told a very plausibles tory to the judge. He stat-plausible story to the judge. He statterday afternoon, when a woman dashed out of the grocery store shout-and crying, and in consequence he stopped to see what was the matter. She ran up to a constable who was standing at the corner and said "Arrest that man:" The woman declared the young man was in the shed, and that she chased him.

BROWN TAIL MOTH A CAUSE OF TUBERCULOSIS

FREDERICTON, N.B., April 6.—That in addition to being a destroyer of fruit and ornamental forest trees, the Brown Tail Moth is a threat to the health is amongst the discoveries made by the Entomological Experiment station of the Dominion Government at Fredericton. The investigators have found that whenever the hairs of these insects come in contact with human flesh they produce a most painful itching and eruption, the effect of which may last for months, when breathed into the lungs they have been found to cause inflammation, and become productive of tuberculosis.

New Brunswick is making strenuous efforts to purge itself of the Brown Tail Moth invasion. In the vicinity of Sussex the exterminators armed with cans of petrol have succeeded, it is reported, in exterminating 19,000 of the pests and destroying their nests. The Moth is the most dangerous pest that destroys trees and orchards that has yet appeared in New Brunswick. The New Brunswick Agricultural Department has long recognized the danger and has been on the watch for this insect and when in the winter of 1911, in the course of its natural spread from the State of Maine, it was found to have become established in New Brunswick, a staff of scouts was organized at once and a systematic search for the nest of the insect was made at once.

The New Brunswick Department of Agriculture has carried on an educational campaign for the destruction of the insect, and the cooperation of teachers and boys and girls enlisted. A reward of one dollar was offered for the first nest found in each school district, and five cents for each subsequent nest found. The campaign was a success. Hundreds of nests were sent in, discovered mostly by the teachers and school children.

The methods of destroying the Brown Tail Moths are chiefly of two kinds, destroying and spraying the foliage with poisons to kill the caterpillers and removing them with a long handled tree prunner in the winter months when the nests are on the end of the branches.

Briefly, the history of the Brown Tail Moth since its invasion of the Maritime Provinces is as follows: One male taken at Neperis Kings County N.B. Several thousand nests discovered in Annapolis and Kings Counties, N.S. A single egg-mass discovered near St. Stephen, N.B. Small number of winter nests discovered in the following New Brunswick Counties: Carleton, York, Sunbury, Queens, Kings and St. Johns. This scattered infestation was caused by a gale from the southwest which brought in thousands of Brown Tail Moths from Maine; fortunately most of these were males. The single nests found in widely separated districts were no doubt due to a few females being brought in with the great flight of males.

This dangerous insect was found in Massachusettes in 1900, and did not attract attention until seven years later. When it was discovered it had invaded but a few square miles in Somerville and Cambridge, from this colony it has gradually extended until at present it has spread over the New England States and part of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Some of the Moths have been found on passenger steamers from the United States. Their nests may be distinguished from all others by their silvery appearance and the living caterpillars inside. In these nests the tiny caterpillars spend the winter, and at this time they are only one-eighth of an inch long dark brown with lighter brown hairs. On each side of the body is a row of white tufts, which appear like a row of white spots. On its back, near the end of the body, are two red spots or tubercles. By these red tubercels and the white tufts, the Brown Tail larve may be distinguished from all other caterpillars. The most important enemy of this insect is a species of fungus. In years which are favorable to the growth of this fungus disease, large numbers of the Moth are destroyed by it. Efforts are being made to introduce insect enemies and parsites of this moth, and it is hoped that in time these may become sufficiently numerous to check this dangerous pest. Crews of exterminators are out in Victoria and Madawaska Counties whose field of operations extend over the eastern counties of the Province.

TIME TO ENTER THE INTELLIGENCER'S CONTEST

Win a Touring Car of Your Own or a Fine Piano--Field Now Open for Early Workers--for all Detail Write, Phone or Call on Contest Manager at the Intelligencer Office

Would you like to tour overland in your own touring car? If you knew you could, you would, would you not?

The Intelligencer presents to you the opportunity to do this thing. Would you devote a little of your spare time to the pleasant and congenial work of securing subscriptions if you were to receive such a valuable and handsome prize for the effort?

Far surpassing the many generous offers that have been made in the past The Intelligencer comes forth with the announcement that it will give away to the people of Belleville and vicinity a McLaughlin Buick automobile and other valuable prizes for securing subscriptions to the paper, and in addition to that has announced that all candidates who enter the contest and do not win one of the prizes announced, will be paid a cash commission on all the subscriptions secured. Could any offer be more generous than that?

How can it be done? is that question that many people will ponder over. It is easy to solve when it is recalled that the people of Belleville and vicinity are loyal to the leading paper in this section of the province and are willing to give their generous support. In return The Intelligencer offers the people a first-class newspaper, giving the telegraphic news of the world and the local news of Belleville and vicinity.

THE CONTEST IS OPEN TO ALL.

Any woman, man, boy or girl can enter the contest and compete for the many prizes. As a result every one may enter with a splendid chance of winning a valuable prize, no matter how much or how little time they are able to devote to the contest. It is strictly a competitive proposition in which there will be no element of luck or chance, and the result will depend entirely upon the efforts of each contestant.

THE PRIZES.

First Grand Prize—$1350 McLaughlin Buick Touring Car, fully equipped, Belleville.

Second Grand Prize—$350 Upright Bell Piano.

Besides many other valuable prizes announced elsewhere in this paper.

And 5 per cent. cash commission to all contestants not being numbered among the prize winners.

Votes will be issued on all new and renewals of subscriptions paid and on all old subscription accounts collected. All old collections will be counted as old subscriptions.

HOW TO ENTER.

Clip out the blank marked "Nomination Blank" on another page and send or bring to the Contest Department of The Intelligencer at once. The first nomination received counts 1,000 votes for the candidate nominated, then each vote coupon clipped out of the paper counts as votes. As soon as you send in your nomination start at once to let your friends know that you are in the race to win one of the big prizes. As soon as your friends find that you are ambitious and desirous of winning one of the prizes, they will only be too glad to help you in any possible way as in every case everyone likes to vote for a winner, and if you show that you are in the race to win one of the Grand Prizes, or one of the other prizes, you will receive unexpected support from every direction.

Don't stop as soon as you secure one subscription; just keep going, and you will find at the close of the contest that you will not be listed among the "also rans."

Candidates are not restricted to their own district in securing subscriptions, the district division being made so that the candidates in all parts of the territory covered by The Intelligencer will have the same equal opportunity in winning one of the valuable prizes.

The Contest Department of The Intelligencer will be open each evening from 7 to 8 p.m.

BELLEVILLE WINNERS IN BASKETBALL GAMES

The Visitors Use The Spalding Rules Which are Different from The Intercollegiate

KINGSTON, April 6.—The Belleville senior and intermediate basketball teams sprang a surprise at the local Y.M.C.A. gymnasium on Saturday evening, when they defeated the "Y" teams by large scores. The senior game resulted in a win for Belleville by a score of 43 to 20, while the intermediates pulled out by 28 to 14. Both the visiting teams played a great game. Their combination work was fine. Belleville play somewhat of different game to the local team. They are accustomed to playing under the Spalding rules, while most of the local senior players have always played the intercollegiate rules. F. O. Pitney, of Belleville, who handled the games, was very strict and as a result the play was somewhat slower than some games which have been played in the local gym.

Ketcheson, who played the centre position for the senior Belleville outfit, is one of the best players seen on the local floor in some time. He is always with the game and as a result he did a big part of the scoring. Finkle, who played hockey for the Belleville O.H.A. junior team, played one of the forward positions. He was marked by Roy Day. The teams lined up as follows:

Seniors:

Belleville—Finkle, Moon, Ketcheson, Alexander and Robinson.

Kingston—Reid, Meek, Orr, Bearance and Day.

Intermediates.

Belleville—Hitchon, Nurse, Yoemans, Rogers and Morden.

Kingston—Harrison, Kingston, Briden, Ferguson and Joyner.

After the games the visiting teams were entertained to a dinner given in the dining-room at the Y.M.C.A. building, and prepared by the social committee of the young men's cabinet. A few speeches were given by the visitors and some of the local players. Mr. Powers, of Belleville, physical director, spoke a few words of appreciation for the kind treatment which the Belleville team had received while in Kingston.

45 TIMES UNDER AN ANAESTHETIC

Boy Drinks Lye and Operations Cost Father Big Sum

PITTSBURG, April 6.—After having $15,000 spent on his ailmentary canal and being under an anaesthetic 45 times in the last three years, Robert Hoffman, aged 6 of Sewickley, a suburb of Pittsburg, is able now to eat as other folks do.

Three years ago little Robert drank some lye. It ate through the channel leading to his stomach, and since that time, until a few days ago, food found its way into his stomach by means of rubber tubes. It's different now, as the tubes have been removed, and Robert knows how truly good ice cream, mashed potatoes smothered in chicken gravy and other things dear to the palate of a little boy really are.

At a recent convention of physicians and surgeons at Atlantic City, Robert was on exhibition and the greatest physicians in the world marveled at his cure.

The lad is the son of J. H. Hoffman, a well known restaurant proprietor.

PREMIER OF NEW BRUNSWICK IS CHARGED WITH GRAFT

Hon. J.K. Flemming Accused of Extorting $100,000 From Lessees of Crown Timber Lands, and an Investigation is Demanded

FREDERICTON, N.B., April 7—A sensation was sprung in the Legislature last night when Mr. Dugal, one of the Opposition members for Madawaska, gave notice of motion for Thursday next, that, having formulated certain charges against Hon. J. K. Flemming, Premier and Minister of Lands and Mines, which he is credibly informed and believes he can establish by satisfactory evidence, he demands a committee of investigation.

The charges are that the Hon. Mr. Flemming, through the agency of William H. Berry, Chief Superintendent of Scalers of the Crown Lands Department of this province and under the direct control of the said Hon. J. K. Flemming, in the year 1913 did unlawfully extort from divers large lessees of Crown timber limits within this province a sum of $15 per square mile of their timber limits to the total of about $100,000, and failed to account for these moneys.

CORK FACTORY GIRLS MAUL MILITANTS

CORK, Ireland, April 6.—The girls working in the flax mills at Blackpool, in this county, Saturday mauled a crowd of militant suffragettes, who were attempting to do some proselyting to the cause.

The girls tore off the hats and coats of the suffragettes and hustled them around in lively fashion. The militants were punched, pinched, and scratched and were finally chased away from the mills. One suffragette was so badly injured that she had to be taken to the hospital.

WESTERN FRESH EGGS

EDMONTON, Alta., April 6.—While poultry growers in Edmonton have shipped a few cars of fresh eggs to Montreal, Toronto and other eastern markets, it must not be understood that the industry is overdone in Alberta. A. W. Foley superintendent of the provincial poultry farm at South Edmonton, reports that fully 2,500,000 dozens of eggs were imported from the United States alone last year. "This he said, "indicates there is yet a long way to go before our growers can even think of an expert trade." The production in Alberta in 1913 was 11,027,700 dozens of eggs, valued at $3,631,086, and 667,964 fowl, estimated at $440,835. The provincial government has installed incubators with a total capacity of 3,600 eggs at the southside farm, where one-day chicks are sold to growers at actual cost. There are 700 pure bred birds at the station. Several hundred will be added this year. Egg circles are being organized in various communities.

WINDSOR RAILWAY SURPRISED CITY

Disobeyed Orders of a Policeman and Laid Down Loop Track

WINDSOR, Ont., April 6.—A lone policeman attempted vainly to stop the energetic operations of a gang of laborers who began tearing up the paving at the corner of Sandwich Street East and Ferry Street shortly after six this morning preparatory to the laying of a loop track for the street railway company. The workmen paid no attention to the command and continued at work. A telephone message was then sent to head quarters and a squad of officers was about to be sent to the scene when hostilities were called off by Mayor Clay.

WHY SHOULD EMPLOYE STATE HIS RELIGION?

TORONTO, April 6.—Considerable apprehension has been created among the employes of the Works Department through a circular sent out by the Commissioner asking them to fill in a prescribed form giving their name, address telephone, number, etc., including "religion."

The complaint is that there is no clear reason why an employe should be compelled to state his religion. Controller Simpson has taken the matter up with the Commissioner and will bring it to the attention of the Board of Control. Interviewed to-day he refused to make any criticism until he had discovered whether there was any real reason for inclusion of the objectionable question. "I cannot see, however, what a man's religion has to do with his efficiency," he declared.

Works Commissioner Harris explained that the form was sent out purely for information purposes and that no significance whatever attached to the request for a declaration of religious convictions.

TYPEWRITER WANTED BY BLONDE ESKIMO

Man on Roof of the Earth Must Have it Modern

EDMONTON, Alta., April 6.—J. Cornwall Fraser, a member of the tribe of blonde Eskimos living at the mouth of the Mackenzie River in the 69th parallel of latitude, has commissioned a local trading company to ship a typewriter, with the latest approved attachments, to his hut on the roof of the earth, 2,200 miles north of Edmonton

Fraser, who is a trapper, hunter and pathfinder, was educated in an English mission school at Point Barrow, one of the northern outposts. He has never been south of the 6th parallel, inside the Arctic Circle. Officers of the trading companies operating in the district report he is one of the best posted men in the far north country.

The author hails from Belleville, where he is Rector of Emmanuel Church.

DROPPED MATCH CAUSES BAD FIRE

TORONTO, April 7.—A match dropped in his storeroom, Bloor street, by A. H. Young, art dealer, was the cause of a fire which broke out about ten o'clock this morning and did considerable damage in the store. Driver Ewing of the Howland Avenue fire reel, had an artery cut in his wrist by falling glass while fighting the flames. He was attended by a doctor. The store was damaged to the extent of $5,000 and the contents $1,500. Insurance on contents, $1,000; on building, $6,000.

ELECTIONEERING LEAFLET CAUSES INDIGNATION

LONDON, April 7.—Indignation is expressed over the latest electioneering leaflet issued by the National Unionist Association which says, "A vote for a Radical means a widow in Ulster." The Unionists condemn it as heartily as the Liberals. The Liberals are bitterly against O'Brien and Healy for abstaining from voting yesterday. The Sunday Times has withdrawn its story about the King's intervention in the army crisis, not, however, before the account had done much mischief. It is being widely copied and quoted, particularly in Ireland.

BADLY SCALDED ABOUT FACE AND HEAD

KINGSTON, April 7—William Knox of this city was badly scalded about the face and head while working in the smoke box of one of the Montreal Transportation Company's steamers, making repairs.

TIED LAD TO A POST AND PREPARED TO CREMATE HIM

About five o'clock yesterday afternoon the police were called to a house on Pinnacle street, when a rather weird story was poured into the ears of the officer of the law. It was reported that two boys named Ben Lang and George Monaghan, both about thirteen years of age, had taken a much younger lad named Charles Fry, tied him to a post, piled dried burdocks and leaves about his feet and were about to light the pile when discovered. The police were asked to have the two boys punished for their act. Had they set fire to the dry material Fry would no doubht have been severely burned. The affair is of such a grave nature that the authorities should take action in the matter.

PAINTED GIRL RED; CAST INTO WATER TUB

College Student Charges Senior Girls With Hazing and Claims $7,000 Damages

LAFAYETTE, Ind., April 6.—As a result of hazing in the girls' dormitory of Purdue university last January, Mabel Rogers, of Shoals, Ind., filed suit against seven senior girls, demanding $7,000. The plaintiff, who is a first-year girl, alleges that up to the time she was hazed she was a healthy girl with normal eyes, but now her sight is impaired and her health destroyed.

Miss Rogers in her complaint alleges that on a certain day in January while she was preparing her lessons seven girls dragged her from her room, tore off her clothing, painted her chest, back and neck with red ink, poured mucilage on her back and struck her with pins in an effort to compel her to kneal to her assailants. She further avers that she was ducked in a tub of water. She declares she was forced to go to a hospital for treatment following the hazing and that she has been unable to do her work in the university.

LADY CHURCHILL'S DIVORCE GRANTED

Made Absolute by Divorce Court --Former Name Was Cornwallis West

LONDON, April 6—The decree of divorce granted to Mrs. George Cornwallis-West, formerly Lady Randolph Churchill and a daughter of the late Leonard Jerome, of New York, was made absolute to-day, the requisite period having elapsed since the first decree.

The grounds were statutory desertion and misconduct.

Mrs. Cornwallis-West will in future be known as Lady Randolph Churchill.

NOTE SWINDLER CAUGHT IN TORONTO

TORONTO, April 7—Special—After a chase extending over three months, Leslie Downey, wanted in St. Catharines for obtaining $800 by fraud, was arrested at his home, 89 Beatty Avenue, yesterday afternoon by Detectives Murray and Guthrie. While the $800 charge is the only one against him at the present time, subsequent developments have caused the police to believe that Downey and Horatio L. Pearce, whose whereabouts is at present unknown, are the engineers of a colossal fraud, through which hundreds of people will lose money.

By means of two baggage checks found on the prisoner at headquarters the police secured possession of two valises which Downey had left at a downtown hotel. In the valises were found hundreds of promissory notes, representing unpaid balances of stocks bought by people, in a company known as the Colonial Life Insurance Company of Toronto. The police, however, have been unable to find anything to show that this company is listed here.

SIX WOMEN RECEIVE SIX MONTHS

MONTREAL, April 6—Inspector O'Keefe and Lieutenant Depatie were witnesses before Mr. Recorder Geofrion in connection with the arrest of six women charged with being streetwalkers, the sextette falling into the hand of the police within one hour's time on Saturday night.

They cried aloud when for the first time in years jail stared them in the face. Convictions were rendered in all six cases, the prisoners being sentenced to three months in jail each, without the option of a fine.

Should they be unable to pay fifty dollars at the expiration of the jail sentence an additional three months will be imposed.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST TWO MEN

Edward Snider and William Martin, two young men who are residents of this city, were this morning before Magistrate Masson charged with serious offences. It is alleged that on the night of September 14th last, they broke into the premises of the Smith Hardware Company here, and stole articles; also made an attempt to enter the jewellery store of Mr. Allan McFee with the intent to steal, and entered premises owned by Mr. J. J. B. Flint and stole tools, the property of Mr. Walter Corham. Snider is also charged with having on September 6th last, stolen a quantity of fruit and vegetables from Mr. John W. Seeley of Sidney Township. Mr. Wm. Carnew, who appeared on behalf of the accused, stated the boys made no election as to their trial.

As the Crown was not prepared to proceed upon the various charges an enlargement of the cases was made until Wednesday the 15th inst. Mr. Carnew made an application for bail, but Mr. Anderson, County Attorney, objected to bail at present, and in consequence the lads will have to remain in jail for the present.

An entrance, we understand was effected at the rear part of the store.

CONGO WITCH-DOCTORS

[illegible] Objects Are Made Amenable to Influence [illegible]

Witchcraft prevails throughout the whole of the Congo territory, said the Rev. J. H. Weeks, in a lecture at the Horniman Museum, London, upon Congo witch-doctors and their methods. You pay the witch-doctor a certain fee, said Mr. Weeks, and he will bring a disease on your enemy, or if you want to be rich he will give you a spirit fetish or powerful charm which will draw the monkeynuts from your enemy's land, or take the fruit from a neighbor's tree and put it on your own tree. Another superstition held by the natives is that no shark, or crocodile, or leopard will harm you unless it is bewitched to do so. "I have seen a man jump from a steamer on top of a shark," said the lecturer, "and he was fortunate enough to escape injury." Had anything happened to him, however, two or three other natives might have been done to death for having bewitched the shark.

There are fifty different kinds of witch-doctors in the Lower Congo alone. Each one has his own work with his own fetish or charm. They scarcely ever overlap, so that there is a fetish and witch-doctor for every emergency in life and for every kind of disease and every sort of good luck or bad luck. If a man loses something by theft, he hires a fetish, and beats it with a stick. The more he beats it the better it works, and after he has lifted it three times in the air and laid it three times on the ground he takes it into his house. The spirit of the fetish is then supposed to go after the man who stole the goods. Meanwhile the latter, hearing that a powerful fetish spirit is after the thief, runs off at once to the witch-doctor, and buys a charm to protect him from the curse. Hence the witch-doctor takes a fee from one side to bring down the curse on a victim, and from another to remove the curse, so that he stands to win either way.

If you desire to become a witch-doctor in the Upper Congo you must belong to the family of a witch-doctor, or, if you do not, then you must begin by bewitching all your relatives to death. The Lower Congo witch-doctor handles things differently, for he places the novice—one of his assistants—in the centre of a crowd, and then beats a drum. If the man begins to sway to and fro to the beat of the drum, and then rushes wildly and clambers up the roof of a house and tears away the thatch grass, he will be duly made a witch-doctor. But his initiation is not complete until he finds the grave of a person who has died by witchcraft, and as such victims are buried in obscure graves the task is not an easy one.

Another easier method is by paying the witch-doctor a thousand strings of blue pipe beads, or one can even be a witch-doctor by being cute enough, like a man whom the lecturer met, who pretended he had lain seven days under water conversing with the water spirit.

A Fenian Veteran

Mr. T. Duggan, whose death has been reported from Subiaco, was one of the sixty Fenian prisoners who arrived in West Australia in January, 1868, the only survivor of the party now being Mr. Reilly, of North Perth. Born in County Cork in 1822, Mr. Duggan entered the teaching profession, and was engaged in Ballincollig School, when arrested in 1865 for his connection with the I.R.B. O'Donovan Rossa was his companion in both dock and prison, and the defence was entrusted to Isaac Butt.

TRAIN CHILDREN IN COUNTRY LIFE

Teach Them, Says Lloyd George, Country Life is Superior to Town Life

The cost of education in England and Wales between 1901-2 and 1905-6 had just doubled, rising from just under £12,000,000 to just under £24,000,000, while since then it had gone up to £29,000,000, said Mr. Lloyd George in the British Parliament. He wished he could feel confident that they were getting their money's worth. Education had been until recently very unsuitable in rural districts for it had not fitted the children for country life. He was glad that there had been a great change in recent years in the whole direction of education, but he wanted a more revolutionary change. Children ought not merely to be equipped for country life, but to be trained to take an interest in it. He hoped that during the next few years whichever party was in power a real effort would be made to teach the children something about their own surroundings, and how very much superior country life was to town life for any one who had been trained to take an interest in the country. A good deal of the money which had been given to the Development Commissioners had been spent on agricultural education, but even now we were not spending nearly as much as the United States with its enormous amount of virgin soil. We were working up in that direction and he hoped the State in future would take a greater financial interest in agricultural development. On education generally speaking the cost had increased enormously, but the proportion which the State contributed was less by four or five per cent. than it was some years ago.

Queen Alexandra's Shilling

Queen Alexandra paid a visit to the King Edward Labor Tent of the Church Army, in Chadwick street, London. Her Majesty inspected the various departments of the tent, going first to the kitchen, where she closely examined the arrangements and stirred some of the food.

The wood sawing shed was next inspected, and the party then proceeded to a tent set apart for meetings and religious service. There each of the 130 inmates of the tent was presented by Queen Alexandra with a warm shirt and a pair of knitted woollen socks. On top of each parcel her Majesty also placed a shilling. "I am very glad I came; I have been most pleased with my visit, and I sincerely hope that all the men will soon be in good work again," was the parting wish of her Majesty.

Death Follows Tooth Extraction

The death of a young man named Edward Donohue of Garron, near Newbliss, took place following the extraction of a tooth. He went to a chemist and had a tooth extracted. After a week a doctor was called in and found the patient suffering from inflammation of the throat and neck. The doctor subsequently opened an abscess which had poisoned the man's system, and death followed in a day or so.

Tragedy of Ignorance

Dr. Holt, medical officer of health for Burnley, speaking at the opening of a School for Mothers at Burnley, said the effect of the want of knowledge in Burnley could be seen when they considered that in one year 2,500 children were born, and that 434 died before they reached the age of one year. At least 150 of the children died from complaints they ought not to have died from.

Will Prevent Erosion

Some English engineers believe they have prevented the erosion of canal beds by the waves set up by screw propellers with a boat equipped with a rudder on each side of the screw to break up its waves.

Will Not Disturb Cream

In behalf of a recently invented conical dipper for removing cream from milk bottles it is contended that its shape disturbs the cream less than any other utensil.

Rubber Production to Increase

Semi-official estimates made in India of the world's production of rubber for several years to come indicate a constant increase, passing 200,000 tons in 1919, but never equalling the demand.

Lord Murray's Gifts

Since his return from abroad, Lord Murray of Elibank has made some additional gifts to the museum attached to the Chambers Institution, Peebles. The gifts are natural specimens secured during his travels in Ecuador, and include fifty rare humming birds, a magnificent specimen of the peculiar fire bird, some curious beetles, a beautiful specimen of the coral snake, and a well-preserved skin of an enormous python measuring 20 feet in length.

The young man in the parlor scene may lose sight of the girl's mother, but it doesn't follow that she has lost sight of him—if there's a convenient keyhole.

It's True

"Speaking of the harmful effects of baker's white bread, Dr. Edison Smith says: 'Baker's bread is an abomination to the stomach. Its fine flower, its yeast and its undextrinized starch make it largely indigestible. Only the well-baked outer crust is fit to eat.'"—Rutledge Rutherford in Nat'l Food Magazine, Feb., 1912

Some 17 years ago there was originated a food designed to avoid the objectionable qualities of white flour products.

That food is

Grape-Nuts

It established a standard of digestibility and food value hitherto unapproached in any cereal food.

This object was attained—

By building Grape-Nuts from the two greatest of grain foods—wheat and barley—and baking and rebaking it until the starchy parts were converted into dextrose (grape sugar) or so thoroughly dextrinized as to require but little effort to digest

Grape-Nuts digests usually in about one hour

(White Bread requires about 3½ hours for digestion)

In the milling of white flour, nearly all the "vital" mineral salts of the grain (such as phosporos, lime, iron, sulphur, etc.) are thrown out with the bran-coat, just to make the flour look white and pretty.

These phosphates, or mineral salts, are positively demanded by Nature in order to build normal bodies, brains and nerves, and in their lack physicians find one great cause of impoverished blood, listlessness, nervous prostration, kidney disease, etc.

Grape-Nuts, on the other hand, retains ALL the vital phosphates so richly grown by Nature in wheat and barley, as well as ALL the other nutritive elements of the grains. It provides these well-balanced values in a convenient, appetizing food, ready to eat from the package, fresh, crisp, and untouched by the human hand.

Thin Folks Who would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, all the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy normal, amount of fat the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best strength-giving fat-producing elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food and turns the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by the J. S. McKeown Drug Store and other good druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh producing effect, be used by those who are not willing to increase their weight ten pounds or more.

FIRE DESTROYS CHEESE BOX PLANT

Between the hours of one and two o'clock this morning the fire brigade was called out and kept busy for some time. A fire broke out in what is known as the Graham building on Station Street, partially used as a cold storage plant and a cheese box manufacturing establishment. The fire was in the latter part of the building and did not extend to the cold storage department. Mr. S. T. Vandervoort has for some time been engaged in manufacturing cheese boxes and had on hand some 500 boxes which were destroyed. The fire virtually destroyed this portion of the premises, and caused a loss of upwards of $1,500 to Mr. Vandervoort on material and machinery. His loss is partially covered by insurance. The building is owned by Mr. R. J. Graham, and his loss is at least $1,000, also partially covered by insurance. How the fire originated is not known. Although the loss to Mr. Vandervoort is serious, especially at this season of the year, he will continue the manufacture of cheese boxes as soon as possible.

When discovered the fire had gained considerable headway and it was only by the combined efforts of the fire brigade that the entire plant was saved from destruction.

It's a poor rule that hangs fire when its marker tries to apply it.

SECOND ANNUAL Y. M. C. A. BANQUET

A Splendid Occasion Enjoyed by a Goodly Number of Ladies and Gentlemen

The second annual banquet of the Belleville Y.M.C.A., since the opening of the new building, was held in the spacious gymnasium last evening, at which about seventy-five were present.

The ladies of the Auxiliary had made ample provision for the usual number, the luscious beans, brown bread, salads, meats and pastry being of a most tempting nature. The event throughout was of an informal order, the freedom of the building being given to all, and as the guests sat down at the tables it was with the good fellowship that ever pervades like occasions within the building.

Following the repast the toasts of the evening were proposed, the King being named first, and the departmental sections of the Association following. During this section of the programme many splendid thoughts were brought out by the chairmain, Rev. C. G. Smith, Dr. E. N. Baker, Mr. O'Flynn, Mr. Hagerman, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Sinclair, the spirit of the evening dovetailing into each subject with a harmony that was good to feel.

The addresses were interspersed with finely rendered solos by Misses Maysel Stork, Eva D. LaVoie and Prof. Staples of Albert College.

All things considered the Y.M.C.A. according to Mr. Sinclair's statement, is in a creditable condition, and the work, increasing in breadth year by year stands to-day a tower of strength in behalf of young men. It was a splendid occasion thoroughly enjoyed, and the thanks of those present were extended to Secretary Hess and his co-workers for the privileges of the evening.

Letters of regret were received from Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., and Mr. R. J. Graham.

SHOT IN QUARREL LEAVES BLOOD TRAIL

MONTREAL, April 6.—The victime of in the General Hospital a bullet in his thigh. The hospital authorities declare that the wound may prove fatal. Detectives Walsh and Thibeault are scouring the city for the man's assailant. Before lapsing into unconsciousness, Stazco declared that he had been shot by a man named Sorden Zardie in a house at 8 Conway street at 10 p.m. Saturday.

The man was found by Sergt. Corbett and Constable Ward, of No. 9 police station lying in a residence at 52 Meunier street, at 6.30 Sunday evening. He was very weak, and after gasping out a few details lapsed into a state of coma.

He asserted that he had been in the Conway street house the previous evening, and had quarrelled with the man whom he accused, the latter pulling a revolver and firing three shots, the last of which took effect.

He had staggered all the way to the home of a friend on Meunier street, leaving a trail of blood behind him. Here he was kept until his condition became so critical that the police were called in. Stazco had lost such a large amount of blood that there is little hope extended for his recovery.

To Improve Pretty Hair And Beautify Ugly Hair

Harmony Hair Beautifier, a delightful liquid hair dressing, is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. No matter how pretty your hair now is, it can be made to look even better by using Harmony Hair Beautifier. To those who mourn because the hair is stringy, dull, lustreless and homely, Harmony Hair Beautifier will prove a real blessing and pleasure. It seems to polish and burnish the hair, making it glossy, silky-soft and more easy to put up in graceful, wavy folds that "stay-put." It overcomes the oily smell of the hair with a dainty, true-rose fragrance.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us—J. S. McKeown.

BACK TO THE FARM

Mr. George Bury, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, wants to preach the gospel of back to the land, saying that this would be the salvation of western Canada. The gospel which Mr. Bury proposes to preach, says The Monetary Times, is of vital importance. Back to the land is not a matter only of the salvation of western Canada. It is a consideration for the entire Dominion. It is the key to the problem of more production, which must follow a lengthy period of construction. The Canadian Pacific Railway will encourage scientific agriculture, and that means profitable agriculture. The western vice-president of the road knows western Canada as a land where they raise cattle and hogs, sheep and alfalfa, hay and potatoes. The day of exclusive wheat growing has passed. The Canadian railroads should do everything possible to encourage the production in Canada and to help the farmer. It is good railroad business.

The agricultural committee of the Medicine Hat Board of Trade propose to encourage and assist the farmers in their section to raise better crops and better stock and to secure prices for what they produce. The movement of the Medicine Hat Board is wise, and is the outcome of a feeling that it is good business for all interested to do whatever can be done to encourage the farmer and stock raiser in every way. The committee will follow this with a campaign for the growing of alfalfa by the farmer, this being known to be one of the best legumes and an ideal food for stock. To this end, the committee will secure a supply of alfalfa seed and distribute it among the farmers at actual cost.

In speaking at Lethbridge, Mr. J. F. Dennis, head of the natural resources department of this railroad, urged the necessity of enlisting the sympathy and working with the farmers as the only means for the desired development. To encourage mixed farming is the solution of the agricultural problem, and to this end the railway in its ready-made farm policy extend purchase payments to twenty years and advance $1,000 worth of live stock to those who intend going in for farming. He looked to little agricultural immigration from the British Isles this year. Though immigration would not be diminished, he thought the bulk would arrive from the United States.

PROMPT GOVERNMENT ACTION

Charges were made in the House a few days ago that there has been graft to the extent of $26,000 in connection with the Southhampton railway, a New Brunswick enterprise. Thinking that the present Government would act as the Laurier Government did and refuse an investigation even if it was asked for, Hon. Frank Oliver took occasion to jibe the Government about it. "When the hon. member for Carleton", he said, "asked that a royal commission be appointed to investigate the case he was refused." Mr. Oliver had hardly the words out of his mouth when Hon. Dr. Reid, acting Minister of Railways, jumped to his feet and announced that R. A. Pringle, K. C., of Ottawa, had been appointed to inquire into the charges. Mr. Oliver was dumbfounded and chagrined at the promptitude of the Government. He had not expected it; it is probable that he had hoped there would be no investigation. However, he and others are learning that the present Government has set itself to the task of administering public affairs in a clean and above-board manner. Political friend or political foe, it does not matter. Graft and corruption will be driven out of the land so far as a Government can do so, and those who are not honestly intentioned had better look out.

Specialist Could Not Remove Stone In The Bladder

GIN PILLS PASSED IT

JOLIETTE, P.Q.

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the Bladder.

He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS.

They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take GIN PILLS, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone.

GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life". 170

AT THE OLD GAME

Edmund Proulx, of Prescott, an Ontario county which is notorious for sending such men as Proulx to the Federal Parliament, and Evanturel to the legislature, is still endeavoring to stir up the race and religion troubles in the House of Commons. His latest move is an endeavor to make the Government responsible for a telegram which Capt. Tom Wallace sent Sir Edward Carson, offering men and money, if needed, to help the Orangemen of Ulster. Of course it is none of the Government's business what Capt. Wallace or anybody else does in a private capacity, but Mr. Proulx asked the absurd question as to whether or not the Minister of Militia would discipline Capt. Wallace. But Col. Hughes was more than equal to the occasion, and his reply settled Mr. Proulx once again: "Any attempt to discipline Capt. Wallace in the case suggested would be not only improper but illegal". Mr. Proulx is a fitting running mate for several other Liberal front benchers.

POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS

The debate on the Transcontinental is over and the Liberals have been unable to show what they did with the forty millions.

Up to the hour of going to press the forty million dollars were still missing and the grass was growing on the New Brunswick section.

Ah yes, the Liberals are strongly in favor of having the Borden Government remove the duties that the Laurier Government maintained.

Since the return of Hon. William Pugsley, Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been a fairly regular attendant in the House. He is watching his job.

All this talk about degrading the Transcontinental is so nonsensical as to suggest that something has degraded the understanding of the Opposition.

There's one good thing about the New Brunswick section of the National Transcontinental, there promises to be a valuable crop of hay between the rails.

Finance Minister White has been able to show that the fiscal year just closed has been a splendid one for Canada, despite the croaking of the blue-ruin prophets.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech on the National Transcontinental confirms the suspecion that he didn't understand the project when he undertook it. He doesn't understand it even now.

The Liberals say that a momentum grade would be a bad thing if a train of empties got to the bottom of it in mid-winter with a dead engine. That seems to illustrate the position of the Liberal party fairly well.

The Ontario ridings of South Essex and East Kent are still to all intents and purposes unrepresented at Ottawa. In one case the member refuses to sit; in the other the member has moved to a distant province. Both are Liberals. These two constituencies are disfranchised because Sir Wilfrid Laurier dare not face elections in them.

Hon. Frank Oliver says that not one dollar of the millions spent by the Transcontinental builders has gone for party purposes or for private ends, so far as the debate or the Staunton-Gutelius report has shown. Wonder why he mentions it?

A girl who is chummy with her mother can manage to get along pretty well without a chaperon.

HOME RULE ADVANCES

But Second Reading Vote Shows Signs of Dwindling.

Majority For Defeat of Amendment to Measure Is Only Eighty Votes Whereas Second Reading on First Trip Through Commons Had a Majority of 101 — Bonar Law Willing to Resume Conversations.

LONDON, April 7.—By a majority of 80, an amendment for the rejection of the Home Rule bill was defeated in the House of Commons last night, and without division the bill was given for the third time its second reading in the House.

The announcement of the figures evoked louder cheers from the Opposition than from the Ministerialists, the Opposition interpreting them as gratifying proof of a dwindling Government majority. But the diminution is accounted for to some extent by the abstention from voting of the O'Brienites.

The speeches yesterday were generally much more conciliatory in tone than those which marked the bill's earlier passages. John E. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, who opened the debate, again held out the olive branch to Ulster in a speech of great eloquence, but insisted that it was impossible for him and his colleagues to agree to the permanent exclusion of Ulster and to abandon in principle "Ireland a Nation."

Andrew Bonar Law, the Opposition leader, though professing in certain passages of his speech, to see hardly any hope of a peaceful settlement, and predicting that civil war was certain if the Government persisted in pushing the bill through, declared that he and his colleagues would gladly accept a proposal for the renewal of the conversations with the Government leaders, but feared nothing would come of it.

Augustin Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was most optimistic. Despite all adverse criticism, he was certain that great progress has been made towards a peaceful settlement, and civil war, he declared, was impossible.

The second reading of the Home Rule bill was carried the first time by a majority of 101, and the second time by a majority of 98. Last night eight O'Brienites abstained from voting and two Liberals voted against the Government. One Nationalist was absent through illness. Three Laborites were also absent, and Charles F. G. Masterman, who had previously voted as a member of the Government, lost his seat in the election for Bethnal Green last February.

Mr. Asquith took no part in the voting, as he recently resigned his seat to stand for re-election in his appointment as Secretary for War.

A large gathering of Irishmen, all carrying green flags, assembled outside Parliament last night to celebrate the passage of the bill. They cheered wildly when the result of the vote was announced and gave ovations to the members of the Government and the Nationalist leaders as they left the House.

"The real question of the moment is how far each side is prepared to advance toward an agreement," said Mr. Redmond.

The Nationalists, he declared, would have been glad to accept the scheme proposed by Mr. Horace Plunkett in February, by which a plebiscite would be taken after a certain number of years on the question whether any section of Ulster desired to continue subject to the Irish Parliament.

Mr. Redmond said he was in sympathy with the general proposal of a scheme of federation, but vague talk on the subject, he declared, was mischievous and could not solve the present difficulty.

Following his Nationalist compatriot came Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, who declared that the Government's attempt to "jump" Ulster with naval and military forces had made him skeptical of any reality in their profession of peace and conciliation.

Sir Edward Carson suggested that Mr. Redmond, like the Government, was trying to create an atmosphere favorable to himself without an attempt to find a practical compromise. The talk of federalism had not, he said, advanced the settlement of the Ulster question.

Took Chance; Three Killed.

ATTICA, Ind., April 7.—Three persons were killed and about 35 others injured when the Wabash passenger train No. 4, known as the Continental Limited, was wrecked when the bridge over the Wabash river, just west of here, gave way Sunday. The engine, a baggage car and the day coach dropped into the water.

The bridge over the Wabash river was weakened when a freight train was wrecked upon the structure, and the Continental Limited was stopped on the west side. A switch engine was safely sent across, and the limited was then ordered to proceed.

Duke Visits Woodstock May 8.

WOODSTOCK, April 7. — Mayor Hobson received a letter from Government House yesterday, stating that the vice-regal party would be in Woodstock on May 8 on their proposed trip through western Ontario. The communication also stated that the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia would accompany the Governor-General on the trip. It is likely that the arrangements for the opening of the nurses' home will be changed to that date, in order to have the duke preside over the ceremony, together with Bishop Farthing.

PROVIDENCE DESIGNED CANADA SHOULD REMAIN UNDER THE UNION JACK

W.B. Northrup, Member for East Hastings, in Excellent Address Before the Canadian Club of St. Thomas; A Brief Introductory Speech by Hon. T.W. Crothers, Minister of Labor

(St. Thomas Times)

The Canadian Club of St. Thomas has been addressed by some able and distinguished speakers in the past, but none more able nor more distinguished than the two who honored the organization with their presence Friday night, namely, Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, and member for West Elgin, and W. B. Northrup, who represents East Hastings in the Borden Government, and who bears the reputation of being one of the ablest speakers in the House of Commons.

There was a gratifying large attendance of men of all ages, conditions, creeds and shades of political beliefs, but all were essentially Canadian and listened with keen interest to Mr. Northrup's patriotic and learned discourse on "Canada and Canadians."

The catering for the luncheon was most satisfactorily and appropriately done by the ladies of St. Thomas Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, and left nothing to be desired by the most exacting or fastidious. The menu comprised the choicest and most appetizing of home viands, which lacked nothing in quantity, quality or variety. The ladies realized $51.50.

The Minister of Labor

The president, Dr. C. C. Lumley, in a few appropriate remarks, asked the Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, to introduce the speaker of the evening, and the member for West Elgin was given a hearty welcome to his home city upon rising to his feet. The Minister looked in fine trim, and his remarks lacked none of their old-time vim and vigor. He indulged in a few interesting personal reminiscences, recalling his coming to St. Thomas 34 years ago, and commenting upon the growth and importance which this place had attained in the passage of three decades. Since last Christmas was the longest time he had been absent from the city, and he expressed pleasure at being again among the citizens of St. Thomas. "When I first came to St. Thomas", said Mr. Crothers, "there were able lawyers established here, and, looking on the dark side, I doubted if I should be able to make a living. With a young London lawyer I opened an office in Glencoe, each of us to spend a day a week there. Outside of the division court days, we did not earn a single cent, and closed up in poor finances but great in experience. There was to-day only two of the lawyers in St. Thomas who were here then, and only one or two doctors and two or three merchants who were then in business. The population of the city has grown to more than double, and I believe the ensuing years will see a much more rapid growth."

In conclusion Mr. Crothers extended a cordial invitation to the ladies of the Daughters of the Empire who had so gracefully served the luncheon, to take seats in the auditorium and listen to the address of Mr. Northrup, whom he introduced as one of the ablest speakers in the House of Commons.

That the ladies appreciated the invitation was evident by their prompt acceptance, and the few cigars that had been lighted among the audience promptly disappeared.

"Canada and Canadians"

Mr. Northrup, who is a rapid and fluent speaker, with few prefacing remarks, plunged into the topic which in his hands proved a most fruitful one. Canadians, he said, were by birth the aristocrats of the earth. In the early setlement of America the English, he said, had to a great extent absorbed the Dutch, Swedish and Spanish colonists along the coasts, but the French in the north held themselves distinct. It was to this fact that the speaker ascribed the circumsances that Canada did not become a part of the United States along with the southern part of the continent. Everything tended to show that Providence had evidently designed that Canada should always remain an integral part of the British Empire. The records of history revealed that almost without exception the sceptre of world power had passed into the more virile hands of the people of northern lands. When that sceptre eventually passed to America, it would undoubtedly be to the northern part of the continent. He told of the tremendous commercial advanages of Canada, in resources geographical position, and the richness and variety of her products spread over a vast area. That was what made Canadians the aristocrats of the race. If ever any country, said the speaker, was baptized by blood of the martyrs, Canada had been, and he told of the privations hardships, peril and disease experienced by the early settlers. The speaker quoted Mr. Asquith's description of the colonies as "sister kingdoms differing in stature, but of the same status." He passed in review some of the accomplishments of British statesmen in affairs affecting Canada. Some famous agreements much criticized a few years ago had been investigated by Sir Allan Aylesworth, then Minister of Justice for Canada, and he declared that in no case had Britain in any sense betrayed this Dominion, as had been charged.

"Canada the Centre of Empire"

The speaker asserted that within a century—and 100 years was nothing in the life of a nation—the day would come when at an Imperial conference at Westminster the president might quote the phrase referred to, "sister kingdoms, equal in status, differing only in stature", and point to Canada with a population of a hundred and fifty millions or more. What possible objection, asked the speaker, could there be to the sovereign of the greatest and most widely extended empire living in the largest and greatest of the sister kingdoms, and his son a successor of the throne?

If blood is to tell, he continued, as it had told on every other continent, if the Aryan race is to be dominant in America as from the beginning, we would truly say that we were the only representatives of the Aryan race on this continent, for the United States was now partly Negroid.

In concluding his impressive address Mr. Northrup said: "If Canadians are true to the distiny the Almighty so obviously appointed for them, and has apparently interfered again and again to secure the greatest gem in this greatest empire, the home of its sovereigns at no distant date will be in Canada."

NO NEWS OF SEALER.

Southern Cross With 173 Men on Board Is Still Missing.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 7.—The sealing steamer, Southern Cross, with 173 men on board is still missing. The steamer Kyle, sent in search of her by the Government was lying too in a heavy gale last night well out on the grand banks with all observation cut off by thick snow. She had been in communication during the day with the United States revenue cutter Seneca, on the ice patrol. Neither had found any trace of the missing vessel.

Although the underwriters have said they would post the Southern Cross as lost with all on board if she remained unreported at sundown yesterday, the Kyle was ordered to continue search for two days more.

Hope for the missing steamer has been practically abandoned.

So thick was the storm last night that the Furness liner, Eagle Point, was obliged to give up her trip to Halifax.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, April 6.—The display of fancy and extra choice stall fed stock at the local stock yards today was by no means as large as in former years, which was attributed to the fact that prices asked for such stock in the country were so much higher than in previous years and drovers did not feel disposed to take any wide chances in getting their own back. However, there was an ample supply of good to choice cattle for butchers and packers to choose from, which in every respect suited for the Easter trade, but there was practically no advance in prices paid a week ago, except for a few odd lots of picked steers. The weather was all that could be desired by the trade, and the gathering of buyers was large, including some from Quebec and Ottawa. Butchers' cattle, choice, $8.25 to $8.75; do., medium, $6.50 to $7.50; do., common, $5 to $6; canners, $4 to $5.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $7 to $7.75; do., medium, $6 to $6.75; do., bulls, $5 to $7.50; milkers, choice, each, $90 to $100; do., common and medium, each, $70 to $80; springers, $60 to $65; sheep, ewes, $7 to $7.50; bucks and culls, $6 to $6.50; lambs, $8.50 to $9; hogs, off cars, $9.75 to $10; calves, $5 to $15.

LONDON, April 7.—Word from St. Mary's yesterday is that Hon. Nelson Monteith, former Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, is progressing favorably after a recent operation. An operation then became necessary.

REFORMERS BEATEN.

Montreal Civic Election Result in Reverse for Citizens' Association.

MONTREAL, April 7. — Returns from the whole of the 31 wards of the city, with 13 polls to hear from, show that only half-hearted support was given in yesterday's civic elections to the slate backed by the Citizens' Association, which helped largely to clean up Montreal after the Judge Cannon graft enquiry some years ago. Major George W. Stephens was badly beaten by the French voters, his opponent, Mederic Martin, M.P., having a majority around 5,000 over the ex-chairman of the harbor board.

The figures for the Board of Control are:

The latter two were endorsed by the Citizens' Association, together with the runner-up, Duncan McDonald, who received 17,215 votes, and who was "knocked" in his campaign by the Graham papers, who put up the sixth man on the list, P. W. St. George, who had 16,544 votes.

Supporters of the Citizens' Association claim that Cote and Hebert with St. George, were practically nominees of the Montreal Tramway Company, which is seeking a renewal of franchise for forty years. In any case, say these supporters of the cracked slate, the net result of this election is the return of a reactionary administration.

EVERY WIFE'S DUTY

Watch Husband's Hair. If Thin Or Full of Dandruff Insist on His Using Parisian Sage.

Men give but little thought to the care of the hair. Not until the first bald spot appears do they really take notice. If your husband's hair is getting thin; if he has dandruff or itching scalp, take immediate action—do not let him become a bald head.

Get from any drug or toilet counter a 50 cent bottle of Parisian Sage. The first application stops itching head and removes dandruff—the great hair destroyer. A little Parisian Sage rubbed well into the scalp for a few nights will work wonders. TO GET TAX DODGERS

Lucas Brings in Amendments to Succession Duties Act.

Persons Who Distribute Portion of Estate Without Receiving Value For It Will Remain Liable For Tax as If It Belonged to Estate at Time of Death — Beneficiaries To Be Liable.

TORONTO, April 7.—The Provincial Government is determined to get after those who evade the tax on inheritances by distributing property before death.

In the Legislature yesterday afternoon Hon. I. B. Lucas asked leave to introduce a bill to amend the Succession Duties Act, the amendment being framed with a view to meeting an objection to the present act on the ground that it embodies a form of indirect taxation.

"I have no thought whatever of urging the question in detail at this stage," said Mr. Lucas. "We are making the beneficiary primarily liable for the duty instead of the administrator or executor, and so get rid of the idea of indirect taxation.

"As mentioned in the House during the Budget discussion, an effort will be made to meet the difficulty of distribution of estates before death. This method of evading succession duties has caused a good deal of trouble in the United States and England. Any person who distributes his estate one year before death, and actually parts with possession, evades all succession duties, and the experience of the department has shown that testators are doing this to a large degree.

"If we are to have succession duties at all, we must meet this condition, and it is proposed that any person who has distributed his estate without receiving any value for it, shall nevertheless remain liable as if the portion distributed were still part of the estate at the time of testator's death.

"Lest this should work a hardship as it might in cases where portions of estates have been distributed to carry on family businesses, or for such purposes, there is included a provision that this shall not apply to distribution made to any child, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, father or mother of the donors when the amount does not exceed $20,000."

Where the aggregate value of the property exceeds $50,000, and any property passes either in whole or in part to immediate relatives specified in the act, the following scale of fees shall apply:

Where the aggregate value exceeds $50,000, but not $75,000, the tax shall be 1½ per cent.; from $75,000 to $100,000, 3 per cent.; from $100,000 to $150,000, 4½ per cent.; from $750,000 to $1,000,000, 8½ per cent.; and all in excess of $1,000,000, at the rate of 10 per cent.

Mrs. Stevens Was a Celebrated Temperance Worker in the U. S.

PORTLAND, Me., April 7. — Mrs. William M. N. Stevens, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, died yesterday. She had been ill for several weeks with kidney trouble.

Mrs. Stevens, who was born in Dover, Maine, 70 years ago, continued to the last the temperance work to which she had devoted most of her life. Her mind remained clear, and late last week she was able to dictate correspondence in connection with the duties of her office. With her when the end came were her husband, Michael Stevens; her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude S. Leavitt of this city, and Miss Anna Gordon of Evanston, Ill., vice-president of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union.

At conventions of the World's Christian Temperance Union at Geneva, New York and Boston, Mrs. Stevens, as vice-president at large, presided in the absence of the president. Her ability as a speaker and worker for temperance first became recognized in the campaign of 1884, which placed the prohibitory amendment in the Maine constitution.

English Publishers Anxious.

LONDON, April 7. — The London Chamber of Commerce yesterday passed a resolution expressing the greatest concern at the pronouncement of Postmaster Pelletier of the possible discontinuance, or alteration, of Canadian cheap postal rates for English magazines, and urging that they should be continued as at present. They urged that any increase would be a severe setback to the cause of imperial unity.

It was stated that the cheap rate had resulted in wide distribution of the English magazines, and that large sums of money had been invested in the enterprise. The resolution will be forwarded to Hobhouse, British Postmaster-General, who is now in negotiation with the Canadian Government.

Duke Donates Cup.

GALT, April 7.—Col. Biscoe, assistant secretary of the Galt Horse Show Association, is in receipt of a letter from Arthur F. Sladen, private secretary to the Governor-General, stating that H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught would donate a silver cup to the Galt Horse Show. He desired to leave the class and regulations for competition for this cup in the hands of the directors.

Made Will on Operating Table.

KINGSTON, April 7. — Leander Hegadorn died in the General Hospital, the result of a fall of 70 feet at the locomotive works. He was conscious while in the operating room, and made his will while on the operating table. He leaves a widow and family.

ADVICE TO FRUIT MEN

Consumers Will Always Pay For the Best

"One must have the ability to produce fruit of better quality and more cheaply than his competitor to be successful in fruit-growing," said Dr. H. A. Surface, of Harrisburg, Pa., to the Niagara Fruit Growers' Association convention. "Produce the best and the consumer will pay for it. Don't put good fruit in a poor package. Feed and water a tree when it needs it, just like a person." He strongly advised specialization in any community on one class of fruits. Keeping trees low headed was recommended, as this makes it easier to prune, spray and pick. Dr. Surface expressed himself strongly in favor of co-operation among growers, both in the buying of supplies and the sale of products.

In an address on "The Most Profitable Commercial Fertilizers for the Orchard," Prof. R. Harcourt, of the Ontario Agricultural College pointed out the value of growing liminous crops, like the clover, and plowing them under for the purpose of adding nitrogen to the soil, which these crops do by means of nodules on their roots. "Nitrogen," he said, "is the most expensive and valuable of all plant foods. Potash and phosphorous are always present in the soil, and it is up to the tiller to make them available by proper methods of cultivation. Humus or decaying vegetable matter in the soil is one of the important factors in rendering all these constituents available for the use of the plants.

"Many soils are deficient in lime, which is necessary to neutralize acidity and to aid in keeping the texture in the desired condition. Lime is secured cheapest in the form of dust from a stone-crusher. Before buying a pound of fertilizer, one must first look to the presence and condition of organic matter and lime in his soil, and he must be prepared to give good cultivation. Of all fertilizers barnyard manure is the best, but it can be used to excess."

A Woman Hermit

Miss Elizabeth Lovell, on whom an inquest was held at Kingswood, near Bristol, was found dead in bed, but a doctor said death probably took place a week or ten days before. It was stated that her next door neighbor had not spoken to her for twenty-five years and that she would not allow even her sister to live with her.

Postman's Defence

Sued at Exeter County Court on a judgment summons, a postman stated that he earned $1.50 a week, of which he paid $1.10 in rent. Asked if he lived on 40 cents a week, he said he was given his dinner, but he had a family of four. The case was struck off.

RUMORS OF IRREGULARITIES IN CONNECTION WITH PAVING

Alderman Panter Repudiates Uncalled for Insinuations as Does Mayor Wills on Behalf of the Council—City Engineer to be Engaged

At the Council meeting last night Ald. Panter caused somewhat of a sensation when he arose from his seat and stated that he had been informed there was a report about the street to the effect that there was graft in the street paving proposition and that his name had been associated with it. As far as he was concerned he branded it as a falsehood. The Alderman said he desired to have the matter thoroughly investigated before any contract is let, to find out if possible who originated the report. Other embers of the Council and Mr. J. J. B. Flint, who was present and spoke on pavements, repudiated such a report. The matter of contract for the pavement was, however, not definitely decided. The Council also approved of the Mayor's suggestion to engage a city engineer at once. Some other matters were attended to during the session.

The members in attendance were: Mayor Wills, Aldermen Woodley, Panter, Platt, Smith, O'Flynn, St. Charles, McFee, Duckworth and Wallbridge.

After the reading and confirming of the minutes of the last meeting the Council went into committee on reports, communications, etc., Ald. Smith in the chair.

The reports of the various committees were taken up, The accounts were passed and the following recommendations were disposed of:

In regard to the carters' petition asking for a change in rules and tariff, it was recommended that the City Council recommend to the Board of Police Commissioners, the following: The doing away with the payment of 75c. to the Chief of Police for issuing the licenses and to have the same issued by the City Treasurer. When engaged for less than ten hours, for every hour or fraction thereof over one half hour, 50 cents per hour for a two horse outfit; 35c. per, a single horse outfit.—Adopted.

That Mayor Wills, Aldermen Panter, McFee and O'Flynn be a committee to attend to the matter of a new engagement or contract with the Bell Telephone Co.—Adopted.

That the matter of the extension of a drain as applied for by George A. Lee across his property on Cedar street be left with the chairman of Public Works and the Street Surveyor, with power to act.—Adopted.

PUBLIC WORKS.

That Mayor Wills, Aldermen Panter, Wallbridge, Platt and McFee be a committee to employ a competent person to analyze and give a report as to the cost of each separate tender for pavement before any steps are taken towards awarding the contract.

Ald. Panter: It has been reported upon the street that there is graft in this matter of street pavement. If that report is current, so far as he was concerned it was a falsehood and he would ask the same to be investigated before a contract is made or let.

Mayor Wills said there was no graft in this matter as far as the members of the Council were concerned. The person or persons making such a statement should be brought to task, but at present he could not say how it could be investigated unless by the court.

Ald. Woodley said he was surprised at the remarks of Ald. Panter. It was contemptible to make such a statement.

Ald. Duckworth—The names should be divulged to the Council.

Ald. Panter—The statement made was that there was graft abroad, and his name was mixed up with the transaction. He was told by an official of the Council, who, in turn, was told by an ex-official. He would not vote for any pavement until this matter was cleared up.

Col. Lazier addressed the Council in reference to Front street pavement. He understood that some members of the Council were in favor of the highest tender, which, he was informed, would mean an additional cost of $8,500. The owners on Front street are willing to pay their share of the cost but were unwilling to pay an extra price for which it can be laid down.

Mr. J. J. B. Flint said all the citizens knew Ald. Panter and he had the confidence of all citizens and no credence would or should be given to such a report as Ald. Panter said he had heard. In speaking of pavement for Front street, Mr. Flint favored concrete. What the property owners want is a good pavement and the burden will be considerable to bear. In this matter he with others considered the tender of Messrs. Allen and Harvey should be accepted. Mr. Allen is a good citizen of this city and is an enterprising gentleman. He is also a civil engineer. These gentlemen know what is required to be done and their tender is the lowest. They guarantee that the work will be in every way satisfactory. The work has to be done under specifications and these specifications call for an excellent job. An additional tax of $8,000 should not be placed upon the taxpayers unnecessarily.

Ald. Panter thanked Mr. Flint for his kind reference to him.

The recommendation was then adopted.

A motion prevailed that the matter of Messrs. Huffman and Burnett, re purchasing a piece of city property on Lingham street for the extension of their warehouse was referred to the Market and City Property Committee with power to act.

Mr. E. J. Butler wrote the Council in regard to the condition of Bay street near Mr. Penny's residence.

Mayor Wills said the railway will remedy this matter as soon as it can be done.

Lackas Bros. wrote the Council asking for an extensoion of time for the payment of their licenses for conducting a billiard room.

Mr. Carnew addressed the Council in reference to this matter and asked for indulgence for Messrs. Lackas, who desired to pay the city every cent, but were unable to pay all their license fee at the present time.

The matter was referred to the Executive Committee.

The committee rose and reported The report was received and adopted.

INQUIRIES.

Ald. St. Charles asked if the city would furnish Mr. Wims with some tile to place a drain in front of his place on Elzevir street if he did the work.

Ald. Platt—The city surveyor is looking into this matter.

Ald. O'Flynn—Is there any map showing what property the city owns?

Mayor Wills—Yes, in the Treasurer's office.

Ald. Panter—Have any options for city property been received.

Ald. O'Flynn—No; not yet.

Ald. Duckworth—Is there a bylaw compelling persons to get a permit to build within the city?

Mayor Wills—Yes; some may be negligent, but they are liable to a fine.

Ald. Platt asked in regard to a certain employee of the city who was absent for a few days under medical treatment at Kingston, who was promised his position again when he returned, but was not taken on again.

Mayor Wills—This is a matter with the Street Surveyor.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Under this head, Mayor Wills said the position the city was in at present was somewhat difficult. There was the extension of the sewer on Front street from the tank to the upper bridge to be made before a pavement could be laid; the present sewer on the street had to be inspected; the upper bridge repaired or rebuilt; the question of a filtration plant, and the West Belle sewage system. Under the circumstances, was it not advisable to engage a competent engineer for the city. These were important matters and a competent engineer was necessary at once. A salary of $2,500, he considered, would not be out of the way.

Aldermen Panter and McFee said they had opposed the proposition in committee but had since changed their minds and would vote for an engineer.

MOTIONS.

Ald. Wallbridge moved, seconded by Ald. O'Flynn, that the Executive committee take immediate steps to obtain the services of a competent city engineer.—Carried.

BELL TELEPHONE.

Ald. Panter said the city's contract with the Bell Telephone company has expired and another would have to be made. Under the law at present there would have to be some changes made from the old contract.

The matter was left with the special committee appointed.

Council adjourned.

BUDGET IS PRESENTED

Hon. W. T. White Announces Many Changes in Tariff.

Sixty-Two Schedules Are More or Less Affected by Revisions, the Most Important of Which Are a Reduction on Harvesting Machinery and Slight Increases on Steel Products—Revenue Smaller, But Everything was Kept Going.

OTTAWA, April 7.—Nearly four hours were occupied by Finance Minister White yesterday in the delivery of his budget speech and upon its conclusion the debate was adjourned until to-day when Mr. A. K. MacLean of Halifax will fire the opening gun for the Opposition.

The first half of the Minister's speech dealt with the general financial situation. He pointed out that in spite of the financial stringency, the revenue for the year ending March 31, 1914, had fallen off less than $6,000,000 from the year ending a year ago last March. Out of this the current revenue, the big railway subsidies, and the public works had been kept going. The public debt is increased, however, by $19,000,000. Even as it is the net debt to-day is something less than it was when the Borden Government came to power.

After noting the passing of the financial stringency, Hon. Mr. White announced the tariff changes. Wheat schedules will remain as they are; there is a 5 per cent. reduction on harvesting machinery; a small increase in steel duties and minor changes involving 62 schedules of the customs act.

Mr. White, in opening, recalled the prosperous year ending March 31, 1913, when the revenue of the Dominion reached the enormous sum of $168,689,000. For that year the current expenditures of the Government were $112,000,000, leaving a surplus revenue over current expenditures of $56,630,366. The expenditures for that year aggregated $32,369,000 and left a clear surplus of over $24,000,000. Of this surplus $11,000,000 had been expended in the purchase of 3 per cent. Grand Trunk Pacific bonds guaranteed by the Dominion Government, and $2,200,000 had been loaned to the Montreal Harbor Commission.

For the fiscal year ending on March 31 last, the revenues of the Government were estimated at $163,000,000 or a falling off from revenues of the preceding year of nearly $6,000,000. During the first six months of the fiscal year there had been a gain of $8,499,065 but the falling revenues between October and March had turned this gain into a loss for the year of between five and six million

The expenditures upon current account during the fiscal year ending March 31 last had aggregated $126,500,000, an increase of $14,500,000 over the preceding year. This left a surplus over current expenditures aggregating $36,350,000. The capital expenditures including railroad subsidies of $19,000,000 and the $15,000,000 loan to the Grand Trunk Pacific aggregated $57,000,000, so that the debt of Canada for the year was increased by $20,500,000. At the same time the Financial Minister pointed out that, in spite of the financial stringency, the revenues of the year closed had been sufficient to meet all current expenditures and also expenditures upon public works. The increase in debt had been entirely due to the large railroad subsidies, including the subsidy to the Canadian Northern, which had been necessary in order to keep railroad construction afoot and prevent additional financial stringency.

Coming to the trade figures, Mr. White said that our total trade for the year ending, March 31st last, would exceed our total trade for the year ending March 31, 1913. Moreover the percentage of exports would show a considerable increase. Our exports were indeed increasing rapidly, having risen from $274,000,000 in 1812 to $355,000,000 in 1913. While our exports for the eleven months ending Feb. 28, 1913 amounted to $440,000,000, our imports for the same eleven months would exceed $597,000,000, so that our total trade for the eleven months ending Feb. 28, 1914, would amount to about $1,038,000,000.

The Finance Minister turning to the year 1914-15 said the estimates before the House called for an appropriation of $146,000,000 for current account and $43,000,000 for capital account. It was unlikely that all this money would be actually expended and he believed that our revenue for the year which began April 1, would meet all current expenditures and a considerable portion at least of our expenditure upon capital account.

"As for the financial stringency," Mr. White continued, "I believe the worst is over. Money is easier and we should have before us a year of great production. The financial institutions of the country will act with prudence and caution, but they will also be inspired with courage and confidence."

Coming to the demand for the removal of the wheat duty in order to secure free entry of wheat into the U. S. Mr. White said that the Government had decided that the wheat and flour duties should not be disturbed. It was hoped that with the completion of the Canadian Northern, the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Hudson Railway, together with the opening of the Panama route, that the western farmers would obtain competitive and therefore lower freight rates. Objection to free wheat had been voiced by millers and mixed farmers who relied on mill products. In view also of the enormous investment in railways such a step was not advisable.

Mr. White said it was not the intention of the Government to renew the old bounties, nor was it prepared

An Alibi For Krafchenko.

MORDEN, Man., April 7. — That Jack Krafchenko called on him at 4 o'clock on Dec. 3, the day of the Plum Coulee murder, and paid a deposit on the rent of a room, was the assertion of David Davis, 286 Aikens street, Winnipeg, who was the first witness called by the defence upon the resumption of the murder trial yesterday morning. Davis was positive as to the date, and in his identification of Krafchenko.

Budget is Presented

at this time to give the bounty asked upon iron or manufactured Canadian ore, although an investigation would be made by the Department of Mines upon that particular branch of the subject during the recess, and such a bounty might be brought in at a subsequent session. The Government also felt compelled to refuse the request for an increase in duty upon pig iron and steel billets, as these were raw materials entering extensively into many manufactures.

Wire rods, heretofore on the free list, will hereafter, however, be subject to a duty of $2.25, British preferential, and $3.50 intermediate, and general per ton, and the Governor-General in council will have the power to equalize the existing schedules on rolled iron and steel beams, channels, etc. A drawback of 99 per cent. will be allowed on wire imported for fencing.

Mr. White also announced that the Government had determined that importers of bituminous coal for the manufacture of coke to be used for smelting or foundry purposes should be entitled to a rebate of 99 per cent.

The House was all attention when immediately after the dinner recess, Minister White took up the section on agricultural implements. He said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier in preaching free food at Hamilton and Montreal, was really preaching free trade. He now desired to say that when the Liberal party demanded free agricultural implements, it was really demanding free trade.

Continuing, Mr. White said that manufacturers of agricultural implements had to pay a duty on practically everything he used in his plant and in his business, including stone, brick, building material, engines, machinery, plant, iron, steel sheets, wire tubing chains, castings, etc. The duty upon these articles ranged from 20 to 30 per cent. In addition to this he paid 53 cents per ton upon the coal he used as fuel. Now in ordinary justice could this manufacturer who paid so many duties be stripped of all protection? If the Liberals were consistent in their demand for free agricultural implements they would have to favor abolishing all the duties upon all the raw and manufactured materials used by the implement manufacturer. He challenged them to announce such a platform. They would not dare to do so because it meant absolute free trade.

But even if the manufacturer of agricultural implements had no duties to pay he could not compete with his competitor in the United States because the latter had a far wider market. He believed that to abolish the duties upon agricultural implements would close out seventy-seven factories in Canada, would scrap an investment of $45,000,000 and throw ten thousand men out of employment.

The Government, however, was anxious to do what could be done for the farmer, and it was felt that upon one range of agricultural implements the duties might be reduced because of the extensive rebates enjoyed by the manufacturer.

Mr. White said that upon harvesters, binders, mowers and reapers the Government intended to reduce the duties from 17-12 per cent. to 12½ or two and one-half per cent. lower than the rate fixed by the reciprocity pact of 1911. Parts of ditching machines necessary for repairs would henceforth be on the free list also.

There is an increase in the duty upon building stone which at present comes in at 20 per cent., being principally imported from Ohio. Hereafter on stone sawn upon four sides the duty will be 15 cents per cwt., being equivalent to a duty of 30 per cent., and cut plain and further finished 45 cents per cwt.

Caustic soda and chloride of lime heretofore on the free list, will hereafter be dutiable. Brass, in sheets, bars and rods, now free, will hereafter pay a duty of 10 per cent.

No bounty will be granted to the flax fibre industry at this session, but the Government during the recess will enquire into the propriety of granting assistance.

Mr. White gave notice of an amendment to the Customs Act respecting the surtax, which is now an additional one-third of the duty. The amendment allows the governor-in-council to prescribe the surtax in any case against goods imported from a country which discriminates against Canadian merchandise or shipping, but said surtax is in no event to exceed 20 per cent. ad valorem. Mr. White also laid upon the table amendments of minor importance dealing with a number of other schedules not discussed in the budget speech.

CHAPTER I

Warned In a Dream

Seven-and-twenty years ago, and a bleak evening in March. There are gas-lamps flaring down in Ratcliff Highway, and the sound of squeaking fiddles and trampling feet in many public-houses tell of festivity provided for Jack-along-shore. The emporiums of slop-sellers are illuminated for the better display of tarpaulin coats and hats, so stoff of build that they look like so many sea-faring suicides, pendent from the low ceilings. These emporiums are here and there enlivened by festoons of many-colored bandana handkerchiefs; and on every pane of glass in shop or tavern window is painted the glowing representation of Britannia's pride, the immortal Union Jack.

Two men sat drinking and smoking in a litle parlor at the back of an old public house in Shadwell. The room was about as large as a good sized cupboard, and was illuminated in the day-time by a window commanding a pleasant prospect of coal-shed and dead wall. The paper on the walls was dark and greasy with age; and every bit of clumsy, bulging deal furniture in the room had been transformed into a kind of ebony by the action of time and dirt, the greasy backs and elbows of idle loungers, the tobacco-smoke and beer-stains of half a century.

It was evident that the two men smoking and drinking in this darksome little den belonged to the seafaring community. In this they resembled each other; but in nothing else. One was tall and stalwart; the other was small, and wizen, and misshapen. One had a dark, bronzed face, with a frank, fearless expression; the other was pale and freckled, and had small, light gray eyes, that shifted and blinked perpetually, and shifted and blinked most when he was talking with most animation. The first had a sonorous bass voice and a resonant laugh; the second spoke in suppressed tones, and had a trick of dropping his voice to a whisper whenever he was most energetic.

The first was captain and half-owner of the brigantine "Pizarro", trading between the port of London and the coast of Mexico. The second was his clerk, factotum, and confidant; half-sailor, half-landsman; able to take the helm in dangerous weather, if need were; and able to afford his employer counsel in the most intricate questions of trading and speculation.

The name of the captain was Valentine Jernam, that of his factotum Joyce Harker. The captain had found him in an American hospital, had taken compassion upon him, and had offered him a free passage home. On the homeward voyage, Joyce Harker had shown himself so handy a personage, that Captain Jernam had declined to part with him at the end of the cruise; and from that time the wizen little hunchback had been the stalwart seaman's friend and companion. For fifteen years, during which Valentine Jernam and his younger brother George, had been traders on the high seas, things had gone well with these two brothers; but never had fortune so liberally favored their trading as during the four years in which Joyce Harker had prompted every commercial adventure, and guided every speculation.

"Four years to-day, Joyce, since I first set eyes upon your face in the hospital at New Orleans", said Captain Jernam, in the confidence of this jovial hour. " 'Why, the fellow's dead,' said I. 'No; he's only dying', says the doctor. 'What's the matter with him?', said I. 'Home-sickness and empty pockets,' says the doctor; 'he was employed in a gaming-house in the city, got knocked on the head in some row, and was brought here. We've got him through a fever that was likely enough to have finished him; but there he lies, as weak as a starved cat. He has neither money nor friends. He wants to get back to England; but he has no more hope of ever seeing that country than I have of being Emperor of Mexico.' 'Hasn't he ' says I; 'we'll tell you a different story about that, Mr. Doctor. If you can patch the poor devil up between this and next Monday, I'll take him home in my ship, without the passage costing him sixpence'. You don't feel offended with me for having called you a poor devil, eh, Joyce?—for you really were, you know—you really were an uncommonly poor creature just then", murmured the captain, apologetically.

"Offended with you!" exclaimed the factotum; "that's a likely thing. Don't I owe you my life? How many more of countrymen passed me by as I lay on that hospital-bed, and left me to rot there, for all they cared? I heard their loud voices and their creaking boots as I lay there, too weak to curse them."

"No, Joyce, don't say that."

"But I do say it; and what's more, I mean it. I'll tell you what it is, captain, there's a general opinion that when a man's shoulders are crooked, his mind is crooked too; and that, if his poor unfortunate legs have shri-coats and hats, so stiff of build that velled up small, his heart must have shrivelled up small to match 'em. I dare say there's some truth in the general opinion; for, you see, it does not improve a man's temper to find himself cut out according to a different pattern from that his fellow-creatures have been made by, and to find his fellow-creatures setting themselves against him because of that difference; and it does not soften a poor wretch's heart towards the world in general, to find the world in general harder than stone against him, for no other reason than his poor weak legs an his poor crooked back. But never mind talking about me and my feelings, captain. I ain't of so much account as to make it worth while for a fine fellow like you to waste words upon me. What I want to know is your plans. You don't intend to stop down this way, do you?"

"Why shouldn't I?"

"Because it's a dangerous way for a man who carries his fortune about him, as you do. I wish you'd make up your mind to bank that money, captain."

"Not if I know it", answered the sailor, with a look of profound wisdom; "not if I know it, Joyce Harker. I know what your bankers are. You go to them some fine afternoon, and find a lot of clerks standing behind a bran new mahogany counter, everything bright, and shining, and respectable. 'Can I leave a few hundreds on deposit?' asks you. 'Why, of course you can', reply they; and then you hand over your money, and then they hand you back a little bit of paper. 'That's your receipt', say they. 'All right', say you; and off you steer. Perhaps you feel just a little queerish, when you get outside, to think that all your solid cash has been melted down into that morsel of paper; but being a little light-hearted, easy-going fellow, you don't think any more of it, till you come home from your next voyage, and go ashore again, and want your money; when it's ten to one if you don't find your fine new bank shut up, and your clerks and bran-new mahogany counter vanished. No, Joyce. I'll trust no bankers.

"I'd rather trust the bankers than the people down this way, any day in the week", answered the clerk, thoughtfully.

"Don't you worry yourself, Joyce! The money won't be in my keeping very long. George it to meet me in London on the fifth of April, at the latest, he says, unless winds and waves are more contrary than ever they've been since he's had to do with them; and you know George is my banker. I'm only a sleeping partner in the firm of Jernam Brothers. George takes the money, and George does what he likes with it—puts it here and there, and speculates in this and speculates in that. You've got a business head of your own, Joyce; you're one of George's own sort; and you are up to all dodges, which is more than I am. However, he tells me we're getting rich, and that's pleasant enough—not that I should break my heart about it if we were geting poor. I love the sea because it is the sea, and I love my ship for her own sake."

"Captain George is right," answered the clerk. "Jernam Brothers are growing rich; Jernam Brothers are prospering. But you haven't told me your plans yet, captain."

"Well, since you say I had better cut this quarter, I suppose I must; though I like to see the rigging above the housetops, and to hear the jolly voices of the sailors, and to know that the "Pozarro" lie hard by in the Pool. However, there's an old aunt of mine, down in a sleepy village in Devonshire, who'd be glad to see me, and none the worse for a slice of Jernam Brothers' good luck; so I'll take a place on the Plymouth coach to-morrow mornig, and go down and have a peep at her You'll be able to keep a look-out on the repairs aboard of the "Piazarro," and I can be back in time to meet George on the fifth."

"Where are you to meet him?"

'In this room."

The factotum shook his head.

"You're both a good deal too fond of this house", he said. "The people that hvae got it now are strangers to us. They've bought the business since our last trip. I don't like the look of them."

"No more do I, if it comes to that. I was sorry to hear the old folks had been done up. But come, Joyce, some more rum-and-water. Let us enjoy ourselves to-night, man, if I am to start by the first coach to-morrow moring. What's that?"

The captain stopped, with the bell-rope in his hand, to listen to the sound of music close at hand. A woman's voice, fresh and clear as the song of a sky-lark, was singing "Wrapping Old Stairs", to the accompaniment of a feeble old piano.

"What a voice!" cried the sailor. "Why, it seems to pierce to the very core of my heart as I listen to it. Let us go and hear the music, Joyce."

"Better not captain", answered the warning voice of the clerk. "I tell you they're a bad lot in this house. It's a sort of concert they give of a night; an excuse for drunkenness, riot and low company. If you're going by the coach to-morrow, you had better get to bed early to-night. You have been drinking quite enough as it is."

"Drinking!" cried Valentine Jernam; "why, I'm as sober as a judge. Come, Joyce, let's go and listen to that girl's singing."

The captain left the room, and Harker followed, shrugging his shoulders as he went.

"There's nothing so hard to manage as a baby of thirty years old", he muttered; "a blessed infant that one is obliged to call master!"

He followed the captain, through a dingy little passage, into a room with a sanded floor, and a little platform at one end. The room was full of sailors and disreputable-looking women; and was lighted by several jets of coarse gas, which flared in the bleak March wind.

A group of black-beared, foreign-looking seamen made room for the captain and his companion at one of the tables. Jernam acknowledged their courtesy with a friendly nod.

"I don't mind standing a treat for a civil fellow like you", he said; "come, mates, what do you say to a bowl of punch?"

The men looked at him and grinned a ready assent.

Valentine Jernam called the landlord, and ordered a bowl of rum-punch.

"Plenty of it, remember, and be sure you are not too liberal with the water", said the captain.

The landlord nodded and laughed. He was a broad-shouldered, square-built man, with a flat, pale face, broad and square like his figure—not a pleasant looking man by any means.

Valentine Jernam folded his arms on the rickety, liquor-stained table, and took a leisurely survey of the apartment.

There was a pause in the concert just now. The girl had finished her song, and sat by the old square piano, waiting till she should be required to sing again. There were only two performers in this primitive species of concert—the girl who sang, and an old blind man, who accompanied her on the piano; but such an entertainment was quite sufficient for the patrons of the "Jolly Tar", seven-and-twenty years ago, before the splendours of modern music-halls had arisen in the land.

Valentine Jernam's dark eyes wandered round the room, till they lighted on the face of the girl sitting by the piano. There they fixed themselves all at once, and seemed as if rooted to the face on which they looked. It was a pale, oval face, framed in bands of smooth black hair, and lighted by splendid black eyes; the face of a Roman Empress rather than a singing-girl at a public-house in Shadwell. Never before had Valentine Jernam looked on so fair a woman. He had never been a student or an admirer of the weaker sex. He had a vague kind of idea that there were women, and mermaids, and other dangerous creatures, lurking somewhere in this world, for the destruction of honest men; but beyond this he had very few ideas on the subject.

Other people were taking very little notice of the singer. The regular patrons of the "Jolly Tar" were accustomed to her beauty and her singing, and thought very little about her. The girl was very quiet, very modest. She came and went under the care of the old blind pianist, whom she called her grandfather, and she seemed to shrink alike from observation or admiration.

She began to sing again presently.

Shes tood by the piano, facing the audience, calm as a statue, with her large black eyes looking straight before her. The old man listened to her eagerly, as he played, and nodded fond approval every now and then, as the full, rich notes fell upon his ear. The poor blind face was illuminated with the musician's rapture. It seemed as if the noisy, disreputable audience had no existence for these two people.

"What a lovely creature!" exclaimed the captain, in a tone of subdued intensity.

"Yes, she's a pretty girl", muttered the clerk, coolly.

"A pretty girl!" echoed Jernam, "an angel, you mean! I did not know there were such women in the world; and to think that such a woman should be here, in this place, in the midst of all this tobacco-smoke, and noise, and blasphemy! It seems hard, doesn't it, Joyce?"

"I don't see that it's any harder for a pretty woman than an ugly one", replied Harker, sententiously. "If the girl had red hair and a snub nose, you wouldnt take the trouble to pify her. I don't see why you should concern yourself about her, because she happens to have black eyes and red lips. I dare say she's a bad lot, like most of 'em bout here, and would as soon pick your pockets as look at you, if you give her the chance."

Valentine Jernam made no reply to these observations. It is possible that he scarcely heard them. The punch came presently; but he pushed the bowl towards Joyce, and bade that gentleman dispense the mixture. His own glass remained before him untouched, while the foreign seamen and Joyce Harker emptied the bowl. When the girl sang, he listened; when she sat in a listless attitude, in the pauses between her songs, he watched her face.

Until she had finished her last song, and left the platform, leading her blind companion by the hand, the captain of the "Pizarro" seemed like a creature under the influence of a spell. There was only one exit from the room, so the singing-girl and her grandfather had to pass along the narrow space between the two rows of tables. Her dark stuff dress brushed against Jernam as she passed him. To the last his eyes followed her with the same entranced gaze.

When she had gone, and the door had closed upon her, he started to his feet, and followed. He was just in time to see her leave the house with her grandfather, and with a big, ill-looking man, half-sailor, half-landsman, who had been drinking at the bar.

The landlord was standing behind the bar, drawing beer, as Jernam looked out into the street, watching the receding figures of the girl and her two companions.

"She's a pretty girl, isn't she?" said the landlord, as Jernam shut the door.

"She is, indeed!" cried the sailor. "Who is she?—where does she come from?—what's her name?"

"Her name is Jenny Milsom, and she lives with her father, a very respectable man."

"Was that her father who went out with her just now?"

"Yes, that's Tom Milsom."

"He doesn't look very respectable. I don't think I ever set eyes on a worse-looking fellow.

"A man can't help his looks," answered the landlord, rather sulkily. "I've known Tom Milsom these ten years, and I've never known of any harm of him."

"No, nor any good either, I should think, Dennis Wayman", said a man who was lounging at the bar; "Black Milsom is the name we gave him at Rotherhithe. I worked with him in a shipbuilder's yard seven years ago; a surly brute he was then, and a surly brute he is now; and a lazy skulking vagabond into the bargain, living an idle life out at that cottage of his among the marshes, and eating up his pretty daughter's earnings."

"You seem to know Milsom's business as well as you do your own, Joe Dermot", answered the landlord, with some touch of anger in his tone.

"It's no use looking savage at me, Dennis, returned Dermot; "I never did trust Black Milsom, and never will. There are men who would take your life's blood for the price of a gallon of beer, and I think Milsom is one of 'em."

Valentine Jernam listened attentively to this conversation—not because he was interested in Black Milsom's character, but because he wanted to hear anything that could enlighten him about the girl who had awakened such a new sentiment in his breast.

The clerk had followed his master, and stood in the shadow of the doorway, listening even more attentively than his employer; the small, restless eyes shifted to and fro between the faces of the speakers.

More might have been said about Mr. Thomas Milsom, but it was evident that the landlord of the "Jolly Tar" was inclined to resent any disrespectful allusion to that individual. The man called Joe Dermot paid his score, and went away. The captain and his fetotum retired to the two dingy little apartments which were to accommodate them for the night.

All through that night, sleeping or waking, Valentine Jernam was haunted by the vision of a beautiful face, the sound of a melodious voice, and the face and voice belonged alike to the singing-girl.

The captain of the "Pizarro" left his room at five o'clock, and tapped at Joyce Harker's door, with the intention of bidding him good-bye.

"I'm off, Joyce", he said "be sure you keep your eye upon the repairs between this and the fifth."

He was prepared to receive a drowsy answer; but to his surprise the door was opened, and Joyce stood dressed upon the threshold.

"I'm coming to the coach-office with you, captain," answered Harker. "I don't like this place, and I want to see you safe out of it, never to come back to it any more."

"Nonsense, Joyce; the place suits me well enough."

"Does it?" asked the factotum, in a whisper; "and the landlord suits you, I suppose?—and that man they call Black Milsom? There's something more than common between those two men, Captain Jarnam. However that is, you take my advice. Don't you come back to this house till you come to meet Captain George. Captain George is a cool hand, and I'm not afraid of him; but you're too wild and too free-spoken for such folks as hang around the 'Jolly Tar'. You sported your pocket-book too freely last night, when you were paying for the punch. I saw the landlord spot the notes and gold, and I have not trusted myself to sleep too soundly all night, for fear there should be any attempt at foul play."

"You're a good fellow, Joyce; but though you have pluck enough for twenty at sea, you are as timid as a baby at home."

"I'm like a dog, Captain—I can smell danger when it threatens those I love. Hark! what's that?"

They were going down stairs quietly, in the darkness of the early spring morning. The clerk's quick ear caught the sound of a stealthy footstep; and in the next minute they were face to face with a man who was ascending the narrow stairs.

"You're early astir, Mr. Wayman,' said Joyce Harker, recognizing the landlord of the 'Jolly Tar.'

"And so are you, for the matter of that", answered the host.

"My captain is off by an early coach and I'm going to walk to the office with him", returned Joyce.

"Off by an early coach, is he? Then if he can stop to drink it, I'll make him a cup of coffee."

"You're very good", answered Joyce, hastily; "but you see, the captain hasn't time for that, if he's going to catch the coach."

"Are you going into the country for long, captain?" asked the landlord.

Kingston Whig: "Training for the ministry should have a calming effect on a man, and yet the men who write sermons and pamphlets and newspaper articles of a religious character exhibit a most vicious spirit. And the written language is a modification of the unspoken and unspeakable language of the heart. How does one account for this?" The solution is simple. The individual referred to is a religious crank.

ASQUITH RAISES ISSUE

He Says Tory Doctrines Strike at Root of Discipline.

Discussing the Army Episode In Ulster, Prime Minister Expresses Hope That the Army Is Not to Become a Political Instrument and Hints at Negotiations to Cement Liberal-Labor Alliance.

LONDON, April 6.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—"The army in this country is not, I pray, to become a political instrument. It has no place and no voice in framing our policy or moulding our laws," said Premier Asquith at Ladybank, opening his bye-election campaign in East Fife on Saturday.

A brilliant spring day and notable scenes of enthusiasm at Ladybank marked the occasion. The meeting took place in the village assembly room, and was opened by the usual formal business, including the adoption of the Prime Minister as the Liberal candidate. Mr. Asquith, Mrs. Asquith and their daughter, were given a rousing welcome.

Sir James Scott, who presided, welcomed the Premier amid cheers, as the greatest Parliamentarian they had known. Mr. Asquith returned thanks for his adoption as the Liberal candidate. He said it was a novel experience, contesting a bye-election, but they lived in strange times, and in no respect were they more strange than in the way in which credulity dogged the heels of invention, and invention strove, and strove in vain to keep pace with credulity.

The true doctrine of army administration, he said, was laid down by the older William Pitt, and was no worse for having been laid down 170 years ago.

The Prime Minister said it was his duty in the post which he had assumed, by searching personal inquiry, and with the co-operation upon which he could count, to see that the army was fit, in ever shifting conditions, for its primary and elementary duty. The army would hear nothing of politics from him, and he expected in return to bear nothing of politics from the army. (Cheers.)

Responsibility for the preservation of domestic peace, continued the Prime Minister, lay with the magistrates and the police. Under normal conditions, the army's aid could not and ought not to be invoked by the civil power. It was only in emergencies which were happily rare, that any such call could be addressed to the army. When such an occasion arose it was the duty of the soldier as it was the duty of the civilian, to comply with the demands of the civil power. But these present Tory doctrines struck at the very root, not only of army discipline, but of democratic government. (Cheers.)

Where did they lead to? They set a precedent which was capable of an infinite number of applications, and was much more dangerous in its consequences than the one which went before it. (Cheers.) If the Government was to recognize the existence of a dispensing and discriminating power they must recognize it not only in the officers, but in the men, and not only in the army but in every body of public servants.

Two years ago in this hall he had described the Tory doctrines as furnishing a complete grammar of anarchy. (Cheers.) He repeated now that these new dogmas, countersigned by the Tory leaders, would be invoked whenever a spirit of lawlessness undertook to block the ordered machinery of self-government. (Cheers.)

"We believe that settlement by consent is in the interests of the country and of both great political parties," continued the Premier, dealing with the Home Rule issue. "Those who believe in Home Rule do not desire to see the new system started under the most unfavorable conditions and amidst the clouds and darkness of civil turmoil. On the other hand, those to whom Home Rule is repugnant cannot face with equanimity the problems which the government of Ireland present if by any misadventure now the hopes and expectations of four-fifths of the Irish people were to be dashed to the ground." (Cheers.)

Mr. Asquith recapitulated his temporary exclusion plan, and while admitting its disadvantages said that it had the great merit, at least, that it got rid of any question of coercion. It gave the populations concerned the immediate arbitrament of the ballot. "I am anxious for peace, and I say this for both sides, it must be peace with honor." (Cheers.)

They must see some process applied, with necessary variations, and applied without delay, to other parts of the United Kingdom, in the conviction that such a reconstruction of constitutional organization would lead to greater efficiency in the conduct of both local and Imperial interests.

There remained one very serious point to be emphasized. If they studied the bye-elections of the last two years, they would find, with perhaps one exception, that every loss of a seat to the Liberals had been due to a split in the forces of progress. Upon the great issue of Home Rule the bye-elections has pronounced with an overwhelming majority in favor of the Government policy. It was indeed a melancholy thing for those whose hearts were bound up in the future prospects of wise democratic legislation to find the democratic army split asunder in the face of the common enemy. It was time that such a state of things came to an end. It would surely be childish if in the great issues before them, which could only be brought to success by unity and loyal co-operation, they should allow comparatively trivial differences upon issues not vital, to divide a force which united was irresistible. (Cheers.)

C.P.R. MAKES ARRESTS.

Many Seizures of Goods Stolen From Cars Have Been Made.

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 6.—Detectives have been engaged by the Canadian Pacific Railway since the first of the year ferreting out cases of stealing goods in transit in freight cars. Complaints of shippers and claims for lost goods determined officials to make a thorough investigation from coast to coast, and the results thus far are alleged to have been startling, although reticence has so far been followed.

Three men from here were accused, A. T. Sweeny and R. N. Watt, freight conductors, and W. E. Martin, brakeman. They were remanded on bail of $3,000.

It is said that prosecution will bring witnesses from all over Canada to identify goods seized in houses of railroad men under search warrants. Searchers have thus far been made of thirty houses of railway employes in North Bay alone, and seizures have been made of over one ton of merchandize, including kodaks, boots, clothing, fur coats. At Chapleau a quantity of silverware was seized in the shack of silverware was seized in the shack of a railroad laborer.

ATTACKED IN PRISON.

Mme. Caillaux Aroused Jealousy of Fellow Unfortunates.

PARIS, April 6.—Mme. Henriette Caillaux, who recently shot and killed Gaston Calmette, editor of Le Figaro, was attacked in the corridor of St. Lazare Prison Saturday by two women, who objected to the favors being shown to the wife of the ex-Minister of Finance. Mme. Caillaux and the two other women were exercising under the eyes of the guards when the attack occurred. As one of the women passed Mme. Caillaux she leaped upon her and pummeled her viciously. The two guards ran to the aid of their famous prisoner and then the other woman joined in the assault.

The combatants struggled for several minutes, but other guards were summoned and separated them. The two assailant were hustled into dungeons, still screaming protests.

New King of Albania Is to Head His Troops Against Greeks.

DURAZZO, Albania, April 6.—Prince William, the new ruler of Albania, Saturday announced his intention of taking the field and leading the Albanian troops against the Greek insurgents who have taken the town of Koritza, which Friday night was reported captured and partly destroyed. A general mobilization of the Albanian forces was ordered.

ATHENS, Greece, April 6. — The Albanian town of Koritza has fallen into the hands of "insurgents," according to an official announcement here Saturday. It is explained that the "insurgents" are Greeks, who have risen in opposition to the decision of the European powers that Koritza must belong to Albania.

Reports are current that the insurgents are in the pay of the Greek authorities.

Prayed For Carsonites.

LONDON, Ont., April 6.—Orangemen to the number of several thousands, from the city and surrounding districts, gathered at St. Matthew's in this city yesterday, in order to hold a special service of prayer for Sir Edward Carson and his anti-home rulers. The meeting was held by Rev. T. B. Clarke and a number of other prominent Orangemen and home rulers, lay and clerical. The affair partook of something of the nature of a spectacle, as the different lodges paraded and marched to the church.

WOMEN VOTE TO-MORROW.

Chicago's First Female Suffrage Election Attracts Wide Interest.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Two hundred thousand women will have their first real say in city affairs to-morrow. With 470,000 men, they will choose 36 candidates. In the list of those who aspire to make municipal laws there are eight women—another Chicago innovation.

The Progressive party presents three women candidates—Miss Marion H. Drake in the first ward, Miss Bernice Napierski in the 12th, and Mrs. Julia Agnew in the 31st. The Socialists have four candidates—Josephine C. Kane, in the 6th, Lydia E. McDermut in the 7th, Gertrude R. Dubin in the 20th, and Maude J. Ball in the 31st. Miss Harriet E. Vittum is running as an Independent in the 17th ward.

Interest in the women candidates centres chiefly on Miss Drake, because she has dared what few men have tried and none successfully—to vanquish Ald. "Bath House John" Coughlin who, with "Hinky Dink" Kenna, has held undisputed sway in the first ward for nearly a quarter of a century.

AUDITORIUM THEATRE

Chicagoans Astonished —Seats Free—No Collections.

PASTOR RUSSELL IS HERE

In Forenoon Discourse He Discussed That Part of Creation's Drama Which Relates to the Typical Feature of the Passover Lamb—Typically, He Says, It Has Spoken the Divine Plan For Centuries—Blessings For Christian Church—Blessings For Jewish Church—And For All Nations and Kindreds, Tongues and Peoples—Kingdom Soon to Be Established.

One of the remarkable things in connection with this Drama, which is now running in thirty cities and witnessed by about 35,000 people daily, is that the best theatres are used—and all seats are free and no collections lifted.

Asked for an explanation, Pastor Russell declared that the Photo-Drama of Creation merely presents the Gospel of the Bible, which ought always to be free. He said he has no objection to other people taking up collections, but has found no authority in the Bible for doing so himself.

The Photo-Drama of Creation, he said, is financed by Christians who by it desire to re-establish faith in God and in the Bible as a Divine revelation.

Pastor Russell's address was in the forenoon and evening and is to continue for some time. The text of the Pastor's discourse was:

"Christ our Passover is slain for us; therefore let us keep the feast." (1 Corinthians 5:7, 8.) He said:

For thirty-five centuries God's holiest people, Jewish and Christian, have with more or less directness, and more or less understanding, celebrated the Passover. But while many have recognized the form, few have looked deeper—into its real import. Those who see the real meaning of the Passover have great cause for gratitude toward God and for confidence in the Bible, "the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever." To understand the Passover means to understand the Plan of God in respect to humanity.

St. Paul reminds us that God's first intimations respecting His glorious purposes of mercy toward our race were given to Abraham. After God had tested his faith and obedience, He called Abraham His friend, and revealed to him in part things to come. The essence of the Divine Message of Peace was, "I will bless all the families of the earth through thy Seed"—thy posterity. (Galatians 3:8.) This, God's sure Word of Promise, was afterward confirmed with an Oath, because the time would be long, and therefore it would be necessary that the heirs of salvation should exercise faith in it.

Pastor Russell reviewed to his hearers the institution of the Passover. He reminded them that the children of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were in bondage to Egypt, and God commanded Pharaoh to let them go, sending chastisement after chastisement upon the Egyptians, to compel his obedience. God's mercy in lifting one plague after another merely hardened Pharaoh's heart, until the final, the tenth plague. By this plague all the first-born of Egypt died in one night; while the first-born of the Israelites living in Egypt escaped because passed over. The Passover, therefore, memorializes the favored of God.

The first-born of Israel were subsequently exchanged for the tribe of Levi, which thereafter was counted especially the Lord's—some of the Levites serving as priests, sacrificing at His altar, and some of them doing an inferior service—assisting the priests in the work of instructing and blessing all the other tribes. Moses and Aaron were members of this priestly tribe, all of whom became leaders of God's chosen people in their subsequent experiences, particularly in their crossing of the Red Sea and, later, in crossing the Jordan—both typical events.

The Pastor explained that before the first-borns of Israel could be passed over, a certain sacrifice was necessary, according to the Divine arrangement. A lamb without blemish was sacrificially killed and its blood used to sprinkle the door-posts and lintels of all the dwellings of the Israelites. Each family or group repeated the same picture, sprinkling the blood of the lamb upon the door-posts and lintels, roasting the flesh, and later eating it with herbs and unleavened bread—ready for departure from Egypt for the land of Canaan. As the morning broke, the journey out of Egypt began. Later, all the host crossed the Red Sea, the waters of which returning engulfed the Egyptians, who had started in pursuit of them.

The meaning of all this to the Christian is that God has promised sent forth His Son, Jesus, to be their antitypical Lamb—to die, "the Just for the unjust," and thus to give His flesh for the life of the world. As a result of that redemptive work, the Father highly exalted Him to the spirit plane, where He was before He was made flesh. Indeed, His resurrection was to a still higher nature—the Divine, far above men, angels, principalities, powers, etc.

The blood represents the life, as the Bible tells. The blood of the passover lamb thus typically represents the life which Jesus gave. The sprinkling of the blood upon the door-posts and lintels represents the part which must be experienced by all who belong to the Household of Faith. All such must trust, not in works of their own for justification before God, but in the work, the sacrifice, of Christ, who died for us, "the Just for the unjust." Not only must we exercise faith in the sense of entering into the Household of Faith, but additionally we must be of those who partake of the Lamb, who appropriate the merit of Christ's sacrifice by faith. All such are counted as being partakers of Christ's holiness, and are sharers with Him in the sufferings of this present time, and prospectively His joint-heirs in His Kingdom to come.

Thus, said the Pastor, has Israel's Passover found its antitype throughout this Gospel Age. From the time that Jesus died, as the Lamb of God to take away the sin of the world, to the present time, there has been a feast spread for those who are able to appreciate it. There has been a covering with the merit of His sacrifice for those who had faith to accept it. All such are counted members of the "Church of the First-borns," whose names are "written in Heaven." (Hebrews 12:23.) This Church is not yet completed. Thank God! we may still sprinkle the blood of the Lamb upon the door-posts of our hearts, may still have imputed to us His precious merit, and still have the privilege of becoming members of the Church of the First-borns.

But the Morning is near at hand. The First-borns will soon be recognized of God. They will be "changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye." By resurrection power they will be made like unto their glorious Redeemer. They will begin their great work as the Royal Priesthood. Under the leadership of the great Prophet, Priest and King—Jesus—these under-priests, under-kings, under-prophets, will labor with Him in His great Messianic Kingdom work. These with the Redeemer will constitute the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, through whom God's blessing is to come to Natural Israel, and ultimately to every nation, people, kindred and tongue.

The great work of deliverance will require a thousand years—the period of Messiah's Reign. This deliverance is pictured by the passing through the Red Sea. God's mighty hand will be exercised on behalf of all who are truly His, during the thousand years. They will escape from the power of Satan and his hosts of sin, who will be restrained for a time. In the destruction of Pharaoh's hosts in the Red Sea, we find a pictorial prophecy of the destruction of Satan and all who are his—all who love sin and hate righteousness, all who war against God and His righteous arrangements.

First the natural, afterward the spiritual, is God's order, the Apostle tells us. (1 Corinthians 15:46.) In one sense of the word, the entire posterity of Jacob were the heirs of God's Promise to Abraham. The first privilege was guaranteed to them under the Law Covenant. But as God foresaw, the Jews were unable to keep that Law Covenant because, like the remainder of humanity, they are all imperfect, all sinners, and because God's Law is perfect—the measure of a perfect man's obedience and ability. But they were profited by their endeavors to keep the Law, and glorious characters were developed amongst them—Moses, David, the Prophets, and many of lesser prominence, who, as St. Paul declares, manifested their faith and obedience even unto death. —Hebrews 11:38-40.

These Ancient Worthies endured not in vain. They have the promise of a better resurrection than the remainder of their nation and the world. Theirs is to be a resurrection to human perfection. They are to constitute the nucleus of the earthly phase of Messiah's Kingdom. To His standard, thus set up in the world, will assemble gradually, not only the natural seed of Abraham, but all of humanity desiring God's favor and everlasting life.

Pastor Russell then stated that, before these blessings could come to Abraham and mankind in general, there must be a Spiritual Seed of Abraham. He showed that Jesus was Abraham's seed according to the flesh, but that as such He never could have accomplished His great Messianic work. It was necessary, he said, for the Man Christ Jesus to lay down His humanity sacrificially before He could be received to the glories of the Divine nature by resurrection power. So also it must be with all who will become joint-heirs with Jesus on the Heavenly plane.—2 Peter 1:4.

The testing of the loyalty of Jesus and all those of every nation who would be of the Spiritual Seed of Abraham has progressed now for eighteen centuries, and the Pastor believes it will soon be completed. The gathering of the Elect will complete this Age and inaugurate the New Dispensation, during which God's blessings through Messiah's Kingdom will fill the earth, superseding the curse which has rested upon mankind for six thousand years—six great Days. Messiah's New Dispensation will be the antitypical Sabbath Day, a thousand years long, in which Messiah will bring in everlasting righteousness, destroy all who love unrighteousness, and grant everlasting life to all the obedient.

John the Baptist, in announcing Jesus as the great Messiah, said, of the sin of the world and the taking away of the sin of the Church. The Church is described as the Church of the First-borns, leaving the world to have the blessing of the after-born members of the same family of God. Only by close scrutiny can we discern the deep things of God. The Spirit was promised to guide Jesus' followers into an understanding, not merely of the outward, or superficial, features of God's arrangement on man's behalf, but also into the deeper parts.

The sin of the world is the Adamic sin. By one man's disobedience, sin entered the world. The penalty of that sin was not eternal torment nor purgatory. But, as the Apostle explains and as we also read in Genesis, the curse, the penalty for sin, is death—"Dying, thou shalt die." No one could be thoroughly released from that penalty of death—and completely resurrected out of death—except by the payment of a Ransom-price—the payment of his penalty. No member of the race could pay the penalty because every member was under that penalty himself. Hence God's compassion manifested itself in providing the Redeemer—a Ransomer. One capable of satisfying the claims of Justice and thus legally setting Adam and all of his race free from the death penalty—the curse.

But while the Lamb of God was to take away the sin of the whole world and give all an opportunity for Restitution, He will not be the Passover Lamb for the world. Jesus is our Passover—the Church's Passover Lamb. This shows the difference between the deliverance of the Church during this Age, and the future deliverance of the world during the Millennium. The Church is delivered or passed over by faith—through the imputation of the merit of the Redeemer. The Church class may, therefore, even now speak of sins forgiven and of having passed from death unto life—but not so the world. Indeed, the taking away of the sins of the world in the next Age will be on a totally different basis. The merit of the Redeemer will not be imputed to mankind. The world will not be justified by faith. The taking away of their sins will be actual, and their justification will be actual.

The Church of the First-born has special privileges and blessings, as well as special trials. In the Passover type, the lives of the first-born were in jeopardy, while the lives of others of Israel were in no danger. This signifies in the antitype that the Church of the First-born will be liable to death at a time when the remainder of the world will not be thus liable. The reason for this is clear, in the light of other Scriptures, as we shall see.

The call of the Gospel Age the Apostle styles a "high calling," a Heavenly calling, because the Church is not under a law. Rather, a Heavenly reward is held up before the minds of some, and they are invited to enter into a Covenant with God, to follow such a course of life in the present time as will eventually bring them to the glorious prize set before them in the invitation. That prize is sometimes styled the Kingdom, and sometimes the Divine nature—and it includes both.

But if the reward is so great that Jesus called it the "pearl of great price," and St. Paul declared that he counted all other things as loss and dross in comparison, we should not be surprised to find the conditions, or terms, for obtaining it very stringent. Notice the stringency of the call: "Gather together My saints unto Me," saith the Lord, "those who have made a Covenant with Me by sacrifice." (Psalm 50:5.) Again, notice Jesus' words, "If any man will be My disciple, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me."

From the foregoing Scripture, it will be noticed that the condition upon which any may become a member of the Church of the First-born is that he shall sacrifice his earthly nature. Only by faithfulness in thus sacrificing can he obtain the Heavenly nature. Unfaithfulness would hinder him from ever obtaining the new nature. As for the earthly nature, such give up all right to it, in order that they may run in the sacrificial race for the spirit nature. Hence it is that the First-borns are represented in the type as being exposed to death—annihilation.

Not so the world; for the world is only under Adamic condemnation. God has promised that through Christ that curse shall be removed. Hence of all the people in the world, the only ones who at the present time are in danger of going into extinction are those who have made a consecration to be the followers of Jesus.

Look back again at the type. There we see the lamb provided for all. There we see the blood upon the door-posts for all. But we see the first-born the only ones in danger. In the antitype, these, if passed over, will become the Church in Glory, the Royal Priesthood. How beautiful the picture! How solemn the thought of our opportunities and privileges, and responsibilities corresponding!

Land Let by Lit Candle.

A quaint device was employed at Butterwick, near Boston, England, to determine the letting of a piece of meadow land. A candle was lighted and a pin stuck in its side. Then bidding commenced. The candle burned until the flame reached the pin, which fell out, and the land was then declared let to the last bidder prior to the pin falling.

No Breakfast Fad Is Old.

Few people realize that the meal "breakfast" did not become recognized until late in the seventeenth century. The earliest period to which the word can be traced is 1463. In the days of the Tudors the higher classes dined at 7 and supped at 5, and the merchants seldom took their meals before 12 and 6 o'clock.

SEALER MAY BE LOST

St. John's Fears For Safety of Steamer Southern Cross.

Number of Newfoundland's Dead Has Been Placed Definitely at Seventy-seven, But If Southern Cross Is Lost a Hundred and Seventy May Be Added—U. S. Coastal Steamer Has Been Asked to Search.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 4.—As the hours went by last night without word from the sealing steamer Southern Cross, fear grew that her crew of 170 men had been added to the toll of Tuesday's blizzard in which men of the sealer Newfoundland lost their lives.

The number of the Newfoundland's dead was placed definitely at 77 late yesterday, with the further possibility that several of the 112 who were rescued would succumb to the effects of the 48 hours' exposure.

Arrangements were made last night for the reception of the rescue ship Bellaventure, which is expected to arrive to-day, bringing most of the dead, and many of the survivors.

In an effort to solve the mystery of the disappearance of the Southern Cross, the Newfoundland Government asked the American revenue cutter Seneca to leave the ice patrol and search for the missing sealer. The coastal steamer Kyle, which has a wireless equipment, was fitted out here for a cruise along the southeastern coast off which the Southern Cross was last seen on Tuesday morning, a few hours before the three days' blizzard set in.

Although the vessels of the so-called wooden walled sealing fleet of which the Southern Cross was one, have bucked ice floes with impunity, and are regarded as very staunch ships, sealers say her cargo of 17,000 seal pelts would be an active danger during a storm on account of instability.

Suffragette Battle With Mob Enlivened Metropolis on Sunday.

LONDON, April 6—Suffragists created a diversion during the Unionist demonstration in Hyde Park Saturday, and as a result "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond and the Misses Rogers and Virtue were arrested.

The women, about 1,000 strong, marched through the London streets to the park, and although the police had not given a permit for the procession, the women forced their way through the crowds gathered at the gates of the park. The women were waving the suffragette colors.

Immediately on their entrance to the park crowds of rowdies charged them, and for nearly an hour a fierce fight was in progress, the police having repeated to interfere to save the women from the mob.

Miss Virtue was on the point of being thrown into the Serpentine when policemen got her out of the hands of her tormentors.

HEADS BRITISH LEAGUE.

Lord Roberts Is Elected President of Covenanters.

LONDON, April 4.—Lord Roberts last night was elected president of the League of British Covenanters at a meeting held in Caxton Hall. Resolutions were adopted at the meeting pledging the British covenanters to do all in their power to prevent the establishment of Home Rule in Ireland without sanction of the nation and the support of the people in Ulster in "their gallant struggle to maintain their constitutional rights."

Speeches were made at the meeting by Walter Hume Long, former Chief Secretary for Ireland; Lord Milner and Sir Edward Carson. Sir Edward said the Government either would have to exclude Ulster from their bill or make up their minds that they would have bloodshed and coercion.

Pembroke, being classically inclined, proposed to build its Carnegie library along lines of Greek architecture. But that didn't suit Carnegie, who was putting up the money. And what has been decided upon is what are known as utilitarian lines, covered with a roof that looks a good deal like a Scotch bonnet. Which suits Andrew Carnegie to a "tee." But Pembroke seems to mourn the loss of its Greek temple.

"MY STOMACH IS FINE

Since Taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets"

Mrs. J. Merkhnger, Waterloo, Ont., enthusiastically recommends Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. Her experience with them, as she outlines it, explains why.

"I was greatly troubled with my stomach", she writes, "I had taken so much medicine that I might say to take any more would only be making it worse. My stomach just felt raw. I read of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and a lady friend told me they were very easy to take, so I thought I would give them a trial and really they worked wonders. Anyone having anything wrong with his stomach should give Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets a trial, they will do the rest. My stomach is fine now and I can eat any food."

One of the many good features of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is that they are so pleasant and easy to take. The relief they give from heartburn, flatulence, billousness and dyspepsia is prompt and permanent. Try one after each meal—they'll make you feel like a new person.

Bodies of Sealers Are Brought Into St. John's.

All But Five of the Sixty-Nine Are Identified and Heart-rending Scenes Occur as Families Recognize Bodies of Loved Ones—One Woman Finds Husband and Son Clasped In Each Other's Arms.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 6. — In every church yesterday the disaster which overtook the Newfoundland's men on the ice was the theme of the sermon. Messages of sympathy from the King and the Canadian Premier were read and were gratefully received.

By noon all but five of the sixty-nine bodies of the Newfoundland's hunters, brought in Saturday by the Bellaventure, had been identified. These were shipped on a special train last night to Bonavista, where most of the victims lived.

Attendants at the Grenfell Institute, which was turned into a morgue, said that the scenes accompanying the identification of the bodies were almost beyond endurance.

One woman found two bodies clasped so tightly in death that they could not be separated. They were her husband and son. The lad was wrapped in his father's arms as if the man had been trying to shield him from the pitiless cold.

The hand of another dead man was missing. One of the survivors, who had lain helpless near the body for nearly forty-eight hours, said that his comrade, unable to stand the agony of frost bite, had sliced off his hand with his seaman's knife.

A gray-haired mother, supported by her two daughters, passed down the long rows looking for her sons. Attention was suddenly drawn to them when the woman fell to the floor in a faint. They had found not only the four sons and brothers, but two cousins, among the dead.

Of the thirty survivors in the hospital none is expected to die, but the majority will never be fit for active service again. Three lost both hands and both feet. Five lost both feet Eight others lost a foot and 11 will lose a hand or fingers. The others will bear scars for life.

Some of the survivors said they sought shelter from the Arctic gale behind the bodies of dead shipmates, but in all the delirium of the two days and nights of exposure, the bodies of the dead were left inviolate. Each man of the 150 endured his lot with firm patience, and each one, the dead as well as the living, was found with his full equipment of clothes, boots and sealing gear intact.

By Tuesday, when special memorial services will be held, if the Southern Cross fails to appear, the families of her 173 men must be provided for as well as those of the Newfoundland's dead and crippled.

Owing to the absence of Gov. Davidson and Premier Morris, the acting Premier, Mr. Bennett, directed the work of caring for the dead and injured. Every physician and nurse in the city volunteered for service. The new Grenfell Institute was turned into a morgue.

The disaster which overtook the Newfoundland's hunters was unavoidable, according to Capt. Randell of the Bellaventure. Tuesday dawned somewhat overcast, but with no hint of blizzard conditions, he said, so that it was quite permissible to put men on the ice after seals. Four ships were within sight of him, the Newfoundland, Stephano, Florizel and Bonaventure. These had a total of a thousand men on the ice.

The storm broke with typical Arctic suddenness. The hunters from the Bonaventure and the Florizel were fortunate enough to reach their ships safely. The Stephano's men, being nearer the Florizel than their own vessel, hurried on board her. The Stephano meanwhile steamed towards the spot where her crew had been seen before the snow shut in. This took her away from the Newfoundland's group, who were far from their own ship. As soon as the Stephano was notified by the Florizel's wireless of the safety of her own men, she headed back into the storm to pick up the Newfoundland's hunters.

It was impossible to see a ship's length ahead into the snow curtain, and when the Stephano's captain thought he was within a mile of the stranded hunters he lay too and kept his whistle going in the hope that they might be guided towards him.

As hours passed and not a man reported he concluded all had reached their own ships. But the Newfoundland had no wireless and all that day and all Wednesday the fleet remained in ignorance of the fate of the 150 men marooned on the floes.

On Thursday the weather cleared and the Bellaventure was making ready to start her men after seals again, when a lookout reported men on the ice. Captain Randell immediately ordered every available man from the ship to the rescue. The main party of castaways were four miles away, over a broken field of ice. The Bellaventure was driven toward them with all possible speed, but so bad were the ice conditions that it required nine hours to cover the four miles.

In the meantime his men had reached the castaways. Only a few of the hardiest were conscious and able to help themselves. Many were in a stupor. Some were raving, others had been stricken with ice blindness. Many bodies were found frozen so fast in the ice that pickaxes were necessary to chop them out. Two of the survivors were nearly mad from their own sufferings and from grief. Each had watched a brother die in his arms.

An ounce of pluck is better than a pound of luck—when it comes to removing.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The largest verdict for personal injuries in the history of the local courts was awarded to Matt Yurkonis, 42 years old, a Luthunian of Staten Island, who was awarded $50,000 by a jury in the U. S. District Court. Yurkonis sued for $75,000.

The verdict is against the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, which employed Yurkonis as a laborer in a mine at Scranton, Pa., where he was injured in an explosion. Yurkonis went into the mine with an open lamp to test the gas. When rescued it was found both his eyes had been blown out of their sockets, his limbs dangled insensitive and limp. He will be a cripple for life and blind.

Therefore, when we offer you Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets with this proof of our faith in them, it leaves no room for hesitation or doubt.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the fact that they contain, among other things, Bismuth and Pepsin, two ingredients endorsed by the medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of stomach ills. They soothe the inflamed stomach, check heartburn and distress, stimulate the secretion of gastric juice, aid in rapid and comfortable digestion of the food and help to quickly convert into rich, red blood. In a short time they tend to restore the stomach to a naturally comfortable, easy-acting, healthy state. They also benefit the bowels.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00—J. S. McKeown.

[illegible] in Toronto—Letter to the Scotsman

In reference to a letter in Club of 8th December, entitled "Keep Away from Vancouver," it is true, no doubt that there are many out of employment there, as in many other large and growing cities, but this is no reason for them being in want. When in Vancouver in 1912 I had a chat with a carpenter, a Scotsman, of course, who was doing a little job for our landlady. She always employed him "because he was reliable." I found that this man was worth nearly 100,000 dollars (£20,000), instead of building a costly house, getting an automobile, etc., he was far happier going on as he had commenced. He was an honest, industrious man.

For a month before Christmas there was ample evidence provided of the prosperity of this city (Toronto) in the spending of money by all classes of citizens. In summer time it is the same. It is not the well-to-do who spend their means in this way. No, it is the wage-earners, and they simply spend, spend. When winter comes work is slack, and the army of unemployed is increased.

Four or five years ago a young Englishman came to my home asking for work, says K. S. Scott, Toronto, writing to The Scotsman. He was a window-cleaner, had a tiny little business in Brighton, England, and made "about $5 a week." Thinking to do better he, with wife and one child, came to Toronto. He worked all summer. As winter approached, he was laid off. A second child arrived. The family of four were living in one room. Their landlady, a charwoman, from whom they rented a room at 2 dollars a week, was good to them. I saw he was a decent-looking young man, and made some work for him, and told him to come back and that he must not allow his wife and children to be hungry. With the charwoman's help he struggled along, and by March he had a prospect of getting work. I loaned him something to help to furnish some rooms. He rented four and sub-let two. I made work for him in the garden, and ere long he was out of my debt. He did such good work in putting down cement walks that he had all he could do. I helped him to purchase some building lots and a bit of land, and very soon he had a comfortable house on one-half the lot. Next spring he built a good brick house on the other lot, moved into it, sold a cottage on it for $1,200, has since sold brick house for $2,500, bought four lots near by, built two houses during the past summer, both of which are now sold, and he is now busy preparing to build other two. He has succeeded so far even with the scarcity of money. This man does not say, "Keep away from Toronto." I may say candidly any man or woman coming to Canada wishing to get on can do so if they are true Scots. It is true, only too true, that there are a good many in all our large cities out of work just now, but Canada is not alone in this respect. As soon as the wave of depression passes there will be work for all who are willing to work. There is much being said about the high cost of living. Our tastes are getting more expensive than they used to be. When I think of the waste that goes on, I am not surprised at the high cost of living.

Light Hats Prevent Baldness

Medical men have agreed that baldness is largely a matter of headgear. It is a rarity for a woman to go bald, notwithstanding that her hats are often heavier and bigger than a man's. But her hat is fixed to her hair, not to her scalp, the veins are not constricted and ventilation is permissible. Men's hats, with their hard, tight-fitting brims, make it impossible for the blood to circulate properly, and consequently there is a congestion of blood in the scalp.

At any time it is more difficult for the blood to circulate properly in the top of the head than in other parts of the body, for the simple reason that it has to be pumped up higher there than anywhere else, and, if its course is restricted, the consequences cannot be wondered at. A tight hat also keeps the head hot—another fatal condition. If you would avoid baldness wear light, well-ventilated, soft-brimmed hats.

Pencils Use Much Lumber

Lead pencil manufacture in the United States is consuming 73,000,000 feet of lumber annually, of which about one-half is estimated to be wasted in sharpening or throwing away short ends.

An aerial tramway to carry freight and express matter is planned for Manila.

A large pulp, paper and lumbering business to be conducted on a large scale, will be established at Yellow Falls, not far from Cochrane, Ont.

Mrs. Julian Health's Advice to Canadian Women

To deal with the cost of living, says Mrs. Health, President of the Housewives' League of the United States in a talk to Canadian women, one must first begin with the leaks, and none is greater than the leak through false weights. In Washington in one year a million dollars was wasted in that way. The only way to wipe out that evil is for each consumer to see that she gets honest weight. It cannot be left to inspectors.

Impure food, Mrs. Health said, is a question of supply and demand. If we would not buy it it would never be manufactured. In a so-called pure food show, got up by dealers and held in New York last year, samples of impure foods were placed on the tables. They had to be renewed every morning because the women ate them all up!

Mrs. Health told some interesting stories of the state of New York stores three years ago, when the Housewives' League began its campaign there, of the uncovered food, the unprotected goods, and the store cat that slept on the wrapping paper or in the box of prunes. It is all different now.

Not a single tradesman was unwilling to co-operate in reforming these conditions. "We didn't know you women cared," they said, or "my ladies order by telephone and don't care whether the shop is clean or not." So it all comes back to the housewife.

SIR JOHNSTONE FORBES-ROBERTSON (as Hamlet) and his wife Gertrude Elliott.

The following poetic appreciation of the great English actor Forbes-Robertson, was written by Andrew Rae Macdonald, a Canadian journalist upon learning of the knight-tragedian's determination to quit the stage.

To Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson
(As Hamlet)

Life knows but two great moments—
Birth and Death—
One joyful and the other—tragedy;
Yet in thy hands what great nobility
Is given to that hour when Hamlet's breath
Leaves the cold clay, but living, wandereth
A glorious spirit through Eternity.
Living a life beyond Death's sovereignity,
There earth-bound shell no more encumbereth
The soul's far flights. The body borne on high
Above the warriors on a flaming shield,
Speaks in a hush'd and breathless eloquence
Of Tragedy's grim dictum—"All must die";
Yet whispers of the glad soul, far afield
From petty strife against the world's pretence.

Prince and Farmer

During army manoeuvres in a country district Prince Arthur of Connaught and some brother officers lunched on top of a haystack. Presently the farmer appeared, and as he drew near he could be heard expressing some forcible opinions on the subject of his haystack being used as a mess-room. An orderly hurried up and explained who the officers were, and in an undertone he added that one of them was Prince Arthur, King George's cousin. The indignant farmer flatly refused to believe him. "Anyway, prince or no prince, they've got to come off my stack," he declared, and, turning to the amused officers, he added: "Dash it all, from the looks of you, the next thing you'd do with the stack would be to eat it!"

There has just been republished an old book, which originally appeared in the year 1705, and which deals with the subject of dyeing, a subject in which women are all interested more or less. In this book the reader is let into the secrets of the wonderful old dyes, the first half telling of the experimental discovery of all the most useful secrets in dyeing silk, wool, linen, and the manufactures of these fabrics as practised in England, France, Spain, Holland and Germany, while the second half is devoted to general instructions in dyeing wools and woollen manufactures, and to the cultivation of the drugs used for making these dyes. In the early part of the 18th century, blue was perhaps the most popular of colors and no less than twenty-two shades of blue are mentioned; according to the writer the blue dyes are made from a plant called "Pastel" which grows in the upper Languedoc Valley, also with "vouede" found in Normandy, and with "Indigo" obtained from the West Indies. "Woodland brown," a shade very popular to-day was equally popular in 1705, and was then known as "walnut-tree brown" and was made from the root, bark, and leaves of the walnut tree and with nut shells. A good brown too, we are herein informed, can be made from chimney soot, and this will also produce olive green or olive colors. Perfuming silks is also dealt with in this fascinating volume the recipe being as follows: "When the silk is dyed, for every pound of silk take an ounce of orris, dry it well, lay the silks in rose water in a thick sieve and betwixt every row strew powder of orris, and shut it up close in a box or chest till next day and the silk will emit an agreeable odor." The wonderful lustre on the old time silks was produced by adding an ounce of isinglass for every pound of silk to the water in which the latter was steeped. No wonder the silk dresses of our grandmothers were things that were cherished for a lifetime and still retain their fragrance and brilliance. The name of the book is "The Whole Art of Dyeing" and is well worth reading.

TIPS TO HOUSEWIVES

Try lemon and salt for ink stains on the fingers.

If corns are rubbed daily with toilet pumice, they will disappear.

If plants are washed in soapsuds, they will not have insects on them.

Sifted wood ashes put on a damp cloth will remove stains from tinware, agate or crockery.

To give plaster casts an alabaster effect, dip them into a strong solution of alum water.

Two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar to one white of egg will make excellent meringues.

Use warm water to sprinkle starched clothes, and the effect will be twice as satisfactory.

An apron made with a bib of table oilcloth is a great saver to wear when washing dishes.

If grease is well rubbed on the stove before polishing the polish will not burn off so quickly.

To make marmalade look clear without skimming it, add a piece of butter the size of an egg before removing the fruit from the fire.

If a rug curls, moisten it and wrap it around a broomstick, in the opposite way from its desires, then tie and let it dry.

Tarnished silver can be brightened if placed for a short time in boiling water in which a fair-sized lump of washing soda has been dissolved.

After cleaning brass or copper with salt and vinegar, rub with olive oil and the metal will not tarnish for a long time.

To keep the table salt dry and soft, dry it, then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps and sift into it a tablespoonful of corn starch.

It is a convenience to make vegetable bags of cheesecloth, into which you put celery, tomatoes, lettuce and other fresh vegetables before placing in the refrigerator.

A good play dress for a child can be made from a man's worn shirt. Cut it Dorothy style, and the work is very little, not to mention the saving in the youngster's clothes.

A recipe for axle grease is a pound of tallow, half a pound of castor oil, quarter of a pound of black lead. Melt the tallow and rub the whole well together.

If mirrors are very dull and speckled the following method is excellent: Take a small portion of whitening and add sufficient cold tea to it to make a paste; rub the glass with warm tea, dry with a soft cloth, then rub a little of the paste well on the mirror and polish dry with tissue paper.

For a disinfectant for a sink, pour down a gallon of boiling water mixed with two tablespoonfuls of soda and a teaspoonful of ammonia. This will dissolve all greasy matter in both sink and pipe.

Autos and Farmers Responsible For General Zeal

The most conspicuous thing about the sessions of the Ontario Good Roads' Association was the business-like way in which the delegates discussed practical ways and means for road improvement. A few years ago it would have been necessary to have shown reasons why roads should be so improved, and what economic benefits would have been conferred upon the farmers by that improvement. All that is now admitted. The public interest is keenly fixed upon the practical side of financing and constructing improvements. The automobile is in large measure responsible for this awakening of general zeal, because to the natural desire it has added the energetic backing and influence of powerful urban associations and interests.

British Army Pathologist Tells Results of Studies

Col. Sir Wm. Leishman, F.R.S., K.H.P., professor of pathology at the Royal Army Medical College, London, England, who is generally recognised as one of the greatest men in the medical profession in Great Britain, told a meeting of the Association of Officers of the Medical Services of Canada at Ottawa many of the results of his experiments with typhoid vaccine, of which he has made a special study. He claimed that the success of the vaccine has been demonstrated in a remarkable way, especially in tropical countries, where typhoid or enteric fever is more rampant than elsewhere.

Pulling His Ears

It is said that the German Emperor has a habit of gently tugging at his left ear when anything bothers him. One day, some years ago, when he was on a visit to England, he was handed a telegram. The contents of the message apparently displeased him, for he immediately began tugging at his ear. The Prince of Wales, then a small boy, watched the performance with considerable interest. "Uncle," he said at length, "why are you pulling your ear?" "Because I'm annoyed, I suppose," replied the Kaiser. "And when you're very annoyed," persisted the young Prince, "what do you do then?" "Then I pull somebody else's," announced His Majesty viciously.

Origin of "Deadhead"

The origin of the word "deadhead" takes us back to the theatres of ancient Rome. R. H. Broadhead, in "A History of Pantomime," gives the following realistic explanation. He says: "Persons were instructed to give applause with skill. The proficient hired themselves out to the poets, authors, etc., and were so disposed as to support a loud applause. The free admission tickets were small ivory death's hands, and specimens of these are to be seen in the Museum of Naples."

Why They Are Cold

Do you know why a dog's nose and a woman's elbow are always cold? Because, according to an old country superstition, when Noah went into the Ark he found that he had forgotten his tools and had to use first a dog's nose, and then his wife's elbow, to stop a leak.

MR. PORTER RETURNS FROM ENGLAND

Interviewed by Intelligencer Representative and Gives Pleasing Information

Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., who went to England in February last, as announced by this paper, to argue before His Majesty's Judicial Committee of the Privy Council the case of Hyatt et al vs. Allen et al, returned home yesterday looking very much benefitted by his trip and with the satisfaction of dangling at his belt the scalp of his opponents, he having won his case before the Privy Council.

As this case has excited a great deal of interest locally and in Prince Edward County, our reporter called upon Mr. Porter this morning and ascertained the following facts in regard to the case.

In 1906 a number of Prince Edward farmers formed themselves into a company, obtaining a charter from the Ontario Government to carry on business as canners of fruit, vegetables, etc., in Prince Edward County, and, having obtained this charter, sold stock to other farmers in the county, the company being capitalized at $75,000. After operating about four years, during the first two of which dividends of 25% and 15% respectively were declared, the company ceased paying a dividend for the next two years, at the end of which time the directors of the company, who are the defendants in the action, were approached by the merger, known as the Dominion Canners, to sell their plant, stock, etc., to the merger.

Without the knowledge of the shareholders, the directors gave the merger an option on the plant for a very large sum in excess of stock issued and for goods in hand, raw materials, etc., and, as the Court found, when the directors had carried on negotiations with the merger for some time and they were sure the merger would exercise the option and buy the business, they, the directors, acting principally through two of their number, by representing to the shareholders of the company of which they were directors, that they might be able to effect a sale to a merger that would pay the farmers, shareholders, 100 cents on the dollar for the stock held by them and 7% interest for the two years the company had not paid a dividend, induced the farmers to give the directors an option on the stock held by each of them in the company at that price, such option terminating ten days later than the option the directors had given to the merger, when the fact was that the amount the directors were selling to the merger for would have paid the shareholders more than twice as much as was represented and the fact that the option obtained from the shareholders expired ten days after the option given by the directors to the merger enabled the directors to know for a certainty that the sale would be made to the merger before the directors incurred any liability to the shareholders on the options they had obtained from them. The sale went through to the merger, and the directors paid to the shareholders the 100 cents on the dollar of the shares held by them, and the directors put the difference, amounting to about $50,000, as far as ascertained, into their own pockets, and it was to compel the directors to pay over to the shareholders pro rata this difference that this action was brought, and after succeeding in all the courts in Ontario the Privy Council has confirmed the judgment compelling the directors to account for and pay over proceeds received by them from the sale to the shareholders with all costs of the litigation, which will amount to several thousand dollars.

Sir Robert Finley, K.C., Mr. T. Read, K.C., and Molineaux Gordon supported the appeal for the directors, and Mr. J. O. Dankworts, K.C., and Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., opposed the appeal for the shareholders.

BRITISH PORTS BEHIND IN HANDLING OF GRAIN

Distinct Lack of Storage Facilities and no Provision for Cheap Forwarding to the Mills

LONDON, April 8— Special — In view of the proposed development of Montreal harbor, in connection with which President W. G. Ross, Engineer W. Cowie, and Assistant Secretary Fennell are now making a tour of inspection of European and British ports, a paper read by Mr. Cowie last night before the Institute of Civil Engineers was of especial interest. The general trend of the paper was to demonstrate the desirability of an all Canadian route from Britain and the Continent, with Montreal as the head.

Mr. Cowie uttered some criticisms in regard to the handling of the grain trade on this side of the ocean, remarking that while the Canadian Government and the Montreal Harbor Commission were encouraging cheaper transport, there were those who felt that the improvements in the storage and handling of grain in the ports of the United Kingdom were not advancing in an equal measure so as to result in a lower cost to the consumer, and the encouragement of the producer. The importation of grain was one of the heaviest items at several British ports, but the facilities for economical handling with cheap forwarding to the mills, were far behind modern successful American and Canadian practice, or that at the growing North Sea competitive ports.

There was also a distinct lack of such storage facilities as would guarantee a good supply. In several magnificent new dock schemes in Great Britain these features had apparently been overlooked. The result would be to encourage American millers to manufacture Canadian wheat into flour and ship it direct to British bakers, thus causing a loss not only to the transportation systems of Canada, but also to British manufacturers, as well as a further curtailment of Britain's food supply.

HAVELOCK MURDERER ARRESTED IN BULGARIA

Indications Point Towards Robbery and Murder of Bulgarian

PETERBOROUGH, April 7.—The inquest into the death of N. Duloff, a Bulgarian, who is supposed to have been murdered at Havelock, was opened yesterday and adjourned until the 17th.

Assistant Crown Attorney Wearing represented the Crown. Interviewed today, Mr. Wearing stated that public sentiment coupled with some strong facts of evidence, points with suspicion to Kalo Volicoff, a fellow Bulgarian, who left hurriedly for Bulgaria shortly after the murder took place. He is alleged to have taken a large sum of money, nearly $700, belonging to the murdered man. Duloff's father in Bulgaria, becoming acquainted with the facts, had the man arrested on his arrival in Bulgaria.

Provincial Inspector Boyd, of Toronto expressed his opinion that Duloff had been foully murdered with robbery as the motive. He had also obtained numerous letters from Volicoff to a fellow countryman. These letters, which have been partly translated, are to the effect that he wants his absence kept silent, and also the fact about the cap of the murdered man being found near where the murder is alleged to have taken place. He is said to have expressed himself that he can make more money in Canada than Bulgaria, and that he intends returning as soon as this little thing passes, as he remarks in his letters to the fellow countryman at Havelock.

The manner in which the letters are written are taken as being strong proof of the guilty conscience of the man.

The body, which was found in a pond about twenty feet from where the two men were working was badly decomposed Two deep cuts were found on each side of the head at the back, they evidently being blows inflicted by a pick or sharp edge of a shovel.

LAW TO PROHIBIT BUYING WILD DUCK

Limits the Number Any One Person Can Kill to a Hundred.

TORONTO, April 7—Dr. Anderson's bill to limit the bag of wild ducks which any one person may kill in a season, to one hundred, was not discussed by the Fish and Game Committee this morning. The bill also prohibits the sale or purchase of wild duck. The license fee to foreign trappers was raised to $50 and a fee will be imposed on fur dealers. These two charges in the Act will be made at the instance of Dr. Reaume, the Minister of Public Works.

Mr. Z. Mageau, Liberal member for Sturgeon Falls, produced a skin which he declared was the hide of a wolf which had been a member of a pack that had killed forty sheep. The bounty had been refused on the skin. After some discussion it was finally agreed that the skin was that of a brush wolf, on which no bounty was payable.

WITH FACE CHANGED HE POPS QUESTION

Looks Are Better After Patched up Following Bad Accident.

LONDON, April 7.—A young motorcyclist living in a south coast resort, whose looks were described as "homely and unassuming," is just now rejoicing over a mishap which somewhat changed his looks.

Recently while riding his machine he collided with a steam roller and was violently thrown on the road, strewn with rough flints, his face being badly cut. At the hospital a surgical operation was performed on his nose and stitches were put in the cheek. Most of his teeth which were decayed and somewhat prominent, were knocked out and had to be replaced by a false set.

When for the first time after the accident he looked in the glass he could scarcely recognize himself. There was an unfamiliar and Grecian regularity about his nose which gave a new distinction to his face.

There has been a romantic sequel. A few days ago he met a girl who had twice rejected him in six months. He proposed again with satisfactory results.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 7.—Under cloudy skies that threatened at any time to break into rain, a suffrage army of nearly two hundred thousand women began moving in the polls this morning in perhaps the greatest test of suffrage strength ever made in the world.

Their special object of attack is "Bath house John Coughlin", and his saloons. More than three thousand saloons may be wiped out throughout Illinois as a result of the voting in the state to-day.

KIDNAP AND BEAT ERRING PREACHER

Rev. O.L. Spurgeon Driven From Des Moines for Attacking Catholics

DENVER, Col., April 7.—The Rev. Otis L. Spurgeon of Des Moines was forcibly escorted from that city last night by unknown persons because of attacks on the Catholic priesthood he made in a lecture delivered Saturday evening. He was brought to a hospital here early to-day suffering from a broken nose and other injuries. Physicians attending him will not allow any one to see him.

It appears that a party of seven men visited Mr. Spurgeon at his hotel, seized him, and took him in an automobile to a spot about twenty-four miles north of Denver, where he was beaten and released after $2.10 had been given to him as train fare. Mr. Spurgeon succeeded in reaching the house of Deputy Sheriff George W. Rucker of Adams County, who took him to the hospital.

FATALLY HURT BY CANDIDATE'S CAR

Victim Ran From Playmate in Path of Vehicle- Died in Ambulance.

MONTREAL, April 7.–Struck by an automobile owned by E. Napoleon Hebert, one of the candidates for the board of Control and driven by his son, Charles Hebert, Alphonse Vanasse, the eight-year-old son of Theo. Vanasse, of 512 Rachel street, east, while playing in west Lafontaine Park, at 5 o'clock yesterday, sustained a fractured skull and did not live long enough to reach a hospital. The police report absolves the driver of the car of blame, the lad, it is said having run in front of the machine.

According to information gathered by the police at the Lafontaine Park station, young Vanasse was playing in company with another lad of about the same age, on the west side of Lafontaine park. Just as the automobile driven by Charles Hebert and carrying a woman as a passenger, came alongside, the Vanasse boy, not having noticed its approach turned to run from the other lad and dashed directly into the path of the machine. The police state that they were told the automobile was going at a slow rate of speed, but the boy was struck and thrown heavily to the street.

Mr. Hebert immediately stopped the machine and assisted by witnesses of the accident, lifted the unconscious boy into the car and took him to Arcand's drug store at the corner of Lafontaine Park and Rachael street. Drs. Turgeon and Picard of 133a Christopher Columbus street was called and an ambulance was summoned from the Notre Dame Hospital. The two local physicians found the boy to be suffering from a fracture of the skull and in a very dangerous condition. From the first, very little hope was entertained for saving the boy's life and he died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital.

The body of the dead boy was removed to the morgue and there the parents of victim went to identify it, they not having been located in time to see their son alive. An inquest will be opened by Coroner McMahon this morning.

When seen at his room last night Charles Hebert refused to say anything about the accident and it was said at the Hebert residence at 8 o'clock last night that Mr. E. Napoleon Hebert had not yet been told of the accident.

SANDALS LATEST PARISIAN FAD

PARIS, April 6.—One of the daintiest Paris actresses, Mlle. Jeanne Provost, has set all Paris talking and started a new fashion by appearing in the crowded foyer of the Theatre Rejane during a dress rehearsal of "Concert", a new play, with bare feet shod in pretty sandals which fastened around her ankles by cross ribbons in the old Greek style.

"It is delightful to have one's feet quite free", she said to those who questioned her. "Why should women cram them into narrow boots with four-inch heels?"

Jewelers already are having toe rings made for sandal wearers.

Mlle. Provost was the actress who launched the trouser skirt.

NO DIVERGENCE IN VIEWS OF UNIONISTS IN IRELAND

Flat Denial of Story Wired by Secretary of Irish Unionist Alliance

A press dispatch has been received by wireless from R. J. Herbert Shaw, Secretary of the Irish Unionist Alliance, Dublin, denying the story printed in a Toronto paper a few days ago from its Dublin correspondent:

Irish Unionist Alliance.
Dublin, April 7.

A letter dated from Dublin appeared in the Toronto Globe of fourth inst. Its purport seems to be that during the last few days a change in what the writer calls "some Unionist opinion" has produced a divergence between Unionists of Ulster and those of the rest of Ireland. There is a further allegation that "sober Unionists in Dublin admit that the only way out of the difficulty is the passage of the Home Rule Bill. Permit me on behalf of the Irish Unionist Alliance emphatically to deny these statements and to state in neither principle nor policy is there a vestige of disagreement between the Unionists of Ulster and those of the southern provinces. For the whole of Unionist Ireland there is one accepetd leader, Sir Edward Carson, just as there is one policy of unwavering opposition to the bill at present before Parliament.

C.P.R. CAN STAND IT SAYS SIR THOMAS

He Does Not Think However, That Rate Reduction is Justified by Evidence

OTTAWA, April 8.—Special—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who was in Ottawa last evening, was asked if he had any comments to make on the judgment of the Railway Commissioners with reference to the western freight rates. He said he had just finished reading the press report of the judgment, that he had followed the proceedings before the Board very closely, and had no hesitation in saying that the judgment goes beyond anything warranted by the facts as presented. The evidence proved conclusively, as the Board found, that there was no discrimination as charged in the complaint, and the reasonableness of existing rates in existing circumstances was not seriously disturbed by the attacks of the complainants. Apparently the Board, actuated no doubt by what they consider to be the ultimate best interests of the country, have put into effect reduction in rates which, while they might have a semblance of justification some years hence, are such as, viewed in the light of present commercial and transportation conditions, cannot but be regarded as unnecessarily and unjustifiably drastic in character.

"The Canadian Pacific can stand it," said Sir Thomas, "and this seems to be about the only excuse that can be urged in support of the commission's findings. How other companies—still in the process of construction, and which have not been able to build up supporting traffic, and are faced with the necessity of heavy borrowing for the next few years at least—regard the decision is for them to say."

HELLO GIRLS GUILTY OF ELECTRIC CHARGES

Telephonic Lover Affairs Are Passed on by Three Harvard Professors

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 7.—Shocking details of troubles in the ranks of the local Telephone Girls' union reached an electro-logical climax to-day when Prof. Pierce, Hall and Kennelly, learned scientists of Harvard acting as judges pronounced "the hello operators" charged with electricity guilty.

Telephonic love affairs brought about the accusation. The deeply distressed young woman could not account for the strange actions of their "fellows." The young men themselves were at loss to know what struck them, and demanded an investigation, the first step of which had just been made. According to Prof. Arthur Kennelly, the spring and summer is the time when it is safest to spoon and osculate with the "hello girls."

"Telephone girls are likely to get much more heavily charged with electricity during the winter," he said today. "I cannot tell without further investigation which I am now making, whether telephone girls get so charged at the switchboard as to become a real menace."

BUDGET SPEECH A NOTABLE EFFORT

Finance Minister's Handling of Subject Showed Complete Grasp of Situation.

OTTAWA, April 7.—The central figure in the House of Commons Monday was Hon. W. T. White, minister of finace, who delivered what was undoubtedly as able a presentation of the budget speech as has ever been heard in the Green Chamber. It is safe to say that there were not two other men in the House of Commons who could have so easily negotiated the intricacies of both the tariff charges and the financial situation of the Dominion. There was no obscurity and when for a moment, at times the Finance Minister diverged for an intellectual excursion into the region of pure economics it was a delight to listen.

His clear enunciation of Conservative principles was an eloquent evidence that the Finance Minister did not and would not sacrifice the central facts of the National Policy for mere expediency. He had his subject always in hand during his speech of almost four hours, and while in the presentation of the financial statement he followed his manuscript closely, yet when it came to the more difficult part, namely, the outlining of the changes which the Government proposed in the tariff, he was satisfied with a few notes for guidance. It was his third budget speech and it was his best.

The applause which greeted the Minister as he resumed his seat at the close of his great effort was an evidence of the popularity not only of the Minister but as well of the case which he presented in behalf of the Government. It was a fighting speech, full of action, resolute and timely. It could not have been made in 1912 or in 1913, when things were going better throughout the country, but in 1914, with the clouds of depression but only beginning to clear, the speech was a striking evidence of the desire of the Borden Government to help Canada to grapple with the trying period.

The Finance Minister faced Liberal demands without a quiver. He did not avoid the "free wheat" question. He dealt with the agricultural implements question and gave reasons for every faith that he had.

Around the corridors to-night there is the feeling that new hope and optimism will spring up as the result of the Finance Minister clearing the way for greater prosperity.

WALKS HOME FROM UNDERTAKER'S SLAB

Touched by Electric Wire Supposed to be Dead

HARTFORD, Conn., April 7.—Half an hour after his companions had carried him to an undertaker's morgue as dead, after touching a wire carrying 2,300 volts, Carl Lundell suddenly sat up, rubbed his eyes, and when he saw where he was he got down from the slab and hurried out of the place.

Lundell was at work on the Middletown bridge across the Connecticut river yesterday. When he touched the naked electric wire he plunged forward and fell to the floor of the bridge.

While he was being straightened out on the undertaker's slab Lundell moved a leg and then sat up. He had been stunned only, and after a few moments he had recovered sufficiently to leave the place and walk home unaided. He carried no marks of his experience except a burn on one hand.

ADVERTISE IN THE INTELLIGENCER

TO REORGANIZE ROADS

Plan For Expenditure of $30,000,000 Urged by Board.

Proposals of Highways Commissioners Include the Establishment of a Ministry of Roads and a Comprehensive Scheme of Construction and Repair Which Includes Entire Older Part of Province.

TORONTO, April 8.—The program of the Highways Commission was laid on the table of the Legislature by Hon. Dr. Reaume yesterday. In it appears the outline of a plan by which the entire road system of old Ontario will be completely reorganized.

The outstanding proposal of the whole is a 30-million-dollar expenditure on Ontario market and trunk roads, the same to take place in the next fifteen years, and contributed to by cities and motorists, with a reorganized department under a Minister and deputy and an unpaid advisory commission of three. The capital sum is to be raised by a bond issue, the interest and sinking fund outlays bringing the annual expenditure on permanent highways at the close of fifteen years to $2,500,000, at the rate of $1 per head of population.

The immediate proposals of the commission are:

1. Counties now under the Highway Act should be encouraged to continue road work this summer, and the regulations should be made elastic to allow other counties to begin work and thereby take advantage of the aid thereunder.

2. There should be created a sufficient organization to carry on this summer the following investigations:

(a) A motor survey of principal roads to determine their physical condition.

(b) A traffic census to determine the present road needs of the province.

(c) An investigation of main township road conditions.

(d) An investigation of the Hamilton-Toronto and Ottawa-St. Lawrence roads, obtaining plans and specifications of same.

(e) An investigation designed to outline a plan of market roads for counties not now operating under the Highway Act.

(f) A determination of suburban areas about principal centres.

The commissioners divide the provincial highways into two classes, county or market roads subdivided into suburban, interurban and rural and township roads. Suburban roads lie adjacent to the city in an area to be fixed by the province, and are to be maintained by trustee boards, comprising representatives of city and county. The contribution of cities should be 30 per cent. on construction and 33 1-3 per cent. towards maintenance. Remaining construction charges would be divided into 20 per cent. for county and 40 per cent. for province, the last including motor fees. If the cost of construction exceeds $1,000 per mile, the excess would be raised by a local improvement tax.

Interurban roads, or large traveled highways between cities, would have costs apportioned at 33 1-3 per cent. to county and remainder to province, one-half of latter coming from motor fees. In maintenance, 60 per cent. would rest on county and 40 per cent. on province, but such roads as Toronto-Hamilton road would be supported largely by cities.

Rural market roads would remain under control of county councils or of permanent commission appointed by them, construction and maintenance charges alike devolving 60 per cent. on county and 40 per cent. on province. On township roads it is suggested that Ontario spend $250,000 annually for three years, apportioning $50,000 on basis of assessment, $50,000 on basis of population and $150,000 on area on condition that every township spend $4 for every $1 by the Government, that proper drainage be installed, that roads be dragged, that statute labor, be abolished or commuted, and that a proper road organization be established. The commission wants to bring the 42,500 miles of township roads to a high standard and to fit 7,500 county road mileage to bear the heavy demands of traffic.

To meet the scheme an expenditure of thirty millions is needed, and the province and counties would advance twelve millions apiece with cities six millions, this occurring over a 15-year period.

The revenue of the province would be supplemented by increased motor taxation fixed according to the ruling of the commission on horse-power for automobiles and per ton in case of trucks.

The selection of an advisory commission of three public-spirited men, to act as an unpaid board, co-operating with the Deputy Minister of Roads, is considered a solution of the provincial organization question.

May Make Armories "Dry."

OTTAWA, April 8.—To further the cause of temperance amongst the rank and file of the militia, the Hon. Col. Hughes said yesterday that he was seriously thinking of issuing an order forbidding the sale or use of intoxicating liquor in the drill halls throughout the Dominion.

"There are several drill halls in which the officers do not allow liquor to be used or sold, but as I have said, we are seriously thinking of closing it out of all the drill halls," said the Minister.

A drill hall order would banish liquor from the officers' and sergeants' mess in a number of places.

ALLEGED INFRACTION OF A BY-LAW

Mr. A. E. Peake was this morning summoned to appear before Magistrate Masson on a charge of infraction of a by-law known as the Transient Traders' By-law. The accused has been in the city taking orders for clothing for a clothing firm doing business in Toronto. Mr. Peake showed to contemplating customers samples of cloth and also took their measurment. Mr. Carnew, who appeared for the accused, contended his client had not transgressed the by-law. The magistrate considered the case had not been thoroughly established but reserved judgment for a week in order that Mr. Carnew might produce authorities in the matter. His Worship stated that the accused took orders from samples and sold from samples but evidently did not deliver the goods. Mr. Peake gave evidence that he had authority in writing to act as the agent of the clothing firm he represented. He did not deliver the goods, simply took orders.

Owing to the difficulty in moving the picture machine, the Health Exhibition announced to be held in the High School Thursday afternoon and evening will be held in the City Hall at the same hours. A number of addresses on health subjects will intersperse the moving pictures. The public are all invited to attend any of the meetings. It

ZAM-BUK SAVED HIS FINGER

WHEN BLOOD POISONING FOLLOWED A CUT

Mr. Albert Brennan, butcher of 111 Lindsay Ave., Toronto, has good cause to be thankful for Zam-Buk While at work, he cut the middle finger of the left hand. Some disease germs—of which the air is full—entered the wound, and next day the finger was swollen and painful. He bathed it in hot water and applied some ordinary ointment, but the pain got worse, and the swelling continued. Not only so, but the area of inflammation extended, until from finger to elbow was inflamed and sore, and he knew blood-poisoning had set in. He had to give up his ordinary work, and suffered acute pain.

Finally he decided to enter St. Michael's Hospital, but just before doing so, a friend advised him to try Zam-Buk Mr. Brennan acted on this advice and soon proved Zam-Buk's great value. He says: "It cured the pain almost as soon as applied and within a day of first commencing the Zam-Buk treatment I was back at work. Of course, I don't mean that in that time the wound was healed, but the pain had gone and the danger from blood-poisoning was averted. After that, healing was only a matter of a short time. I have no hesitation in saying that Zam-Buk saved my finger, and I am very glad to let you state these simple facts publicly."

Zam-Buk is equally effective for piles, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, ringworm, children's rashes, scalp sores, chapped hands, frost bite, and cold sores. Every housewife should keep a supply handy, and no mother should be without it in the home. Sold by all druggists and stores, 50c box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse substitutes.

THE FINANCIAL OUTLOOK

This week, the "Canadian Courier" publishes its Quarterly Financial Supplement, which reviews the events of the security markets for the first three months of the year. Regarding the outlook, the "Canadian Courier" says: "With regard to domestic conditions among the merchants of Canada, the situation has improved during the quarter. It was thought that there would be many failures, due to the fact that the banks would undertake to clean up some bad accounts. This fear was not realized, and the commercial community has passed through the most trying quarter of the last five years with flying colors."

The vagaries of the stock market may be seen at a glance in the diagram which is a feature of the Financial Supplement.

APPEAL FOR SEALING VICTIMS

LONDON, April 8.—Special—As hinted by Sir Edward Morris, Premier of Newfoundland, to a newspaper representative Sunday, an appeal is being made to the British public on behalf of the sufferers in the sealing disaster. An appeal in the Times, setting forth the dangers and hardships of sealers, is signed by Governor Davidson and Premier Morris, both now in London.

MILITANTS BADGER BISHOP

LONDON, April 8.—(Special)—The militant Suffragettes who have recently been bothering the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London have commenced badgering the Bishop of Norwich. Sixteen women went to the Episcopal Palace at Norwich today and asked the Bishop to discuss pump feeding in the jails with them. The Bishop sent out word that he could not see them before April 16, whereupon the women announced that they intended to camp on the grounds of the palace until he saw them. The Bishop thereupon yielded and received two of the women. He listened to their complaints about forcible feeding and promised to consider the matter.

MR. MACLEAN REPLIES

Opposition Financial Critic Discusses Budget Proposals.

He Finds Fault With the Increase of Expenditures and the Refusal to Grant Free Wheat—H. B. Ames Says U. S. Is Trying to Capture Milling Industry and Disable a Competitor In the Export Trade.

OTTAWA, April 8.—In the House yesterday three speeches were contributed to the budget debate. A. K. MacLean, the Liberal member from Halifax, and the financial critic of the Opposition, replied to Mr. White, dealing with the financial operations of the Government, the tariff changes, the demand for free wheat and the high cost of living.

Mr. MacLean, in opening, criticized the Government for having increased its expenditures in the face of a falling revenue. He pointed out that in 1909 the Laurier Government had cut the estimates severely. Expenses had then been reduced to meet the situation presented by falling of the revenue. The present Government on the other hand paid no attention to the decline in revenue, but increased year by year the current expenses. In the Militia Department for example, there was a steady increase in the expenses from year to year. For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1912, the estimates for that Department aggregated $7,580,000. The following year they advanced to $9,111,000. For the year ending March 31 last they were $10,200,000, while for the year ending March 31, 1915, they would be $10,867,000.

Mr. MacLean then took up the tariff changes. He said that Mr. White had laid down the doctrine that free agricultural implements meant free trade. If that be true, then a reduction in the duties upon these implements must mean an approach to free trade. Nevertheless it was an announcement of a small reduction in these duties that elicited the most hearty cheering from Government supporters during the delivery of the budget speech.

Mr. MacLean then took up the question of free wheat. The Liberal position on this question, he said, commanded the support of the public opinion throughout the country and was endorsed by the unanimous sentiment of the west. Even the Conservative Legislature of Manitoba had asked for free wheat. It was objected that to lower the wheat duties would be to destroy the Canadian railways. If that be true then our railways only lived at the will of Washington, because Congress at any time could admit Canadian wheat free of duty. The Canadian miller was credited with opposing the removal of the wheat and flour duty. If this is true, Mr. MacLean said, the Canadian miller stood in his own light.

He was to-day running at half capacity and nothing could benefit him more than free access to the American market.

Mr. H. B. Ames (Montreal) said that Canada was now fairly prosperous, but that even greater prosperity was at hand. The falling off in the customs receipts was not important. Stocks were now low in Canada and would have to be replenished, so a marked increase would soon occur in the customs revenue.

Mr. Ames vehemently argued against free wheat. The Americans, he said, did not want our wheat, nor did they intend to ship their wheat into Canada. What they wanted was to capture the Canadian market for the United States milling industry and put a competitor out of the export flour trade. Besides that, we had invested such enormous sums in facilities that it was only fair to require Canadian products to be shipped from west to east through Canadian channels.

Mr. Turriff (Assiniboia) said the budget speech refused all relief to the farmer who needed, and was demanding wider markets. It added a trifle more to the load of protection instead of lightening the load.

DEATH OF CY WARMAN.

Poet and Author, He Wrote Words of a World-popular Song.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Cy Warman died yesterday after a long illness from paralysis.

Warman was born in 1855 near Greenup, Ills., on a homestead presented to his father by the Government for gallant service in the Mexican war. He became known as the "Poet of the Rockies." His stories about railroad men were based on personal experiences at Salida, Col., where in the early eighties he worked as a wiper, a fireman and a locomotive engineer. He went to Denver and became a newspaper reporter. He later began publishing a railway journal. Meantime he was writing short poems and bits of prose, which after a time caught the public fancy. The poet later met and was married to Miss Marie Myrtle Jones, who inspired the lines, "For Sweet Marie," a song which has been popular all over the world.

Mr. Warman was connected with the Grand Trunk Railway's literary department, and was well known in Ontario.

Evidence From Sleuths.

MONTREAL, April 8.—Judge Lavergne yesterday granted the application of lawyer for Edward Beck for the appointment of a commission to go to New York to take the evidence of Burns' detectives, which, it is alleged, supplied Mr. Beck with the material upon which he based articles in a weekly paper against certain City Hall officials, for which he has been arrested by Ald. Thomas O'Connell. Judge Leet was appointed to take the evidence.

A LETTER ON PAVING CONTRACT

Editor Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—I have addressed the following letter to the City Council:

To the City Council.

Gentlemen,—The strong public sentiment of your constituents, the citizens of Belleville, is, that Mr. Allen is entitled to have the contract as the lowest tendered, thus saving $8,000 of the citizens' money. Should you, in the exercise of your judgment, decide otherwise, I beg to submit the following offer:

Permit the city to construct the road under the specifications, inspection, etc., and under the management and control of Mr. Allen, and I will guarantee personally, to the city of Belleville that the city by so doing, will save nine thousand dollars. That is, the work shall be done at a cost of nine thousand dollars less, than the largest tender. In making this offer, I wish it to be distinctly understood, that I am in no way connected financially with Mr. Allan, nor will I derive one cent from anything Mr. Allen may receive for his services. I cannot think, that you gentlemen, could deliberately accept the highest tender, and by so doing inflict such a terrible loss upon your fellow citizens.

Mr. Allen has his reputation to sustain; and the work which he will do will be of the best description, whether under his contract, or as an employee of the city.

We have the cement, gravel and sand at our doors.

I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,
JOHN J. B. FLINT.

LET MILITANTS DIE IN PRISON

Life is Overvalued, Says Doctor to London Times in Letters.

LONDON, April 7.—Dr. Charles A. Mercier a well-known London physician in a letter to The Times today makes some remarkable statements in regard to the militant suffragette problem. Hunger strikes, he says, should be allowed to die if they elect to do so.

"Life is now over-valued. The value of society as a whole preponderates vastly over the value of any of its component parts," says Dr. Mercier, and he adds:

"If the responsible authorities shrink from allowing criminals to inflict upon themselves the death sentence other measures can be adopted. These criminals, with the want of logic and want of humor that characterize all their silly proceedings, are prompt to invoke protection and the benefits of that very law that they seek to destroy. If the law had a proper regard for its own dignity it would withdraw its protection from those who seek to degrade it.

"They should be proclaimed outlaws, their contracts should be made incapable of taking legal proceeding of any kind, civil or criminal."

MARITIME TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CO.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 8.—(Special.)—An application is being considered by the Nova Scotia Board of Public Utilities, from the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company, for leave to issue $319,000 bonds, increasing the total issue to $4,500,000. Without permission of this board no capital can be issued by any public utility company in Nova Scotia.

The bond issue that is now proposed is an amount that has been in the company's hands for some time past. According to the statement made by a director, $300,000 is needed annually for improvements and extensions, and the present application is one that is likely to be made at intervals to the public utilities commissioners, as the policy of the Company is not to use revenue for capital expenditures, but to return to the shareholders the net earnings.

BIG CONTEST THE SUBJECT OF CONVERSATION

newspaper. Many people would think that we had not cause to worry about increasing our large circulation. But we are progressive. We are always wanting to get ahead of where we were at this time last month.

If you enter our contest as an active candidate and win a splendid prize we feel that you have earned it, for you have in return won us many new friends. That's what we want—new friends. We do not worry at all about keeping them after they have once tasted the satisfaction of taking a newspaper which furnishes them with everything that is most desirable in the newspaper line.

The prizes in the contest are awarded strictly on the number of votes gained by each contestant. These votes, as you know, are issued on the subscriptions secured by the candidates.

Note also that the vote rate increases rapidly, according to the length of the subscription. Therefore, it is greatly to your advantage to get your friends to subscribe for as long a period as possible—and, incidentally, it is greatly to their advantage, too, to be assured of getting the Intelligencer for a long period of time.

Some candidates are at a loss how to approach the person from whom they wish a subscription.

After all, it is an easy matter. Bear in mind that you are not putting yourself under any obligation save for the consideration shown you. Your friend will get more than his money's worth in return. Therefore, you should feel no embarrassment in stating your position. Be enthusiastic. show your friends how much you wish to win and how certain you are of doing so if they will only stand by you.

Make them just as anxious as you to succeed.

If they help you, they will feel just as much pride in the end as you will yourself, for without them you could not have gained the distinction which will be yours.

HOW TO ENTER.

Clip out the blank marked "Nomination Blank," on another page and send or bring to the Contest Department of The Intelligencer at once. The first nomination received counts 1,000 votes for the candidate nominated; then each vote coupon clipped out of the paper counts as votes. As soon as you send in your nomination start at once to let your friends know that you are in the race to win one of the big prizes. As soon as your friends find that you are ambitious and desirous of winning one of the big prizes, they will be only too glad to help you in any way possible, as in every case everyone likes to vote for a winner, and if you show that you are in the race to win the car or one of the other prizes, you will receive unexpected support from every direction.

Don't stop as soon as you secure one subscription, just keep going and you will find at the close of the contest that you will not be listed among the "also rans."

Candidates are not restricted to their own district in securing subscriptions, the district division being made so that the candidates in all parts of the territory covered by The Intelligencer will have the same opportunity of winning one of the valuable prizes.

The Contest Department of The Intelligencer will be open each evening

WHEAT PRICES FIRMER ON HIGHER CABLES

Break Followed Publication of U.S. Government Figures

WINNIPEG, April 7.—Trading on the wheat market to-day was quiet during the early hours and prices firm on higher Liverpool cables than expected. A good demand for high grades wheat at Liverpool and on the Continent sustained firm figures until the United States Government report was issued, when a sharp break occurred on all months in sympathy with Minneapolis. The report was taken as of a bearish character.

On the decline the market was active and nearing the close prices rallied slightly.

Wheat prices opened 1-8c higher for all months, and closed with a loss of 3-8c to ½c. The cash demands was dull and lifeless, few offerings and as prices declined export bids dropped in sympathy.

Cash wheat closed 3-8 to ½ lower. Cash oats closed 1-8 lower. Cash barley closed unchanged to ½c lower. Cash flax closed 1-8 lower on all grades. The total number of cars inspected Monday was 964 against 183 last year and in sight were 250.

BROTHER AND SISTER BURNED TO DEATH

Bodies Taken From Ruins of House Gutted by Fire at Yamachiche.

YAMACHICHE, Que., April 7.—A terrible tragedy took place this morning at St. Severe, St. Maurice County, when two children, a girl of four and a boy of five, were burned to death. They were the children of Isaie Guillemette. They were playing in an upper room and apparently got hold of a box of matches. The mother looking up from her washtub, saw smoke issuing from the upper floor and immediately fainted.

When the smoke was seen by the neighbors they rushed to the rescue and dragged the mother out into the open air, but it was too late to save the children whose charred bodies were found in the ruins. The house and its contents were a total loss

MILLIONAIRE'S AERIAL FUNERAL

PARIS, April 7.—A strange posthumous enthusiasm for a new form of locomotion has been displayed, according to the St. Petersburg press, by Ivan Soporowsk, a Russian millionaire. During his life Mr. Sopornowski was extremely conservative and even refused to enter a motor car. In his will, however, was a clause bequeathing $100,000 to any airman who would convey his coffin to the graveside in an aeroplane.

A young airman named Posoff offered to undertake the task and placing the coffin in his biplane, flew to the cemetery where he made such a bad landing that he nearly killed himself. M. Sopornowski's relatives reluctantly paid his $100,000 out of the estate.

BLAMING THE GOVERNMENT

It has been a favorite charge in the mouths of the Laurier Opposition that Canada is suffering from hard times and that thousands of men are out of employment because of what the Government has done or has refrained from doing. They deliberately ignore the conditions of other countries. They do not look to the United States because there they would see exactly similar conditions except on a much larger scale. The Canadian Government can hardly be charged with responsibility for these conditions. Take one example. The Pennsylvania Railway is suspending from employment no fewer than twenty-five thousand men and is withdrawing sixty-five trains from service. The president of the Pennsylvania has given out these figures himself.

TREBLED THE COST

Mr. Fielding estimated the cost per mile of the National Transcontinental about $35,000. The real cost of the road was $102,000, or exactly three times what the estimate was. If the interest that the Government will have to pay for seven years, where no rental is charged, is included in the cost, the railroad will cost per mile $17,000. Hon. Mr. Graham figures the cost per mile $85,00, but to secure this he takes in the Grand Trunk Pacific from Winnipeg to the coast, which was built at a much lower rate than the National Transcontinental from Winnipeg to Moncton.—Extract from Hon. Arthur Meighen's speech on N.T.R.

POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS

Some figures concerning smallpox at Niagara Falls, just received by the health department, are suggestive. Of the 227 new cases reported at Niagara Falls in January, 207 were of persons who had never been vaccinated.

As the Hamilton Herald points out: "With two costly transcontinental railways thrown upon his hands, Mr. Borden must almost feel like echoing the Liberal war cry of a former campaign: "Let Laurier finish his work." Laurier came within an ace of finishing the country as it was.

In this young country, where all is change, the incident is unusual, for buildings come and go and everybody is on the move, but in the old world a man rather expects to die in the room where he was born." DECLARATION OF THE PRIME MINISTER

A significant, timely and statesmanlike declaration of policy with regard to railway conditions in Canada was made by the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, in the House of Commons last week, in concluding the debate upon the report of the Investigating Commission into the methods of construction of the National Transcontinental Railway.

The Prime Minister declared that the report of the Commission had withstood unshaken the desperate assault of the Liberals, that it remained unchallenged in each and all of the main facts, and that the numerous serious charges made were still uncontradicted. The cost of the railway was four times the original estimate, and no refutation was possible of the charge that its construction had been attended by gross extravagance, graft and incompetency. The primary object for which the line was intended, viz., the reduction of freight rates, was defeated, the enormous cost making low freight rates an utter impossibility.

Upon the shoulders of the late Liberal administration must rest, declared Mr. Borden, the blame and responsibility for the serious railway problem which confronts the people of Canada today. Present conditions were due to the blundering and incompetence of the late Laurier Government.

But a note of healthy, virile optimism was struck by the Prime Minister when he announced that the present Government would endeavor to redeem this legacy of Liberal blundering in a statesmanlike and businesslike manner. He declared:—

"The Government finds itself confronted with the problem of seeing to the completion of two transcontinental railways which were initiated, supported, subsidized and guaranteed by our predecessors in office. We are confronted with the question of seeing them completed or of leaving them uncompleted. The responsibility for initiating the policy which has brought about that condition and for imposing this problem upon the country rests upon those who were then in office and are now in Opposition. But the responsibility for dealing with the situation which they created rests, as it presents itself today, upon the administration. We are not afraid of that responsibility, and we shall deal with it as best we may.

"We shall give to the situation, which we did not create, and which was brought about against our vote and our protest, the best of our energy and the best of our efforts with the full sense of the responsibility that rests upon us as trustees for the people of Canada."

Guelph Mercury: "British Columbia is aflame because a Chinese servant murdered the woman in whose house he was a servant. Public feeling is turned against the Chinese and many have been dismissed from their positions in private homes. There is no reason why the whole Celestial kingdom of B. C. should be punished for the fiendish work of one of their number." This is equivalent to condemning an entire church parish for the capers of one hypocrite.

Herald-Telegraph: "The speech of Hon. George P. Graham on the National Transcontinental Railway, and the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton, as given in the Commons on March 24th and 25th, is being printed in pamphlet form, and will be distributed free of charge to any one on application to the Central Liberal Information Office, Hope Chambers, Ottawa." Yes, it will be a most interesting treatise—a seven-hour effort on the part of the Hon. George P., on ways that are deep, dark and mysterious.

Hear the Peterborough Examiner lament: "We have conquered in the fight against nature, and now the fight begins against the ravages of man. The citizen who has a lawn on a corner, unfenced—a small city park—has before him the dread of the dogs and the human vandals that make it a "short cut," tramping the life out of the grass and making zig-zag cow paths through the beautiful sward." Well, suppose you lay in wait, and belabor the trespasser with a slat. Or, better still, keep a vicious dog attached to a chain which will give him the freedom of the lawn—we mean the dog, not the trespasser.

Feeble Old People

ARE TOLD HOW TO REGAIN STRENGTH AND VIGOR

As one grows old the waste of the system becomes more rapid than repair, the organs act more slowly and less effectively than in youth, the circulation is poor, the blood thin and digestion weak.

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil is the ideal strengthener and body-builder for old folks, for it contains the very elements needed to rebuild wasted tissues and replace weakness with strength. Vinol also fortifies the system against colds and thus prevents pneumonia.

Mrs. Mary Ivey, of Coulmbus, Ga., says: "If people only knew the good Vinol does old people, I am sure you would be unable to supply the demand I never took anything before that did me so much good as Vinol. It is the finest tonic and strength creator I ever used in my life."

If Vinol fails to build up the feeble old people, and create strength, we will return your money—Red Cross Drug Store—J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

ARE THE PRAIRIES PERMANENT

Signs of Their Disappearance in West

The dictionary defines a prairie as "a level or rolling tract of treeless land covered with coarse grass. Strictly speaking, then, the prairies no longer exist in Canada except locally, for there are no longer any large areas exempt from settlement and the settlers throughout the West have already been supplied by the Dominion Forestry Branch with over 24,000,000 trees, all of which have been planted and most of which are growing up in the form of woodlots and shelterbelts. So successful have been these plantations and so great has the demand for trees grown that the Indian Head Nursery Station, which has an annual capacity of approximately three million trees can no longer supply this demand and it has been found necessary to establish a branch nursery at Saskatoon.

The opinion was once wide-spread that the prairie were naturally treeless and many ingenious theories were advanced to account for this treelessness. One was that the soil was too fine; a second that the soil was all right, but that because of the thick sod the tree seeds could not reach it; another theory was that there was insufficient rainfall, and still another that the dry winter killed the bugs and twigs. But if any of these factors have been detrimental to tree-growth on the prairies in the past, the Forestry Branch has since succeeded in producing trees which are so adapted to climatic conditions that growth is assured, if the trees are given a proper start.

The most probable cause of the treelessness of the prairies is man, not Nature. The fact that the Indians long ago were in the habit of setting fires to the forests and grass-lands in order to afford better grazing, and that in the fall, when these fires were usually set, the prevailing winds were westerly, seems to prove that from the arid plains of southern Alberta and the United States, the area of treeless land was gradually extended by fire hundreds of miles easterly. But in Manitoba since these fires have ceased, the western fringe of forest has begun to recover lost ground, and aided by artifical reforestation under the stimulus of the Forestry Branch, tree-growth will soon be as common on the praries as on the farms of Eastern Canada.

WELDING THE ELEMENTS

Great Task That Confronts the Dominion of Canada

A word picture of the great task which awaits Canada in welding into one the varied elements from Europe, is given by Mrs. Donald Shaw in the National Review. "Probably very few of those resident in the British Isles, and certainly only a very small percentage of Canadians," she says, "are as yet fully awake to the national problem that is rapidly crystallizing into definite and tangible shape, through the almost overwhelming flood-tide of immigration which has poured, and is still pouring, into the dominion. At the present moment forty-eight different languages are in daily use in Canada, and practically every known religious creed is represented.

"So far there has never been a country which was in the position of Canada to-day, for the civilized race is a mere unit, and is being overwhelmed by an avalanche of races drawn from almost every quarter of the globe. How, then, is this small unit of thinking, organized, and civilized people going to remain predominant, and to mould the superabundance of ignorance and diversification of races into one united Canadian whole?

"Canada has long since realized that there is no need for her to subscribe to foreign missions, for she has the foreigner on her very door step, and she has to deal with him on a more difficult and dangerous basis than do the workers in the missions established amongst these people in their own lands. For the Chinaman, the Japanese, the Hindoo, the Jew, the Ruthenian, and the Italian slips his shackles off him when he enters Canada and becomes a free man. Those who understand what the ignorant conception of freedom is will realize what the possible result of this may be to the life of a country if steps are not taken in time to counteract it."

NEGLECTED SHADE TREES

Large Percentage of These Want Doctoring

According to Dr. Fernow, in the small towns of eastern Canada it is safe to say that at least seventy-five per cent. of the shade trees need attention, for, unlike the cities, these towns employ no "tree doctors" to guard the health of the trees, and even trimming is done but irregularly and often carelessly. Yet if the shade trees in many of these towns were destroyed one of their chief attractions would be gone.

There are several reasons why the trees in these old towns require special attention. The chief is probably due to defective crown development, the result of overcrowding. Misshapen and weakened crowns result in excessive windbreak and ragged breaks, if left untrimmed, provide the best possible entrance for fungi and insect pests, so that a great number of these fine old shade trees, which because of their very age are unable unassisted to shake off these foes, are slowly dying through neglect.

34 YEARS IN MINE

Chinaman Make Pile and Becomes Citizen

Out of the Omineca after 34 years spent in gold mines, Ah Luk, a Chinese, has returned north to his Siwash wife and young son. For the first time in his life he traveled on a railway train, got his first sight of an automobile, street cars, electric lights and all the conveniences of the modern city.

In Vancouver Ah Luk made application to become a Canadian citizen as he never intends to return to China. He plans to send his young son to Vancouver to school.

Ah Luk went into the Cariboo mining district when he was 17 years old. Later he travelled into the Omineca, where he has been placer mining ever since. He is settled on Germansen Creek where his summers are spent in washing the golden gravel, his winters in trapping. On Vital Creek in the early days he took out $11,000 in one season. His gains from mining are now more modest.

Twelve years ago, the lonely Chinese miner fell a victim to the charms of Josephine, a belle of the Babine Indians and they were married by a missionary priest of that country. This marriage forms an effective bond to keep him in British Columbia and he has given up all hope of ever seeing China again.

Gossip and Women's Clubs

Only one thing is fatal to the happy social life of any country community, and that is gossip. If the ladies cannot find in the wide field of housekeeping, chicken-raising, preserving, care of children, public schools, music, art, reading, public improvements, good government, health, sewing, entertaining and all other delightful household tasks, enough material to lift the meetings above petty personalities, then the little club, or whatever it is called, is doomed. Whenever gossip is allowed into any organization people will begin to break up into little cliques or circles or groups, and the whole thing fails.—Farm and Fireside.

Pilgrims to Mecca

The annual number of pilgrims to Mecca often exceeds 100,000, the greater number coming from the far east and the middle east, and of these the last census included about 15,000 from Bombay, 10,000 from Singapore and about 12,000 from Batavia.

Cement Record in States

Geological survey estimates place the production of Portland cement in the United States for one year at the record-breaking figure of 92,406,000 barrels.

NEWS OF BRITAIN BRIEFLY TOLD

Armagh Silver Mine

What is believed to be a valuable deposit of silver has been found near Keady, county Armagh, as the result of a ploughman's driving his plough into a piece of ore.

Society Nicknames

The Duke of Portland is known among his intimates as "Jumbo," on account of his somewhat stout and rubicund appearance. Nicknames are growing even more popular than they have been in society circles. The Marquess de Soveral is known as "Blue Monkey"; Lord Stamfordham, King George's private secretary, as "Stammy"; the fondness of Lord Lonsdale for horseflesh has led his being dubbed "The Groom"; Prince Albert, second son of King George, is known as "Lobster"; and the Marquess of Crewe as "Robin." The fact that the editor of "Punch" is now Sir Owen Seaman promptly led his friends to give him the nickname of "S.O.S."

Mixed Bathing

Mixed bathing was a question that caused trouble under the Roman empire. It came in with the collapse of austere republican manners, and the Emperors Hadrian and Marcus Aurelius found it necessary to issue orders against it. Alexander Severus also forbade the opening of "balnea mixtra" in Rome. Later on we find great diversity of view in Europe on the matter. In the fifteenth century Bohemian and Spanish travellers were astonished at the goings-on at Bruges, Malines and Brussels. The public baths at the Swiss Baden, where only a railing separated the sexes scandalized Poggio Bracciolini.

Fortune Telling Popular

Crystal gazing and fortune telling are on the increase in high society in London, Eng., and the seer and seeress who succeed in getting an aristocratic clientele are prosperous people. Even royalty is not exempt from the desire to see into the future. Queen Alexandra has one of the finest collections of crystals in existence, and one or two new ones were added to it at Christmas. Her majesty's sister, the Empress Dowager of Russia, who is most enthusiastic regarding occult subjects, invariably consults several seers when she is in England. There is one special one who has long and intimate conversations with the imperial lady, and sometimes stays with her for several days at a time at Sandringham. She is supposed to have foretold all that happened to the young Czarewitch. The seer is often engaged to amuse a house party. In some quarters, he or she receives a regular yearly salary from certain families, and is expected to attend when required.

Twenty Years in Chains

A woman dwarf has been discovered in the Village of Olivet, near Orleans, France, who has been kept chained to a trestle bed for twenty years, by fetters which allowed her to move only three yards. The prisoner's stepmother and a half-brother are responsible for her captivity and are supposed to have acted in this way to have the benefit of an annuity of $140, left to the dwarf by her father. A commercial traveler selling sewing machines, was passing by a lonely barn when he heard groans and, going in, saw, in the gloom, the pathetic figure of the dwarf raising imploring arms to him. He went to the Paris police and next day ten people listened outside the barn and heard the dwarf moan. They then asked the old woman and her son for the stepdaughter, who had not been seen for twenty years. With complete cynicism the pair confessed that she had been chained all the time in the barn.

A LICENSE NECESSARY

"You need not hesitate about smoking that cigar. It is my favorite brand."

"Smoke them yourself?"

"All the time."

The man looked at it suspiciously, lighted the torch, and took a few puffs.

"How do you like it?"

"Well," he replied guardedly, "I was just wondering."

"Wondering what?"

"If you have to get a permit from the health officer to smoke them."

"CATCH-MY-PAL"

"There are five men at the lamp post you ought to get to sign the pledge," said a workingman to Rev. J. R. Patterson. He went back with the speaker to the group. They talked the matter over. Signed the pledge within a week. "Next week I want you to bring in a man each to sign the pledge," said Mr. Patterson to the group. Next week there were eleven, six new men and five of the first lot. One man was away looking after a sick relative. Next week there were thirty-one men, boozers, topers, soakers of the worst type. Next week one hundred and five. Within five weeks six hundred men had signed. Within one year 140,000 men had signed the pledge in Ireland."—"Catch-My-Pal Movement."

CONSERVING THE RACE

New Prison Treatment Economic of Citizens

Col. Clark in responding to the toast, "Canada," at the annual dinner of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association said that while in the past Canada had been profligate of its great assets, the problem of conservation was being taken up and that the idea of conservation included the men, women and children, living and working in Canada. The speaker asserted that the new idea in treating prisoners and criminals was that every prisoner was not a criminal and that every criminal was not a prisoner. In connection with this idea he spoke of the Guelph prison farm, where men are given a fresh start.

Great Britain, Col Clark asserted, had made mistakes, but was still the greatest single secular force for good in the world. As long as Britain retained that distinction, so long would she occupy the position of leadership.

Tattooed by Insects

Commander Herbert A. Edwards, who was lent by the British Government to direct the Survey Commission, has completed a survey of 300 miles of disputed frontier between Bolivia and Brazil. The expedition suffered great hardships.

A tiny insect known as plum settled in thousands on every exposed portion, injecting a poison which, though not dangerous, occasioned intense pain and gave the explorers the appearance of having been tattooed.

Insects of every description made life almost unbearable, among these being a hornet measuring almost an inch and a half in length, and a spider whose body was three to four inches in circumference, and which left an angry red trail over the flesh.

Drug Clerk Tells How To Cure Indigestion

Recommends to Sufferers the Best Stomach Remedy in Belleville Today

"It is a wonder some of us have stomachs left," remarked a well-known drug clerk recently. "While all drug stores sell a score of more of stomach remedies for which there is a wide demand, most of them are just pepsin pills which digest the food that is in the stomach at the time. They have no curative or strengthening effect on the stomach at all, and of course do not reach or cure the cause. So the same people keep on coming here and buying and using them until they are real chronic dyspeptics. When anyone really asks my advice, I swear by and recommend ordinary bisurated magnesia, which doesn't digest the food at all but just acts as an antacid and sweetens the sour, fermenting contents of the stomach. That stops the pain, heart-burn, sour rising, wind, bloating, fullness, etc., in just a few minutes, and the stomach digests its food without help or trouble which is the proper way."

"Doctors make mistakes sometimes, too," he continued. "My own aunt had all kinds of trouble with her stomach for years. She bought and used several styles of digestive pills but got worse right along, as naturally she would. Finally she went to a doctor, who nearly scared her to death by telling her she had cancer of the stomach. She came to me with his prescription and told me what he said. I thought it was nonsence I sent her to another doctor whom I knew very well and he didn't tell her anything, but just gave her this same thing, bisurated magnesia. She took it two weeks and never has had any stomach trouble since and that's three years ago. She's my own aunt and I know this for a fact. Yes, a lot of bisurated magnesia is sold in Belleville. All the druggists have it, I suppose, and all you take is a teaspoonful after every meal. It's all right."

FRUIT EXPERT APPOINTED.

Daniel Johnson of Forest, Ont., Is to Be Head of New Branch.

OTTAWA, April 8.—Hon. Martin Burrell has organized the fruit division of the Department of Agriculture as a separate branch of the Department. The first commissioner will be Daniel Johnson, of Forest, Ont., who will be directly responsible to the Minister. Since 1905 the fruit division has been under the general direction of J. A. Ruddick, the dairy and cold storage commissioner, with the late Alexander M. Neill as head of the fruit section.

However, Mr. Burrell is convinced that the fruit industry now demands the special attention of an expert head, and Mr. Johnson will begin his duties on May 1. He will have the supervision of the fruit industry and all matters in connection with it. There are now over 500,000 acres of Canadian orchards. Mr. Johnson was for two years president of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association.

Not as Dead as He Looked.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 8.—Half an hour after his companions had carried him to an undertaker's morgue as dead, after touching a wire carrying 2,300 volts, Carl Lundell suddenly sat up, rubbed his eyes, and when he saw where he was he got down from the slab and hurried out of the place.

After getting the worst of it in an argument she says to him, "Now, why can't you be sensible?"

A druggist in Toronto said that he was asking an Old Country customer of his about KEPHALDOL TABLETS. This customer told him "I suffered from severe Rheumatism and Sciatica for twenty years hardly ever being free from these troubles. I read about KEPHALDOL in the Glasgow papers and sent home for some. Three hours after taking two tablets, the pain was almost gone, and after taking six or seven, I hadn't a bit of pain."

This druggist went in to see his doctor about his wife and asked him if he had ever heard of KEPHALDOL. The doctor said: "Yes, I understand KEPHALDOL is a reliable sedative and anodyne relieving pain without affecting the heart or the vital organs. Since KEPHALDOL has been introduced into Canada, I have prescribed it in cases of severe Headache and Neuralgia and just recently succeeded in helping a most severe case of La Grippe with it."

Since then, this druggist has ordered KEPHALDOL and recommended it to those of his customers who wanted something to relieve pain. If you are unable to get KEPHALDOL Tablets at your druggist's, send 50c to Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

COULD CRUSH CAILLAUX.

Editor Calmette Had Documents of Great Importance.

PARIS, April 8.—Louis Latzarus, associate editor of The Figaro in the course of examination by the magistrate, yesterday said: "M. Calmette talked with me in January about the part played by M. Caillaux in the negotiations with Germany concerning the Agadir incident in Morocco, while he was Prime Minister. M. Calmette had a portfolio in front of him from which he took two documents. These were of a diplomatic character of extreme importance and were so formal and so crushing that their publication would have stripped M. Caillaux of power without any hope of recovery.

"M. Calmette said to me that he could not publish these documents without fear of provoking foreign complications, nor would he give me an idea of what the documents contained."

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 8.—A branch of the Union Bank of Canada at New Hazelton was held up yesterday morning.

Two bandits were killed at 10.30 yesterday morning in a battle between the robbers and a big posse of citizens. Four others have got away, though the desultory firing in the long-distance fight was still to be heard last night. The quartette secured $1,100 in cash. The bank had opened for business only a few minutes when the robbery was pulled off. Two men, armed with rifles, walked up the road, two others appeared in the bush at the rear of the bank, while the last two came from another direction. The first two jumped inside the door of the bank, and with rifles raised, called out "Hands up!"

The other four appeared almost at the same instant, taking up positions outside the bank. The first two robbed a customer of a roll of bills he was depositing and as they backed out the clerks started firing.

The shooting alarmed the town, and several cowboys who happened to be in a hardware store, got their guns into play at once. They were backed up by citizens, and within a few moments, the fusilade was general.

Shooting from cover, the posse did such effective work that two of the robbers fell dead in their tracks as they raced along the road towards the bush. The posse gave pursuit and the chase is still in progress.

There have been several robberies in the province in the last few months.

GROCER IS MURDERED.

Robert Hayde's Body Found Buried In a Manure Pile.

MIDLAND, April 8.—Robt. Hayde, a grocer of Tomahawk Point, two miles north of Honey Harbor, was murdered on or about the night of Friday, March 27. His body was found on Monday night, buried in a manure heap near the stable of his home. There was a shot wound in the back of his neck, whether inflicted by a gun or a rifle is not known, but the weapon had been fired close enough to the neck to singe the hair. Three men, who were aiding in the search for Hayde, which had been maintained since his disappearance on March 27, found the body.

Hayde was a bachelor, about fifty years of age, and lived alone. A sister resides here. On the day he disappeared he was for a short time in Midland. For some days search was made for him in the channels among the surrounding islands, as it was feared he might have dropped through a hole in the ice and been drowned. Later some people advanced the idea that he had been murdered for his money, of which he generally carried a considerable sum on his person. This fear has now been realized.

The men who found the body were standing on the manure heap discussing what further steps should be taken in the search when they noticed an unusual conformation in the pile and made their search.

ASQUITH GETS SEAT.

East Fife Will Almost Certainly Go By Acclamation.

LONDON, April 8. — Unless some surprise should appear at the eleventh hour, Premier Asquith will today, for the ninth consecutive time, be returned, this time unopposed, to represent East Fife. This follows upon the decision of the Unionist executive at Cupar yesterday, when they announced that, in deference to the wishes of delegates, Col. Sprot agreed not to contest the seat. It would be entirely unfair to blame the Unionist headquarters in London, or, indeed, the local executive, for hesitating to extend the Premier the courtesy of an uncontested election. Col. Sprot seems to have been almost alone among the executive in failing to appreciate the wisdom of the step taken by the Premier in going to the War Office.

WOMEN ALL DEFEATED.

Every One of Chicago's Nine Fair Candidates Snowed Under.

CHICAGO, April 8. — "Bath House" John Coughlin was re-elected alderman in Chicago's First Ward yesterday by a plurality over Miss Marion Drake of nearly 4,000 votes.

He received twice as many women votes as Miss Drake, the Progressive candidate. His plurality alone exceeded the total women registrations of the ward. All nine women candidates for aldermen in Chicago were defeated. Less than 100,000 of the 217,458 registered women went to the polls. That's the story of the first trial of women suffrage in Chicago.

Royal Society Members.

OTTAWA, April 8.—New members of the Royal Society of Canada elected Monday by the council are: Principal Dr. Peterson, of McGill University; Prof. Mavor, of the University of Toronto; Prof. Francis Barclay Allan, University of Toronto; Dr. T. G. Roddick, Montreal; Hon. Dr. Ernest Choquette, M.L.C., Quebec; and Prof. Edouard Montpetit, of Laval University, Montreal. There was a tie vote between Hector Garneau, of Montreal, and Eugene Rouillard, of Quebec.

Dynamite Ship Wrecked.

NEW YORK, April 8. — A cable from Havana says:

ROYAL LOVE AFFAIRS

Can Cupid Sometimes Supersedes Tradition

The romantic love story of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, provides a striking illustration of what a woman of inferior rank may have to suffer for marrying a royal personage. The archduke who is heir to the Austrian throne, declined to marry any of the royal ladies offered for his choice, for he had fallen in love with a maid of honor, the beautiful woman who is now his wife.

Although the emperor at last gave his sanction to the marriage, imperial honors were denied the bride, and it was only after some years that she and her husband wore down the prejudice which existed against her, and she was created a duchess by the emperor—a title which conferred upon her privileges more in harmony with her dignity as the lawful wife of the future sovereign. By the terms of the marriage settlements, however, the archduke's wife cannot become empress, nor even her children succeed to the imperial throne; although it is pointed out that royal marriage settlements have, before now, been set aside.

THE PHOTOGRAPHER'S ART

Camera Models Not Always the Prettiest Girls

A photographer who was called on to pick five beauties from a group of 100 for the purposes of a picture group selected five girls very quickly. A spectator gasped at his choice. "I shouldn't call these the prettiest!" he exclaimed.

"They're prettiest for photographers," answered the photographer, who proved his point by the result.

Here's one part of the secret: There are "photographable" faces, and the artist in photography knows the trick of picking them, as well as that other trick of making the most of them before his camera.

The quality of being "photographable" in any special degree is not commonly discernible to the average person. Many famous camera models make a good living by the discovery of this quality.

Of course, looking charming in front of a lens is something, too, of a mental gift. There can be no doubt that many women look their best before a lens. What is an ordeal to other women is to them a stimulation, an incitement to sparkle. Women with the gift naturally have a great advantage, quite aside from the advantage furnished by strictly facial charm. Their "look" is attractive as well as their "lines." Their eyes, instead of looking set and "starey," look interested—quite as if they were looking into the eyes of a friend. That is certainly a part of the sitter's trick—to make friends with the lens.

THE NEW MORALITY

A New York Woman's Ideas on Better Conditions

Grace Isabel Colbrone of New York, discussing "The New Morality," said: "The New Morality is to my mind really the old morality revived, I mean the morality of the New Testament. The Christian church to-day is not teaching this. When the early Christians fought for their faith, it was not for a church doctrine, but for a doctrine of civil service. Nowadays you can start a church any day in the year. Witness Mrs. Eddy and Billy Sunday. And you will get rich over it, but when you start a doctrine of social service you are in danger of being crucified." On the equality of birth Miss Colbrone was quite clear. "Put one hundred babies in a row," she said, "and no one could tell by looking at them, which was born in a hovel or in a palace. Everything that each little body needed is provided by the land, and everyone born is an increase of wealth to the land, because everyone has a mouth, it has also two hands to work and provide for that mouth; yet every little child is the supreme egotist and it is the duty of the mother to teach it the rights of its brothers and sisters. Applying this to the community morality would only be best developed when individuals consider the rights of others."

Man's Bravery

A man may stop a foaming horse that's tearing down the street,
May stop an enemy's advance amid the battle's seat;
In fact, stop almost anything in situations trying;
But not a single man alive can stop a baby crying.

Gael's Death at Sea

When the body of a popular Gael named Doyle, who died on the voyage from America reached Ballywilliam, County Wexford, it was met by a large concourse of people, including a body of Gaels, who marched in procession to the cemetery. He wrote home prior to starting from America, but on nearing the Irish coast he died.

MELVILLE NEWS

Miss Nina Adams, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Adams, was given a very delightful social surprise on Wednesday evening of last week. She is exchanging this week the duties of a daughter in the parental home to the wider and more responsible duties of wife in a new home of her own with an altogether promising future. About thirty-five young friends, all of whom have been intimately associated with Miss Adams in church and social circles, gathered at her home and brought a store of useful gifts to shower "the bride-to-be", many accompanied by little poems appropriately descriptive of the part they would be called upon to play in the new home life. After refreshments were served and presents admired, a social evening was spent.

The home of Mrs. Herbert Zufelt was the scene of a pleasant gathering on Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. Zufelt entertained the young ladies of her Sunday school class. The class was well represented and the time passed most enjoyably in games and other amusements, after which refreshments were served.

RATES CASE FINDING

Substantial Reductions Are Ordered by Railway Board.

Famous Case Comes to an End With a Judgement Which Gives Liberal Cut In Tolls on Grain, Flour, Coal, Sugar, Pig Iron, Dairy Products, Dressed Meats and Cement—Live Stock Unchanged.

OTTAWA, April 8.—The judgment of the Board of Railway Commissioners in what is known as the Western Rate Case, which has occupied the attention of the Board in various forms since 1904, was issued yesterday afternoon.

The judgment covers some 200 pages and makes many substantial cuts. It deal with each contention in order, and refers frequently to the reports of the Board's chief traffic officer, and attaches his examples of reductions ordered.

After dealing with various arguments of counsel, the judgment proceeds to outline a comprehensive basis to tolls and a complete rate structure for all railways in western Canada subject to its jurisdiction.

The territory west of the great lakes is divided into three sections. The first is called the prairie section, extending from the great lakes to the mountains, the second the Pacific section, including mainland rail lines in British Columbia; and the third the B. C. lake section, including the inland navigable waters in that province.

A standard scale of maximum freight rates is fixed for each section. The lowest scale in the west, now known as the Manitoba standard has been amplified to show rates up to two thousand and one hundred miles, and will apply throughout the entire prairie section and on the the British Columbia lakes, abolishing the higher scale now charged in Saskatchewan and Alberta. What will be known as the Pacific scale is on a somewhat higher basis and will govern in Pacific territory. These changes result in substantial reductions from the present standard maximum scales in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Local grain and flour rates are substantially reduced by two methods, first by a direct reduction ranging from 20 to 30 per cent., and secondly by making the terminal Fort William rates the maximum that may be charged between intermediate stations. For example, Broadview to Winnipeg now twenty becomes fifteen cents, through the application of the Fort William rate as maximum. The west-bound rates on flour and other grain products are similarly reduced.

The United Farmers of Alberta also win out in their application for reduced rates on these products to British Columbia stations.

Coal rates from Lethbridge and other Alberta mines are substantially cut; for example, from Lethbridge to Calgary from $1.80 per ton to $1.45, to Edmonton from $2.85 to $2.20, Swift Current $2.40 to $1.90, Regina $5.10 to $2.65, Virden $4.10 to $3.40, Saskatoon $3.95 to $3.50 per ton. From the Souris mines reductions made by the board in the Alameda case are confirmed and others made.

Carload sugar rates from Raymond, Alta., to prairie points also receive substantial cuts.

The special mileage rates on butter, cheese and eggs, dressed meats and dressed poultry, between all prairie points come in for reductions.

The special mileage tariffs on vegetables in Manitoba are shown to be reasonable; the rates, however, in Saskatchewan and Alberta, which are on a somewhat higher scale, are reduced to the Manitoba basis.

The special rates on fruits and vegetables from British Columbia, which have been revised and reduced since the complaint against them was launched by the United Farmers of Alberta, are left untouched.

The rates on cement from Winnipeg are shown to be very little from those of Ontario, and are not reduced, but the higher rates from cement plants in Alberta and Saskatchewan are reduced to the Winnipeg scale.

No reduction is made in live stock rates, which are shown to be reasonable in view of the favorable carload minimum weights and the volume of traffic.

The rates on fence posts, firewood, brick, stone, gravel and sand are found to be generally lower than those applying in Ontario, but the higher scales prevailing in Alberta and Saskatchewan are reduced to the lower Manitoba levels.

Rates on ores, concentrates and smelter products in and from British Columbia are found to constitute a large percentage of the traffic of that province, and are found remunerative only in the sense of contributing to the general prosperity.

The rate on pig iron from Port Arthur and Fort William to Winnipeg is reduced from twenty cents per hundred pounds to three dollars per gross ton, or 13.4 cents per 100 pounds.

The board has considered the question of local passenger rates in British Columbia very carefully. It finds that the local passenger business is at present being conducted at a loss and will not move at present.

Japan's Political Crisis.

TOKIO, Japan, April 8. — The Japanese Empire has been thrown into a condition of utter political confusion by the inability of Viscount Keiga Kiyoura to form a Cabinet to replace that under the Premiership of Count Yamamoto.

All the political groups as well as the navy have virtually gone on strike. The various progressive factions declare that the constitution is not being properly observed, while the navy demands immediate advances of money for warship construction and the appointment of a sailor as Minister of Marine.

MAY OPPOSE ASQUITH.

Carson Talked of as a Possible Contestant In East Fife.

—LONDON, April 7.—Nothing can be definitely ascertained regarding East Fife. Leaders of the Tory party in a division decided on Saturday night that there should be no contest, and when the Conservative executive met yesterday it was assumed that the meeting would formally ratify the decisions of the chairman and secretary, but an obstinate minority, anxious for a fight at all costs, revealed itself.

It appears that the Ulster members of the Unionist executive at East Fife are very strongly opposed to the idea that Asquith should have a walk-over, and are moving heaven and earth to get somebody to oppose him. They are ready with money, and are prepared to flood the constituency with missionaries from Ulster.

"The latest rumor," says The Daily Chronicle, "is that Carson is going to resign his seat in order to fight the Prime Minister. Should there by any chance be a contest, Asquith will speak at Leven on Thursday night.

MILITANT USED HER VOICE.

"Gen." Drummond So Noisy Court Had to Be Adjourned.

LONDON, April 7. — "Gen." Mrs. Flora Drummond, the militant suffragette, shrieked so loudly when she was arraigned yesterday at the police court in connection with the suffragette disturbance at the Unionist demonstration in Hyde Park on Saturday that she had to be forcibly removed, and her trial adjourned. She would not allow either the magistrate or the prosecuting attorney to utter an audible word.

When Mrs. Drummond entered the prisoners' enclosure she shouted at the top of her voice that she would not permit any one but herself to speak, because, she said, the magistrate and the police courts were doing the dirty work of Premier Asquith.

Vol. 47 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 1914. No. 285

"RUN TO EARTH"

By the Author of
"Lady Audley's Secret," "Aurora Floyd," etc., etc.

"Well, no; not for long, mate; for I've got an appointment to keep in this house, on the fifth of April, with a brother of mine, who's homeward-bound from Barbadoes. You see, my brother and me are partners; whatever good luck one has he shares it with the other. We've been uncommon lucky lately."

The captain slapped his hand upon one of his capacious pockets as he spoke. Dennis Wayman watched the gesture with eager eyes. All through Valentine's speech, Joyce Harker had been trying to arrest his attention, but trying in vain. When the owner of the "Piazarro" began to talk, it was very difficult to stop him.

Out in the street, Joyce Harker remonstrated with his employer.

"I told you that fellow was not to be trusted, captain", he said; "and yet you blabbed to him about the money."

'Nonsense, Joyce. I didn't say a word about money."

"Didn't you though, captain? You said quite enough to let that man know you'd got the cash about you. But you won't go back to that place till you go to meet Captain George on the fifth?"

"Of course not."

"You won't change your mind, captain?"

"Not I."

"Because, you see, I shall be down at Blackwall, looking after the repairs, for it will be sharp work to get finished against you want to sail for Rio. So, you see, I shall be out of the way. And if you did go back to that house alone, Lord knows what they might try on."

"Don't you be afraid, Joyce. In the first place I shan't go back there till twelve o'clock on the fifth. I'll come up from Plymouth by the night coach, and put up at the "Golden Cross' like a gentleman. And, in the second place, I flatter myself I'm a match for any set of land-sharks in creation."

"No, you're not, captain. No honest man is ever a match for a scoundrel."

Jernam and his companion carried the captain's portmanteau between them. They hailed a hackney-coach presently, and drove to the "Golden Cross", through the chill, gray streets, where the closed shutters had a funereal aspect.

At the coach-office they parted, with many friendly words on both sides; but to the last Joyce Harker was grave and anxious.

The last he saw of his friend and employer was the captain's dark face looking out of the coach-window; the captain's hand waved in cordial farewell.

"What a good fellow he is!—what a noble fellow!" thought the wizen little clerk, as he trudged back towards the City. "But was there ever a baby so helpless on shore?—was there ever an innocent infant that needed so much looking after?"

• • • • •

Valentine Jernam arrived at Plymouth early the next morning, and walked from Plymouth to the little village of Allanbay, in which lived the only relative he had in the world, except his brother George. Walking at a leisurely pace along the quiet road, Captain Jernam, although not usually a thoughtful person, was fain to think about something, and fell to thinking over the past.

Light-hearted and cheery of spirit as the adventurous sailor was now-a-days, his childhood had been a very sad one. Motherless at eight years of age, and ill-used by a drunken father the boy had suffered as the children of the poor too often suffer.

His mother had died, leaving George an infant of less than twelve months old; and from the hour of her death, Valentine had been the infant's sole nurse and protector; standing between the helpless little one and the father's brutality; enduring all hardships cheerfully, so long as he was able to shelter little Georgy.

On more than one occasion, the elder boy had braved and defied his father in defence of the younger brother.

It was scarcely strange, therfore, that there should arise between the two brothers an affection beyond the ordinary mesures of brotherly love. Valentine had supplied the place of both parents to his brother George—the place of the mother, who lay buried in Allanbay churchyard; the place of the father, who had sunk into a living death of drunkenness and profligacy.

They were not peasant-born these Jernams. The father had been a lieutenant in the Royal Navy; but had deservedly lost his commission, and had come, with his devoted wife, to hide his disgrace at Allanbay. The vices which had caused his expulsion from the navy had increased with every year, until the family had sunk to the lowest depths of poverty and degradation, in spite of the wife's heroic efforts to accomplish the reform of a reprobate. She had struggled nobly till the last, and had died broken hearted, leaving the helpless children to the mercy of a wretch whose nature had become utterly debased and brutalized.

Throughout their desolate childhood the brothers had been all in all to each other, and as soon as George was old enough to face the world with his brother, the two boys ran away to sea, and obtained employment on board a small trading vessel.

At sea, as on shore, Valentine stood between his younger brother and all hardships. But the rough sailors were kinder than the drunken father had been, and the two lads fared pretty well.

Thus began the career of the two Jernams. Through all changes of fortune, the brothers had clung to each other. Despite all differences of character, their love for each other had known neither change nor diminution; and to-day, walking alone upon this quiet country road, the tears clouded Valentine Jernam's eyes as he remembered how he had trodden it in the old time with his little brother in his arms.

"I shall see his dear face on the fifth", he thought; "God bless him!"

The old aunt lived in a cottage near the entrance to the village. She was comfortably off now—thanks to the two merchant captains; but she had been very poor in the days of their childhood, and had been able to do but little for the neglected lads. She had given them shelter, however, when they had been afraid to go home to their father, and had shared her humble fare with them very often.

Mrs. Jernam, as she was called by her neighbors, in right of her sixty years of age, was sitting by the window when her nephew opened the little garden gate; but she had opened the door before he could knock, and was standing on the threshold ready to embrace him.

"My boy," she exclaimed, "I have been looking for you so long!"

That day was given up to pleasant talk between the aunt and nephew. She was so anxious to hear his adventures, and he was so willing to tell them. He sat before the fire smoking, while Susan Jernam's busy fingers plied her knitting-needles and relating his hair-breadth escapes and perils between the puffs of blue smoke.

The captain was regaled with an excellent dinner, and a bottle of wine of his own importation. After dinner, he strolled out into the village, saw his old friends and acquaintances and talked over old times. Altogether his first day at Allanbay passed very pleasantly.

The second day at Allanbay, however, hung heavily on the captain's hands. He had told all his adventures; he had seen all his old acquaintances. The face of the ballad-singer haunted him perpetually; and he spent the best part of the day leaning over the garden-gate and smoking. Mrs. Jernam was not offended at her nephew's conduct.

"Ah! my boy", she said, smiling on her handsome kinsman, "it's fortunate Providence made you a sailor, for you'd have been ill-fitted for any but a roving life."

The third day of Valentine Jernam's stay at Allanbay was the second of April, and on that morning his patience was exhausted. The face which had made itself a part of his very mind lured him back to London. He was a man who had never accustomed himself to school his impulses; and the impulse that drew him back to London was irresistible.

"I must and will see her once more", he said to himself; "perhaps, if I see her face again, I shall find out it's only a common face after all, and get the better of this folly. But I must see her. After the fifth, George will be with me, and I shan't be my own master. I must see her before the fifth."

Impetuous in all things, Valentine Jernam was not slow to act upon his resolution. He told his aunt that he had business to transact in London. He left Allanbay at noon, walked to Plymouth, took the afternoon coach, and rode into London on the following day.

It was one o'clock when Captain Jernam found himself once more in the familiar seafaring quarter; early at it was, the noise of riot and revelry had begun already.

The landlord looked up with an expression of considerable surprise as the captain of the "Pizarro" crossed the threshold.

"Why, captain," he said, "I thought we weren't to see you till the fifth."

"Well, you see, I had some business to do in this neighborhood, so I changed my mind."

"I'm very glad you did", answered Dennis Wayman, cordially; "you've just come in time to take a snack of dinner with me and my missus, so you can sit down, and make yourself at home, without ceremony."

The captain was too good-natured to refuse an invitation that seemed proffered in such a hearty spirit. And beyond this, he wanted to hear more about Jenny Milsom, the ballad-singer.

So he ate his dinner with Mr. Wayman and his wife, and found himself asking all manner of questions about the singing girl in the course of his hospitable entertainment.

He asked if the girl was going to sing at the tavern to-night.

"No", answered the landlord; "this is Friday. She only sings at my place on Mondays, Wednesday and Saturdays."

"And what does she do with herself for the rest of the week?"

SPIRIT FROM POTATOES

Farmers Generally Are Watching the Progress of a German Industry

Canadian farmers are following with interest the development of a German industry which manufactures motor spirit from potatoes. It is claimed that good and bad tubers can be used and that about $6.50 worth of spirit can be extracted from a ton of potatoes. Discussing this question in England the London Post says: "There are some 460,000 acres of potatoes raised in England and Wales, whereas Germany devotes considerably over eight million acres to the same crop. The policy which farmers have outlined for themselves in this country favors the production of the potato as a vegetable, and compared with its value for spirit-making purposes it is probably worth from two to four times as much when grown for the table. The normal procedure when tubers go wrong is to pick out the bad ones and after boiling feed them to stock. If a spirit industry would absorb the surplus and indifferent tubers it would unquestionably be preferable to losing them in wholesale fashion, but it might further tend to keep prices at a monotonous level. In the larger potato-growing districts the planting of potatoes for spirit extraction is not viewed with great favor, as the area already allotted to the crop is great, and the only field of expansion would be in those districts where potato growing is at present practised on an insignificant scale.

"If the class of tuber suitable for spirit-making were planted the farmer would require to depend upon a super yield for his profit. The coarser and better yielding varieties would be favored, but with a value of $5 a ton the proposal does not seem very attractive, as the probable inclusive cost of growing would be about $50 an acre, certainly not less if the usual practice of manuring heavily is carried out. As a means of disposing of surplus stocks the spirit factory might be very useful and would no doubt be eagerly supported, but in a year of scarcity there would be some difficulty about supplies. It is important to keep the land in cultivation, and no crop does more to maintain it in good heart than the potato, which is one of the pivots of the rotation, but it remains to be seen whether farmers would be willing to risk the production of a heavy yield as an offset to the low price offered. In all probability contract growing would be necessary to ensure supplies."

INSECT TREE PESTS

Canadian Timber Being Destroyed by Insects

"The large larch sawfly," says the Dominion Entomologist, "has destroyed between fifty and one hundred per cent. of the native larch, or tamarack." Through the continued attacks of a single forest pest, whose ravages it is now impossible to control, one of the most valuable timber trees of Eastern Canada is now in danger of extinction.

In British Columbia, forest insects have destroyed in some places over twenty-five per cent. of the timber crop. Technical foresters in the employ of the Dominion Forestry Branch have noted similar depredations, when conducting forest surveys in the North-west. It is likely that in Canada as much damage is done to the standing timber by forest pests as by forest fires. Fortunately the former are largely dependent for their existence on the latter, for fire furnishes the chief feeding and breeding grounds, to the insect foes of the forest. Thus the Dominion Forestry Branch, by reducing the fireburned area on Dominion forest reserves last summer to less than two one-hundredths of one per cent, (0.2 p.c.) has succeeded in "killing two birds with the one stone." Fire minimizes the vitality of the tree and climate takes advantage of the weakness, thereby creating a condition favorable to insects and fungi. By minimizing the damage done by fire and handling the various stands according to one of the silvicultural systems suitable to that type the result can be strong, vigorous trees better equipped to withstand all natural enemies."

AMERICA'S DARK CONTINENT

Explorer Believes it Equals Africa

Charles Wellington Furlong, South American explorer, who is a visitor in Los Angeles, believes that there is more unexplored territory in South America than in the "Dark Continent."

Furlong was the first American to go through the heart of Terra del Fuego. He explored the tropical forests with only natives as guides. There were no other white men in the expedition.

The explorer made a special study of the customs and habits of the three tribes of primitive Indians—Yahgans of the Fuegian Archipelago, the Onas of Terra del Fuego, and the Patagonians.

"It is difficult for Americans to realize the great size of South America," Furlong said. "There are thirteen political divisions in the continent and one of them, Brazil, is larger in area than the United States. Argentina is one-half as large as the United States.

"The most interesting natives are the Yahgans, or canoe Indians, of the Fuegian Archipelago, in the region of Cape Horn. There, in one of the stormiest climates of the globe, they live most of the time in open canoes. They have the strange custom of keeping fires burning in the bottom of their canoes. Their only method for starting a fire is by rubbing sticks together, and, as this is a very difficult process, they are careful to keep their fires burning. They place sod in the bottom of the canoes, on which the fires are built.

"It is supposed that Magellan saw the smoke from the fires in the canoes, and for that reason named the region 'Tierra del Fuego'—'Land of Fire.' The tribe is nomadic. The Indians spend the time during the day in their canoes, and at night go ashore, wherever they happen to be, to sleep.

"The principal food of the Yahgans is shellfish and birds and small animals, which they kill with spears or slingshots. The region in which these Indians live is very barren, and they are forced to roam from one place to another in search of food. In physical appearance the Yahgans resemble the Esquimaux. They use a disjointed harpoon, similar to that used by the tribes of the north.

"The Yaghans are noted for their ability to endure cold. The women, most of them, are expert swimmers, and dive into ice water for shellfish. It appears that these Indians have no form of worship and they have no chiefs."

Rooms in London's Three Zones

Lord George Hamilton, speaking at the Mansion House Council on Housing, said:

"Dividing London into three zones —the inner and outer zones of the London County Council and the greater London beyond—he found that during the past five years there had been a diminution of 7,500 rooms in the inner zone of the London County Council, and an increase of 25,000 in the outer zone of the London County Council; but in the area beyond that, known as Greater London, there had during that period been an increase of over 107,000 rooms."

WOMEN IN ENGLAND

English Property Laws Are Favorable to Women

According to the laws of Great Britain when a woman marries she automatically becomes entitled to a certain portion of her husband's property. In the case of wives without children the courts usually allow them one-third of the husband's estate should he die without making a will. Nor is he allowed to disinherit his wife. She must have her dower. He cannot sell his real estate without her consent. On the other hand, the husband does not automatically enter into any joint possession of his wife's estate upon marriage. She can will every cent she owns to any object, no matter how fantastic, and he cannot claim it. He is obliged to support her, even should she have an income of $10,000 a year and he an income of $1,000. It is true that if he goes to the workhouse and the wife is in possession of means she is obliged to pay for his maintenance. She can contract debts and make him pay them. So can grown-up daughters living at home. The law will put him in jail if he refuses to pay his wife's just debts. If she slanders anyone she cannot be prosecuted. He must answer to the law for her, and if there is to be any punishment he must bear it.

NEWTON THEORY DOUBTFUL

Lecturer's New Idea of the Earth's Rotation

Mr. Joseph L. Garvin, B.A., Inspector of Public Schools, Barrie, Ont., read a remarkable paper before the Toronto Branch of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada.

Mr. Garvin challenged the truth of the Newtonian Theory of Gravitation, viz: "Every particle with a force that varies directly as the product of the masses and inversely as the square of the distance between them."

Mr. Garvin gave considerable data in support of his theory that a heavenly body rotates on its axis through its own inherent gravity, and that the rotation lessens as its heat radiates from the surface. Hence if this theory be true, a body that has lost all its heat has lost all its gravity, and no longer rotates, and he contends that our moon and the planet Mercury supply confirmation of this.

It follows also that a heavenly body that has lost its gravity will begin to disintegrate, and all loose particles at once be drawn to the parent body by the gravity or attraction of the latter. In the case of the moon, he said, its air and ice, soil and boulders, long since struck the earth with mighty force and caused the glacial period; and as the moon goes on disintegrating the particles come to earth as meteors and dust.

Mr. Garvin firmly believes in the Nebular Hypothesis, and contends that every planet was originally a comet, and that every comet in our planetary system will ultimately become a planet with attendant moon or moons.

TRAIN WAS DELAYED

Took Seven Years to Travel Seventy-one Miles

The opening of a new railway in America recalls one of the most remarkable journeys on record. A train set out from Beaumont, Texas, for Port Bolivar, a distance of 71 miles. It started at half-past eleven on the morning of September 8, 1900, and arrived seven years afterwards.

All went well for the first 33 miles, but then, at a point called High Island, it was surrounded by water from the Gulf of Mexico, which had broken 38 miles inland and flooded the railway. The train could not go forward, and it could not return. The passengers after hours of terror, made their escape through the mud, and the train was left high and dry upon the prairie.

All the line, except that upon which the engine and carriages stood, was washed away, and the scene of ruin lasted for years. At last the line was remade and linked up with the little piece remaining. The rusty locomotive was fired up, and amid cheers finally moved off, creaky and uneasy in her joints but still serviceable.

A crowd collected at Port Bolivar to welcome her, and among those present were several of the passengers who had begun the journey seven years before.

THE WHITE PLAGUE

National Movement is Wanted to Stamp it Out

Pathetically intermittent efforts to check the spread of the White Plague continue to be made. But these efforts fail to accomplish any decisive or lasting victory over the foe because there is no persistency or consistency about them.

Statisticians calculate that one house in every five, contain a case of the disease. That is an awful visitation of a deadly Plague. No other ill that flesh is heir to imperils and terrorizes and kills our people to anything like a similar extent. And, for every case struck down with the dread disease, a little group of relatives and even friends are exposed to the contagion.

Probably there is not a living human being in Canada who has not felt the swish of this terrible sword very near to his own head. We all have near relatives or dear friends lying in the pale embrace of the spectre.

A spasmodic effort to alleviate these awful conditions is made now and then. A benevolent man opens a Sanatorium that takes care of one-half of one per cent. of the stricken ones; and the rest of the world practically shut their eyes to the fact that the whole treatment of Tuberculosis thus far in our country is a mockery and a sham.

What is wanted is a national defence movement against this deadliest of our domestic enemies. Private philanthropy is as helpless before it as private and unorganized "sharp-shooting" would be to wage a defensive war against a powerful invader. —Montreal Star.

NO STATISTICAL MATTER

Unemployment is a Problem That Must be Grappled With

"Unemployment is not merely a matter of statistics to juggle with," declared Mr. G. E. Jackson of the Department of Economics in Toronto University College. "This problem of unemployment must be looked at at its proper perspective and in human terms. There is danger of our getting out of touch with the fact that unemployment results in actual suffering in the lives of the people affected. Their physiques are impaired, their stamina is lessened, and some of them are driven to crime. The greatest need in connection with this question is more knowledge. We know a certain amount—for example, we know that bad winters come with quite remarkable regularity, and, therefore, can be warned to look out for unemployment before it comes, and we know the causes of unemployment. What we do not know is the real extent of unemployment, what proportion of it is due to seasonal causes, and what to cyclical, what amount of work could be provided for men in the Canadian woods in winter, and among the unemployed the proportion of good workers and those known as 'work-shy.'" Mr. Jackson said that a university course should be a training for public life. It must not turn out merely technically trained men, but men who will take a broad view of social problems such as unemployment.

$5,000 FOR A FLEA

Scientist Declares They Form Interesting Study

"The public ought to know more about fleas," declared one scientist, who was much interested in Baron de Rothschild's recent purchase of a $5,000 flea from the coat of a sea otter.

"The American Museum of Natural History is at present having made from a flea a model a foot in length for exhibition purposes. When ready for public inspection persons of an unscientific mind may be able to see what a flea really looks like.

"As a matter of fact there is very little likelihood that this five thousand dollar creature is a flea at all. It is very probably a close relative of the Dermacentor Americanus. There are a great many other small creatures masquerading as fleas. There is the sand flea, for instance, which is really as little like a flea as a snake is like an elephant.

"The flea has been a vastly overrated creature, so far as intelligence goes. Simply because fleas have been able to go on the stage the public has decided that they are intelligent. The mere fact that they can draw little wagons and otherwise perform for the amusement of the public means nothing. The secret of all this is instinct, not intelligence. The fact that a fly in a bottle will find its way out when the open end of the bottle is toward the light doesn't show that the fly uses its intelligence to get out of the bottle; it simply follows its instinct to go toward the light. In the same way the trainer of fleas bases his training on their instinct.

"The genuine flea has only six legs. The two front ones are short, the middle set are of medium length, and the back legs are long. It is this graduated set of legs which enables the flea to leap so quickly. The quickness of the jump made possible by these long hind legs accounts for that elusiveness which is regarded as one of its most striking characteristics by those with whom a flea may have come in contact. The fact that one flea can frequently produce the impression of a flea army is also to be traced to the astonishing agility of the creature. The sea otter 'flea' would not have these characteristics. In regard to its habits of residence alone would it be comparable to a flea."

Beauty Spot For the Public

The public authorities in the Isle of Wight have decided to purchase from the trustees of the Swinburne estate for public purposes the beautiful marine walk between Shanklin and Ventnor known as the Landslip. The property consists of more than forty acres.

Foot and Mouth Disease

In consequence of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease at Lowfell near Newcastle, movements of animals have been prohibited within a radius of fifteen miles of Birtley, which means the closing of Newcastle and other local cattle markets.

TO EXPLODE TORPEDOES

Ultra-Violet Rays Experiment Proves Effective

A successful experiment of exploding torpedoes from a long distance by means of the ultra-violet rays discovered by Giulio Ulivi, the Italian inventor, has been carried out in Florence. Ulivi having handed over the secret to the Italian Government, preparations were made for an experiment, details of which were kept as much as possible from public knowledge. It became known, however, that Admiral Pietro Fornari had placed in the river Arno two torpedoes charged with smokeless gunpowder and two other with black gunpowder. The ultra-violet ray apparatus was posted on the tower of the Palazzo Capponi, about two miles away, where Signor Ulivi, awaited the signal from the naval officers in charge of the experiments. When the signal was given the apparatus was put into operation and in less than three minutes all four torpedoes exploded.

The Glass Bottomed Bucket

In spite of the march of civilization there remains much that is still primitive in Sicily, and a curious sight at Palermo is to see the fishermen spear the fish in the harbor by the aid of glass bottomed buckets. There are many corners of the world where fish are speared, but perhaps the use of the glass bottomed bucket in this connection is to be seen only at Palermo. The fishermen lean far over the side of their boats and hold the bucket on the water with one hand, poking their heads into it as if engaged in the Hallowe'en game of ducking for apples. They hold a spear poised in the free hand and thus await the arrival of their victims, which are sighted through the glass bottom of the bucket which acts as a kind of telescope.

City Dwellers Degenerate

A well known American writer has said apropos of the rapid increase in urban population, as compared with rural dwellers, that "life in the city destroys the nerve of a man to take his chances with just nature. He would rather risk pauperism to get a 'job' than to endure with fortitude the chances of the seasons in the country. He has lost his plowhandle muscles, and his capacity to hope for a harvest just from the earth. He wants wages 'by the day' or month. He lacks the courage to believe in the soil, to endure the hardships of cold in the winter, and of heat in the summer." For these and other reasons he does not care to return to the farm.

A Witty Judge

Mr. Plowden, undoubtedly one of the most popular of London magistrates, and certainly one of the wittiest, was once called upon to defend a horse thief, and he made a striking speech for the defence. Unfortunately, the prisoner had pleaded guilty, unknown to Mr. Plowden, so the judge, in summing up, merely remarked, "Gentlemen, you have heard the prisoner and you have heard his counsel. It is for you to say which you believe. Only remember—the prisoner was there when the horse was stolen, the learned counsel was not."

To Cure Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrh, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them and you will be the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist or granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one teaspoonful four times a day.

The first dose promptly ends the most distressing head noises, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns and the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are quickly overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh; therefore, there are but few people whose hearing cannot be restored by this simple home treatment. Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness or catarrh in any form should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, who make a specialty of it.

THE RABIES GERM

It May Lie Dormant For a Number of Months

A remarkable case is reported of a soldier in India who died of hydrophobia caused by the bite of a monkey, which was bitten by a small dog six months before. It is an illustration of the length of time in which the virus of hydrophobia may lie dormant in the system of warm-blooded animals. Usually, from six weeks to two months elapse before hydrophobic symptoms manifest themselves in human beings. Such symptoms are ushered in by dullness, depression, irritability, and general ill-health. To these indications succeeds a slight difficulty in swallowing, which becomes worse as the disease advances, and hoarseness of the voice, or "barking," as it is termed, ensues. The temperature rises, the difficulty of swallowing increases, the patient, although tortured by thirst, has so violent an antipathy to liquids that the sound of splashing water may bring on a fit of convulsions, and in the delirium which sometimes attends the later stages of hydrophobia the victim may even attempt to bite his attendants. After two or three days of intense suffering death may result either from general exhaustion, from heart failure, or from asphyxia due to the spasms of the throat.

Until Pasteur, in 1885, made his discovery of an anti-toxin for rabies there was for human beings only a slender chance of recovery from the bite of a mad dog. The barbarous surgery of a red-hot iron applied to the wound was sometimes resorted to, as was also the use of the cupping glass and the application of strong caustics. Pasteur inoculated rabbits with the virus of hydrophobia, and from their spinal cords he prepared an extract for use hypodermically.

In 1888 the Pasteur institute was founded in Paris. Thousands of people have been treated there, and the death-rate from hydrophobia has been reduced to less than one per cent. All over the world institutes modelled on the Paris establishment have been founded, and are doing equally beneficent work.

Lost For Ever

Little things can be very trying at times, especially when they happen to you. Mr. Fry thought something like this when, one wet morning, he could not find his umbrella. Like most married men he believed in the maxim, "When in trouble blame your wife."

"I say, Mary," he shouted, "what on earth has happened to my new umbrella? I brought it home last night, and now it's gone; and, of course, it's raining like mad!"

"Why, it's hardly raining at all!" said Mary. "But last night it was simply pouring when the vicar left, and so I lent him yours."

"What an asinine thing to do! I shall never see it again now, so I may as well buy another to-day!"

"How can you be so wicked, Percival? As if the vicar would stoop to stealing your umbrella!"

"Stoop to stealing it be hanged! I borrowed it from him a couple of months ago!"

The Other End

"There, lad, 'tis a bonnie lass you've married, and I wish you both joy," said the old minister, as he gazed at the beaming faces of the young couple he had just united.

"You're getting to the end of all your troubles now," he added encouragingly to the bridegroom.

Time went on, as time will, and a few months later the old minister met the young fellow who had started matrimony with such a smiling face.

"You look pretty miserable, my friend," said he.

"Well I might," came the sulky answer. "I thought you told me in the church as 'ow I'd got to the end of all my troubles."

"Ah, so I did, lad," said the minister, with a glimmer in his eye, "but I didn't say which end!"

Susie Couldn't See How That Happened

"Papa," Susie asked, "was it a very wise person who said, 'The good die young?'"

"Yes," replied the father, "I suppose he must have been very, very wise."

"Well," said the child, after meditating for some time on the import of his answer, "I'm not really so much surprised about you, but—mamma—no, I don't see how mamma managed to get growed up!"

Popping the Question

Counsel (examining domestic in a breach of promise case): "Was the defendant's air when he promised to marry you perfectly serious or one of levity and jocularity?"

Plaintiff: "If you please, sir, it was all ruffled with him running his hands through it."

"You misapprehend my meaning," said counsel. "Was the promise made in all utter sincerity?"

"No, sir; it was made in the wash-house," replied the plaintiff, amid roars of laughter.

Only in Defence

"They're six fine sons ye have, Casey," said Denis Flaherty to his friend.

"They are," replied Casey.

"Do ye have any trouble with them?" inquired Denis.

"Trouble?" repeated Casey. "I've never had to raise my hand to one of them, except in self-defence!"

On the Street

"You bad boy! What do you mean by picking up that cigar butt? Right before my face and eyes, too!"

"Why, did youse want it?"

When your hear a married man say that he hasn't made up his mind about a thing, his wife hasn't handed him his cue.

Open to Misinterpretation

Slowly Betsy and Dennis walked through O'Flannigan's turnip field, and silently seated themselves, side by side, upon the fence surrounding the pigsty.

The shadows deepened. Nothing broke the stillness save an occasional grunt from the interior of the sty.

"Say something," said Betsy, a hint of impatience in her voice.

"'Ow beautiful ye be, Betsy," whispered Dennis.

Betsy edged a little closer.

"Just think!" went on Dennis, thus encouraged. "When I've enough to buy a pig, we'll have a home all o' our own; an' it won't be much longer."

"Oh, Denny," she answered, a trifle resentfully, "what do I care for pigs? I shan't want a pig when I've got you!"

And the inmate of the sty gave a double grunt.

But He Didn't Want to Land There!

STRAIGHT DOWN!

"Oh, captain," came a groan from a seasick passenger, half reeling in a deck chair, "how far are we off land?"

"Mile and a half," came the reply.

"Thank heaven! In what direction captain?"

A twinkle came for a moment into the eye of the brusque old sea-dog.

"Straight down!" he grunted.

Logical Perhaps

A lesson in elementary anatomy had been in progress. But the teacher did not flatter himself that he had made any lasting contribution to the knowledge of his pupils.

"Now, can anybody tell me," said he at last, "what part of the body is the most hardly treated?"

Only one youth showed any signs of intelligence, but he was most enthusiastic.

"Well, Sammy, you seem to be the only boy who has learned anything. Tell the class what you know."

"The part of the body what has the hardest time is the eye."

"How is that, Sammy?"

"Because all day it is under the lash, and every night it gets a good hiding."

He Took Chances

The judge in the wild and woolly West had declared that he would stop the carrying of firearms in the street. Before him appeared for trial a tough youth charged with getting drunk and firing his revolver in a crowded street.

"Five dollars and costs," said the judge.

"But, your honor," interposed counsel for the prisoner, "my client did not hit anybody."

"Why, you admit that he fired the gun?"

"Yes, but he fired it into the air," explained the lawyer.

"Five dollars and costs," repeated the judge. "He might have shot an angel."

Never Can Tell

William Tell and the Austrian governor were discussing the morrow's target practice.

"I can shoot that apple off with my eyes closed," said the Swiss hero confidently.

The Austrian smiled grimly.

"You never can, Tell," he answered dryly.

Careful But Lose

That the fruit growers who take the best care of their orchards will be the heaviest losers on account of the damage to the fruit crop, was logically explained by Prof. W. T. Macoun of Ottawa at the convention of the growers of the Niagara district, the opening session of which was held at Grimsby. The progressive grower who cultivated and pruned for fruit development, cutting back the wood, assisted in the early advance of the buds brought on by the unusually mild weather of the early winter, which was followed by an unprecedented season of zero weather which killed the premature buds.

CHARITY OR REFORM

General Booth Explains the Function of the Salvation Army

While talking to an interviewer in London, England, General Bramwell Booth remarked upon the frequency with which the requests of the Salvation Army for money were met by this statement, "Well, I don't believe in charity."

"Neither do we, you see!" said General Booth. "Charity perpetuates the very miseries it would cure! We believe that poverty and crime need not—must not—be perpetuated as evil growths in the social organism. We want to eradicate them, and that's why we get down to the very root of society, whence it draws nourishment—in personal character! We go far below the 'superficial' work of political and social reformers. We reform men!

GEN. BRAMWELL BOOTH

"Religion is the only instrument which will serve this purpose. We often define religion simply by that one word—'character.' It is character so pure and steadfast that it is exemplified in every act of a man's life—in his work and his play, his eating and drinking, his myriad relations with other men. Such is the religious convictions which we carry to the poor, the outcast and the fallen."

CASH IN A CROCODILE

Sportsman Found Twenty-five Sovereigns in its Stomach

A Natal (South Africa) reader of "Rod and Gun" sends the following clipping with reference to the finding of twenty-five sovereigns inside a crocodile.

"Three Johannesburg sportsmen, Messrs. Godfrey De Villiers, S. S. Schleyer, and F. Hind, while hunting for water buck recently on the banks of the Komati River in Swaziland shot a crocodile and on opening it found to their amazement twenty-five sovereigns, in addition to eight heels of deceased bush buck, a quantity of stiff hair, a number of stones, etc. Three of the sovereigns were Kruger coins, and the remainder were of the Queen Victoria design. The latest date of any one of them was 1902, and therefore it was permissible for the hunters to assume that they had been inside the crocodile for at least ten years. The theory was further borne out by the fact that the crawling treasure trove was an old male of fully twelve feet in length, whilst the surest guide of all was the fact that the sovereigns were considerably worn, the milling on the edges having completely disappeared. It is surmised by experts that the coins were unaffected by gastric juices, but that the stones alongside which they were found must have rubbed the edges away in the course of years.

"The manager of the Standard Bank, Johannesburg, who examined the coins, stated that the "rubbing off" which they had been subjected to had reduced their value to about 16 shillings each. However, the firer of the first shot, Mr. De Villiers, was made some pretty good offers for the coins. One of the coins was presented to the owner of the land upon which the animal was shot.

"Possibly some one who was walking along the banks or through the river was attacked by the 'croc' and eaten. It may have been some unfortunate native who was making his way home having garnered the coin by labor on the Rand, or it may have been a white man with money in his belt who was hauled off his horse while crossing the stream.

TYRANNY OF SUNDAY DINNER

"Men have many faults, women only two,
Nothing right they say and nothing right they do."

Why is it that in most households all the menfolk are supposed to have a claim to make Sunday a day of rest and idleness? Nothing is ever done by a man on Sunday that can possibly be put off until Monday, but it very seldom occurs to them that their womenkind do not have the same privilege. Always there must be a hot dinner, and an extra good one, and if there is no maid it means that the wife or mother has to spend the greater part of what should be her day of relaxation in preparing the meal, otherwise there will be grievances and grumbles at the table. Breakfast is generally later on Sundays and the morning is shortened thereby, so that immediately the one meal is over and the rooms tidied the dinner must be prepared, and the woman who can manage to get to church in the interim is a wonder and an envy to her sex. Here are a few tips as to engineering the church hour or the rest hour in the morning and still having the hot meal. Partially cook the joint or the chickens on Saturday and leave them in the pan, reheating them for half an hour in a hot oven on Sunday. If a sufficient number of potatoes are boiled the day before they can be browned in the pan at the same time. Green vegetables too can be boiled on Saturday, and if reheated with a little butter will be as good as if they were done the same day, while other vegetables can be warmed up in a white sauce. Very few men will tolerate a cold mid-day meal on Sundays, especially in winter, and some ingenuity must be exercised in arranging everything so that as little time as possible need be taken up in getting it ready on Sunday. I once heard of a woman who, when she was first married, was told by some friends that they only had two meals on Sunday, a late breakfast and a dinner at four o'clock in the afternoon. She determined to try the plan on her husband. The following Sunday they went to church, and on their return he asked how soon dinner would be ready. She said at four o'clock. He looked at her, but said nothing. But he went upstairs and shut himself into his room where he remained while the young wife prepared a sumptuous meal. At four o'clock she went to call him, and was greeted with the reply that if he could not have his dinner at the proper time he would not have it at all—and he didn't. It was her first and last attempt to interfere with masculine feeding hours. She is an old woman now but the memory of that experiment is as vivid as if it happened yesterday.

PEER'S WIDOW ENTERS CONVENT

True Romance Which Reads Like Fiction

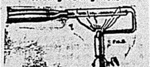
A fascinating romance of the peerage is recalled by the report that Julia Lady Lyveden, has entered a convent in Edinburgh.

Seventeen years ago Lady Lyveden was a pretty assistant of eighteen in a fancy shop at Eastbourne. Miss Julia Kate Emery, as she was then, attracted the attention of the late Lord Lyveden, who was seventy-seven years old and an invalid. He fell in love with her and was drawn in his bath chair every day to the shop.

After fulfilling an engagement as secretary to the aged peer Miss Emery consented at length to accept her patron's name and coronet, and in 1890 the marriage took place at All Souls' Church, Hastings. The marriage lasted only four years, the late peer dying in 1900, and as there was no issue the title passed to a nephew, the present peer. Eight years later the widow became engaged to Mr. Henry Hugh Maclean, but the engagement was broken off.

The present Lord Lyveden has had a most adventurous career, having been in his time a soldier, a market gardener and a ship's steward. When he was roughing it in America, without any apparent prospect of becoming a peer, he lodged over a stable and earned a precarious living as a cab driver.

Heating Curling Irons



There are few devices for heating curling irons over a gas jet that compare with this one that can be made at home out of metal tubing. The tubing should be made of a size that will fit the curling iron and the gas jet. It is cut out in the center, one end being left to fit over the jet and the cut out part bent so that the other end, left whole for the curling iron, comes over the flame. By using a device like this there is no danger of getting soot on the iron and the heating is done very quickly.

If two or three lumps of sugar are placed in kettles and teapots, they will absorb all moisture and will prevent rust and the "fusty" smell which is the result of their being left half dry.

WASHING WOOLLEN COATS

"Fixed to no spot is happiness sincere,
'Tis nowhere to be found, or everywhere,
'Tis never to be bought but always free."
—Pope.

Everyone nowadays has a woollen or sweater coat. It is rather curious when one realizes what an indispensable item they have become to the ordinary wardrobe to remember that it is only a few years since they came into vogue, but ever since they first made their appearance they, like the coat and skirt costume and the blouse and shirtwaist, have remained with us, and are likely to remain with us. If these coats are light colored the problem of washing them is a matter which often causes some anxiety, as they are apt to emerge from the soapsuds in an unwearable condition. However it is a consolation to know that even the most delicate of them can be washed in such a way as to restore their original freshness if care is taken. First of all outdoor drying is essential, and a good breezy day should be chosen so that the coat will dry as quickly as possible. In this frosty weather they can only be left out a short time, and when brought in be very careful not to put them near the heaters as they will inevitably shrink. For the actual washing procure one ounce of lump ammonia, a packet of flaked soap and a quarter of a pound of powdered borax, and if possible use rainwater. If the coat be a new one it should first of all be steeped for half an hour in lukewarm water, to which a large pinch of salt as well as the ammonia has been added. This will take out the dressing which is always found in new woollen garments. Use very little water for this; only enough to cover the coat and no more, otherwise the dressing will make the dirt go into streaks when the coat is put into the soapsuds. While the coat is steeping mix the soap to a lather with boiling water taking care that it is all dissolved and then fill a large bath-tub with hot water and add the powdered borax to it. Then wring the coat gently from the steeping water and plunge it into the soapsuds, where it must be squeezed and pressed and kneaded, but not rubbed, until every atom of dirt is out of it. Often two lots of soapy water are required for this process, and two lots of soft warm rinsing water must be used to entirely free the coat from soap, otherwise it will shrink. A tablespoonful of vinegar added to the last rinsing water will brighten the colors. Having squeezed as much water out as possible, shake the coat thoroughly, pull the seams into shape, place it on a coat hanger, button it up and hang it by the hook to the clothes line, occasionally squeezing the water out of the hem as it accumulates. By this means it will dry evenly and keep its shape—and it can be finished in the kitchen by hanging it (still on the hanger to a line stretched across the room.

DESTINY OF STALE BREAD

Much of It Goes to Customers—Feed For Pigs and Chickens

What is done with stale bread in a city like Toronto? General opinion has it that a great amount of the "staff of life" which becomes damaged and stale, and is returned to the bakers, is thrown out and done away with, without having been made use of. Not so; enquiry elicited the information that in one week, five of Toronto's many bakers have the problem of disposing of 4,450 loaves of stale and damaged bread, divided as follows: North end baker, 3,500 loaves; East Toronto baker, 300 loaves, and three other bakers, one, 250 loaves, one, 100 loaves, and a fifth, 300 loaves, total 4,450 loaves. And how are they to rid themselves of all this bread you ask. It has been summed up as follows:

Customers	2,850 loaves
For sausages	510 loaves
Chickens	580 loaves
Institutions	250 loaves
Boarding houses	200 loaves
Pigs	60 loaves
	4,450 loaves

Many a man wakes up and finds himself infamous.

It's all right to hope for the best, but hoping is no sort of adequate exercise.

THE WHOLE ART OF DYEING

"There's not a blessed thing in this world worth having without sacrifice. The big people, the people that have the big things in life are those that have paid, or are prepared to pay the big price for them."—W. J. Locke.

There has just been republished an old book, which originally appeared in the year 1705, and which deals with the subject of dyeing, a subject in which women are all interested more or less. In this book the reader is let into the secrets of the wonderful old dyes, the first half telling of the experimental discovery of all the most useful secrets in dyeing silk, wool, linen, and the manufactures of these fabrics as practised in England, France, Spain, Holland and Germany, while the second half is devoted to general instructions in dyeing wools and woollen manufactures, and to the cultivation of the drugs used for making these dyes. In the early part of the 18th century, blue was perhaps the most popular of colors and no less than twenty-two shades of blue are mentioned; according to the writer the blue dyes are made from a plant called "Pastel" which grows in the upper Languedoc Valley, also with "vouede" found in Normandy, and with "Indigo" obtained from the West Indies. "Woodland brown," a shade very popular to-day was equally popular in 1705, and was then known as "walnut-tree brown" and was made from the root, bark, and leaves of the walnut tree and with nut shells. A good brown too, we are herein informed, can be made from chimney soot, and this will also produce olive green or olive colors. Perfuming silks is also dealt with in this fascinating volume the recipe being as follows: "When the silk is dyed, for every pound of silk take an ounce of orris, dry it well, lay the silks in rose water in a thick sieve and betwixt every row strew powder of orris, and shut it up close in a box or chest till next day and the silk will emit an agreeable odor." The wonderful lustre on the old time silks was produced by adding an ounce of isinglass for every pound of silk to the water in which the latter was steeped. No wonder the silk dresses of our grandmothers were things that were cherished for a lifetime and still retain their fragrance and brilliance. The name of the book is "The Whole Art of Dyeing" and is well worth reading.

TIPS TO HOUSEWIVES

Try lemon and salt for ink stains on the fingers.

If corns are rubbed daily with toilet pumice, they will disappear.

If plants are washed in soapsuds, they will not have insects on them.

Sifted wood ashes put on a damp cloth will remove stains from tinware, agate or crockery.

To give plaster casts an alabaster effect, dip them into a strong solution of alum water.

Two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar to one white of egg will make excellent meringues.

Use warm water to sprinkle starched clothes, and the effect will be twice as satisfactory.

An apron made with a bib of table oilcloth is a great saver to wear when washing dishes.

If grease is well rubbed off the stove before polishing the polish will not burn off so quickly.

To make marmalade look clear without skimming it, add a piece of butter the size of an egg before removing the fruit from the fire.

If a rug curls, moisten it and wrap it around a broomstick, in the opposite way from its desires, then tie and let it dry.

Tarnished silver can be brightened if placed for a short time in boiling water in which a fair-sized lump of washing soda has been dissolved.

After cleaning brass or copper with salt and vinegar, rub with olive oil and the metal will not tarnish for a long time.

To keep the table salt dry and soft, dry it, then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps and sift into it a tablespoonful of corn starch.

It is a convenience to make vegetable bags of cheesecloth, into which you put celery, tomatoes, lettuce and other fresh vegetables before placing in the refrigerator.

A good play dress for a child can be made from a man's worn shirt. Cut it Dorothy style, and the work is very little, not to mention the saving in the youngster's clothes.

A recipe for axle grease is a pound of tallow, half a pound of castor oil, quarter of a pound of black lead. Melt the tallow and rub the whole well together.

If mirrors are very dull and speckled the following method is excellent: Take a small portion of whitening and add sufficient cold tea to it to make a paste; rub the glass with warm tea, dry with a soft cloth, then rub a little of the paste well on the mirror and polish dry with tissue paper.

For a disinfectant for a sink, pour down a gallon of boiling water mixed with two tablespoonfuls of soda and a teaspoonful of ammonia. This will dissolve all greasy matter in both sink and pipe.

After getting the worst of it in an argument she says to him, "Now, why can't you be sensible?"

But the average reformer has no other job!

RONUK on Linoleum

Many people do not appreciate the necessity of a dressing for linoleum. Linoleum is really quite porous. Water and dust penetrate the pores and rot the fibre and fabric, making it brittle and easily worn through, and causing it to crack.

RONUK FLOOR POLISH

—prevents this and doubles the life of linoleum. A light application of Ronuk seals up all these pores, preserves the fibre, retains its pliability, and brightens its appearance.

Ronuk produces a smooth surface from which all dust may be wiped with a dry cloth, it is never necessary to scrub it. Ronuk is sanitary. Try Ronuk on your linoleum as well as on your hardwood floors, and you will be surprised.

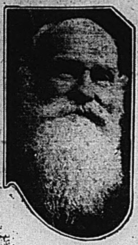
DEPARTED SPIRIT RE-ENTERED BODY

Old Man's Story of Wonderful Experience—Lived For Day Apart From Human Shell

John C. Wheeler is a fine old man living at Ivanrest, a village a few miles from Grand Rapids, Michigan. As he stands up in meeting, with white hair and patriarchal beard, and tells of the most remarkable experience of his life, he makes an impressive figure.



JOHN C. WHEELER

"I believe I had the most wonderful experience of any human being in the world to-day," he told an interviewer. "I have lived apart from my body! I have been dead! And now I am alive—very much alive!"

Wheeler is certainly very much alive. Over 70 years of age, he stands with a spine as straight and unbendable as a hickory pole. His eye is clear and his face the picture of health."

"I was swimming in a lake when suddenly I went down. It was several minutes before my companions missed me. When they secured my body a doctor pronounced me dead. I was taken to my boarding place and another doctor brought from a distance also pronounced me dead after an examination. Then they laid me out covering me with a sheet.

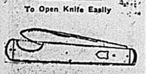
"The next day a girl who was passing through the room where I lay noticed a movement of the cloth over my face and gave the alarm. They came to me, chafed my hands and body and I was soon able to sit up. It was not the fact that I regained consciousness after so long a time that is remarkable, but it was the fact that, while I was apparently dead, I never was so much alive in my life. But I was apart distinctly from my body. I could tell the persons around me everything that had happened when I was helpless to return to life.

"During those hours I discovered many things. Much was revealed to me that would only sound preposterous to relate. But the one thing I do remember clearly was the sensation of dying. Being dead is delightful, of that I am sure. After I had been engulfed in the waters I seemed to float away from my body and I soared away above the waters of the lake. I looked down and could see my body. I watched the rescuers find it and place it on the bank. Then I floated back to it and became a part of it.

"In that fleeting moment between the conscious and the unconscious state, the thought of returning to life was repugnant and I knew that I didn't want to live. But I was forced to and I returned.

"Up to the time of that experience I had been an agnostic, disbelieving in a hereafter or a spiritaul state of existence, but my whole point of view of life was changed. I never since have had a shade of doubt in regard to a spiritual state of existence. A man is double and the body is the lesser part of him."

To Open Knife Easily



It's easy to prevent breaking your finger nails opening a pocket knife if you apply this bit of ingenuity. File a notch in the handle of your knife like that shown in the sketch. You want to be careful not to file it too near the end so that the point of the blade will be uncovered, else you might tear holes in your pocket.

QUEBEC FORESTRY

Forestry Engineers Who Work on Scientific Principle

The day of the ruthless pioneer is long past in the Province of Quebec, and the valuable forests which densely clothe such an enormous area are no longer regarded as an obstacle in the path of civilization. On the contrary, they are being carefully conserved, and forestry engineers, working on scientific principles, are being increasingly employed. The old haphazard methods are giving place to organized effort. There are six million acres of private forests in the province, and seventy-nine million acres of forests under government control. The work of classification and exploration will necessitate the employment of a great number of agents for a long period. Retimbering is beginning to assume truly colossal proportions, no less than 200 firms at the present time being engaged in lumber work in the Province of Quebec. Seven of these firms are now employing forestry engineers, and it is certain that several of the owners will soon follow their example, thus affording excellent opportunities for the engineers, who are being trained at the Forestry School.

Never Mind

Sometimes, when nothing goes just right,
And worry reigns supreme,
When heartache fills the eyes with mist,
And all things useless seem,
There's just one thing can drive away
The tears that scald and blind—
Someone to slip a strong arm round,
And whisper, "Never mind."

No one has ever told just why
Those words such comfort bring;
Nor why that whisper makes our cares
Depart on hurried wing.
Yet troubles say a quick "Good-day!"
We leave them far behind
When someone slips an arm around,
And whispers, "Never mind."

But love must prompt that soft caress—
The love must aye be true;
Or at that tender, clinging touch
No heartsease comes to you.
But if the arm be moved by love,
Sweet comfort you will find
When someone slips an arm around,
And whispers, "Never mind."

Scott's Journal

The original journals of Sir Robert Scott during his south polar expedition were placed in the British museum by Lady Scott. By order of the trustees they were placed on view on the second anniversary of Scott's arrival at the South Pole. The journals are three small, pencil-written books which Scott carried with him to the pole and which were found on his dead body by the searching party. At the end of the last of these is the "Message to the Public," which made so deep and lasting an impression on the heart of the nation.

RUSH TO MARRIAGE

More Haste, More Debt—Home Making on Credit

A defendant who borrowed $1,000 on a bill of sale in order to get married surprised Judge Cluer in a case at the Shoreditch County Court, London. It was stated that the defendant was paying interest at an enormous rate, and the judge was prompted to ask if it would not have been wiser to postpone the marriage for a year, "Unfortunately, people will not wait until they are in a position to get married," a court official said. "Even if the birth-rate is declining there does not seem to be much diminution in the number of improvident marriages. In the courts we frequently see the evil results of a too hasty plunge into matrimony. Young couples will sometimes borrow money to set up a home, without realizing that they will be required to pay extortionate interest quite beyond their powers. The moneylenders are much to blame for this state of affairs. They make it appear such a simple thing to borrow a few pounds until the husband is in a better position. But $300 interest on $500 is a heavy burden to the man earning $7.50 a week; the result often is that he is dragged into court, and the judge has to make as merciful an order as possible.

"Then the credit system is not an unmixed blessing. A young couple feel there is no need to wait because they have not the money available to set up a home. They can get anything they want by means of the instalment system. They do not pause to consider what may happen if the husband should be unfortunate enough to lose his job. A lost job often means a lost home. The husband is usually anxious to make his wife as comfortable as possible, and involves himself in indebtedness he knows he will find it very difficult to discharge. People do not seem to realize that getting married is like setting up in business. It requires capital in much the same way, and it is beset by nearly as many pitfalls. But, unfortunately, common sense and connubial attachments proverbially take contrary paths."

WEDDINGS TOO RARE

Harrow Vicar Deplores the Lack of Marriages at His Church

The vicar of St. Peter's, Harrow, Middlesex, is deploring the lack of marriages at his church. Writing in his parish magazine, he says:

"The number of weddings at St. Peter's bears no proportion to the christenings. Considering that each wedding means a fee of over $2.50, we think the blankness of the marriage register for the last two months most inconsiderate of the parish at large."

The vicar explains that the great majority of his parishioners are young married people living in new houses in a new district. They have done their courting and marrying elsewhere, and then begin their new life in Harrow. "Whenever I call on newcomers I reckon it safe to ask them if they have enjoyed their honeymoon," he said, laughingly.

Malingerer Sentenced

Malingning under the National Insurance Act was alleged at Devon Assizes, when Alfred Holwell, twenty-nine, wheelwright, pleaded guilty to obtaining sums of money by means of a forged medical certificate at Staverton. Prisoner obtained from a "doctor" a certificate stating that he as suffering from asthma, and received $3.50 a week, although in work at the time and earning money. The doctor's signature was forged by prisoner. Sentence of six months' hard labor was passed.

Judge and Lawyers

Mr. Justice Scrutton, delivering judgment at Gloucester in a case in which $160 was in dispute, said it would have been better for either party to have paid the money originally in dispute and have done with the lawyers. "They will be lucky if they get out of it under $1,500 each," he added. "If ever there was a case in which the plaintiff has reason to wish he had never been born and the defendant to wish he were dead this is one."

Gael's Death at Sea

When the body of a popular Gael named Doyle, who died on the voyage from America reached Ballywilliam, County Wexford, it was met by a large concourse of people, including a body of Gaels, who marched in procession to the cemetery. He wrote home prior to starting from America, but on nearing the Irish coast he died.

V.C. as a Striker

OPPORTUNITY IS EQUAL TO ALL IN BIG CONTEST

Division of Territory Gives All Candidates the Same Chances to Win--No Time Like the Present to Enter---Plenty of Room for You--Enter To-Day and Start Your Campaign for Votes at Once

The Intelligencer's great Subscription Contest is just now starting, and this is the opportune time to enter as an early start is great advantage.

The only requirement of any successful candidate is perserverance and stick-to-it-ness. The candidate who combines a little energy with a little determination will make the best race.

In the contest such as The Intelligencer is conducting, enthusiasm, determination and energy are the points that help and prove a prominent factor in the success of every candidate. The time for action is at hand and the opportunity to win an automobile is here.

Ten valuable prizes are awaiting ten ambitious persons. All you have to do is to enter your name in the contest.

We knew that such an offer could not be made without causing considerable excitement. Our expectations were justified. Immediately after the first announcement, inquiries began to come in. The whole section is interested. So far it has been chiefly talk, but soon a number of active workers will get busy, and then you will find that to be in fashion you must be in the contest.

PLENTY OF ROOM FOR YOU

There is going to be plenty of room for you. It takes a good many people to win all the prizes and if you have ambition you are pretty sure to be one of them.

NOMINATIONS BEING MADE

Nominations are being received from every point, and The Intelligencer's telephone is kept busy answering inquiries. It's going to be a record breaker. The prizes are so liberal and free to everbody. All have an opportunity to win.

The remarkable value of the prizes has astoishned all of our readers and many have already made inquiries concerning the conditions of the contest and how to start their campaign and win one of the valuable prizes.

DIVIDED INTO DISTRICTS

In order to equalize competition the territory has been divided into two districts, all contestants in each district can compete for the McLaughlin Buick motor car, but only compete against candidates in their own district for the district prizes.

GET BUSY NOW

Now is the time to start. Cut out the nomination blank which is published each day in The Intelligencer and mail it to the Contest Department of The Intelligencer, and a representative will call and explain to you fully hte terms of the contest and supply you with all necessary blanks and information.

Better still, phone the Contest Department 36. Best of all, call on the Contest Manager at The Intelligencer office and get your information right from the heart of the contest.

The next few days will pass quickly, and if you want to be sure of one of The Intelligencer's prizes an early start is advisable. Get your friends to help you. Many will be working in a few days. If you start at once you are safe from their interference among your own friends. People are simply waiting for you to ask them to subscribe for The Intelligencer. A little hustling now will pay you better than it ever has before. Fix your eyes on one of the prizes and start to win it to-day.

POINTS ABOUT CONTEST

It is open to any person residing in the territory where The Intelligencer circulates. You do not have to be a subscriber of The Intelligencer.

You may nominate yourself or a friend free. The nomination blank in this paper counts 1000 votes, when properly filled out. The contest is just starting and nominations should be made without delay.

Votes are obtained by clipping and sending in the daily ballots that appear i neach issue of The Intelligencer, and by securing prepaid subscriptions, either old or new, to the paper.

NEW N.Y. POLICE HEAD

Mayor Mitcholl Appoints a Young Newspaper Man

NEW YORK, April 18.—Mayor Mitchell to-day answered the question asked most often since he took office by appointing Arthur H. Woods, one of his secretaries, as police commissioner. Mr. Woods, a young Harvard graduate, former newspaperman, skilled investigator and several years ago a deputy police commissioner under Commissioner Theodore Bingham, will take office tomorrow.

The new Commissioner succeeds Douglas I McKay, who was first deputy commissioner during the Gaynor administration, and who was appointed head of the department, when Mitchel assumed office with the understanding that his tenure should cease when the Mayor had found just the man he wanted for the place.

How to fill this office has long been a problem with the Mayors of New York Mr. Mitchell tried to settle it by offering the place to Colonel George Goethals, of Panama Canal fame, and getting the State Legislature to give the commissioner wider powers.

The Legislature refused to change the laws governing the office and the Mayor abandoned his effort to persuade the Colonel to accept the office.

CHURCHILL GIVES ADVICE TO SPAIN

Projected Construction of Second Squadron for Spanish Navy

LONDON, April 8.—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, is expected in Madrid, Spain, to-day.

In official Madrid circles it is stated that he is coming to confer with Premier Dato in reference to the projected construction of a second squadron for the Spanish navy.

The correspondene adds that as Spain is practically attached to the Triple Entente, Great Britain's advice in the reorganization of her navy is very important at the present time.

CONVICTED WHILE HIS MOTHER DIES

Charge of Theft is Brought Home to a Post Office Employe

MONTREAL, April 8.—With his mother so near death that the last sacrament had been administered, Frank Lortie stood trial in the Sessions court yesterday on the charge of having stolen money from the mail, while he was a clerk in the post office. He was found guilty and remanded to April 14 for sentence. Edmund Brossard, his counsel, pleaded that bail might be granted so that Lortie could attend the bedside of his mother. His Lordship stated that once found guilty a prisoner was to be refused bail under the law. It was, he said, one of the saddest cases that had ever passed before him, but the law was explicit.

Lortie, who is a young, good looking man, was convicted through a trap laid by the Government mail-inspector Jacques. Three dollars and a fifty-cent piece were sent through the mail from Ottawa to a Montreal firm, and it was arranged that the letter should pass through Lortie's hands. The money was found in his possession when he was arrested by Detective Beauchamp. The case was made for the purpose of stopping a great amount of stealing.

WILL RESIGN SEAT IN THE COMMONS

MONTREAL, April 8.—The election of Mederic Martin, M.P., as mayor of Montreal will probably mean that he will have to resign his seat in the House of Commons at Ottawa, unless he wants to lay himself open to a charge of disqualification as chief magistrate of this city. The charter of the city specifies that members of the board of control, of which the mayor is an ex-officio member, must not hold other paid public office.

Mr. Martin's resignation as a member of Parliament would open the St. Mary's division of Montreal. Mr. Martin is a Liberal.

The final results of the municipal elections show that the English minority has lost two seats in the city council and that whereas it has forty per cent. of the voting community, its representation is only twenty per cent. With the confirmation of the election of Duncan MacDonald to the board of controllers, the English representation on that body remained unchanged.

PLEADS CAUSE OF MARRIED WOMEN

But Lack of Support Compels J.W -Johnson to Withdraw Bill

A last vain appeal for consideration of his bill to grant married women the municipal franchise was entered by J. W. Johnson of Belleville, late yesterday afternoon. The ground he covered was not new, but it lost none of its vigor in the telling of it. Although he was a government member, he would say that he could not see the wisdom of letting this matter stand over.

"They say there is no demand," he cried. "What of the vote in Toronto and Ottawa, where large majorities came out and asked for it. The privilege I would extend is right. It is patent and clear equitable, right and just that they should have the vote.'

He asked if spinisters and widows were to be considered of superior intelligence to men's wives and ridiculed the idea that in times of polling contests they stayed at home. In his own riding they constituted an element to be contended with. Feeling, however, that he would get no support, he withdrew the bill—From the Toronto World, April 8.

DEMAND FOR TWO CENTS A PAPER

(Intelligencer Special)

SEATTLE, Wash., April 9.—Prohibition by law of the one cent newspaper by Act of Congress, because the one cent price creates a situation where "business must control the newspapers," is the novel editorial demand of the Seattle Sun. In an article headed "A Senseless Warfare," the Sun asserts that no newspaper should be allowed to sell for less than two cents. In part the editorial says the "greatest danger that threatens the country today is the rapid spread of the one cent a copy idea among American publishers. By selling papers at one cent a copy publishers in most cases are actually disposing of their product at less than the cost of the white paper consumed in printing."

SMALL HATS THIS SEASON

Fashion has swung back again to the small hat. There are many other radical changes in millinery styles this spring.

Just turn to the advertising columns in The Intelligencer and notice the interesting stories they are telling from day to day.

Fashions come and go as fast as the scenes of a motion picture.

The stores are ever alert to follow and proclaim the fashion changes — and the advertising is the voice of the stores.

To keep up-to-date on the fashions this season one must be a reader of advertising.

Every line of it is news of great interest and importance.

ALTERNATE VOTE TO END TROUBLE

Is Educational Step Towards Proportional Representation

LONDON, April 8.—To get rid of the heart burnings caused among Liberals by three-cornered contests in which Labor candidates take part, C. H. Lyell Liberal, Edinburgh, brought forward a motion in favor of the alternative vote. Under this system the voter would put the figures 1, 2 and 3 against the names of the candidates in order of their merit in his eyes.

Right Hon. Mr. Pease said that most of the electioneering experts favored the alternative vote in preference to the second ballot, in three-cornered contests, and he intended to support the motion. It would be an educational step towards proportional representation

The government wished to know the feeling of the House, and therefore the government whips would not be put on

On division an amendment in favor of continuing the present system was moved by a Unionist member, Major Morrison. It was defeated by 144 votes to 23 No division was possible on the original motion and the debate was adjourned.

MAN AGED 73 SAVES MOTHER

Village of Laborers' Homes is Burnt Out in Essex, England

LONDON, April 8.—A calamity, the intensity of which is not to be measured by the mere amount of damage done or dwellings destroyed, befell the village of little Chesterford, in the county of Essex yesterday. Eleven houses, accommodating fifty out of a total population of one hundred, were burned to the ground and the laborers whose homes here thus vanished will feel the blow all the more because they earn only three dollars a week, and cottages in the county are everywhere scarce.

Among those saved was a centenarian woman. Her son, who is seventy-three, was working in a back garden when he saw the cottage at the lower end of the street on fire and had only time to help his mother out of bed into the garden when the thatched roof of the house collapsed. He put his mother in a wheelbarrow and wheeled her away to safety.

The old woman's greatest apparent regret was that she had not brought away her spectacles.

WEST GROWING TOO FAST

Jos. Martin, M.P., Found Unhealthy Realty Boom

LONDON, April 8.—Joseph Martin, M.P. for St. Pancras, London, on being interviewed on his return from a tour of Canada extending over several months expressed the opinion that some of the cities of the west had grown too fast, while the immense expenditure in building two transcontinental railways had largely been the cause of the unhealthy real estate boom. Nevertheless, with Canada's substantial natural resources, there was every reason to expect that the country would regain its good condition, and Mr. Martin believed that the British investor would be taking a safe course in lending money in the Dominion.

MILITANTS HOWL IN POLICE COURT

Orders From Headquarters are to Prevent Court Sitting

BELFAST, Ireland, April 8.—Militant suffragettes created so much confusion and noise in the police court here today when Dorothy Evans and Madge Muir of the Belfast branch of the Women's Social and Political union, were brought up for trial that the proceedings had to be adjourned.

The two women were charged with having in their possession explosives for the purpose of committing a felony. The court was crowded with women when the prisoners were brought in, and acting apparently on a signal, they raised such a din that neither the magistrate or the prosecuting attorney could make themselves heard. The suffragettes kept up the uproar for a long time. Forty of them were ejected from the court, but the noise still continued, and the magistrate finally decided to suspend the sitting.

As they were led out the two prisoners shrieked that they would not permit the holding of a court.

The opinion was generally expressed that orders had been issued from militant headquarters to the suffragettes to create similar scenes every time a woman was charged with a suffrage outrage.

LIGHT AS CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Ordinary Arc Lamp Used With Results by Copenhagen

LONDON, April 8.—Dr. Reyn, head of the Finsen Light Institute, has made interesting experiments in the treatment of patients suffering from surgical tuberculosis, says the Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Telegraph.

Electric light was used in cases which had hitherto required the knife, and, it is stated with most satisfactory results.

Describing the treatment, the correspondent says the patient is placed about a yard in front of an ordinary arc lamp and its rays directed against the affected parts of the body. The irritation lasts, but it is increased gradually until it reaches two and one-half hours.

It has been suggested that the light cure may be useful in cases of lung tuberculosis, but this has not yet been demonstrated.

HACK AVIATORS WITH SPEARS

Moors Attack Men When They Descend and Torture Them to Death

RARABIT, Morocco, April 8.—Capt. Herve, a French military aviator, and a lieutenant he was carrying as a passenger, were hacked to death today by insurgent Moors after they had escaped uninjured from an aeroplane accident in the dessert.

The two officers were engaged in a reconnoitering flight near Nenmour, when their motor became disabled while they were high in the air. The captain however, piloted the machine safely in a gliding flight to earth.

Both alighted safetly and were endeavoring to repair the defective motor when a band of Moors surrounded and seized them and after torturing them cut them up with swords and spears.

The Moors also destroyed the aeroplane.

DELIVERED THE GOODS BUT KEPT THE MONEY

TORONTO, April 9.—(Special.)—A nervy crook was run to earth when detectives yesterday arrested Frank Galloway, 297 Spadina Avenue, on a warrant from the Lowndes Company, 144, Front Street West. Galloway is alleged to have driven up to the company's office with a wagon, and informed an official that the Lowndes delivery cart had broken down. He said he had been detailed to deliver the goods instead, and received various parcels. He drove off and proceeded to deliver all the articles marked "C.O.D.," among those entrusted to him, collecting the money from the customers. Then he is said to have driven back to the office and returned the credit parcels to the shipping room, after which he disappeared.

The sum collected by Galloway in behalf of the company is in the neighborhood of fifty dollars.

STOLE MONEY AND STAMPS FROM THE MAGISTRATE

Edgar Craddock, a young man of this city, was yesterday afternoon arrested on a charge of theft. The accused had of late been taking care of Police Magistrate Masson's office, and whilst in the discharge of his duties purloined money and postage stamps. For some time past this sneak thieving had been going on and Tuesday evening some money was marked. This Craddock took yesterday morning, which led to his arrest. As Magistrate Masson did not desire to be connected with the case Mr. A. M. Chapman, J. P., this morning occupied the seat upon the bench. Craddock was arraigned and the charge was preferred against him but he made no election. As a result of the investigation he was committed for trial. To the police after his arrest, the accused admitted his guilt.

DALE BANK AFFAIRS IN SERIOUSLY MUDDLED STATE

Depositors Expect to Receive Seventy-Five Cents on the Dollar--Rumors of Stock Speculation—Directors Doing Everything Possible to Get at Facts

(From Toronto Globe)

MADOC, April 9.—Much of the mystery cloaking the sudden disappearance of James C. Dale, President and General Manager of the Dale private bank here, which was recently closed, was partly clearly away to-day by the discovery of an alleged irregularity in his accounts. The continued absence of Mr. Dale together with the silence maintained at his home as to his whereabouts, has created a feeling of unrest among some fourteen hundred depositors anxiously awaiting the results of a scrutiny now under way by two expert accountants into the affairs of the bank. It is generally conceded by the directors of the bank, which has been doing business for upwards of twenty-five years, that it is virtually insolvent, but to just what extent they are not prepared to state.

BLOW AT PRIVATE BANKS

That private banks are doomed in this district is the concensus of opinion of many of the depositors who have hitherto pinned their faith to the bank that has just closed its doors under conditions which present anything but encouragement to hundreds of depositors, a great many of whom are farmers who had been patrons of the bank almost from its inception. Only a few years ago there were five such private banking institutions in this district. Two of them failed, and the other two were absorbed by chartered banks. The latest trouble in local banking circles is the talk of the village; in fact, it has had a marked effect upon business, which is temporarily feeling the shock on account of the large amount of local money locked up. Many travellers have left the village without making a sale owing to the determination of the merchants to ascertain first the actual position of the bank before placing additional orders. The depositors are in ignorance of the whereabouts of Mr. Dale, who is supposed to be suffering from a nervous breakdown. It was learned to-day that the missing President had sought refuge in the vicinity of Buffalo.

IMPORTANT REVELATIONS

While the accountants examining the books decline to discuss the situation, a director of the bank informed The Globe last night that an important revelation had been made by the scrutiny of the accounts with respect to a debenture account which he says he had been given to understand was utilized exclusively for the purchasing of debentures. The directors stated that Mr. Dale submitted a statement outlining the financial position of the bank every six months, and when the last statement was handed the directors in November last. The Globe's informant had a suspicion that this money, amounting to approximately $176,000, had been ventured in speculation in stocks and realty, the latter investments being in the western provinces The character of the stocks dealt in the director declined to disclose, but he added that inquiries had elicted the information that a certain block of stock would probably realile about $30,000. He said that the examination of the books to date indicated that about $75,000 had been invested in western lands in Port Mann.

Concerning the latter deal, he added that, in his opinion this might possibly prove to be an unprofitable investment.

DIRECTORS AWAIT AUDIT

With regard to the $62,000 which has not yet been accounted for in connection with the debenture account the directors said that this would likely be cleared up during the progresof the examination of the books. He also intimated that he and his colleagues on the directorate would likely take the matter up with a prominent counsel in Toronto after they had received an official statement from the auditors as to what action, if any, they would institute against the management should the outcome prove disastrous to the depositors.

It was learned on good authority tonight that the Bank carried deposits totalling approximately $700,000, according to the directors, who frankly admit that the shortage of the bank will amount to several thousand dollars. On the other hand, many of the large depositors predict that when the financial position of the concern is straightened out, they will receive seventy-five cents on the dollar. The legal position of the bank, which has not formally made an assignment, is somewhat peculiar. It was due to this occurrence that a writ was issued, attaching the properties in Madoc of four Directors for the purpose of protecting the interests of the creditors, so that everyone will share alike when the financial standing of the bank is established.

RUMORS OF STOCK SPECULATION

Speculating in stocks is the cause attributed by some of the shareholders and depositors for the downfall of the bank. According to a Director the banking business and the credit of the bank was in splendid condition when it closed its doors. One thing apparent, however, is that the bank is now insolvent.

A committee of the Directors and the shareholders last night discussed a proposal to opens negotiations with a prominent chartered bank with a view to ascertain whether it would entertain an offer to take over the business of the bank. After discussing the situation the matter was dropped pending the report of the accountants.

The President has been a prominent figure in business and financial circles in this village most of his life. He owns a beautiful home in the heart of the residential district and has several large realty holdings in the business section.

THINKS CANADA A WILD LAND

Thought Everybody in the Country Could Carry Gun

KINGSTON, April 8.—James Trimmel, from the Old Country, but a few days, was fined in the police court $10 and costs or twenty days. He carried a loaded revolver and meeting two men on the street said he would take all their money. A constable arrested him. He told the magistrate that when leaving England he was given to understand any one in Canada could carry a revolver.

DARING ATTEMPT AT HOLD-UP IN FACTORY

OTTAWA, April 8—A tough looking man dressed in tattered clothes entered the Capital Press yesterday evening, when the room was deserted save for a solitary workman in the casting room.

"Where's your money", said the intruder advancing.

"No money here", answered the castorman reaching for a hammer, after noticing the appearance of the man addressing him.

"Come on across, none of that stuff" answered the latter advancing menacingly.

Picking up the hammer the castorman chased the tramp out of the building. The matter was reported to the police who are investigating several cases of the same nature reported from Sparks street business places.

AN EASTER MESSAGE BY LOCAL CLERGYMAN

(By Rev. A. M. Hubly)

Another year of the orderly unfolding of Christian truth gives life a higher and nobler meaning, illuminates the shades of death, and makes more glorious the hope of eternity!

The historic associations of the past few weeks, were as many voices calling believers into closer fellowship with sacrificing love.

Some heard, and in calm, deep meditation, and contemplation of the life divine, drew closer to Him who endured the cross and despised the shame, and received the quickening of the spirit-life that such fellowship always creates. In the fellowship of the suffering sorrow of the Son, we find the heart of the Father. Our sorrow is shadowed by our sin, but the sorrow of Jesus, is illuminated by the light of love!

The dark troubled scene of Golgotha is over. Its blackness of horror has given place to light and joy. "The past is always holy—every heart holds something that is divine." But to-day crowns all the past with gladness!

All nature is vocal with divine voices, calling us to leave the haunts of sorrow, and disappointment, and enter into the hallowed precincts of heavenly fellowship in worship, pouring our tiny drop of adoration into the mighty current of praise that sweeps around the throne of The Crucified, from the worshipping hosts in heaven and earth.

"Ring out the bells of heaven! Sing forth the angelic welcome of worship! Carry it to the utmost bounds of the earth; Shine forth Thou Sun of Righteousness and chase away earth's mist and darkness, for Heaven's golden day has broken!"

Let the earth ring out her Easter chimes! Bid the people bring their offerings and worship in a faith renewed by the Holy Light that shines from the face of our risen Lord.

Less Dyspepsia Now Here's The Reason

The fact that there is less dyspepsia and indigestion in this community than there used to be is largely, we believe due to the extensive use of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, hundreds of packages which we have sold. No wonder we have faith in them. No wonder we are willing to offer them to you for trial entirely at our risk.

Among other things, they contain Pepsin and Bismuth, two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science. They soothe the inflamed stomach, allay pain, check heartburn and distress, help to digest the food, and tend to quickly restore the stomach to its natural, comfortable, healthy state.

There is no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. Your word is enough for us. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets don't restore your stomach to health and make your digestion easy and comfortable, we want you to come back for your money. They are sold only at 7,000 Rexall Stores and in this town only by us. J. S. McKeown. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

ONTARIO GOVT. HEALTH EXHIBIT

The Ontario Public Health exhibit of moving pictures which have for their object the demonstrating of diseases in their various stages and at the same time to show what can be done to prevent many diseases in the city at the present time. That good will be accomplished by these moving pictures and same explained by medical practitioners there can be no doubt.

Yesterday afternoon City Hall was filled with children from some of the public schools of the city, and a few from the Ontario School for Deaf. The views presented were most instructive and were apparently appreciated by the children.

Dr. Yeomans, Medical Health Officer of this city, stated that the Ontario Government were exhibiting these illustrated pictures with a view to assisting in the prevention of diseases. The object was also to have better sanitary surroundings.

Col. Ponton, K. C., chairman of the Board of Education, spoke briefly but most appropriately of the benefits to be derived. It showed progressiveness on behalf of the Government. He hoped the children would carry away with them many good suggestions, as the exhibit was for them as well as elder persons. The pictures would show how all could care for themselves and health would be the result. He enjoined upon the children the necessity of their living up to the best breadth of life.

Dr. Clinton, of this city, District Medical Health Officer, referred to the exhibits and the good that could be accomplished through them in the preventing of the spreading diseases.

The first picture shown was the Red Cross Seal, demonstrating the working of the Red Cross Society and the good it was accomplishing.

The Fly was the second picture shown and it was clearly demonstrated that flies is a disease carrier and can spread a tremendous amount of disease. Besides actually dropping the germs and filth from their feet and legs, flies may transmit disease as already indicated by discharging their vile disease laden excreta either directly or indirectly upon our food. This is not only the most disgusting but by far the most dangerous feature of the typhoid fly.

The teeth and their care was also shown to great advantage. The pictures showed how in some schools lectures on teeth are given and the children's teeth are regularly inspected by a competent person. This picture was most interesting and profitable.

In the evening there was a good audience and moving pictures were shown and explained by Dr. Clinton and Dr. Yeomans. Another exhibition will be given this evening.

A Message To Thin, Weak, Scrawny Folks

An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 lbs. of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to use Sargol, the recently discovered regenerative force that is recommended so highly by physicians here and abroad. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. J. S. McKeown Drug Store and other good druggists have Sargol, or can get it from their wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more, for it is a wonderful flesh-builder.

FARM DWELLING DESTROYED BY FIRE

Last evening about nine o'clock a frame farm dwelling owned and occupied by Mr. Manley Farley, of Sidney Township, was destroyed by fire. Mr. Farley was carrying a lighted lamp when he stumbled and fell, with the result that the lamp exploded and set fire to the premises. Fortunately no harm befel Mr. Farley. Some of the contents were removed but the majority were destroyed. The loss sustained is partially covered by insurance.

LONDON, April 8.—Sergt. Deane, of the British army flying corps, was instantly killed today at the Brooklands acrodome while making his final flight as a pupil before receiving his pilot's certificate.

BASKET BALL

What will probably be the last chance to see championship basket ball this season in Belleville will be on Saturday night when the Peterboro team are coming to Belleville to try and even for the defeat that the local team gave them in their own gymnasium two weeks ago.

The High School team on the same night will play the fastest team that can be gotten together from Belleville players. The school team has never been beaten except by the Y.M.C.A. Senior team and they are a heavier and older team. In Kingston last Saturday they defeated a far more experienced team and played a fast game.

Both games will be played at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night.

ONLY ONE ROBBER ESCAPES POSSE

Two Killed, Three are Wounded in Flight, One Escapes

NEW HAZELTON, B.C., April 8.—Further details of the scene following the bank robbery here yesterday show that as the men came out of the bank citizens who had assembled picked them off. Two dropped in their tracks and three others were wounded. Two of the wounded were later captured and the only man not shot was caught after he had sprained his ankle while running through the bushes. The last man is still at large and a posse is keeping up the chase, but up to eleven o'clock last night no news had been received of his capture. The condition of those shot is: Two dead; two seriously wounded; one slightly wounded.

Two men are in jail, one of them being the man who injured his leg. One of the robbers was shot through the heart, another through the right lung, a third through the arms, both of which he is likely to lose; one through the stomach and hips, and one had his leg shattered by a bullet.

An indignation meeting was held last night and a demand is to be made on the government for more adequate police protection as this is the second bank holdup within a few weeks.

As the two inspectors descended the stairs De La Croix without warning drew his revolver and shot Dupin five times, killing him instantly. De La Croix then returned to the chief inspector's office and surrendered.

HUERTA AND VILLA

The only conceivable explanation of Huerta's suppression in the city of Mexico of the facts about Torreon is that he fears an outbreak against his Government in his very dooryard. It is impossible that he has not known day by day the conditions existing in and around the city which has now fallen into the hands of his enemies. Communication between the Mexican capital and New York has not been interrupted, even if the telegraph wires southward from Torreon have been out of order. Huerta also has known that the entire Federal force in and around Torreon was not more than 5,000, though we had been led to believe that the garrison was quite large enough to defend the city against Villa's men. Therefore, it seems that he must have felt long ago that the disaster was inevitable.

In certain circumstances, the old Dictator might seem a comical figure. He has falsified persistently about his resources, and his very latest act of denying the authority of a United States Consul, whose work lies wholly in territory where Huerta's power is about equal to that of the Ameer of Afghanistan, has the real opera bouffe touch. But the situation caused by the division of authority in a country so important to the world between Huerta on the one hand, and a revolutionary force in which an impulsive and brutal leader like Villa is the chief factor on the other, is too grave to justify a humorous view of it.

IS CHIVALRY DEAD

An account of Saturday's Suffragette demonstration in London says: "The women, about 1,000 strong, marched through the London streets to the park. They were waving the suffragette colors. Immediately upon their entrance to the park crowds of rowdies charged them and for nearly an hour a fierce fight was in progress, the police having repeatedly to interfere to save the women from the mob. Miss Virtue was on the point of being thrown into the Serpentine when policemen got her out of the hands of her tormentors."

Until this suffragette movement was well under way, where was the English gentleman who would have stood idly by while women were being maltreated by gangs of rowdies. The chivalrous deference and respect which men were accustomed to pay to women and the readiness to protect them from insult or injury have been destroyed by the suffragette tactics, so far, at least, as the "wild women" are concerned. Perhaps the independent woman of the future, who doubtless will have both the strength and the skill to protect herself, will have a better chance in life's battle. Yet there is something fine and noble about the old spirit, and where it is lacking life has been coarsened and degraded.

Mackenzie King ought not to worry unduly over the redistribution in North York. It hasn't harmed his chances a bit; he would have been licked to a frazzle anyway.

The cost of the Transcontinental Railway, without interest, is just one hundred millions ahead of the Fielding estimate. Some Finance Minister.

A correspondent asks us why the Laurier Government didn't put silver-plated rails and bridges into the Transcontinental. Frankly, we think the only reason is that it never occurred to them.

If the ex-Minister of Railways was really sincere in his "defence" he goes a long way toward confirming the impression that he wasn't big enough for his portfolio; on his own statement it is apparent that he didn't know what he was doing.

Montreal Herald-Telegraph: "How sad the havoc of time!. There has been another death in the ranks of the ranks of the Fenian Raid Veterans this week. Turning to the statistics, Saturday Night now finds that there are only 14,999 veterans left out of the original 8,000 that participated in the memorable event."

The eastern end of the Trent canal, between Rice Lake and Trenton, is expected to be opened within a few months. For the western end, between Lake Simcoe and Georgian Bay, contracts are being awarded, and the work will probably be finished in about two years. Then it will be possible for barges loaded with wheat to travel all the way, without breaking bulk, from Midland to Montreal.

Our Home Women Have Beautiful Hair

Next time you go to the theatre or to the "movies" just notice, if you please, how many of our home ladies have beautiful hair—glossy, lustrous, and well-dressed. Then, if you will pick out five or ten of those whose hair seem to be particularly pretty and will ask them what they use on it, we feel sure that at least more than half of them will say "Harmony Hair Beautifier." It is fast becoaming the rage with both men and women who are particular about the appearance of their hair.

Sprinkle a little Harmony Hair Beautifier on your hair each time before brushing it. Contains no oil; will not change color of hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweat cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottle, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores and in this town only by us—J. S. McKeown.

ONTARIO IS TALKING OF OLYMPIC GAMES

TORONTO April 8.—President Brownlee, of the Ontario Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union, presided at an informal gathering of athletic representatives at the Union office last night to discuss the best means of interesting the province in the next Olympic games. Chairman Merrick, of the Canadian Olympic Committee, was also present. The appointment of a special committee in this connection will probably come up at the meeting of the Ontario Union governors on Tuesday next.

LAST SPIKE DRIVEN IN THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Bridge Over the Nechaco at Fort Fraser Scene of Interesting Ceremony - Railway Officials and Friends Witness its Final Work

Nechako River Crossing, B.C., April 8, 1914.—Steel east and west on the Grand Trunk Pacific was linked up yesterday, the last mile being laid in the presence of Mr. Morley Donaldson, Vice-President and General Manager, and other officials of the Company.

This point is 371 miles east of Prince Rupert and 1,375 miles from Winnipeg. Steel reached here a few days ago from the west, and one track-laying gang was then disbanded, having used up all material available, as the track-laying outfit coming from the east was expected to supply all steel to this point. There was no elaborate ceremony, and only officers of the railway were present. The formal ceremony to include the driving of the golden spike will take place later, when additional facilities will permit a number of distinguished guests to be present.

Since the beginning of the year, steel has been laid on 143 miles of line. Contractors have been straining every resource to get the grade finished ahead of the track-laying gangs, which were pressing them hard from both directions. The rapidity of progress since the beginning of the year has been partly due to the fact that heavy mountain work was conquered, and construction has been going on in the broad agricultural belt of Central British Columbia. This point, which saw the joining of the steel, is itself in that district, for the Nechako River gives its name to the most noted of the agricultural belts of the interior.

The main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific extends from Winnipeg, Man., to Prince Rupert, B.C., a distance of 1,746 miles. The line first follows the Assiniboine Valley in Manitoba, and runs through a district well settled before the advent of the railway. From Portage la Prairie west, however, the whole district traversed was practically a new one, and one in which colonization and development has been due to the railway. Saskatoon, Sask., and Edmonton, Alta., are the only cities which existed and had railway facilities prior to the advent of this railway. Now, however, the country is dotted with towns in all stages of development, from tiny hamlet to flourishing divisional or junction point, with graded streets, cement sidewalks, sewers, municipal water and electric light. The country traversed in the Prairie Provinces is perhaps the finest agricultural belt in the world. There is always sufficient rainfall, and the soil practically throughout is the characteristic prairie loam. Wheat growing has been particularly successful, but the country is especially adapted to mixed farming, and farmers are taking more every year to mixed farming and dairying.

In British Columbia, the greatest agricultural area in the province, formerly shut off from the world, has been opened by the Grand Trunk Pacific, and thousands of settlers are now carving out their homes there. In the Nechako Valley the soil is alluvial silt of the greatest richness, reaching in some places a depth of forty feet. There are a number of special districts along the line in British Columbia where fruit growing gives great promise. Rapid development of this district is looked for in view of the Alaska market, which will absorb great quantities of farm produce, and to which this district lies nearest.

ENGINEERING.

The Grand Trunk Pacific is described as the best new railway ever constructed. The route through the Yellowhead Pass in the Rock Mountains is an exceptionally favorable one, offering the lowest grades of any transcontinental — four-tenths of one per cent., or 21 feet in the mile, against east-bound traffic, and five-tenths of one per cent., or 26.4 feet in the mile against west-bound traffic. This means an ability to haul longer and heavier trains than can be accommodated on other transcontinental lines, but to take full advantage of the route, engineering skill of the highest class was required. A grade has therefore been constructed equal to that of most lines after many years of service, and solid steel bridges have been used instead of the timber trestles so often employed. A roadbed eighteen feet wide has been constructed and laid with rails weighing 80 pounds to the yard. Six per cent. is the maximum curvature employed, and even this has been used very sparingly. On the prairie there are tangents as long as 47 miles.

HISTORY.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1903, which authorized special arrangements for bond guarantees for the company. Construction was begun in Manitoba in 1905, and on the Pacific end in May, 1908. The first steel was laid in September, 1906.

PACIFIC TERMINUS.

When Prince Rupert, on Kaein Island, B.C., was decided on as the Pacific coast terminus of the line, it was apparent that the harbor was a magnificent one, and the company took steps to lay out a townsite that would be worthy of development into a great port. Most careful plans were made to this end, before any lots were placed on sale, which was first done in 1909. Investors all over the world took up lots, and at the same time the population of the town began to grow steadily, helped at first by construction activity and later by the agricultural development of the interior and the development of the deep-sea fisheries. The halibut fishing grounds near Prince Rupert are the greatest in the world, and an immense revenue has been derived therefrom, which will rapidly increase now that rail transportation overland can be offered. Mining, both along the railway and at adjacent points, particularly Granby Bay, where millions of dollars have been invested in a plant for working copper deposits there, has also assisted in the growth of Prince Rupert.

The Grand Trunk Pacific has a fleet of oil-burning steamships, the "Prince Rupert," "Prince George," "Prince Albert," and "Prince John," which give sailings three times a week between Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle, and which also connect with adjacent ports on the islands and the mainland. Among Prince Rupert's earliest shipping were steamers from Cape Breton, N.S., which brought around Cape Horn the steel for laying the main line.

PASSENGER SERVICE.

The Grand Trunk Pacific owns and operates its own sleeping and dining cars, and the construction of a new line gave an opportunity for building cars of the very latest design. Electric lighted trains were an early feature of Grand Trunk Pacific service, and their sleeping cars are among the most costly and luxurious ever put in service on this continent.

HOTELS.

For the accommodation of tourist traffic, the Grand Trunk Pacific has built and opened at Winnipeg "The Fort Garry," and hotels of similar design are now being built at Regina, Edmonton and Prince Rupert. These hotels are all beautiful in architecture and managed to invite comparison with the great hotels of Europe.

East of Winnipeg to Moncton, N.B., the Government of Canada has been constructing the National Transcontinental Railway, to lease to the Grand Trunk Pacific, and to connect with this line the Grand Trunk Pacific has built a branch from Lake Superior Junction to Fort William, a distance of 189 miles. A grain elevator has been begun at Fort William to accommodate forty million bushels, and already storage has been constructed for five and three-quarter millions. Terminal yards have been planned for future traffic, and already 33 miles of terminal tracks have been laid.

The following details are added as being of special interest:—

Bridges—All designed for Dominion Government specifications. Class, "heavy."

Total of 65 steel bridges, making length of steel bridging 5.3 miles.

Three of the largest steel bridges (each over 1,000 feet in length) are on the Prairie Section, as follows:

South Saskatchewan bridge, at Saskatoon, 1,500 ft. long and 71 ft. high.

Clover Bar bridge, over North Saskatchewan River, Mile 786.5, 1,653 ft. long and 138 ft. high.

There are also three bridges on the Mountain Division over 1,000 ft. in length, viz.:

Rau Shuswap Crossing, Mile 1,121 from Winnipeg, 1,030 ft. long and 190 ft. high.

Consider wear when you buy dress goods—

THE most attractive style is lost if the material wrinkles, fades or quickly shows wear. The reputation of the maker is your best assurance that the material is actually what it is represented to be—all-wool, or silk and wool mixture, as the case may be.

GENERAL.

April 7, 1914, will go down in history as a date marking an era in advanced transportation facilities in Western Canada. On this date the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, which has been under construction from Lake Superior westward, and from the Pacific coast (Prince Rupert, B.C.) eastward, was connected up at the Nechako River, in British Columbia, so that now the steel ribbons stretch from the Pacific Ocean to the Great Lakes.

It is hard to fully appreciate the far-reaching importance and advantages that this new transcontinental railway will have on the future of the vast domain which it traverses, opening up as it does a hitherto practically untouched hinterland, rich in natural resources.

Travelling westward from the Great Lakes (Fort William), a portion of the Province of Ontario not before served by transportation facilities is traversed. This section is wonderfully attractive to the tourist and sportsman, for its numerous inland lakes, teeming with fish, that are interspersed between rock and forest, present an ever interesting panorama to the traveller.

The Prairie Provinces, with their apparently boundless acres of virgin fertile soil, dotted at short intervals with the homes of already happy and prosperous farmers, are crossed through a territory not heretofore served. The millions of bushels of grain that have been shipped from these provinces every year exemplify the great wealth that is hidden in the soil and which only awaits the settler to cultivate to repay a thousand-fold. Flourishing towns have sprung up, and with the permanent backing of the agricultural and stock-raising country surrounding them, will undoubtedly continue to grow and develop into cities and form a market at the settlers' doors for much of their products.

British Columbia, in addition to having large tracts of arable land adapted for agricultural and horticultural pursuits stands out pre-eminently as the tourist's and sportsman's Mecca, unsurpassed for the grandeur of its scenery. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway runs through a section of the province replete with wild natural beauty. Snow-capped mountains tower thousands of feet above, while all around, canyons with raging torrents, valley and woodland, are ever passed, while at intervals primitive Indian villages with totem poles standing in front as sentinels, mark the slow passing of the great race of red men, who for centuries held sway, but who now must make way for the ever steady advance of the white settler who claims his heritage from the fertile soil that for centuries has been undisturbed. The mineral resources are being rapidly and satisfactorily developed, whereas the fisheries are recognized as the best in the entire world.

Through the instrumentality of the Grand Trunk Pacific these great new sections of country will be developed, and with fast time and the last word in equipment, the best markets will be brought close. This railway will contribute to the general upbuilding of an Empire within an Empire, and ever stand as a monument to the men who built and who operate it.

ATTACKING INDUSTRIES

Liberal Policy Is Destructive, Declares W. F. Cookshutt.

Brantford Member Urges Necessity for Steadying Business and Encouraging Investment Just Now In Canada—Eighty Per Cent. of Farmers Live In East He Says—House Rises For Easter.

OTTAWA, April 9. — The House adjourned yesterday for a week after hearing speeches by J. G. Turriff, the Liberal member for Assiniboia and W. F. Cockshutt, the Conservative member for Brantford.

"A raw cold deal for the farmers and the common people, with everything for the interests," was Mr. Turriff's description of the budget. "The manufacturers get everything, the rest of Canadians get nothing and pay more. However, I am not going to blame the Premier or Minister of Finance. They were not elected under false colors. They are protectionists and servers of the corporations. But the people are getting a serious lesson as to what it means to elect men of that ilk to handle their public affairs."

"The refusal of the Finance Minister to do anything reasonable or fair for the farmers in the matter of agricultural implements, synchronizes with the party flip-over of Senator Jones. If there was any man in Canada who had good reason to stand by the Liberal party it was this man. When some years ago the Liberal Government decided to make some reductions in the tariff he was granted a drawback, and last year the Massey-Harris Company, according to the Auditor-General's report, received some $165,000 in drawbacks. But because Liberalism believes that the time has come to grant free implements to the farmers, this man, who has had all the favors, turns upon them. He was made Senator and knighted by the kindly offices of the former Government. I don't know that the present leader of the Opposition put the hyphen in his name, but he did almost everything else for him.

Then the storm broke. Several Government members shouted sentences inaudible for the noise.

There was an avalanche of expressions. "Selfish, spoon-fed sulker," was the alliterative comment of one western Conservative.

Mr. Cockshutt followed in defence of the national policy. He said the farmer was never so well off as he is to-day. Mr. Turriff and other western Liberals were continually talking about the grievances of the grain growers, and demanding free wheat.

They seemed to forget that eighty per cent. of the farmers of the country lived in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, and were a unit against removing the wheat and the flour duties.

The Liberal party, Mr. Cockshutt declared, in conclusion, in attacking almost every industry, was following a policy of destruction instead of a policy of construction. At this time, of all others, it was important to steady our business enterprises and encourage capital to invest. If the factories ran full time and the railways had plenty of traffic to carry, the farmer would benefit from a splendid home market, and better times and greater prosperity would soon return to Canada.

Premier Borden has gone to Atlantic City for the Easter recess and will not return until April 20. Hon. Martin Burrell and Chairman Drayton of the Railway Commission have gone there also. Col. Hughes has gone south and Hon. C. J. Doherty will go to Winnipeg in connection with the St. Peters' Indian Reserve case. It is understood that C. F. Fullerton, K.C., of Winnipeg, who was to have handled the case for the Government finds himself unable to act.

Hon. J. D. Hazen will go to St. John, Hon. J. D. Reid to Prescott, and the others will be in Ottawa most of the week. Hon. T. W. Crothers is still in bed. He has been dangerously ill of erysipelas, but is now recovering.

Province Gets Control of English Harbor and Spanish Banks.

VANCOUVER, April 9. — Judgment favoring the Province of British Columbia, was handed down yesterday morning in the case of the Attorney-General of Canada vs. the Attorney-General of British Columbia, over the right to control the Spanish banks, by Justice Macdonald, in the Supreme Court. The case was dismissed with costs against the Dominion Government. In his judgment Judge Macdonald rules that English Bay is not a public harbor and is, therefore, under control of the provincial and not the Dominion Government.

The matter is of great importance to local fishery and harbor affairs and means that the valuable deposits of Spanish bank will not go to the Silica Sand Co., to which the Federal Government gave a lease.

Stop
Tea and Coffee Drinkers
And think a minute!

Some persons seem able, for a time at least, to get along with tea and coffee, but they contain a subtle, habit-forming drug, caffeine, which sooner or later is pretty sure to rob one of health and comfort.

If you know tea and coffee don't harm you—if you feel prime and fit under their continued use, well and good—stick to 'em.

But—if you are sometimes a bit "off color," and irritable nerves, disturbed heart action, biliousness, headache, or symptoms of liver or kidney trouble make you wonder what's the matter—

Better find out what tea or coffee has to do with it.

Some people are learning the truth about tea and coffee, for there's a mighty army of former tea and coffee drinkers who now use and enjoy freedom from their old aches and pains.

Postum, made of whole wheat and a bit of molasses, is a delicious table beverage absolutely free from the drugs, caffeine and tannin, which make tea and coffee a menance to health.

If you are interested in bettering yourself—think it over!

Postum now comes in two forms.

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder, requires no boiling. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum
—sold by Grocers everywhere.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-west Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY.
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

A CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

Tortured Four Years Until He Took "Fruit-a-tives"

RIDGETOWN, ONT., May 21st. 1913.

"Your "Fruit-a-tives" cured me of Rheumatism. It was the only medicine that made any impression on me. I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism. I was laid up for four winters with Sciatica and Muscular Rheumatism, and was a cripple completely, not being able to do anything. I doctored with four different physicians, but they did not help me. Other advertised remedies were equally unsatisfactory, and I have taken several.

Some neighbor of mine told me that "Fruit-a-tives" helped him, and I took them faithfully every day and the result was marvellous. For over two years now, I have been free from any Rheumatic pains whatever, and give "Fruit-a-tives" the full credit for making a remarkable cure".

W. T. RACHER

If you are subject to Rheumatic Attacks, Sciatica, Lumbago or Neuralgia, take "Fruit-a-tives" right now and start the permanent cure which "Fruit-a-tives" will complete if taken faithfully. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited Ottawa.

"RUN TO EARTH"

By the Author of
"Lady Audley's Secret," "Aurora Floyd," etc., etc.

"Ah! that's more than I know; but very likely her father will look in here in the course of the afternoon, and he can tell you. I say, though, captain, you seem uncommonly sweet on this girl", added the landlord, with a leer and a wink.

"Well, perhaps I am sweet upon her", replied Valentine Jernam; "perhaps I'm fool enough to be caught by a pretty face, and not wise enough to keep my folly a secret."

"I've got a little business to see to over in Rotherhithe", said Mr. Waynam, presently; "you'll see after the bar while I'm gone, Nancy. There's the little private room at your service, captain, and I dare say you can make yourself comfortable there with your pipe and the newspaper. It's ten to one but what Tom Milsom will look in before the day's out, and he'll tell you all about his daughter."

Upon this the landlord departed, and Valentine Jernam retired to the little den called a private room, where he speedily fell asleep, wearied out by his journey on the previous night.

His slumbers were not pleasant. He sat in an uneasy position, upon a hard wooden chair, with his arms folded on the table before him, and his head resting on his folded arms.

There was a miserable pretence of a fire, made with bad coals and damp wood.

Sleeping in that wretched atmosphere, in that uncomfortable attitude, it was scarcely strange if Valentine Jernam dreampt a bad dream.

He dreamt that he fell asleep at broad day in his cabin on board the "Pizarro", and that he woke suddenly and found himself in darkness. He dreamt that he groped his way up the companion-way, and on to the deck.

There, as below, he found gloom and darkness, and instead of a busy crew, utter loneliness, perfect silence. A stillness like the stillness of death reigned on the level watrs around the motionless ship.

The captain shouted, but his voice sently a glimmer of star-light pierced died away among the shrouds. Pre- the universal gloom, and in that uncertain light a shadowy figure came gliding towards him across the ocean —a face shone upon his beneath the radiance of the stars.

It was the face of the ballad-singer.

The shadow drew nearer to him, with a strange gliding motion. The shadow lifted a white, transparent hand, and pointed.

To what?

To a tombstone, which glimmered cold and white through the gloom of sky and waters.

The starlight shone upon the tombstone, and on it the sleeper read this inscription—"In memory of Valentine Jernam, aged 33."

The sailor awoke suddenly with a cry, and, looking up, saw the man they called Black Milsom sitting on the opposite side of the table, looking at him earnestly.

"Well, you are a restless sleeper, captain!" said this man. "I dropped in here just now, thinking to find Dennis Wayman, and I've been looking on while you finished your nap. I never saw a harder sleeper."

"I had a bad dream", answered Jernam, starting to his feet.

"A bad dream! What about, captain?"

"About your daughter!"

CHAPTER II

Done in The Darkness

Before Thomas Milsom, otherwise Black Milsim, could express his surprise, the landlord of the "Jolly Tar" returned from his business excursion, and presented himself in the dingy little room, where it was already beginning to grow dusk.

Milsom told Dennis Wayman how he had discovered the captain sleeping uneasily, with his head upon the table; and on being pressed a little, Valentine Jernam told his dream as freely as it was his habit to tell everything relating to his own affairs.

"I don't see that it was such a very bad dream, after all," said Dennis Wayman, when the story was finished. "You dreamt you were at sea in a dead calm, that's about the plain English of it."

"Yes; but such a calm! I've been becalmed many a time; but I never remember anything like what I saw in my dream just now. Then the loneliness; not a creature on board besides myself; not a human voice to answer me when I called. And the face—there was something awful in the face—smiling at me, and yet with a kind of threatening look in the smile; and the hand pointing to the tombstone! Do you know that I was thirty-three last December?"

The sailor covered his face with his hands, and sat for some moments in a meditative attitude. Bold and reckless though he was, the superstition of his class had some hold upon him; and this bad dream influenced him, in spite of himself.

The landlord was the first to break the silence. "Come, captain", he said; "this is what I call giving yourself up to the blue devils. You went to sleep in an uncomfortable position and you had an uncomfortable dream, with no more sense nor reason in it than such dreams generally have. What do you say to a hand at cards, and a drop of something short? You want cheering up a bit, captain; that's what you want."

Valentine Jernam assented. The cards were brought, and a bowl of punch ordered by the open-handed sailor, who was always ready to invite people to drink at his expense.

The men played all-fours; and what generally happens in this sort of company happend now to Captain Jernam. He began by winning, and ended by losing; and his losses were much heavier than his gains.

He had been playing for upwards of an hour, and had drunk several glasses of punch, before his luck changed, and he had occasion to take out the bloated pocket-book, distended unnaturally with notes and gold.

But for that rum-punch he might, perhaps, have remembered Joyce Harkers warning, and avoided displaying his wealth before these two men. Unhappily, however, the fumes of the strong liquor had already begun to mount to his brain, and the clerk was completely forgotten. He opened his pocket-book every time he had ecasion to pay his losses, and whenever he opened it the greedy eyes of Dennis Wayman and Black Milsom devoured the contents with a furtive gaze.

With every hand the sailor grew more excited. He was playing for small stakes, and as yet his losses only amounted to a few pounds. But the sense of defeat annoyed him. He was feverishly eager for his revenge, and when Milsom rose to go, the captain wanted him to continue to play.

'You shan't sneak off like that", he said; "I want my revenge, and I must have it."

Black Milsom pointed to a little Dutch clock in a corner of the room.

"Past eight o'clock", he said; "and I've a five-mile walk between me and home. My girl, Jenny, will be waiting up for me, and getting anxious about her father."

In the excitement of play, and the fever engendered by strong drink, Valentine Jernam had forgotten the ballad-singer. But this mention of her name brought the vision of the beautiful face back to him.

"Your daughter" he muttered; "your daughter! Yes; the girl who sang here, the beautiful girl who sang."

His voice was thick, and his accents indistinct. Both the men had pressed Jernam to drink, while they themselves took very little. They had encouraged him to talk as well as to drink, and the appointment with his brother had been spoken of by the captain.

In speaking of this intended meeting, Valentine Jernam had spoken also of the good fortune which had attended his latest trading adventures; and he had said enough to let these men know that he carried the proceeds of his trading upon his person.

"Joyce wanted me to bank my money', he said; "but none of your banking rogues for me. My brother George is the only banker I trust, or ever mean to trust.'

Milsom insisted upon the necessity of his departure, and the sailor declared that he would have his revenge. They were getting to high words, when Dennis Wayman interfered to keep the peace.

"I'll tell you what it is", he said; "if the captain wants his revenge, it is only fair that he should have it. Suppose we go down to your place, supper, I dare say. What do you say Milsom! you can give us a bit of to that?"

Milsom hesitated in a sheepish kind of manner. "Mine's such a poor place for a gentlemen like the captain", he said. "My daughter Jenny will do her best to make things comfortable; but still it is about the poorest place that ever was —there's no denying that."

"I'm no fine gentleman", said the captain, enraptured at the idea of seeing the ballad-singer; "if your daughter will give us a crust of bread and cheese, I shall be satisfied. We will take two or three bottles of wine down with us, and we will be as jolly as princes. Get your trap ready, Wayman, and lets be off at once."

The captain was all impatience to start. Dennis Wayman went away to get the vehicle ready, and Milsom followed them, but they did not leave Captain Jernam much time for thought, for Dennis Wayman came back almost immediately to say that the vehicle was ready.

"Now, then, look sharp, captain!" he said; "it's a dark night, and we shall have a dark drive."

It was a dark night—dark even in Wapping, darker still on the road by which Valentine Jernam found himself travelling presently.

The vehicle which Dennis Wayman drove was a disreputable looking conveyance—half chaise-cart, half gig —and the pony was a vicious looking animal, with a shaggy mane; but he was a tremendous pony to go, and the dark, marshy country flew past the travellers in the darkness like a landscape in a dream.

The ripple of the water, sounding faintly in the stillness, told Valentine Jernam that the river was near at hand, but beyond this the sailor had little knowledge of his whereabouts.

They had soon left London behind.

NO TROUBLE BREAKFASTS

"If any of you are married let me give you this piece of advice; leave the purse also to your wife and take nothing out of it which she does not give to you. From the very first I left my wife in charge of the purse and laid myself out for politics, and I have always found that this was a very good arrangement."—Bismarck.

"You would not have so much trouble over your breakfasts if you got things ready overnight," said Mrs. Experience to Mrs. Hausfrau, in answer to the young wife's dismal lament that breakfast was the worry of her life. "I don't like getting up early any more than you do, but I can quite understand that your husband gets tired of boiled eggs and fried bacon day after day. Personally I always choose dishes that can be got ready the night before and all there is to do is to heat them. Here are two or three of my staple dishes which I think you will find will break the monotony and will really be less trouble in the morning than preparing eggs. For ham cakes, for instance, take ½ pound cooked ham, four tablespoonfuls of mashed potatoes, one teaspoonful of grated onion, pepper, salt, milk, one egg, some breadcrumbs and fat for frying. Overnight I chop the ham very finely, and mash the potatoes free from lumps, then mix the potato with the ham, and onion, season and mix all these ingredients carefully, and add just enough milk to bind the mixture and prevent it crumbling. Next I divide the mixture into even-sized pieces, and shape these into round flat cakes. Brush each over with beaten egg, and then coat them with crumbs, and place them ready on a tin covered with paper, on which to drain them after frying. I put a deep pan of frying-fat all ready. In the morning I put the pan of fat on the fire to heat, and when a faint smoke rises from it I put in some of the cakes, and fry them a pretty golden brown—then I lift them from the fat, drain them on paper, and serve neatly arranged on a hot dish. Boiled lean bacon, tongue, cold meat or poultry can be used instead of ham. For Fish Croutons you want ½ pound of cooked fish freed from bone, a tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a little fish stock or milk, one hard-boiled egg, two teaspoonfuls of anchovy essence, salt and pepper, and some slices of bread cut about ¼ of an inch thick. Overnight I chop the fish finely, melt the butter in a saucepan, stir in the flour smoothly, and add the milk, heat and stir this until the sauce boils. Then add the fish, shelled and chopped egg, anchovy essence and seasoning. If the mixture seems too dry add more liquid, for it should be stiff, yet creamy and leave the mixture in a pan in a cool place. I cut the bread into pieces about three inches long and one and a half wide, and lay these on a tin with about an ounce of bacon or beef dripping, in which they will be fried. In the morning I heat the mixture thoroughly, remembering that it is thick, and so will stick and burn if not stirred; heat the bacon fat in a frying-pan, and when a faint smoke rises from it lay in the bread, and fry it a pretty gold color. Then drain the pieces on paper, and neatly heap on them the hot fish mixture. Any fish, or mixture of fish, will do. If there is any suitable sauce, white or brown, ready, use it instead of making fresh. Toast can be used instead of fried bread.

UNIVERSITY GIRLS TRAINED IN ECONOMY

Being Taught Marketing and Cooking and How to Make Clothes Cheaply

The chief aim of the Home Economics department of the University of Omaha is to teach members of the class how to purchase food at the lowest possible price and to cook and bake in the most scientific manner. The girls are taught the principles of economic marketing, what foods are best fitted for the different classes of working people, and the chemical composition of the staple foods. These things must be learned before the young women take cooking practice.

The students are taken to groceries and taught how to pick out bargains. They are also taught how to find bargains in newspaper advertisements and how to watch these announcements.

Then comes the teaching of the art of cooking. At first they practise on soups and relishes. Later come the more difficult foods.

After that comes the scientific study of foods. Chemical composition and food value are studied thoroughly.

How to combat the high cost of living still further is taught. The pupils are shown how to use substitutes for the foods which reach prohibitive prices. Cooking of cheaper cuts of meat is carefully taught.

Not only are the pupils taught how to purchase and cook food; they are shown how to take care of a home in the most sanitary way. Under this head how to have plumbing arranged and how to dispose of garbage.

Very important, too, the girls are taught how to make their own clothes.

Women Man Barges

In Japan the big coal barges are manned by women, who remove the coal to the ships, and stand on the rungs of a ladder and pass the buckets to one another over their heads.

THE WHOLE ART OF DYEING

"There's not a blessed thing in this world worth having without sacrifice. The big people, the people that have the big things in life are those that have paid, or are prepared to pay the big price for them."—W. J. Locke.

There has just been republished an old book, which originally appeared in the year 1705, and which deals with the subject of dyeing, a subject in which women are all interested more or less. In this book the reader is let into the secrets of the wonderful old dyes, the first half telling of the experimental discovery of all the most useful secrets in dyeing silk, wool, linen, and the manufactures of these fabrics as practised in England, France, Spain, Holland and Germany, while the second half is devoted to general instructions in dyeing wools and woollen manufactures, and to the cultivation of the drugs used for making these dyes. In the early part of the 18th century, blue was perhaps the most popular of colors and no less than twenty-two shades of blue are mentioned; according to the writer the blue dyes are made from a plant called "Pastel" which grows in the upper Languedoc Valley, also with "vouede" found in Normandy, and with "indigo" obtained from the West Indies. "Woodland brown," a shade very popular to-day was equally popular in 1705, and was then known as "walnut-tree brown" and was made from the root, bark, and leaves of the walnut tree and with nut shells. A good brown too, we are herein informed, can be made from chimney soot, and this will also produce olive green or olive colors. Perfuming silks is also dealt with in this fascinating volume the recipe being as follows: "When the silk is dyed, for every pound of silk take an ounce of orris, dry it well, lay the silks in rose water in a thick sieve and betwixt every row strew powder of orris, and shut it up close in a box or chest till next day and the silk will emit an agreeable odor." The wonderful lustre on the old time silks was produced by adding an ounce of isinglass for every pound of silk to the water in which the latter was steeped. No wonder the silk dresses of our grandmothers were things that were cherished for a lifetime and still retain their fragrance and brilliance. The name of the book is "The Whole Art of Dyeing" and is well worth reading.

If corns are rubbed daily with toilet pumice, they will disappear.

If plants are washed in soapsuds, they will not have insects on them.

Sifted wood ashes put on a damp cloth will remove stains from tinware, agate or crockery.

To give plaster casts an alabaster effect, dip them into a strong solution of alum water.

Two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar to one white of egg will make excellent meringues.

Use warm water to sprinkle starched clothes, and the effect will be twice as satisfactory.

An apron made with a bib of table oilcloth is a great saver to wear when washing dishes.

If grease is well rubbed on the stove before polishing the polish will not burn off so quickly.

To make marmalade look clear without skimming it, add a piece of butter the size of an egg before removing the fruit from the fire.

If a rug curls, moisten it and wrap it around a broomstick, in the opposite way from its desires, then tie and let it dry.

Tarnished silver can be brightened if placed for a short time in boiling water in which a fair-sized lump of washing soda has been dissolved.

After cleaning brass or copper with salt and vinegar, rub with olive oil and the metal will not tarnish for a long time.

To keep the table salt dry and soft, dry it, then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps and sift into it a tablespoonful of corn starch.

It is a convenience to make vegetable bags of cheesecloth into which you put celery, tomatoes, lettuce and other fresh vegetables before placing in the refrigerator.

A good play dress for a child can be made from a man's worn shirt Cut it Dorothy style, and the work is very little, not to mention the saving in the youngster's clothes.

A recipe for axle grease is a pound of tallow, half a pound of castor oil, quarter of a pound of black lead. Melt the tallow and rub the whole well together.

If mirrors are very dull and speckled the following method is excellent: Take a small portion of whitening and add sufficient cold tea to it to make a paste; rub the glass with warm tea, dry with a soft cloth, then rub a little of the paste well on the mirror and polish dry with tissue paper.

For a disinfectant for a sink, pour down a gallon of boiling water mixed with two tablespoonfuls of soda and a teaspoonful of ammonia. This will dissolve all greasy matter in both sink and pipe.

WASHING WOOLLEN COATS

"Fixed to no spot is happiness sincere,
'Tis nowhere to be found, or everywhere,
'Tis never to be bought but always free." —Pope.

Everyone nowadays has a woollen or sweater coat. It is rather curious when one realizes what an indispensable item they have become to the ordinary wardrobe to remember that it is only a few years since they came into vogue, but ever since they first made their appearance they, like the coat and skirt costume and the blouse and shirtwaist, have remained with us, and are likely to remain with us. If these coats are light colored the problem of washing them is a matter which often causes some anxiety, as they are apt to emerge from the soapsuds in an unwearable condition. However it is a consolation to know that even the most delicate of them can be washed in such a way as to restore their original freshness if care is taken. First of all outdoor drying is essential, and a good breezy day should be chosen so that the coat will dry as quickly as possible. In this frosty weather they can only be left out a short time, and when brought in be very careful not to put them near the heaters as they will inevitably shrink. For the actual washing procure one ounce of lump ammonia, a packet of flaked soap and a quarter of a pound of powdered borax, and if possible use rainwater. If the coat be a new one it should first of all be steeped for half an hour in lukewarm water, to which a large pinch of salt as well as the ammonia has been added. This will take out the dressing which is always found in new woollen garments. Use very little water for this; only enough to cover the coat and no more, otherwise the dressing will make the dirt go into streaks when the coat is put into the soapsuds. While the coat is steeping mix the soap to a lather with boiling water taking care that it is all dissolved and then fill a large bath-tub with hot water and add the powdered borax to it. Then wring the coat gently from the steeping water and plunge it into the soapsuds, where it must be squeezed and pressed and kneaded, but not rubbed, until every atom of dirt is out of it. Often two lots of soapy water are required for this process, and two lots of soft warm rinsing water must be used to entirely free the coat from soap, otherwise it will shrink. A tablespoonful of vinegar added to the last rinsing water will brighten the colors. Having squeezed as much water out as possible, shake the coat thoroughly, pull the seams into shape, place it on a coat hanger, button it up and hang it by the hook to the clothes line, occasionally squeezing the water out of the hem as it accumulates. By this means it will dry evenly and keep its shape—and it can be finished in the kitchen by hanging it (still on the hanger to a line stretched across the room.

DESTINY OF STALE BREAD

Much of It Goes to Customers—Feed For Pigs and Chickens

What is done with stale bread in a city like Toronto? General opinion has it that a great amount of the "staff of life" which becomes damaged and stale, and is returned to the bakers, is thrown out and done away with, without having been made use of. Not so; enquiry elicited the information that in one week, five of Toronto's many bakers have the problem of disposing of 4,450 loaves of stale and damaged bread, divided as follows: North end baker, 3,500 loaves; East Toronto baker, 300 loaves, and three other bakers, one, 250 loaves, one, 100 loaves, and a fifth, 300 loaves, total 4,450 loaves. And how are they to rid themselves of all this bread you ask. It has been summed up as follows:

Customers	2,850 loaves
For sausages	510 loaves
Chickens	580 loaves
Institutions	250 loaves
Boarding houses	200 loaves
Pigs	60 loaves
	4,450 loaves

UNEMPLOYMENT MUST BE FACED

Mr. J. E. Atkinson Would Draw Lessons From the Old World

"The Problem of Unemployment" was the title of an interesting address given by Mr. J. E. Atkinson, Toronto. "We have been accustomed to say that in Canada we have not the problems of unemployment and a demand for a rearrangement of industry as they have them in other and in older countries," said Mr. Atkinson, "hence our legislators have paid practically no attention to them. From this comfortable state of mind the people of this city, at least, must have been disturbed during the present winter. Many thousands have found themselves lacking employment through no fault of theirs. Their families have suffered, in many cases to the utmost extremity. These workers receive wages that, even in times of work, are so close to the margin of sustenance that it is a mockery to ask why they do not save enough to tide them over those periods of non-employment which are as certain and almost as regular as the ebb of the tides. Ontario has not unemployment in the same degree as England, but the large and apparently inevitable degree to which the Province is affected urgently demands some such provision being made by legislation as is already in operation in the motherland."

PAY DAY ON A RAILWAY

An idea of the extent of the operations of a big railway may be gathered by a glance at pay day on the C.P.R., where is paid out over $6,000,000 in cheques, distributed over the system. By actual count this number with the growth of the system and the consequent need of more men, ever grows. A decade ago the total number of employes was something like 65,000. To-day it is over 120,000 in all grades of activity. It might be said that over 500,000 persons are directly interested in, and look forward to, the monthly pay day.

SAVING THE FRUIT TREES

Economy and Common Sense Will Keep up the Orchard

All old fruit trees when they cease to bear good crops of fruit should be grubbed and burned. To keep up the stock of fertile fruit trees there should always be young ones in course of preparation to take the place of those that are worn out, then when an orchard tree fails to bear, the young one can at once take its place. It should be understood, however, that when the old tree has been grubbed up, the soil in which it has been growing should be renewed, and if need be some rough material in the way of broken bricks, etc., put into the bottom to assist drainage if the subsoil is at all heavy and inclined to hold water. Those who like to do home grafting need never to be without young healthy trees. It may be pointed out that old trees must not be condemned until one is quite sure that they are past renewing, as many suffer from pure neglect in the way of food. Orchards in which cattle and sheep are allowed to graze are not so likely to fail, but when the grass is converted into hay and nothing in the shape of food is brought back, then the trees must suffer and fail to crop. Orchard trees that are past recovery should be allowed further trial and rich top dressings given. In many of our farmyards drainings from the cowshed and stable are often allowed to run to waste, whereas these, if saved and diluted applied to such old trees, will work wonders. Sewage from the houuse and the soapsuds from the laundry may be profitably utilized in the same way.

Reservoir For Ink

This isn't a fountain pen. It's simply a regular pen with two pen points in the holder instead of one. It will be found that by using a system like this 60 or 70 words can be written before it is necessary to dip the pen in the ink again. The space between the pens forms a small reservoir that feeds the ink to the points freely and easily. The upper pen point should be shoved into the holder just the least little bit further than the lower with which the writing is done.

New Tax For German Householders

An enormous amount of dissatisfaction has arisen among householders in Germany with regard to the new tax of 50 shillings per annum on every servant kept. For the payment of this sum the State undertakes to relieve the householder of all responsibility when servants become ill.

STRAIGHT TALK TO MEN

This Preacher Condemns With Emphasis the Grouchers

Basing his arguments upon the story of Cain and Abel, the first brothers, Rev. Canon Dyson Hague preaches a straight-from-the-shoulder sermon to men, particularly young men. He sternly rebukes those who continually go about with a "grouch," always looking at the dark side of life, grumbling because other men, "no cleverer than they," were making five or six times as much money in a year, and generally making themselves objectionable. "If someone is making more than you are then it is your own fault, and no one else's."

Canon Hague stated there was no reason why men should not overcome habits if they honestly wished to walk the path of the righteous. "If a man wants to drink," he declared, "he will go where he is most likely to meet temptation; if he wants to steal he will go to places where he is most likely to meet others with similar inclinations. If he wants to keep straight then he will find others whose offerings have been accepted by the Lord. The sin is there, but he, in the manhood, shall rule over it."

Tragedy of Ignorance

Dr. Holt, medical officer of health for Burnley, speaking at the opening of a School for Mothers at Burnley, said the effect of the want of knowledge in Burnley could be seen when they considered that in one year 2,500 children were born, and that 434 died before they reached the age of one year. At least 150 of the children died from complaints they ought not to have died from.

CANADIAN OUTLOOK

"Making Good" in Toronto—Letter to the Scotsman

In reference to a letter in Club of 5th December, entitled "Keep Away from Vancouver," it is true no doubt that there are many out of employment there, as in many other large and growing cities, but this is no reason for them being in want. When in Vancouver in 1912 I had a chat with a carpenter, a Scotsman, of course, who was doing a little job for our landlady. She always employed him "because he was reliable." I found that this man was worth nearly 100,000 dollars (£20,000.) Instead of building a costly house, getting an automobile, etc., he was far happier going on as he had commenced. He was an honest, industrious man.

For a month before Christmas there was ample evidence provided of the prosperity of this city (Toronto) in the spending of money by all classes of citizens. In summer time it is the same. It is not the well-to-do who spend their means in this way. No, it is the wage-earners, and they simply spend, spend. When winter comes work is slack, and the army of unemployed is increased.

Four or five years ago, a young Englishman came to my home asking for work, says K. [illegible] Scott, Toronto writing to The Scotsman. He was a window-cleaner, had a tidy little business in Brighton, England, and made "about $5 a week." Thinking to do better he, with wife and one child, came to Toronto. He worked all summer. As winter approached he was laid off. A second child arrived. The family of four were living in one room Their landlady, a charwoman, from whom they rented a room at 2 dollars a week, was good to them. I saw he was a decent-looking young man, and made some work for him, and told him to come back and that he must not allow his wife and children to be hungry. With the charwoman's help he struggled along, and by March he had a prospect of getting work. I loaned him something to help to furnish some rooms. He rented four and sub-let two. I made work for him in the garden, and ere long he was out of my debt. He did such good work in putting down cement walks that he had all he could do. I helped him to purchase some building lots and a bit of land, and very soon he had a comfortable house on one-half the lot. Next spring he built a good brick house on the other lot, moved into it, sold a cottage on it for $1,200, has since sold brick house for $2,500, bought four lots near by, built two houses during the past summer, both of which are now sold, and he is now busy preparing to build other two. He has succeeded so far even with the scarcity of money. This man does not say, "Keep away from Toronto." I may say candidly any man or woman coming to Canada wishing to get on can do so if they are true Scots. It is true, only too true, that there are a good many in all our large cities out of work just now, but Canada is not alone in this respect. As soon as the wave of depression passes there will be work for all who are willing to work. There is much being said about the high cost of living. Our tastes are getting more expensive than they used to be. When I think of the waste that goes on, I am not surprised at the high cost of living.

Light Hats Prevent Baldness

Medical men have agreed that baldness is largely a matter of headgear. It is a rarity for a woman to go bald, notwithstanding that her hats are often heavier and bigger than a man's. But her hat is fixed to her hair, not to her scalp, the veins are not constricted and ventilation is permissible. Men's hats, with their hard, tight-fitting brims, make it impossible for the blood to circulate properly, and consequently there is a congestion of blood in the scalp.

At any time it is more difficult for the blood to circulate properly in the top of the head than in other parts of the body, for the simple reason that it has to be pumped up higher there than anywhere else, and, if its course is restricted, the consequences cannot be wondered at. A tight hat also keeps the head hot—another fatal condition. If you would avoid baldness wear light, well-ventilated, soft-brimmed hats.

FARMS CHANGING

A Woodstock Man's Observations on the Subject

"The farm is changing because it is ceasing to be the farm. That is why the farmer refuses to remain on the farm," said Mr. Markey of Woodstock. "Modern conveniences, such as the elaborate implements, elephone service and such devices are taking away the old style of farm life. I can remember when agriculture was born. The farmers were once farmers, but years ago they became agriculturists, and then the vocation gave way to science. The man who worked the soil began to see how much money he could make out of his land instead of how much pleasure he could find in taking care of it, and the tendency leaned toward immigration to the city. Even in the public schools the beauty of nature is being shattered. The schools are botanizing the beauty out of the world. Every pupil knows the geological formation of the rainbow but he does not know the poem 'My heart leaps up when I behold a rainbow in the sky.'"

Mr. Markey could remember when hogs sold for $6. Whether it was $6 a ton or $6 a bushel, he did not remember. "While I was still a journalist, an important incident happened in my life," he said. "When a young lad gets a job in a newspaper office he becomes a journalist. After a few years he realizes that he is a newspaperman. I got a report for my paper that hogs were selling at $6. When the report was set up the six dropped upside down and read $9.

"A farmer outside of Woodstock read it. He went out and killed everything on his farm that looked like a hog and brought it into town. When he arrived the price of hogs had dropped beneath $6. He came into our office and threatened to sue us for $450, the difference between $9 and what he was forced to sell at."

SINGER ANNOYS DUKE

An amusing incident took place in a London music hall recently. The Grand Duke Michael of Russia was in the front row of stalls accompanied by his young son and his very pretty daughter. The star came along the passage in front of the footlights, and quite close to the audience, to sing her song: "I Love my Bonnie Blue-eyed Boy." On Saturday night she made a great hit by stopping in front of the grand duke and singing the words with mischievous intensity. The house was quick to appreciate what in reality was a compliment, and meant one; but the grand duke seemed a little disconcerted and turned his head persistently aside, though his daughter evidently enjoyed the fun. When the singer had gone back to the stage Lord Lonsdale, who was also in the audience, went across and spoke to the grand duke, apparently to persuade him that only a compliment was intended.

Threat Was Not Fulfilled

An amusing story is being told of Sir Douglas Dawson, who had so much to do with the preparations for Prince Arthur's wedding. Sir Douglas had a very worrying time, and the story goes that one day he went into a room in the Palace where a friend was sitting, and, sinking into a chair, he remarked, wearily:

"If anyone so much as breathes the word 'wedding' in my presence I'll knock him down!" He had scarcely uttered the words when the door opened and King George came in looking worried.

"Oh, by the way," he began at once, "about this wedding—"

His Majesty got no further than the word, for, in spite of all his efforts, Sir Douglas's friend was forced to laugh. The King glanced at him in surprised annoyance, but laughed heartily when Sir Douglas explained what he had just threatened.

Historic House Destroyed

A house with many historic memories—No. 35 St. Martin street, Leicester Square, where once Sir Isaac Newton and Dr. Burney dwelt—is now being demolished. Newton lived here from 1720 to 1725, and used to say that the happiest years of his life were spent in an observatory on the roof. Dr. Burney, the musician, friend of Dr. Johnson, afterwards lived in the house, and here was born his daughter Fanny, afterwards Mme. D'Arblay, who wrote her first novel, "Evelina," in the house.

New Artists' Easel

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Powder New Gloves

Powder the insides of new gloves to make them easier to slip on, and also, in the case of colored kid ones, to prevent the dye from staining the hands.

Keep Eggs Cool

The cooler eggs are the quicker they will froth when whipped, so they should be beaten in a cool place. A pinch of salt always cools and freshens them.

Will Remove Fruit Stains

Vegetable and fruit stains on the fingers can be removed by dipping the fingers in very strong tea for a few minutes and then washing them in clear, warm water.

Grease the Saucepan

If bright saucepans and kettles have to be used over a smoky fire, smearing a little grease over the bright part will prevent the smoke from blackening the metal. If washed after use in hot water, the pan will be as bright as ever.

To Improve Cakes

When using dripping for making a cake, add a few drops of essence of lemon or the juice of a lemon, and it will be found that this will not only remove the fatty flavor which cakes so often have when made with dripping—especially mutton—but will very greatly improve the flavor.

Coffee Stains Removable

The most difficult of all stains to take out are those made by coffee. With care, however, the stain can be removed from the most delicate silk or woollen fabrics. Rub the mark gently with a little pure glycerine, then rinse it in lukewarm water, lay a cloth over the damp part on the wrong side, and press with a cool iron until dry. Do not wet more of the material than is absolutely necessary.

Frying Need Not Smell

If the disagreeable smell of frying pervades the house, examine the bottom of the frying-pan, and you will find it covered with burnt fat which smells as soon as it is hot. To prevent the smell, besides washing the pan with strong soda water just after it has been used, it is necessary to boil it out in a larger vessel with soda in the water. Rinse, put in some clean water, and the smell will no longer exist.

China Cement

A tried cement for cracked china is this: Mix the white of an egg with sufficient powdered lime to make a paste. Apply it to the broken edges, press firmly together and place the article where it will not be disturbed until the paste is hardened.

Starching Dark Goods

To starch black, navy blue or other dark wash goods, use gelatine instead of starch and there will be no streaks. Pour one quart of boiling water over one teaspoon of gelatine which has been soaked in a little cold water. Strain and use lukewarm.

To Restore Black Lace

To freshen old black lace, soak it in vinegar and water—two tablespoonfuls of vinegar to a pint of water. Rinse and iron while slightly damp.

A Dainty Gift

Buy some innersoles and sew pink ribbon about four inches wide around them, closing at the back with an overhand seam. On the upper edge of this ribbon, about a half inch from the top, make a small tuck, through which you run a rubber cord that will draw up the ribbon to the foot.

On the toe put a blue daisy, made of loops of pale blue baby ribbon, with a flat yellow button in the center.

"They should be proclaimed outlaws, their contracts should be made incapable of taking legal proceeding of any kind, civil or criminal."

The New Color

"I suppose," said the new saleswoman, "that you want a suit that will make you look attractive to your husband?" "Attractive to my husband!" echoed the shopper. "I should say not. He wouldn't know if I wore a suit ten years old. What I want is something that will make my next-door neighbor turn a pale pink green with envy."

If, instead of throwing away used corks, they are kept in a jar with a little coal oil, they will be found a great help when lighting fires. Also orange and lemon peel, when dried, quickly ignites, and there is not so much wood needed.

LONGING FOR WORK

An Oxford Man's Appeal to a Town Council

The following letter from Mr. H. E. Lee, Guildford, was read at a meeting of the Guildford Town Council: "As a resident in Guildford I am writing to offer my services to the town in whatever capacity they may be of use. I came to Guildford three years ago, and hoped I should in time find employment of some kind here, but have found very little after much search. I am a teacher by profession, with a university education (Oxford), 47 years of age. I want remunerative work, but have a greater wish to be of some use in the town, and am quite willing to work for nothing if I can help in such ways as checking the abuse of public advertisements, suggesting improvements in roads, etc., traffic, especially motor traffic. I should like, of course, to be given some definite work. I am not a fanatic, and, being quite unconnected with trade or business, I have no axe to grind." On the suggestion of the Mayor the letter was referred to a committee for consideration.

RUSH TO MARRIAGE

More Haste, More Debt—Home Making on Credit

A defendant who borrowed $1,000 on a bill of sale in order to get married surprised Judge Cluer in a case at the Shoreditch County Court, London. It was stated that the defendant was paying interest at an enormous rate, and the judge was prompted to ask if it would not have been wiser to postpone the marriage for a year. "Unfortunately, people will not wait until they are in a position to get married," a court official said. "Even if the birth-rate is declining there does not seem to be much diminution in the number of improvident marriages. In the courts we frequently see the evil results of a too hasty plunge into matrimony. Young couples will sometimes borrow money to set up a home, without realizing that they will be required to pay extortionate interest quite beyond their powers. The moneylenders are much to blame for this state of affairs. They make it appear such a simple thing to borrow a few pounds until the husband is in a better position. But $300 interest on $500 is a heavy burden to the man earning $7.50 a week; the result often is that he is dragged into court, and the judge has to make as merciful an order as possible.

"Then the credit system is not an unmixed blessing. A young couple feel there is no need to wait because they have not the money available to set up a home. They can get anything they want by means of the instalment system. They do not pause to consider what may happen if the husband should be unfortunate enough to lose his job. A lost job often means a lost home. The husband is usually anxious to make his wife as comfortable as possible, and involves himself in indebtedness he knows he will find it very difficult to discharge. People do not seem to realize that getting married is like setting up in business. It requires capital in much the same way, and it is beset by nearly as many pitfalls. But, unfortunately, common sense and connubial attachments proverbially take [illegible]

QUEBEC FORESTRY

Forestry Engineers Who Work on Scientific Principle

The day of the ruthless pioneer is long past in the Province of Quebec, and the valuable forests which densely clothe such an enormous area are no longer regarded as an obstacle in the path of civilization. On the contrary, they are being carefully conserved, and forestry engineers, working on scientific principles, are being increasingly employed. The old haphazard methods are giving place to organized effort. There are six million acres of private forests in the province, and seventy-nine million acres of forests under government control. The work of classification and exploration will necessitate the employment of a great number of agents for a long period. Retimbering is beginning to assume truly colossal proportions, no less than 200 firms at the present time being engaged in lumber work in the Province of Quebec. Seven of these firms are now employing forestry engineers, and it is certain that several of the owners will soon follow their example, thus affording excellent opportunities for the engineers, who are being trained at the Forestry School.

Never Mind

Sometimes, when nothing goes just right,
And worry reigns supreme,
When heartache fills the eyes with mist,
And all things useless seem,
There's just one thing can drive away
The tears that scald and blind—
Someone to slip a strong arm round,
And whisper, "Never mind."

No one has ever told just why
Those words such comfort bring;
Nor why that whisper makes our cares
Depart on hurried wing.
Yet troubles say a quick "Good-day!"
We leave them far behind
When someone slips an arm around,
And whispers, "Never mind."

But love must prompt that soft caress—
The love must aye be true;
Or at that tender, clinging touch,
No heartsease comes to you.
But if the arm be moved by love,
Sweet comfort you will find
When someone slips an arm around,
And whispers, "Never mind."

Scott's Journal

The original journals of Sir Robert Scott during his south polar expedition were placed in the British museum by Lady Scott. By order of the trustees they were placed on view on the second anniversary of Scott's arrival at the South Pole. The journals are three small, pencil-written books which Scott carried with him to the pole and which were found on his dead body by the searching party. At the end of the last of these is the "Message to the Public," which made so deep and lasting an impression on the heart of the nation.

KITCHEN WRINKLES

A piece of starch placed in the water will keep flowers fresh for quite a long period.

If a little saltpetre is sprinkled over the fire occasionally it will keep the the chimney free from soot.

After washing cut-glass articles let them dry and afterwards rub them carefully with prepared chalk, with a soft brush.

Potatoes are more nutritious if boiled in their skins, after being scrubbed clean; they can be skinned before taking to table.

After using a gas-stove for baking leave the door open a little while to allow the heat to escape. This will prevent sweating and rusting.

The best way to keep a dustbin fresh and clean is to put hot ashes into it each time it has been emptied. It keeps it quite clean and free from all smells.

Celery or parsley rubbed on the hands after peeling onions will counteract the odor. Lemon, borax, or ammonia is excellent for removing stains from the hands.

Brown stockings should never be ironed, but just pressed through the mangle to smooth them out. A hot iron will spoil the color and give them an unpleasant yellw tint.

When washing oilcloth a tablespoonful of painters' size added to a pail of water will give it a glossy surface and make it wear much better than when washed in the ordinary way.

Not only is powdered oatmeal good for the complexion, but a little of it thrown into the water in which the face and hands are bathed has a softening and whitening effect.

When cooking kippers, place them on a dish or tin with a piece of butter on each; cover and leave in a fairly hot oven for ten minutes. This method preserves the juice and the flavor of the fish better than frying.

When cleaning stone steps and hearths mix the white hearthstone or red ochre with thin starch instead of water. This causes it to stick to the stones, and it will not be washed off so quickly with rain or be trodden off.

To clean the inside of a silver teapot, mix together equal quantities of soda, vinegar, and flour. Paste this around the inside of the pot and let it stand overnight. It will make the inside as bright as possible with very little labor.

When a splinter gets under a finger nail it is often very hard to draw out. In such a case, if a cold water bandage is put round the top of the finger and then kept wet and cold it will in time both draw out the splinter and keep the finger from festering.

A Very Chic Gown

Washing Silk Handkerchiefs

When washing silk handkerchiefs a little care is required to prevent them from turning yellow, and to avoid this they should never be boiled or have any soap rubbed on them. Make a lather of finely shredded white soap and lukewarm water, wash and squeeze the handkerchiefs in it; press out all the moisture possible and dry them quickly. Iron while they are still damp, though not wet.

Separating Tumblers

If two glass dishes or tumblers stick together very tightly, try filling the inner one with cold water and holding the outer one in warm water. They will separate at once.

Dip Gas Mantles In Vinegar

If new gas mantles be dipped into vinegar and hung up to dry before being placed upon the gas fixtures they will give a more brilliant light and last longer.

ORIGIN OF DWARFS PUZZLES SCIENTISTS

Old Age Infantile Characteristics Still Persist, Notwithstanding Their Wizened Appearance

Dwarfs have always been a puzzle to scientists, whether they are human beings, animals, or plants. Some of the difficulties of understanding the origin of the human ones were cleared away by Professor Hastings Gilford in his lecture at the Royal College of Surgeons, London. Of course, there are whole races of dwarfish human beings, but the kind of person who especially deserves the name is one who is conspicuously small amongst his own people. Most of these eccentric little folk, often called midgets, are really, according to Professor Gilford, endowed with the gift of perpetual youth—not altogether a desirable gift, as any reader of fairy tales will know. It was often thought, he said, that midgets were people whose growth had suddenly been arrested. This was not so. The professor pointed out that in many cases "the so-called dwarfs or midgets are not in reality the result of a stoppage of growth, but rather of a protracted delay in development, so that they remain infants all their lives. When they grow old, as they often do, their infantile characteristics still persist. Dr. Gilford gave many quaint instances Dr. Gilford gav many quaint instances where their smallness and their baby-like minds stood dwarfs in good stead. One mannikin, he said, travelled wherever he cared to go on the railway with half a ticket until he was 30 years old; another intelligent child of 14 years got through more easily still, for his mother or any other woman who cared to assume the responsibility could carry him about as a baby in arms.

This intense prolongation of the period of childhood was really something very much akin to a disease. The lecturer classified it into many forms, but said of the many specimens he had met and examined: "They seem to be intelligent and captivating little people, their intelligence being of the childish pattern, such as might be expected of young people who had gathered years of experience. They never seem to be spoiled or even embarrassed by the attentions they receive from the public, but show quaint childish traits and a charming naiveté which makes them great favorites with those who have dealings with them."

Science naturally divides dwarfs into many kinds, but two of these are quite distinct. In one class the bones grow harder with age instead of remaining, as in the other class, gristly like those of little children. When, as in the first case, the bones begin to harden, other changes often happen, and the midgets become a strange compound of adult and child. "They often rejoice," said Professor Gilford, "in beards and moustaches, and some of them have become the proud fathers and mothers of diminutive beings like themselves."

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

Herbert Morrah Thinks Difficulties of English Are Exaggerated

Mr. Herbert Morrah addressing the Authors' Club in London, thought they were all united in believing in the great mission of English literature, but he was afraid that was where their unity would end. For he did not believe it would go out that they were on the whole very much in favor of the scheme set forward by the Simplified Spelling Society, and this not because it was a reform. They were all conscious of the anomalies of the English language, but they were not prepared for a revolution. During the last day or two he had had the pleasure of reading pamphlets of the Simplified Spelling Society, and he gathered from these that there was a definite scheme for placing the whole English language into the melting pot. Education had largely to do with this subject, and he thought that the difficulty of spelling the English language was enormously exaggerated (cheers). It was not extremely difficult for the average child to learn any subject, and he was not convinced that the average child was stupid (hear, hear). He was convinced, however, that our education in English left much to be desired, and he was quite sure that that should be thrown into the melting pot before they tampered with the spelling. It was admitted that the body of our language had not altered in 150 years, and he supposed the man of all others to whom they owed most for this was Dr. Johnson. There were many people who believed that Dr. Johnson had given them a good working model, and that it would be a good thing to leave well alone rather than enter into a scheme which, whatever else it might do, would involve an indefinite number of complications.

IMPROVING THE ROADS

Autos and Farmers Responsible For General Zeal

The most conspicuous thing about the sessions of the Ontario Good Roads' Association was the businesslike way in which the delegates discussed practical ways and means for road improvement. A few years ago it would have been necessary to have shown reasons why roads should be so improved, and what economic benefits would have been conferred upon the farmers by that improvement. All that is now admitted. The public interest is keenly fixed upon the practical side of financing and constructing improvements. The automobile is in large measure responsible for this awakening of general zeal, because to the natural desire it has added the energetic backing and influence of powerful urban associations and interests.

TYPHOID VACCINE

British Army Pathologist Tells Results of Studies

Col. Sir Wm. Leishman, F.R.S., K.H.P., professor of pathology at the Royal Army Medical College, London, England, who is generally recognized as one of the greatest men in the medical profession in Great Britain, told a meeting of the Association of Officers of the Medical Services of Canada at Ottawa many of the results of his experiments with typhoid vaccine, of which he has made a special study. He claimed that the success of the vaccine has been demonstrated in a remarkable way, especially in tropical countries where typhoid or enteric fever is more rampant than elsewhere.

Pulling His Ears

It is said that the German Emperor has a habit of gently tugging at his left ear when anything bothers him. One day, some years ago, when he was on a visit to England, he was handed a telegram. The contents of the message apparently displeased him, for he immediately began tugging at his ear. The Prince of Wales, then a small boy, watched the performance with considerable interest. "Uncle," he said at length, "why are you pulling your ear?" "Because I'm annoyed, I suppose," replied the Kaiser. "And when you're very annoyed," persisted the young Prince, "what do you do then?" "Then I pull somebody else's," announced his Majesty viciously.

Origin of "Deadhead"

The origin of the word "deadhead" takes us back to the theatres of ancient Rome. R. H. Broadhead, in "A History of Pantomime," gives the following realistic explanation. He says: "Persons were instructed to give applause with skill. The proficient hired themselves out to the poets, authors, etc., and were so disposed as to support a loud applause. The free admission tickets were small ivory death's heads, and specimens of these are to be seen in the Museum of Naples."

Why They Are Cold

Do you know why a dog's nose and a woman's elbow are always cold? Because, according to an old country superstition when Noah went into the Ark he found that he had forgotten his tools and had to use first a dog's nose, and then his wife's elbow, to stop a leak.

TYRANNY OF SUNDAY DINNER

"Men have many faults, women only two,
Nothing right they say and nothing right they do."

Why is it that in most households all the menfolk are supposed to have a claim to make Sunday a day of rest and idleness? Nothing is ever done by a man on Sunday that can possibly be put off until Monday, but it very seldom occurs to them that their womenkind do not have the same privilege. Always there must be a hot dinner, and an extra good one, and if there is no maid it means that the wife or mother has to spend the greater part of what should be her day of relaxation in preparing the meal, otherwise there will be grievances and grumbles at the table. Breakfast is generally later on Sundays and the morning is shortened thereby, so that immediately the one meal is over and the rooms tidied the dinner must be prepared, and the woman who can manage to get to church in the interim is a wonder and an envy to her sex. Here are a few tips as to engineering the church hour or the rest hour in the morning and still having the hot meal. Partially cook the joint or the chickens on Saturday and leave them in the pan, reheating them for half an hour in a hot oven on Sunday. If a sufficient number of potatoes are boiled the day before they can be browned in the pan at the same time. Green vegetables too can be boiled on Saturday, and if reheated with a little butter will be as good as if they were done the same day, while other vegetables can be warmed up in a white sauce. Very few men will tolerate a cold mid-day meal on Sundays, especially in winter, and some ingenuity must be exercised in arranging everything so that as little time as possible need be taken up in getting it ready on Sunday. I once heard of a woman who, when she was first married, was told by some friends that they only had two meals on Sunday, a late breakfast and a dinner at four o'clock in the afternoon. She determined to try the plan on her husband. The following Sunday they went to church, and on their return he asked how soon dinner would be ready. She said at four o'clock. He looked at her, but said nothing. But he went upstairs and shut himself into his room where he remained while the young wife prepared a sumptuous meal. At four o'clock she went to call him, and was greeted with the reply that if he could not have his dinner at the proper time he would not have it at all—and he didn't. It was her first and last attempt to interfere with masculine feeding hours. She is an old woman now but the memory of that experiment is as vivid as if it happened yesterday.

PEER'S WIDOW ENTERS CONVENT

True Romance Which Reads Like Fiction

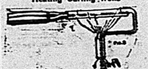
A fascinating romance of the peerage is recalled by the report that Julia Lady Lyveden, has entered a convent in Edinburgh.

Seventeen years ago Lady Lyveden was a pretty assistant of eighteen in a fancy shop at Eastbourne. Miss Julia Kate Emery, as she was then, attracted the attention of the late Lord Lyveden, who was seventy-seven years old and an invalid. He fell in love with her and was drawn in his bath chair every day to the shop.

After fulfilling an engagement as secretary to the aged peer Miss Emery consented at length to accept her patron's name and coronet, and in 1890 the marriage took place at All Souls' Church, Hastings. The marriage lasted only four years, the late peer dying in 1900, and as there was no issue the title passed to a nephew, the present peer. Eight years later the widow became engaged to Mr. Henry Hugh Maclean, but the engagement was broken off.

The present Lord Lyveden has had a most adventurous career, having been in his time a soldier, a market gardener and a ship's steward. When he was roughing it in America, without any apparent prospect of becoming a peer, he lodged over a stable and earned a precarious living as a cab driver.

Heating Curling Irons



There are few devices for heating curling irons over a gas jet that compare with this one that can be made at home out of metal tubing. The tubing should be made of a size that will fit the curling iron and the gas jet. It is cut out in the center, one end being left to fit over the jet and the cut out part bent so that the other end, left whole for the curling iron, comes over the flame. By using a device like this there is no danger of getting soot on the iron and the heating is done very quickly.

If two or three lumps of sugar are placed in kettles and teapots, they will absorb all moisture and will prevent rust and the "fusty" smell which is the result of their being left half dry.

Guelph Mercury: "British Columbia is aflame because a Chinese servant murdered the woman in whose house he was a servant. Public feeling is turned against the Chinese and many have been dismissed from their positions in private homes. There is no reason why the whole Celestial kingdom of B. C. should be punished for the fiendish work of one of their number." This is equivalent to condemning an entire church parish for the capers of one hypocrite.

Herald-Telegraph: "The speech of Hon. George P. Graham on the National Transcontinental Railway, and the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton, as given in the Commons on March 24th and 25th, is being printed in pamphlet form, and will be distributed free of charge to any one on application to the Central Liberal Information Office, Hope Chambers, Ottawa." Yes, it will be a most interesting treatise—a seven-hour effort on the part of the Hon. George P., on ways that are deep, dark and mysterious.

In a divorce action the ownership of many valuable wedding presents was in dispute, and an Indianapolis dressed to the bride-to-be.

Herald-Telegraph: "The C.P.R. having applied to the courts to put the whole city of Maisonneuve into jail the city of Maisonneuve is now going to strain every nerve to get the C. P. Kingston Standard: "Will the Liberals kindly remember that a Liberal member of the Dominion House has now said that he desires "no truck or trade with the Yankees." But because he has done so, the Conservatives will not be such fools as to claim that all Liberals desire this, as they did when one Conservative voiced such a wish."

"GIN PILLS ARE WONDERS"

Says Prominent Winnipeg Newspaper Man. "Before I Used The Second Box, The Pain Had Left"

"Manitoba Free Press"
Winnipeg, Jan. 15th. 1913

"I think it only right that I should tell you about the benefits I received the last couple of weeks by using GIN PILLS. I was troubled for over three weeks with a pain in my back, and tried a number of remedies without any benefit. One of the reporters had also been troubled the same way and he said to me, "Why don't you use GIN PILLS? I used a box and a half and the pain left". He said "You take this other half of the box and get another box, and you will be all right". I am glad to inform you that before I used all of the second box, I felt myself all right again and the pain had left. I certainly think GIN PILLS are wonders".

TROUSERS FOR WOMEN

"The blossom cannot tell what becomes of the odor, and no man can tell what becomes of his example, that rolls away from him and goes beyond his ken on its perilous mission."—H. W. Beecher.

• • •

It is stated as an actual fact that the first pair of trousers have actually been worn by a woman in daylight and undisguised. The new costume is invented by a Parisian tailor, of course. It consists of a short coat, and a wrap-over skirt which fastens in front over the trousers. The latter are creased as a man's and turned up around the ankle. Its inventor claims that the costume is practical and convenient, and the trousers being made of the same material as the skirt are not nearly so conspicuous as are the silk stockings which are visible through the slit and slashed skirts and only the turned up ends of the trousers can be seen when the skirt is fastened. There is no doubt that something of the sort is bound to come before long. All women's dress is tending towards the elimination of the skirt. Nowadays with so many professional women, athletic women, women engaged in men's trades, etc., it is inevitable that some form of practical dress will have to be designed to meet their requirements, and a general simplification has been going on for some time past. Skirts without fulness, plain coats, the disappearance of the petticoat, and so forth all show the trend of ideas, while for some time past in Alpine sports, in riding, in mountain climbing and in other occupations where there is risk to life and limb the skirt has been altogether dispensed with and no one has seemed to be greatly agitated or shocked about it. The change has come about so gradually that it has scarcely been noticed, and the eccentricities and freaks of fashion keep the attention of the public rivetted upon them while all the time the real and vital changes are taking place and by the time the public wake up to the fact have become accepted. Bicycling for women was the beginning of it, and sports and professions have developed it. It is no uncommon thing for little girls nowadays to be dressed exactly like their brothers when at the seaside or in the country, and it will not be long before the older girls and women adopt the same costume if they find it practical and comfortable, and so by degrees it is likely that a mannish style of dress will be used for everyday wear, though I doubt if the skirt will ever be abandoned for house and smart wear. But you never can tell.

KEEPING ACCOUNTS

Enter Each Item and Thus Avoid a Muddle

Most women are not nearly sufficiently particular aboutu keeping accounts—they are apt to think it is dull and unnecessary work. It is quite a mistaken attitude to adopt, however, for it is only by keeping accounts that a woman can learn how to manage her money in the best and most advantageous way. Certainly women of every degree and position will find their money covers much more ground when they see the wisdom that lies in keeping regular accounts.

Accounts must be kept in the right way, but that does not necessitate a great deal of work, and any elaborate book-keeping is misplaced. One large account book and a set of small ones are required—the large one to be balanced up once a month, the small ones being for weekly accounts. The small books must be divided up under various headings, according to the various calls that are made upon a woman's pocket. The latter vary so much according to individual responsibilities that it is impossible to generalize. Anyway, one book should be devoted to each department in which money is chiefly spent, and quarterly or monthly or weekly (as the case may be) the money which has to cover certain things should be systematically divided among them. This must be entered into each of the respective books, on one side as "Money received," and on the opposite side must be entered a full and complete account of "Money spent." It is most essential that every item should be regularly entered in the right little book on both the credit and debit sides. It is not an atom of good for women to follow the example of the schoolboy who kept his accounts like this: Collection, 10 cents; car fares, 25 cents; sundries, $3.50; total money spent, $5. That is only waste of time and energy. Accounts are kept so that one can tell exactly how every cent has been spent—the importance of entering each item immediately cannot be too strongly emphasized. The items, however, should not be enumerated when balancing the small books into the monthly one—then it is only necessary to put the covering heading which appears on the outside of each little book.

It is wise to keep all old account books. If some one item of expenditure is shown for no apparent reason, a reference to last year's books will often show where the reason lies. The advantages of keeping accounts are many, and such that no woman can fail to appreciate once she determines to give up a little of her spare time to keeping the books in order.

Grafters get into office when honest men fail to do their duty.

More than a blanket morgage is needed to keep a house warm in cold weather.

WHERE TO MARRY

Quebec the Most Expensive of the Provinces

The Province of Quebec is the most expensive place there is in which to be married by license. This is because the Province puts a tax on marriage by license. Six dollars is drawn down every time a license is issued by the Government. The total cost is eight dollars. Two of these go to the issuer of the document. This money does not go into the general fund of the Province, but is devoted to the higher Protestant educational institutions, and is placed at the disposal of the Educational Board. It is given in this way because Roman Catholics do not marry by license.

The tax amounts to many thousands of dollars every year. In one office alone in 1913 no less than 800 licenses were issued. Undoubtedly the total would be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

In Ontario the Government charges nothing for the privilege of getting married. The license costs two dollars, but that goes to the official who issues the document. This, it is understood, is the usual method.

Another curious feature, and one, it is maintained, should not be struck from the code, is the fact that the happy couple must be bonded. The bridegroom going to the issuer of licenses is astounded, if he has not learned of the law, to find that he must bring two householders who will go bond for him for $800 each, to show that there is no reason why the marriage should not take place. It is to prove that neither of the parties have previously been wedded, that they are of age, or if not, that the consent of the parents has been obtained. It is merely a matter of form. There are no records known of any bondsmen being sued for the amount of the bond by the Province or by an irate parent. Nevertheless, the bond must be given.

MIXED FARMING POPULAR

West No Longer Devoted to Growing Wheat

"Western Canada is turning to mixed farming instead of exclusively raising wheat," said Geo. Bury, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific.

"I have seen no evidence for a long time that is more encouraging for the future of the West. The farmers are not pinning their faith to any one crop, and, what 's more, they are not draining the fertility of their land by lack of rotation of crops from year to year.

It is nearly certain that there will be about 2,000,000 acres more under cultivation this year than ever before, and although the effects of the money stringency have certainly been felt in the West as elsewhere, there is a solid foundation for the prosperity of the Western farmer that cannot be disturbed by the flutters of the stock market."

ICELANDERS ADAPTABLE

Professor Thinks They Discovered America

"Icelanders and their contributions to History" was the theme chosen by Professor A. Holmes, Ph.D., M.D. of Queen's University before the Ottawa Teachers' Association in the Toronto Normal school hall. "The Commonwealth of Iceland was created owing to the irresponsibility of a woman," quoted Mr. Holmes. "'Only will I say yea to being his sole and lawful wife,' said a maiden exceeding fair to Harold Hairfair, 'when he brings to subjection all Norway as freely as does King Eric rule the Swede realm.'"

After a brief historical sktech of the history of Iceland, and upon observations made during the course of a tour of the country last summer, Professor Holmes asserted that there was no doubt in his mind that the Icelanders were the first to discover America. "Their newspapers," continued the speaker, "excel in terseness, capacity of action and passion, and powers of description."

"It is no wonder that the modern Icelander should so excel in matters of learning after so many centuries of educated ancestors."

His "One-Hose Shay"

When the history of London street traffic is written, it will probably be recorded that Lord Rothschild was the last person to ride daily through the City in a brougham. Motor omnibuses are all careful to give the blue brougham plenty of elbow room, for every driver on the road knows Lord Rothschild's carriage, and thinks kindly of the generous donor of phesants who rides inside. Although he is now in his seventy-fourth year, Lord Rothschild is regular as a clock in his attendance in the City. About four o'clock in the afternoon the blue brougham takes him home again to Piccadilly.

Naturalists say that a single swallow will devour 6,000 flies in a day.

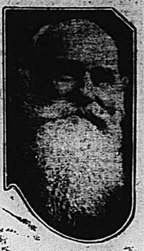
DEPARTED SPIRIT RE-ENTERED BODY

Old Man's Story of Wonderful Experience—Lived For Day Apart From Human Shell

John C. Wheeler is a fine old man living at Ivanrest, a village a few miles from Grand Rapids, Michigan. As he stands up in meeting, with white hair and patriarchal beard, and tells of the most remarkable experience of his life, he makes an impressive figure.



JOHN C. WHEELER

"I believe I had the most wonderful experience of any human being in the world to-day," he told an interviewer. "I have lived apart from my body! I have been dead! And now I am alive—very much alive!"

Wheeler is certainly very much alive. Over 70 years of age, he stands with a spine as straight and unbendable as a hickory pole. His eye is clear and his face the picture of health."

"I was swimming in a lake when suddenly I went down. It was several minutes before my companions missed me. When they secured my body a doctor pronounced me dead. I was taken to my boarding place and another doctor brought from a distance also pronounced me dead after an examination. Then they laid me out covering me with a sheet.

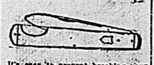
"The next day a girl who was passing through the room where I lay noticed a movement of the cloth over my face and gave the alarm. They came to me, chafed my hands and body and I was soon able to sit up. It was not the fact that I regained consciousness after so long a time that is remarkable, but it was the fact that, while I was apparently dead, I never was so much alive in my life. But I was apart distinctly from my body. I could tell the persons around me everything that had happened when I was helpless to return to life.

"During those hours I discovered many things. Much was revealed to me that would only sound preposterous to relate. But the one thing I do remember clearly was the sensation of dying. Being dead is delightful, of that I am sure. After I had been engulfed in the waters I seemed to float away from my body and I soared away above the waters of the lake. I looked down and could see my body. I watched the rescuers find it and place it on the bank. Then I floated back to it and became a part of it.

"In that fleeting moment between the conscious and the unconscious state, the thought of returning to life was repugnant and I knew that I didn't want to live. But I was forced to and I returned.

"Up to the time of that experience I had been an agnostic, disbelieving in a hereafter or a spiritual state of existence, but my whole point of view of life was changed. I never since have had a shade of doubt in regard to a spiritual state of existence. A man is double and the body is the lesser part of him."

To Open Knife Easily



It's easy to prevent breaking your finger nails opening a pocket knife if you apply this bit of ingenuity. File a notch in the handle of your knife like that shown in the sketch. You want to be careful not to file it too near the end so that the point of the blade will be uncovered, else you might tear holes in your pocket.

To prevent mould from forming on top of the liquid in which pickles are kept, put in a few pieces of horse radish root.

To remove fruit stains from the hands rub them with the juice of a tomato.

Many a girl imagines that her heart is broken when her liver is out of order.

Vol 47 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 11, 1914. No. 287

NOW IS THE OPPORTUNE TIME TO ENTER INTELLIGENCER'S CONTEST AND WIN GRAND PRIZE

See if Your Name Appears in To-Day's List if Not Send it in at Once and Then Get Busy

During the past two days nominations and votes in The Intelligencer's great Automobile and Subscription Contest have been received by the Contest Department in a steady stream. From all over the territory in which the contest is being held, candidates are entering the contest, and from the great interest that is being manifested, this will be the greatest contest ever held in Belleville.

The Intelligencer patrons will decide who of the candidates will be honored by receiving the McLaughlin Buick Automobile, or one of the other ten valuable prizes. It will cost the patrons nothing to give their votes to the person they select as their candidate. The votes are free and the candidates who receive the largest number of votes will win the prizes.

In Belleville and in all the territory over which this contest extends, the patrons of the Intelligencer are showing keen interest, and frequently letters and telephone messages are received, asking if some person is a candidate for the patron would be pleased to assist some friend by votes, which are free.

As industry and ambition to succeed are the points that will count in the contest, the contest will certainly be a pretty race, and one in which it will be a honor and pleasure to participate. New nominations will be received as soon as the patrons learn that their patrons learn that their favorite has not yet been put up as a candidate for any of he splendid prizes.

ORGANIZATION A HELP

Explain the matter to all in a cheerful, lively, confident manner, so they will be persuaded that you are in the race to win and will not lag towards the end, nor weary of well-doing. This means that you are worth helping. Your working brigade will take a personal pride in you and be almost as bent on your winning as you are yourself. Never forget that you cannot expect anyone to do for you what you are not willing to take the trouble to do yourself.

KEEP YOUR CAMPAIGN LIVELY

Keep these good friends enthusiastic Never let them or yourself admit for a moment the possibility of failure Be sure of success. You know the way to earn it. If you do less well today make up your mind to do better to-morrow. Get at it and

TREET

KRAFCHENKO TO HANG FOR ARNOLD'S MURDER

Prisoner Denies That he Shot the Bank Manager Admits Being in Hold-up

MORDEN, Man., April 10.—Three months from today, on July 9, John Krafchenko is to be hanged at Winnipeg for the murder, on December 3rd of last year, of H. M. Arnold, Manager of the Bank of Montreal at Plum Coulee, Man. The close of a long and sensational trial came at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when the court met after a two-hour intermission, which followed the jury's verdict of guilty.

When the court resumed, Krafchenko made a statement to the court, in which he did not deny that he had been concerned in the hold-up of the bank, but in which he asserted positively that he was not the man who killed Arnold. The Chief Justice Mathers imposed sentence. From the moment of the reading of the indictment to the last scene of all the prisoner preserved the same steady attitude, and he showed little or no emotion even when the death penalty was pronounced.

PROTESTS INNOCENCE.

The prisoner spoke as follows:—"Your Lordship and gentlemen of the jury; I thank you for the consideration you took with my case, and under the circumstances of my conviction, and also the evidence against me, I cannot see any other way but that the verdict you brought in its justified. Although I have committed a good many crimes in my career, played hide-and-seek with the police for many years, and done a lot of things I know were all wrong—but this crime brought before you by the Crown, called murder, and one of the dirtiest crimes a man can commit, it was never in my nature to commit. I am sorry Mr. Arnold got shot, although I was accused of it, I will not deny that I was there on the 3rd of December, because that would be lying. The Crown got me here as the only man there, although it is not right. The evidence shows only one man seen. I am positive three different men committed that crime, and, gentleman of the jury, I was not the man who shot Arnold. Because the Chief of Police of the city of Winnipeg, Chief McPherson, might tell you a little story if he liked. I worked under him two or three times. He wanted me to be a stool pigeon, and I would not stand for it. But when a man's life is at stake I did not think a man like the Chief of Police would have acted as he has done. I think, your Lordship, that in that quarter there is need for a little investigation. That is all, your Lordship."

STATEWIDE PROHIBITION

LANSING, Mich., April 10.—Persistent reports circulated about the Capitol today that the anti-liquor forces of Michigan have determined to begin their long-threatened fight for state-wide prohibition by attempting to control both branches of the next state legislature, were partly confirmed tonight. No official statement was issued, but a man who has been prominent in more than one local option fight said he understood a number of prohibition officers, including several ministers, have agreed to become candidates for the Legislature provided they are assured the united support, in their districts, of voters who favor state-wide prohibition.

During the campaign which preceded last Monday's election, when local option was voted upon in 12 counties, prohibition leaders predicted this "might be the last fight" of its kind in Michigan, and if it was, they would devote their future energies to obtaining state-wide and nation-wide prohibition.

BUCK UP, SCOTLAND!

Latest Figures Show Lowest Birth Rate Ever Recorded There

LONDON, April 10.—The report of the Registrar-General of Scotland for 1911, which is issued unusually late, shows a birth rate of 25.65 per 1,000 of the estimated population, which is the lowest rate ever recorded, although it is still 1.2 more than the corresponding rate in England and Wales. The percentage of illegitimate births was the highest since 1891. The annual death rate of 15.10 per thousand is the lowest yet recorded, as was also the mortality due to tuberculosis.

BUILDING BUSINESS.

Recently, a large store of very honored name became insolvent and passed into the hands of a new owner—an energetic young man.

Little was left to the business but the good name. There were strong stores all around it.

The first thing this merchant did was to emphasize in his advertising that he kept well-known, popular, advertised articles—mentioning those advertised in the local newspapers by the manufacturers.

He did not advertise them at a cut price. He merely let it be known that he carried them and would give good service.

That was a few months ago. Already the business has started to revive to an extent that competitors are sitting up and taking notice.

This man makes it a rule to mention every day in his advertising the name of some well-known, branded article that he carries—a name that stands for character in the mind of the public.

DEPOSITORS AWAIT DALE BANK RESULT

Statement Will Not be Ready for Two Weeks

(Toronto Globe)

MADOC, April 9.—According to a statement made today by a director of J. C. Dale & Company's private bank, the affairs of which are being investigated by two expert accountants, a report of the financial position of the bank will not be ready for at least two weeks. A placard bearing a notice to this effect has also been pasted on the door of the bank. The information was a disappointment to a number of farmers and others who came to the village today expecting to obtain definite news with respect to their deposits, as well as to local depositors.

Since the investigation was instituted it has developed that nearly ninety-five per cent. of the population of the village and the surrounding district had deposits in the Dale Bank.

The bank had also been entrusted with the funds of Village and Township Councils, seven churches of all denominations in the village, all the local lodges of various fraternal organizations, eighteen cheese factories and the Madoc electric lighting system.

Until Mr. Dale returns to the village no formal assignment of the bank can be registered, should that be found necessary, as his signature must be attached to the document before such proceedings can be taken.

While the shareholders have been advised respecting their liability to the depositors, should the report of the accountants be unfavorable, they have intimated that they will in the interim confer with a prominent counsel in Toronto in connection with several matters affecting their interests.

MR. MACFARLANE RESIGNS AFTER 40 YEARS' SERVICE

MONTREAL, April 9.—R. F. Macfarlane, identified formerly with the Dominion Line and latterly with the White Star Dominion Line in Montreal, has resigned on the completion of forty years active service. Mr. P. V. G. Mitchell, who jointly managed the passenger business of the White Star-Dominion Line, the Canada Line and the Austro-American Line, will assume the entire management.

EASTER HATS CAUSE OF SUICIDE

New Yorker Couldn't Stand the Thought of Family's Millinery Bills

NEW YORK, April 10.—Angered by the display of Earter finery which his wife and three daughters were showing him last night, William Weese, of Mount Hope, a suburb, seized a shotgun and shot himself through the head, dying instantly.

When Weese upbraided them, Mrs. Weese and his daughters laughed at him for getting angry.

"You won't feel so funny about this by Sunday," he said, and disappeared into another part of the house. A moment later he committed suicide.

$50,000 FOR STOLEN LOVE

Widow Must Pay Big Price for Stealing Husband's Affections

CHICAGO, April 10.—A record high verdict in an alienation of affections suit was rendered here today when $50,000 was awarded to Mrs. Christina A. Benson, in her suit against Mrs. Mary W. C. Nelson. Mrs. Benson charged that Mrs. Nelson had lured Niles C. Benson, her husband, away from her.

All of the litigants live in Thornton, Illinois, where Benson is a storekeeper and Mrs. Nelson is said to own much valuable property. Mr. and Mrs. Benson were married March 5th, 1888, she testified, and lived happily for twenty-one years until Mrs. Nelson, a young widow, came to cast a blight upon their lives.

According to the bill filed by Mrs. Benson in her suit for $50,000 against the younger woman, the latter in 1909 "induced and enticed" the husband to separate himself from the wife and three children. The suit has been pending in the courts for two years.

COIN THROUGH MAIL

Will Not be Accepted Without Registration

OTTAWA, April 10.—The recently issued order by the Post Office Department that all letters containing coin which were transmitted through the mails were to be sent to the Dead Letter office unless registered, has been suspended.

The new regulation caused much adverse criticism throughout the country, and a day or two ago the deputy minister, Dr. Coulter, stated that amounts up to one dollar would be accepted unregistered. An order has now been given out that letters containing coin are to be forwarded in the regular manner.

LED DOUBLE LIFE; GETS 18 YEARS

Prominent Business Man Was a Dangerous Highwayman

NEW YORK, April 10.—Eighteen years at Sing Sing prison was the heavy sentence imposed today on Edward Mendel, a prominent business man of Newark, N.J., convicted of robbing a woman acquaintance.

Evidence disclosed the fact that for years, while living in Newark as a successful business man, a prominent church-goer, and an all-round good fellow, he had made frequent visits to New York, where he was guilty of several robberies with assault, and led a much worse than double life so far as his domestic affairs were concerned.

SHOT BY COUSIN IN MISTAKE FOR A BEAR

Jas. Kelly of Umfraville, son of Mr. Geo. Kelly, came within an ace of losing his life this week, when his cousin P. Kelly, mistook him for a bear, and sent a rifle ball crashing through his leg.

The two men had set a bear trap a few days previously, and on Sunday morning it occurred to both of them to visit it. Jas Kelly was the first to arrive on the scene, and was on his knees rearranging the trap when his cousin, at a distance of about seventy-five yards, noticed the object moving about and decided that the bear was a prisoner. After assuring himself that this was the case he took deliberate aim and fired. The ball struck the unfortunate man in the thigh, and went through the leg, but luckily missed the bone. He was carried to the residence of Mr. Wm. Leavitt and Dr Embury was summoned. He was weak from loss of blood when the doctor arrived, and after making him as comfortable as possible it was decided to send him to the Belleville hospital for a few days. Unless complications set in he will be around again in a short time—Bancroft Times.

IF CROSS WERE NOT AN ORNAMENT WOULD LONG HAVE BEEN DISCARDED

Kissing Defined by German Supreme Court--Sylvia Pankhurst Invades Austria, But Meeting of Militants is Prohibited

LONDON, April 10.—Dr. Ingram, Bishop of London, in a Good Friday sermon at St. Paul's to-day, emphasized the view of pain as a necessary part of the spiritual life.

"In this flabby, comfort loving, unstrung age," he said, "we are losing our Christianity mainly because Christianity is a creed for heroes, and we are harmless, good-natured little people who want to have a good time. If the cross were not a pretty ornament we should have discarded it long ago."

GERMAN COURT DEFINES A KISS

LEIPSIZ, April 10.—What is a kiss? When is it offensive and when inoffensive? Here are the answers as laid down by the Supreme Court of the German Empire:

"A kiss is a reaction upon the body of another.

"A kiss always requires the permission of the person kissed.

"Without such permission one may kiss only if one is sure of the other's tacit consent, as in the cases of parents, children and lovers.

"If the kissee is not only coy, but greatly objects, it is to be assumed that the kiss is considered as illegal interference with his or her personal freedom and a violation of his or her honor.

"Anybody who inflicts a kiss in such circumstances is guilty of assault and battery."

SYLVIA PANKHURST IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, April 10.—Permission by the police for a big Suffragette meeting here has not yet been granted. It is announced that the principal speaker will be Sylvia Pankhurst, who is expected here to-morrow on her way to Budapest, where she intends to lecture on the iniquities of Englishmen, pump-feeding and other features of the life of the militant Suffragette. The feminist societies are preparing a big reception here for the English militant.

THE WOMAN WITH THE WHIP

LONDON, April 10.—The Suffragette who smashed ten cases of art objects in the Asiatic Salon of the British Museum yesterday was identified to-day as Catharine Wilson, who was released two weeks ago from Holloway Jail, where she was serving a term for having been found loitering in male attire in the House of Commons grounds with a whip under her coat.

She was sent to jail for six weeks on March 17, and immediately started a hunger strike, which caused her release under the "Cat and Mouse" Act. Her license had expired when she was arrested in the museum.

MONTREALERS ARRESTED

Alleged to Have Swindled Employers by Forgery

CHICAGO, April 10—John Felding, twenty-three, auditor of an adjusting company at Montreal, and his brother Arthur, twenty-one, an accountant, in the Royal Bank of Canada at St. Lambert, under indictment here for forgery, were brought back to Chicago today from Honolulu. The brothers are said to have asserted that soon after they began work they learned their employers could be swindled out of large sums because of the system of bookkeeping. They said they revised the system to make forgery impossible without detection, and submitted the plan to their employers, who rejected it.

They decided to prove they could pass forged paper, they said. A forged draft for $4,800, they claimed, was mailed to a Chicago bank, and they arrived here February 17 and collected the money. They said they were robbed soon afterward in a cafe here.

The brothers were found by wireless aboard the Matsonia, which left San Francisco March 4. They are said to be sons of John Fielding, cashier of a branch of the Bank of Montreal, who was killed by robbers eight years ago.

GIVEN A CUSTOMS POSITION

BROCKVILLE, April 10.—Wm. Miller, a well-known local newspaperman has been appointed to a vacancy in the customs office created by the death of Allan Turner.

ROBBED BY FELLOW COUNTRYMAN WHOM HE BEFRIENDED

MONTREAL, April 10.—A too great confidence misplaced in human nature, even as applied to a compatriot, proved the financial undoing of Lars Heldmar, a Finlander, who, after a hard winter's work, came to Montreal to see the sights and spend some of his money in a quiet way. All went well with Lars, who, with $400 in his pocket and money belt, registered at a small hotel in Chaboilles square and loafed to his heart's content. A couple of days ago the Finn made the acquaintance of a fellow-countryman in less affluent circumstances, and out of his kindness of heart took the other in tow and bought for him sundry meals and liquid refreshments when the spirit so moved. Last night Lars' new found friend came to him, and stating that he had no place to sleep, asked his benefactor if he might rest for a time in the latter's room. It was then 10 o'clock, and Lars also being in the mood for rest, invited the man to his room and offered him half his bed. The other humbly refused and said that the floor was good enough for him. He insisted in this, and when Lars turned in between the sheets the other Finn curled up under the bed. At one-thirty this morning Lars woke up and spoke to his friend. Obtaining no answer, he looked all around about the room for him but could not find him. Becoming alarmed, he looked in the pocket of his trousers, which hung at the foot of his bed, to find that $330 in bills was missing. The Finlander, almost frantic at the thought of all his hard earned money slipping away from him, called up the police station at Chaboillez street station.

MADOC REVIEW COMMETS

Madoc Review Comments on Financial Collapse of Dale Bank

The all absorbing topic of the week has been the closing of the doors of the banking firm of J. C. Dale & Co. It is the sensation of the history of the village. To the mind of the Madocer the impossible has happened. So high did this firm stand in the estimation of the public, and so deeply seated was the faith in the honesty, uprightness and financial ability of its manager, that old and young, the widow, and the orphan, the neophyte and the shrewd business man, one and all alike deposited their savings without the slightest doubt as to the security, and with the most perfect confidence and childlike faith in the stability of the institution.

It is a well recognized law of nature that man learns by making mistakes. It is true of every living organization that obstruction to the direction of its course is necessary to point out the path of truth. Josh Billings says "Experience is the dearest teacher, but some fools will have no other." Josh seems to have created a class for the good many Madocers. It is to be hoped that this dearly bought lesson from teacher experience will furnish fruits in some measure commensurate with the price paid for them. It is one of the simplest business maxims in loaning money to be sure that the security is all sufficient. Depositors in this case neglected to apply this simple rule.

Few, if any private banks in this country, have ever had so many deposits (nearly half a million). To pay 4 per cent on these deposits and to reinvest these funds in sound and legitimate undertakings that would be profitable for the shareholders would in this locality, test the financial ability of the strongest financiers. It is a case where too great prosperity brought about its downfall.

The result of the failure will be long and severely felt. The whole community will suffer. Farmers who had made preparations for building this summer have postponed it till next year thus affecting the hardware, the painter, and the carpenter. There will be less goods bought and business generally will be partially paralyzed.

MADOC MOVEMENTS
(Madoc Review)

On Tuesday evening of last week the mills at Flinton, Elzevir Township were burned. There was quite a heavy loss in grain with very little insurance Cause of fire unknown.

One of Madoc's old residents passed away on Monday, April 6th in the person of Mr. Robert Lyle at the advanced age of 79 years.

Farmers will learn with pleasure that the duty on mowing machines, harvesters, self-binders and reapers have been changed from 12½ 17 and 17½ per cent. to 12½ per cent. on all three tariffs.

The books and accounts of J. C. Dale & Company, Bankers, are at present being investigated by Webb, Read & Co., Chartered Accountants, Toronto. The accountants state that they will issue a statement at an early date, which will be made public at meeting to be called for that purpose.

PORK PACKING PLANT FOR ST. JOHN, N.B.

ST. JOHN, N.B., April 11.—A company has been organized with $99,000 capital, $70,000 of which is to be issued and $45,000 already subscribed, to erect a large pork packing plant, preferably in St. John, but perhaps in the outskirts in the city. The company has brought large farms along the line of the Intercolonial at three different points and also on the St. John river, comprising over twelve hundred acres in all, on which hog raising will begun on an extensive plan, and contracts have already been made with some other farmers to provide a large supply of hogs. An experienced English packer will have charge of the packing plant, and the company proposes not only to cater to the home market, but as the supply of hogs increases, to manufacture for export. The plant is to be built before next Christmas.

CANCER BY IRRITATION

NEW YORK, April 10.—Chronic irritation is the most important condition which predisposes tissue to cancerous growth, according to a paper read by Dr. Wm. J. Mayo, of Rochester Minn., president of the American Surgical Association, which convened today at the Hotel Astor. Four hundred of the most distinguished surgeons in the country were present at the convention today which was the forerunner of the International Congress of Surgeons which meets in this city on Monday.

The peculiar cancer which attacks the mouths of natives of India Dr. Mayo said was due to the irritation set up by the juice of the betelnut which they chew. Cancer of the groin for another illustration was almost entirely confined to sailors and chimney sweeps. Cancer of the stomach, he said, formed one-third of the cases among civilized peoples, but was less frequent among savages and animals.

Among those who attended were Drs. George E. Armstrong, James A. Hutchinson and Francis J. Shepherd of Montreal.

APPRECIATION DESERVED

It will be remembered by those who attended the recent two-piano recital in the city hall by the Misses LaVoie, the beautiful "Valse Caprice," was rendered for the first time in public. In acknowledgment Miss Laura D. LaVoie has received from the composer, Mr. Charles Gilbert Sprass, of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., a most cordial letter of appreciation. Mr. Sprass evidently recognizes the honor of having his productions accepted by such expert musicians as our Misses LaVoie, and well he might, for not only is Belleville proud of the talent displayed at every appearance, but the outside world is charmed with favored performances.

EAGER TO WORK

Health Regained by Right Food

The average healthy man or woman is usually eager to be busy at some useful task or employment.

But let dyspepsia or indigestion get hold of one, and all endeavor becomes a burden. A woman writes:

"A year ago, after recovering from an operation, my stomach and nerves began to give me much trouble.

"At times my appetite was voracious, but when indulged, indigestion followed. Other times I had no appetite whatever. The food I took did not nourish me and I grew weaker than ever.

"I lost interest in everything and wanted to be alone. I had always had good nerves, but now the merest trifle would upset me and bring on a violent headache. Walking across the room was an effort and prescribed exercise was out of the question.

"I had seen Grape-Nuts advertised, but did not believe what I read, at the time. At last, when it seemed as if I were literally starving, I began to eat Grape-Nuts.

"I had not been able to work for a year, but now after two months on Grape-Nuts I am eager to be at work again. My stomach gives me no trouble now, my nerves are steady as ever, and interest in life and ambition have come back with the return to health."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

Mrs. John Sharpe and daughter Laura, of Napanee are spending Easter with his mother Mrs. J. Sharpe South Charles street.

The total sales of the "Salada" Tea Co. last year amounted to as much as the total business during the first twelve years they were introducing Ceylon tea into Canada and the United States. Their increase alone in 1913 over 1912 amounted to more than the total business done during the first five years of their existence, and during the first three months of 1913 their ratio of increase is the largest they have ever had.

EXPECT DIVIDENDS OF OVER $5,000,000 FROM FOX RANCHES

MONTREAL, April 10.—The R. J. McNeil Black and Silver Fox Company have eight pairs of foxes and their ranch at McNeill's Mills, and have had them for some time. Two pairs had a litter of pups on the 2nd and 3rd of April, 1914. The keeper states that he does not know nor will he be able to state how many pups there are in each litter for three or four weeks, the reason being that the mother fox guards the young ones and will not allow anyone to go near them.

Advices from Prince Edward Island indicate that the fox industry will have the best year it has ever had. It is anticipated that over $5,000,000 in dividends will be distributed this September by the different fox ranches.

Reports from the ranches on Prince Edward Island are optimistic. The season of 1914 has been a very favorable one for the foxes and the expectation is that the general average of increase will be twenty-five per cent. higher than it was in 1913. This will be good news to shareholders in companies.

STIRRING UP THE RACES

It would appear from the attitude of a certain Liberal element that there is a set purpose to seek support by stirring up class hatred, by setting race against race, creed against creed, by fanning the dying embers of religious flames of years that are long gone by.

The country has been given an example of this stock-in-trade of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his cohorts, during the past few weeks, when echoes of the Ulster crisis have been heard within the Canadian Commons chamber. To be brief, and to state the naked truth, the Canadian so-called Liberal party has been making a crude and clumsy appeal for the support of the Irish-Canadian people, by a dishonest and insincere pretence that they are the friends and supporters of Home Rule, and that the Borden Cabinet is the aider and abbettor of the followers of Sir Edward Carson. The former pretence is an unctious falsehood, and the latter a baser lie.

The Government of Canada, in its official capacity, is neither Home Rule or anti-Home Rule. Home Rule is within the realm of the domestic politics of the United Kingdom, and it is a recognized political axiom of the British Empire that the various governments of the Empire must not interfere in each others' domestic politics. Within the Borden Cabinet there are Home Rulers and anti-Home rulers. Theirs is the right of private judgment, and whatever their sympathies, in the present unhappy state in Ireland, they are working side by side in Canada for the good and the uplift of the common country they are sworn and pledged to serve.

When Hon. C. J. Doherty, Irish of the Irish, and Celt of the Celts, acts as chairman at an Irish Nationalist gathering, he does so as a Canadian citizen who is in favor of Irish Home Rule, and not as a representative of the government in whose councils he is a recognized power.

When Hon. Frank Cochrane, a sturdy descendant of Ulster, attends a demonstration in honor of Sir Edward Carson, he does so as a private citizen, exercising his right of private judgment, and not as the representative of the Canadian Government.

In the latter occurrence, with a chimeric story that appeared in the columns of a British newspaper in regard to Col. Sam Hughes, are seized upon by the Opposition at Ottawa as furnishing them with an opportunity of making a paltry and miserable attempt to stir up dissention between Catholic and Protestant Irishmen, in the hope of party gain. Surely this sounds the depth of the political degradation of a party. It is an appeal so base, so dishonest, so unpatriotic, that it will be treated with the withering contempt it so richly deserves. The intelligent Irish Catholics of Canada, with their racial discernment and positive genius for politics, are not flies to be caught with such poor molasses. They know that between the Canadian Liberal party and the party which now holds office in Great Britain there is nothing in common. They know that since the days of the brilliant D'Arcy McGee, to the time of the Hon. C. J. Doherty, friends of Home Rule for Ireland have not been found exclusively within one of the parties in Canada.

They will resent this positive insult to their intelligence, by a few politicians-in-the-making on the Liberal side of the House. The descendants of the men of Ulster, and the men of Leinster who have made their homes in Canada, are not to be led in their political thinking by appeals to their religious beliefs and old home aspirations. They are working side by side in Canada, as they are working in the Borden Cabinet, for the development of the country of their adoption, and for the Empire in defence of whose flag their ancestors so often and gallantly fought.

THE REVENUE DECREASE

Documentary evidence laid before Parliament shows a decrease of nearly five millions in the revenue for the year, which, taking into consideration the world-wide depression, constitutes an excellent showing.

The total revenue for the year was $160,488,538, as compared with $165,528,137 for last year.

The total expenditure on consolidated fund was $102,221,133 as compared with $95,625,013 last year, an increase of six and a half millions.

The expenditure on capital account was $51,233,134, as compared with $28,758,460.

The increase in capital expenditure on public works was about nine millions, but railway subsidies jumped from a little under five millions in 1912-13 to nineteen millions in 1913-14.

The total expenditure on consolidated and capital account was some one hundred and fifty-three millions, leaving a balance on the right side of the ledger of seven millions.

The decrease in the revenue is entirely due to falling off in customs duties, which dropped from $112,533,528 in 1912-13 to $103,858,432 for the year which has just closed.

Excise revenue showed a slight increase. The postal revenue increased nearly a million dollars, while there was also an increase in the railways and canals and public works departments of half a million dollars. Miscellaneous revenue showed an increase of two million dollars.

The national debt on March 31 stood at $315,019,288, as compared with $297,588,095 on March 31, 1913. The increase is seventeen and a half millions. This is twenty-five million dollars less than when the Borden Government took office in 1911, when the net debt stood at $340,000,000.

Toronto Star: "Lacrosse," says an old player of the 1880 class, "was perfected to death. It became so expert that there were only about two dozen good players in Ontario. Now, in my time, we did not play with our heads—we played with our feet, a running game, and everybody could hope to shine. It was grand to get the ball on your stick, run the whole length of the field with the grand stand yelling like mad—and then throw the ball over the fence and lose it." Hold on, now; you make us homesick to get back to the stick. We've accomplished that same act time and again.

HORSES FOR MILITIA

Government Makes Arrangements For Breeding a Supply.

Exchange Will Lease From Crown Lands Department 65,120 Acres In Alberta at Two Cents Per Acre and Undertakes to Provide 1,500 Horses Each Year For Canada and Britain.

OTTAWA, April 11.—An important arrangement has been made by the Minister of Militia with the National Live Stock Exchange, Limited, whereby the latter will lease for twenty-one years 65,120 acres of crown lands in Alberta, south of the Red Deed river, and will breed thereon cavalry remounts for the Canadian militia and the British army. The annual rental will be two cents per acre, and the exchange undertakes to raise not less than 1,600 horses per year, the price to be paid by the Militia Department and the British War Office not to exceed $250. The exchange has agreed to purchase as far as practicable such half-bred yearlings as it may require from the smaller breeders throughout Canada, the purpose being to distribute the purchase money over as wide an area as possible and among the smaller breeders.

The Government of Canada is to have right of pre-emption in respect to all these horses raised by the exchange, and the company must hold and mature until the age of three and a half years all horses which the Minister of Militia may desire for military purposes.

It is further agreed that the War Office of Great Britain may have pre-emption rights at the same prices and terms in respect of such horses as remain "after the Minister has made his choice." The exchange must have the right, however, to retain fifty fillies and fifty colts each year for breeding purposes.

Col. Hughes submits that the lease "will be in the interest of the public, as it desired that every encouragement should be given for the production of horses for cavalry and other war purposes."

Luck is too uncertain to sit around and wait for.

More than a blanket mortgage is needed to keep a house warm in cold weather.

THOUGHT IT WOULD KILL HIM

Terrible Torture From Chronic Indigestion, Short Treatment With "Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured The Whole Trouble.

C. T. HILL, Esq.

Chatham, Ont., April 3rd, 1913

"Some two years ago, I was a great sufferer from Indigestion. I treated with a prominent physician here for some time, but I did not get any better so I went in to see him one day and said "Doctor, what do I owe you? I am not getting any better and am going to quit you." I paid him his bill and he remarked to me, "Charlie, you have a case of chronic Indigestion that will be hard to cure."

I left his office and as I stepped out on the street my eye caught a bill board advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives"—that big "Fat Man and Thin Man" and I said to myself, "If Fruit-a-tives will build me up like that, it's good enough for me." I walked directly over to Park's Drug Store and I bought a box of "Fruit-a-tives." After taking these wonderful tablets for only three weeks, I found myself greatly improved. I continued taking them for a short time longer and cured myself entirely. My case was no light one either, for many times when I was on the street, I was compelled to go into some store or business place until the acute spasms wore away. Gas would often form in my stomach and I was in daily fear it would get around my heart and kill me. To-day, I have no such fears. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Stomach Troubles." C. T. HILL.

Perhaps your case is exactly like Mr. Hill's. If so, do exactly as he did—take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure yourself. "Fruit-a-tives" will prevent the formation of gas in the stomach by making digestion complete. It will insure the food being promptly digested by providing an aboundance of gastric juice in the stomach. It keeps the stomach sweet and clean, not only by helping the digestion but also by regulating Kidneys and Bowels and toning up the system.

If you suffer with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Belching, Gas on the Stomach, Heart Pains after Eating, take "Fruit-a-tives." 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. at all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

ENGLISHMEN SKIPPED

Leaving Farmers Waiting in Hotel for Them

KINGSTON, April 10.—Immigration Officer George Hunter is on the lookout for the two men who arrived in Kingston from England on Monday morning and immediately beat it for parts unknown. It appears that before the two men left England they agreed to work with two farmers who live about fourteen miles from Kingston.

On Monday morning when the young men arrived in the city, they were taken in charge by the immigration officer who introduced them to their new employers, who were stooping at the Windsor Hotel. After a conversation with the Frontenac farmers, the two Englishmen stated that they had left their baggage at the station and asked to be allowed to go there for the purpose of getting their belongings. They left the hotel and have never been heard of since.

When the men did not return the farmers informed the immigration officer, but up until the present time he has heard nothing.

It is stated that the men were not satisfied with their bargain, and decided to move out. They also claimed that they were misinformed by the authorities in England before they shipped for Canada. Before leaving, their passage was paid on condition that they would refund the money after they secured a position. The agreement with the parties on this side of the water was that they were to deduct three-quarters of their salary until the passage had been paid. The young men would not stand for such a condition.

NO HOPE FOR GUNMEN

Gov. Glynn of New York State Will Not Grant a Reprieve.

Friends of Murderers of Rosenthal Fail to Secure a Change in Governor's Decision In Spite of Note Reputed to Have Been Written by State Attorney Whitman—Glynn Wouldn't See Rosenberg's Mother.

ALBANY, N.Y., April 11.—A memorandum of the cases of the four gunmen, sentenced to die Monday for the murder of the gambler, Rosenthal, last summer, setting forth in the main a reputed alibi for "Dago Frank" Cirofici, which was forwarded to Governor Glynn yesterday by C. G. F. Wahle, their attorney, failed to change the executive's position on his refusal to grant them a reprieve.

Eleven words written on a slip of white paper which on Thursday was found in a bundle of old correspondence by L. B. M. Brown, of New York, it was believed, would prove the means of obtaining a stay of execution for the four gunmen.

According to Mr. Brown, the note, which contains a warning against giving credence to statements of Morris Luban and Max Margolis, who were witnesses against the gunmen, was written by a former assistant to District Attorney Whitman. It was intended, says Brown, for the guidance of former Governor Sulzer, in whose behalf it was reported at the time communication was indited.

"I have received and read your supplemental application in the case of your clients," the governor telegraphed Wahle last night. "I find nothing therein which I had not previously considered and nothing to justify a change in my decision."

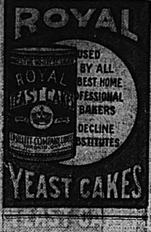
Another eleventh-hour effort to save the four men gave signs of being more successful last night when Supreme Court Justice Goff signed an order making it mandatory for District Attorney Whitman to show cause why the four gunmen should not be granted a new trial.

The order is returnable to-day before Justice Goff, who presided at the trial of the gunmen, and was obtained on the ground that new evidence had been discovered.

This evidence, in the form of affidavits, was presented to Justice Goff by Charles G. F. Wahle of counsel for the condemned men. The signer of one affidavit swore that a man he could identify, and who was not one of the gunmen, was in the firing party whose shots killed Rosenthal. The other declared that he saw Sam Schepps, "Bridgie" Webber and Harry Vallon, the informers, and not the men convicted, in the car that raced away from the scene of the crime after the tenderloin gambler had been shot to death in front of the Metropolis Hotel.

Besides receiving the memorandum, the governor yesterday heard a personal appeal for the gunmen from Mrs. William Vanamee, of Newburgh, the wife of an attorney for the convicted men, who was too ill to appear in person. Mrs. Vanamee was accompanied by the mother of "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, but the executive remained firm in his decision not to talk with any of the relatives of the condemned men, and saw Mrs. Vanamee alone. Her appeal was in vain, the governor saying that his decision was final.

Rabbi Brown, who Thursday injected a note from Frank Moss, a former assistant district attorney of New York, into the case, did not appear at the capitol yesterday. The note now is in the hands of the gunmen's counsel, and it is supposed Brown went to New York.



OKUMA FOR PREMIER.

He Has Been Recommended by Statesmen—Coronation Postponed.

TOKIO, April 11.—Count Shigenobu Okuma, former Minister, was recommended to the Emperor yesterday by the elder statesmen for the office of Premier, in place of Count Gombei Yamamoto, whose Cabinet resigned in consequence of the naval scandals connected with the receipt of illicit commissions by officers.

The coronation of the Emperor, which had been fixed for Nov. 10 next, has been postponed until 1916 owing to the death of the Dowager Empress.

The reason for the prolonged delay of the coronation is that the seed of the rice used in the sacred ceremony must not be ripened during the period of national mourning.

Shinbones Come In Handy.

NEW YORK, April 11.—News of two remarkable operations at the Post-Graduate Hospital came out yesterday.

Arthur Lang, a Brooklyn boy, was cured of spinal curvature by the insertion of a ten-inch strip of shinbone. This operation was performed by Prof. F. H. Alvee.

The other operation was upon Ambrose Duffy, a Yorkville boy, who when a baby, had his skull fractured and had been a constant sufferer. This condition was corrected by the insertion of a piece of shinbone.

In both cases the operations were successful.

Chatham Again Visited by Fire.

The fire is the most disastrous that has occurred in Chatham since the Planet disaster almost a year ago, but unlike that catastrophe, no lives were lost.

STRIKERS MAY GO BACK.

After Nine Months Out of Work Calumet Men Likely to Return.

CALUMET, Mich., April 11.—Copper country locals of the Western Federation of Miners decided yesterday to take a referendum vote next Sunday on the question of calling off the strike which has been waged since July 23, 1913.

The action of the locals resulted from reports of the district officers which were submitted to five meetings held in various parts of the strike zone. It was said that the district officers informed the men that no more concessions could be expected from the copper mining companies. It was also stated that the union rank and file was told that the companies have established a substantial eight-hour day and have arranged to hear grievances once a week. Recognition of the union, they said, had been steadily refused.

It was reported that some of the union members criticized the officers for not proposing the referendum a month ago when there was better chance of obtaining work.

Weary Sufferers Welcome

Dr. Stohr's Kephaldol

Pronounced Kephal-dole

THE GREAT UNFAILING PAIN RELIEVER

In all cases of NEURALGIA, NEURITIS, SCIATICA, GOUT, RHEUMATISM, etc., especially in acute form where maddening pain makes life almost unbearable, KEPHALDOL offers that which will evoke heartfelt gratitude—relief, prompt and certain, with speedy cure ahead.

KEPHALDOL is no injurious drug, no charlatan nostrum—thousands of medical men all over the world, including all representing the clinical opinion of Vienna (to which City belongs Dr. Stohr, KEPHALDOL'S famous discoverer) have pronounced this remedy to be a means not merely of alleviating, but of stopping pain without risk of injury to the heart or other organ of the body.

MRS. A. E. TURNER, 52a, Willoughby Street, New Lenton, Nottingham, writes:—

"I must say Kephaldol seems to charm away the pain like nothing else does. I have tried a great many things for Rheumatism, but Kephaldol eases the pain quicker than anything I have ever had."

MR. LAWRENCE WINDLEY, Cranleigh, Dane Road, Luton, Eng., sends the following letter;—

"I had rheumatism in my leg, and had to go about with the aid of a stick. I took two Kephaldol tablets at 10 a.m., and by eleven all trace of pain had disappeared and I have not had it from that day to this. All you say of Kephaldol is true. It is a pain killer. The remaining tablets I gave to a friend suffering with acute Neuralgia, and they have positively cured him."

A letter from MRS. BEATRICE COSSEY, Brookfield, Eng., is worth repeating:—

"My experience of Kephaldol as a pain killer is absolutely marvellous. I had a fearfully acute attack last year of Neuritis, Sciatica, and Lumbago, and it did wonders for me. I shall always feel most grateful for what it has done, and I am most happy to let others know of its wonderful effects as a pain destroyer."

KEPHALDOL IS SOLD IN TUBES BY DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE AT FIFTY CENTS A TUBE

If you find any difficulty in procuring locally, a large tube will be sent direct by the Manufacturers upon receipt of 50c. Address: KEPHALDOL LIMITED, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

WOMAN FALLS UNDER CAR.

Was Riding Behind Friend on Motor-Cycle—May Have Jumped.

TORONTO, April 11.—While riding on the rear of a motor-cycle driven by William Thompson, 90 1-2 Markham street, Mrs. Emma Belz, aged 19, of 90 Markham street, fell or jumped off the machine at the corner of Markham and Arthur streets at seven o'clock last evening was killed instantly by eastbound Dundas car, No. 2,000, driven by Motorman William Goodenough of 107 Laughton avenue. Both Goodenough and Thompson were arrested by the police of No. 3 division after the accident, and are being held on charges of criminal negligence. The accident occurred while the motor-cycle was going south on Markham street, when at the corner of Arthur it was almost struck by the eastbound Dundas car.

The woman's body was dragged 100 feet beneath the car trucks before Motorman Goodenough brought his car to a stop.

One eye-witness to the accident gave his opinion to the police that the girl purposely fell off the machine, which she believed was about to be struck by the car. He said he thought he saw her push herself off the back seat, and prepare for the fall on the roadway. Instead of toppling backwards, however, she fell forward, directly across the north rail of the south track, and the next instant was lost to view beneath the car.

The dead woman was formerly a Miss Cosgrave, and after her marriage to Belz less than two years ago, the couple occupied rooms in her mother's apartment house at 90 Markham street. She leaves a 10-months' old baby.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., April 11.—Twenty-two Ladysmith miners, sentenced to varying terms in jail for participation in the riots on Vancouver Island last August, by Judge Howay, at Nanaimo, have been released from the Burnaby prison farm at Okalla, orders to that effect having reached the warden from the Department of Justice at Ottawa.

Final Vote By [illegible]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Consideration by the Senate committee on interoceanic canals of the proposed repeal of Panama Canal toll exemption for American ships was interrupted by lack of witnesses and further formal discussion of the bill was postponed until Monday.

It was apparent last night that the tolls controversy probably would not get formally before the Senate for two weeks, and the general opinion prevails that the vote on the repeal will not be taken before June 1.

Acid Stomachs Are Dangerous

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the stomach as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause greatest distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

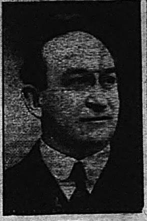
A REMARKABLE OLD FAMILY BIBLE

W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville, former President of the Ontario Bar Association, owns what is probably the oldest Bible in Ontario. It was published in A.D. 1700. That is a long time ago, and the world has seen many changes down through those two hundred and fourteen years. At the time it came into existence, there was no



W. C. MIKEL, K.C.

United States of America, and George Washington had not yet been born, nor had the great Napoleon appeared on the scene.

The Bible has been in the Mikel family since 1754, one hundred and sixty years ago, and six generations of the one family have thumbed and gazed upon the old book. It is five inches thick from cover to cover, fourteen inches long and nine inches wide. The binding consists of wood covered with leather. It contains one hundred and twenty-three illustrations about six inches square, with a large portrait engraved the full size of the book on the second page. Judging from the expense attached to publishing at the time this volume was published, it must have cost a considerable sum, but its value is now, no doubt, many times its original cost.

A few years after the close of the war of American Independence, young Godlove Mikel, who had fought on the side of the British decided to come to Canada, and his mother gave him the Bible. It was somewhat big and clumsy to carry around, but he and his family have stuck to it pretty well through all the vicissitudes from early pioneer life to the present time.

It is something to trace descent back to a man who started life with a big Bible and a name like Godlove, and it says something for the parents who gave him that start.

AFTER GRIPPE

MADE STRONG BY VINOL

John C. Furman, of Clarion, Pa., says: "After a very severe attack of the grippe my system was in a weakened, nervous and run-down condition. I had no appetite at all. I was obliged to continue with my work, and nothing seemed to help me until a friend induced me to take Vinol. I began to note good results from the first bottle. I continued its use and am now sound and well as ever.

In health one cannot realize how depressed a person may become after trying one remedy after another without benefit for such a condition as Mr. Furman was in, or what a relief it is to find help and be restored to health and strength.

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative elements of cods' livers without the greasy oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron, that makes Vinol so efficient in building up the weakened run-down system.

We guarantee Vinol to give you perfect satisfaction—Red Cross Drug Store—J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

CONDUCTOR CALLED BLUFF OF WOULD-BE ROBBER

Attempted Hold-up on Car at Welland Canal Frustrated

ST. CATHARINES, April 9.—The police are searching for a man believed to have been one of the new arrivals attracted by the construction of the ship canal, who boarded a Cemetery car at the canal last night, wearing a handkerchief for a mask, and with a pointed revolver demanded the company's money from Conductor Glover, who refused to be bluffed and dared the man to do his worst. Before the motorman reached the rear platform the man decamped. Only a meagre description has been furnished the police.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

So that endless stream pours on—the world passes in review at the docks in old Quebec, Halifax and St. John, the rich and the poor, the gypey and the millionaire, the British and the foreigner, year in and year out, the seemingly endless human chain pours through the gateways of the promised land.

The wide world parades through the concourse at Windsor Station, Montreal every day. If you doubt the truth of that assertion or deem it too sweeping just to spend a few hours there any day and you will catch a glimpse of the "world and his wife" travelling to and from the four corners of the earth. It is the great nationality clearing house of the Dominion; it has only one competitor, too. That is the Winnipeg station—the gateway of the West—from which the newcomers from the ends of the earth scatter for the free land and the big wheat fields of the boundless prairie.

Inside the big waiting rooms other crowds congregate waiting for their trains. It was warmer here and tedious hours were passing more rapidly and more comfortable.

Very noticeable is the increase in care and consideration given to the emigrant. Not so very many years ago vast numbers of these had to cross the ocean in open steerage, herded together like cattle. Now the word steerage is practically abolished from our roomy British steamers at any rate. "Third Class" is now the emigrant travels to-day and "Third Class" is not so very much worse than the average second-class hotel on

But there were still inconveniences which the emigrant had to suffer, and one of the worst of these was the long waiting in the cold, early hours of the morning between the arrival of the trains and the embarkation on the steamer.

It's down in the Immigration rooms of Windsor Station where the real scenes are to be found. Here from the ends of the earth strange people gather. On one side is a "store" where they can purchase what they require, but these travellers have few wants other than food and that of simple quality.

The place is warm and with a blanket on the floor or a bench or even without that they sleep like children. Families camp there; it is no uncommon sight to find one with bundles piles high around, sleeping in a corner. By day there is something doing always. Scattered around the room are little bunches playing cards, the table being a bench, a box or a cheap suit case. A mouth organ, a violin, or a wheezy accordion makes "melody," for it is rare indeed that there is no musical programme being provided.

There is one character always in evidence. He is at the docks and at the station. He is not an arrival—he is generally waiting for a friend, and he is always anxious to converse with the casual visitor. This character is the man who has made a success of thing in his own way, and who is always willing to impart his story to the more recent arrival. The casual visitor met him at the docks at St. John the other day. On this occasion the character was a Swede. "My first year I work on railroads. I make four hundred dollars. I took one homestead the next spring and work for farmer near. He break for me ten acres and I pay him $10. I build small house on homestead and live on homestead. He pay me wages too. That winter I go into the woods and made $160 and in th espring I had $200 and buy a team of horses. I get seed and sew my ten acres with wheat and go off to work. I broke ten acres more early enough to sew oats on them. And later I sow five acres of flax of fresh sod breaking. I work hard, very hard, but that fall I has $250 from my ten acres of wheat, $160 from my five acres of flax and three hundred bushels of oats for next summer feed. Plowed all the twenty-five acres of land and that winter I went into camp with my team. I had hard luck, too. One of my horses snagged himself and I had to shoot him. That was $250 less. But by spring I had $300 with the other horse and returned to my farm to leave no more. The next summer I had good crops again and bought another team. When I came to deed my homestead this fall I had 120 acres ready for the seeder next spring and $700, besides seven horses and colts, three cows and pigs and hens, like any farmer. I thought I'd go home for my brother and his family; and here we are. We go out tonight to my homestead in the Canadian West and my brother will soon have one too. We are tired of Sweden me and my brother with his children, where there was no hope for a man unless he has money, so we came here to live. My brother's five children will have a chance that is their right, a chance their country denied them. Canada is the place for all, English, Swedes and everybody who is willing to work and think and act with thought.

"God bless Canada, the land of the free which knows no rich and poor, no disinherited classes and privileged classes as older lands across the sea," said the Swedish workingman is closing, a quiver in his voice as he spoke.

Rockefeller Defies Union Dictation

WASHINGTON, April 7.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., testifying today as a Director of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company in the enquiry which the House Committee on Mines is conducting into the Colorado coal strike, declared unequivocally for the principle of the "open shop," and assented that he and his associates would prefer that they should "lose all of their millions invested in the coal fields than that American workingmen should be deprived of the right under the Constitution to work for whom they pleased."

Mr. Rockefeller said that he thought his chief duty as a Director was to place honest and capable officers in control of the business. He said he would rather relinquish his interests in Mexico and close down the mines than to recognize the unions under the circumstances. He is not opposed to the unions as such, he said, but he did object to unions which tried to force men to join them and which deprived men of the liberty of working for whom they pleased. He said that a recognition of the Mine Workers' Union would mean the repudiation of the employes who had been faithful enough to remain with the company during the strike.

New Motor Co. for New Brunswick

ST. JOHN, N.B., April 8.—The announcement is made in connection with the Maritime Motor show in St. John which has just closed, that the Dominion Motor Car Company will put up a factory at Coldbrook, three miles outside of St. John, near the factory of the Ford Company. The new company will assemble there sections of an English car which will be placed on the market throughout the Dominion.

Dam Across New Brunswick River

FREDERICTON, N. B., April 8.—Special—The construction of a dam across the St. John River at Meductic is proposed by the St. John River Hydro-Electric Company. The project has been laid before the legislature, and its promoters claim the work will cause an ultimate expenditure of some $3,650,000. The proposed dam will cross the St. John at Meductic above Fredericton and transmit power to Fredericton and Marysville, down the valley of the river, over 80 miles to St. John.

A report is made by the engineers of Stone & Webster of Boston, who operate and own a number of electric plants and railways, that such a dam would cost with all necessary development of power in the neighborhood of $2,600,000.

The New Brunswick Hyrdo-Electric Company, however, opposes this plan, and having last year obtained legislation, now proposes to develop electric power from streams and lakes in St. John and Charlotte counties, with transmission to St. John for light and power purposes including power for street railways. Some preliminary outlays have already been made by this company.

Affects Market But Very Little

NEW YORK, April 8.—Wall street, noon—The wide break in Canadian Pacific, which carried it below 200 for the first time in several years, was the chief development of the morning session, although it affected the rest of the market to only a slight degree.

While the tendency was downward for a time, losses were limited to half a point or so in most cases. Later there was a recovery when the coalers began to show the stimulating effect of Lackawana's victory in the anti-Trust suit.

Reading and Lehigh were run up about a point on this movement, causing an increase of covering in other stocks. Trading was on a considerably larger scale, the forenoon total being nearly four times yesterday's amount in the corresponding period. Bonds were steady.

TWO CRUSHED BY WALL

Workmen Killed When Part of Burned Structure Falls.

Third Man May Die While Four Others Are Badly Hurt In Collapse of Portion of Independent Cloak Co.'s Building In Toronto—Foreign Unskilled Workers Were Employed on the Job.

TORONTO, Apirl 9. — Two are dead, one is dying, and three workmen were seriously injured yesterday afternoon by the collapse of part of the west wall of the Independent Cloak Co.'s building on Richmond street west, near Bathurst street. The building had been gutted by fire in February and those killed and injured in the collapse of the wall were engaged in cleaning away the ruins before starting to tear down the walls.

The dead are:

Harry Cohen, aged 26, 130 William street; identified by means of a civic employment card.

Jacob Sanderaky, aged 23, 4 Danvers avenue; identified by a man with whom he lived at the above address.

The injured are: Benny Finkler, address not known; now at Western Hospital in a critical condition with terrible head and internal injuries; Antony Visconsky, at the Western Hospital, fractured left arm; Mike Kernitsky, at the Western Hospital, scalp wounds; Benjamin Blatarockly, at the Western Hospital, fracture of the knee cap and scalp lacerations; Max Najmal, at the Western Hospital, bone of the face fractured and other injuries about the body.

Part of the wall fell across a lane on the roofs of two adjoining houses, caving in the roof of 589 Richmond street west and filling the bath room with tons of debris. In a room at the rear of the house an infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sniderman was sleeping on a couch and narrowly escaped injury from falling plaster. Mr. and Mrs. Sniderman were working in a room at the front of the house, but were not injured. Bricks from the falling wall flew through windows on the ground floor of the house.

The cause of the catastrophe is not known, although acting City Architect Price and his employes, who were on the scene shortly after the accident, are of the opinion that it was caused by careless workmen. The Saturday following the fire Mr. Price and his men spent many hours in the ruins. They placed timbers and guy ropes on the building to prevent such an accident as this. Mr. Price thinks that some of the workmen, none of whom were skilled laborers, must have pulled a joist from the ruins, causing the wall to cave in on them. His opinion is shared by members of the fire department.

On Tuesday eighteen men were employed in the building, and yesterday several more were taken on. They were all foreigners working on the third floor of the building save two who were on the east wall. But for a warning shouted by Mr. J. A. Lendreville, 618 Richmond street west, the toll of death might have been greater. He was standing in front of his house when he saw the wall swaying gently. He realized the serious position of those in the building and shouted to them. The workmen heard him and endeavored to escape. Many of them reached safety, but seven of the men were caught by the falling wall and carried into the basement when the charred flooring on which they stood was unable to stand the weight of the falling debris.

"RUN TO EARTH"

By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," "Aurora Floyd," etc., etc.

After driving some six or seven miles, and always keeping within sound of the dull plash of the river, the landlord of the "Jolly Tar" drew up suddenly by a dilapidated wooden paling, behind which there was a low-roofed habitation of some kind or other, which was visible only by reason of one faint glimmer of light, flickering athwart a scrap of dingy red curtain. The dull, plashing sound of the river was louder here; and, mingling with that monotonous ripple of the water, there was a shivering sound—the trembling of rushes stirred by the chill night wind.

"I'd almost passed your place, Tom", said the landlord, as he drew up before the darksome habitation.

"You might a'most drive over it on such a night as this", answered Black Milsom, "and not be much the wiser."

The three men alighted, and Dennis Wayman led the vicious pony to a broken-down shed, which served as stable and coachhouse in Mr. Milsom's establishment.

Valentine Jernam looked about him. As his eyes grew familiar with the locality, he was able to make out the outline of the dilapidated dwelling.

It was little better than a hovel, and stood on a patch of waste ground, which could scarcely have been garden within the memory of man. By one side of the house there was a wide, open ditch, fringed with rushes—a deep, black ditch, that flowed down to the river.

"I can't compliment you on the situation of your cottage, mate", he said; "it might be livelier."

"I dare say it might", answered Black Milsom, rather sulkily. "I took to this place because everybody else was afraid to take it, and it was to be had for nothing. There was an old miser as cut his throat here seven or eight years ago, and the place has been left to go to decay ever since. The miser's ghost walks about here sometimes, after twelve o'clock at night, folks say. 'Let him walk till he tires himself out', says I. 'He don't come my way; and if he did he would not scare me.' Come, captain."

Mr. Milsom opened the door, and ushered his visitor into the lively abode, which the prejudice of weak-minded people permitted him to occupy rent-free.

The girl whom Jernam had seen at the Wapping public-house was sitting in a listless attitude, with her hands lying idle on her lap, and her eyes fixed on the fire; but she looked up as the two men entered.

She did not welcome her father's return with any demonstration of affection; she looked at him with a strange, wondering gaze; and she looked with an anxious expression from him to his companion.

Dennis Wayman came in presently, and as the girl recognized him, a transient look, almost like horror, flitted across her face, unseen by the sailor.

"Come, Jenny," said Milsom; "I've brought Wayman and a friend of his down to supper. What can you give us to eat? There's a bit of cold beef in the house, I know, and bread and cheese; the captain here has brought the wine; so we shall do well enough. Look sharp, lass. You're in one of your tempers to-night, I suppose; but you ought to know that don't answer with me. I say, captain", added the man, with a laugh, "if ever you're going to marry a pretty woman, make sure she isn't troubled with an ugly temper; for you'll find, as a rule, that the handsomer a woman is the more of the devil there is in her. Now, Jenny, the supper, and no nonsense about it."

The girl went into another room, and returned presently with such fare as Mr. Milsom's establishment could afford. The sailor's eyes followed her wherever she went, full of compassion and love. He was sure this brutal wretch, Milsom, used her badly, and he rejoiced to think that he had disregarded all Joyce Harker's warnings, and penetrated into the scoundrel's home. He rejoiced, for he meant to rescue this lovely, helpless creature. He knew nothing of her, except that she was beautiful, friendless, lonely, and ill-used and he determiend to take her away and marry her.

He did not perplex himself with any consideration as to whether she would return his love, or be grateful for his devotion. He thought only of her unhappy position, and that he was predestined to save her.

The supper was laid upon the rickety deal table, and the three men sat down. Valentine would have waited til his host's daughter had seated herself; but she had laid no plate or knife for herself, and it was evident that she was not expected to share the social repast.

"You can go to bed now", said Milsom. "We're in for a jolly night of it, and you'll only be in the way. Where's the old man?"

"Gone to bed."

"So much the better; and the sooner you follow him will be so much better again. Good night."

The girl did not answer him. She looked at him for a few moments with an earnest, inquiring gaze, which seemed to compel him to return her look, as if he had been fascinated by the profound earnestness of those large dark eyes; and then she went slowly and silently from the room.

"Sulky!" muttered Mr. Milsom. "There never was such a girl to sulk."

He took up a candle, and followed his daughter from the room.

A rickety old staircase led to the upper floor, where there were three or four bed-chambers. The house had been originally something more than a cottage, and the rooms and passages were tolerably large.

Thomas Milsom found the girl standing at the top of the stairs, as if waiting for someone.

"What are you standing mooning there for?" asked the man. "Why don't you go to bed?"

"Why have you brought that sailor here"? inquired the girl, without noticing Milsom's question.

"What's that to you? You'd like to know my business wouldn't you? I've brought him here because he wanted to come. Is that a good answer? I've brought him here because he has money to lose, and in in the humor to lose it. Is that a better answer?"

"Yes", returned the girl, fixing her eyes upon him with a look of horror; "you will win his money, and, if he is angry, there will be a quarrel, as there was on that hideous three years ago, when you brought home the foreign sailor, and what happened to that man will happen to this one. Father", cried the girl, suddenly and passionately, "let this man leave the house in safety. I sometimes think my heart is almost as hard as yours; but this man trusts us. Don't let any harm come to him."

"Why, what harm should come to him?"

For some time the girl called Jenny stood before her father in silence, with her head bent, and her face in shadow; then she lifted her head suddenly, and looked at him piteously.

"The other!" she murmured; "the other! I remember what happend to him."

"Come, drop that!" cried Milsom, savagely; "do you think I'm going to stand your mad talk? Get to bed, and go to sleep. And the sounder you sleep the better, unless you want to sleep uncommonly sound for the future, my lady."

The ruffian seized his daughter by the arm, and half pushed, half flung her into a room, the door of which stood open. It was the dreary room which she called her own. Milsom shut the door upon her, and locked it with a key which he took from his pocket—a key which locked every door in the house. "And now, I flatter, myself, you're safe, my pretty singing-bird", he muttered."

He went down stairs, and returned to his guest, who had been pressed to eat and drink by Dennis Wayman, and who had yielded good-naturedly to that gentleman's hospitable attentions.

• • • • •

Alone in her room, Jenny Milsom opened the window, and sat looking out into the inky darkness of the night, and listening to the voices of the three men in the room below.

The voices sounded very distinctly in that dilapidated old house. Every now and then a hearty shout of laughter seemed to shake the crazy rafters; but presently the revellers grew silent. Jenny knew they were busy with the cards.

"Yes, yes", she murmured; "it all happens as it happened that night—first the loud voices and laughter; then the silence; then—Great Heaven! will the end be like the end of that night?"

She clasped her hands in silent agony, and sank in a crouching position by the open window, with her head lying on the sill.

For hours this wretched girl sat upon the floor in the same attitude, with the cold wind blowing in upon her. All seemed tranquil in the room below. The voices sounded now and then, subdued and cautious, and there were no more outbursts of jovial laughter.

A dim, gray streak glimmerd faint and low in the east—the first pale flicker of dawn. The girl raised her weary eyes towards that chill gray light.

"Oh, if this night were only ended!" she murmured; "if it were only ended without harm!"

The words were still upon her lips, when the voices sounded loud and harsh from the rom below. The girl started to her feet, white and trembling. Louder with every moment grew those angry voices. Then came a struggle; some article of furniture fellwith a crash; there was the sound of shivered glass, and then a dull heavy noise, which echoed through the house and shook the weather-beaten wooden walls to their foundations.

After the fall there came the sound of one loud groan, and then subdued murmurs, cautious whispers.

The window of Jenny Milsom's room looked towards the road. From that window she could see nothing of the sluggish ditch or the river.

She tried the door of her room. It was securely locked, as she had expected to find it.

THE EVENING MEAL

Where There Are Appetites and Digestion to Match the Fare

Whilst our camp in the far north was in course of construction, says an explorer, we had stood nearby, knee deep in the snow, shivering, and impatiently watching the operation. But now, the fire agoing, we crowded in before the blaze, and after a few minutes of warming up, proceeded to get supper. The evening meal differed very little from those eaten during the day, but in deference to conventionalities we always termed it supper. Our bags were brought into the enclosure and the cook and his outfit were given first place. One man filled the big tin kettles with snow and set them on the fire. To escape a scorching he handled them with a four-foot pole. A dozen bannocks were stuck up to thaw before the blaze while the cook heaped up the frying pan with a frozen mixture of baked pork and beans. Before taking the trail we had made ten dozen of these bannocks, and they had simply to be thawed out when they were ready to be eaten.

"Get busy, lads!" came the cook's cry. Each man turned from nursing blistered feet or tortured limbs to receive a bowl of steaming beans. With this, and a bannock apiece, we reseated ourselves on the bags and proceeded to "get busy." The tea pail coming to a boil, a handful of leaves were thrown in, and, after being put back on the fire for a few minutes, was set in our midst on the boughs. The mugs and the sugar bag were then produced. While the tea is yet too hot to be drunk the hand holding the mug must be kept in a deerskin mitten to protect it from the cold. This may seem incredible—many stories of that clime do until one is "up against them."

But then what feasting! The beans are well mixed with cinders, the tea has a strong flavor of spruce, and the half-thawed bannocks have each a "bone" in them yet—but what of it? We had appetites and digestions to match the fare, and besides—we were one day nearer home.

Protect the Birds

In the United States, where they have kept careful statistics, it is estimated that $800,000,000 has been lost by the farmers owing to the birds not being protected. Many native birds are now extinct. These would have cleaned the trees of the gypsy and brown-tailed moth, thus saving millions to the country. The Winter birds will eat the larvæ of these, so shelter should be provided for them in our parks. We are told there are 10,000,000 varieties of insects, most of these being destructive ones, so it would take many birds to destroy such pests. If we protect the birds we are protecting our trees, and by this means our watercourses are protected.

AN ISLAND OF DANGER

Strange Currents Which Have Caused Many Wrecks

Sable Island lies off the coast of Nova Scotia, about seventy miles distant. It is twenty-one miles long, with bars at both ends, the bar on the south end extending out about ten miles, and the bar at the east end about seventeen miles. The tides around and about Sable Island are accountable for the wreck of many a fine ship. Vessels find themselves on the sands when, by all the rules of the sea, they should be many miles away.

Many years ago the superintendent of the island despatched a small boat to the mainland for provisions. Thirteen days later the boat floated on to the beach, exactly six miles from the place from which she had been dispatched, and the boat's crew thought they were landing on the mainland.

In calm weather a barrel will circle arounh the island several times. If a vessel is lost on the south side, the watchers will search the north side for the bodies.

Some ten years ago the government established a Marconi wireless station on the island, and it has been of great benefit to the vessels installed with wireless. But while any vessels ply the sea without wireless Sable Island will continue to be a very grave menace. How many vessels have left their keels there nobody can ever tell. There is a record of over two hundred, mostly wooden ships, though several steamers have been lost there, including some very large ones.

Sable Island is equipped with two light houses, one at each end, and a life-saving crew maintained by the Canadian government.

This island was first discovered by John and Sebastian Cabot, three hundred and fifty-three years ago. The first landing was made by Portuguese fishermen. In the sixteenth century, Sir Humphrey Gilbert took possession in the name of Queen Elizabeth. France attempted to colonize it in 1598, by placing forty convicts there. They all died but twelve.

NATURE'S FLY TRAPS

American Plants Which Absorb the Flies

Dame Nature has a wonderful invention known as the Venus fly-trap, which, in the United States, finds its home mainly in the swamps near Wilmington, North Carolina. A specimen transplanted into moss and rich earth will thrive in the house if kept very moist, and it makes the best kind of fly-trap, for it is always on duty and looks after itself. As the older traps lose their vitality fresh shoots appear and new traps are developed.

The Venus fly-trap is regarded as one of the greatest wonders of the plant world, for it seems to exercise a discrimination of taste that is more than human. It is provided with three delicate hair-triggers, and it exudes a sort of honey-dew that attracts the flies. Woe to the fly, however, that touches one of the triggers, for, quick as a flash, the two heavy leaves of the trap close upon the victim and crush it, much the same as an ordinary steel trap acts. There is no escape for the fly when he is once in.

The plant then settles down to digest its meal of fresh meat—this being one of the very few vegetables that take to a meat diet. A species of gastric juice is secreted by the closed trap and the body of the fly undergoes a process of real digestion, so that the nutriment is absorbed by the plant. Then when the fly has been sucked dry the trap opens and disgorges the indigestible remains.

Now, the most wonderful thing about the Venus fly-trap is that it knows the difference between a nice, juicy, fresh fly and either a dead or injured fly or any foreign substance, such as a stick. Touch the trigger with a lead pencil and the trap will respond very slowly. Partly crush a fly so that it is not very lively and give it to the plant and it will still respond with very little show of appetite. But let a lively fly touch the triggers and snap go the jaws of the trap together, imprisoning it. Thus the plant prefers to do its own killing.

KEPHALDOL

"IS ABSOLUTELY MARVELOUS AS A PAIN KILLER."

Mrs. Beatrice Cassey, of Swalecliff, England, knows what it means to be bed ridden with pain. She also knows now how easily the tortures of Rheumatism and Lumbago may be overcome. She says: "My experience with KEPHALDOL as a pain-killer is absolutely marvellous. I had a fearfully acute attack last year of Neuritis, Sciatica and Lumbago and suffered in bed for many days. Finally I heard of KEPHALDOL which did wonders for me. I shall always feel most grateful for what it has done, and I am happy to let others know of its wonderful effects as a pain destroyer."

KEPHALDOL is the only pain reliever that does not affect the heart. It acts directly on the nerve centres, easing and quieting the pain. KEPHALDOL is the favorite combination of nerve stimulants and tonics prescribed by the famous Doctor Stohr, of Vienna, the great nerve specialist.

KEPHALDOL is now sold in Canada by druggists in 50c tubes or may be had by sending 50c direct to Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

WOMEN IN CANADA

Dominion Conditions Not Favorable to Women Farmers

"There are two objections to Canada as far as women are concerned," says a writer in the London Referee.

"One is that Canada refuses the free grant of land to women that is given to men. Two or more girls with a knowledge of farming and a little capital can do very well in Canada, even putting up their own buildings; but, with a free grant of land, how many more could succeed, while their lives would be easy compared with that of the wife of a farmer or even a domestic servant, where climatic conditions make domestic work so hard.

"The second objection to Canada for women is its laws where married women are concerned. Not long ago a man willed his farm to his brother, away from his wife, though her money had been invested in it.

"In New Zealand, where women vote, such a will would in itself have been considered a proof of mental incapacity, and would, therefore, not have been allowed to stand.

"Australia, New Zealand, and Rhodesia are at present far more suitable for women emigrants than Canada, and fruit farms can be successfully run by women alone."

Afraid to Stand Up

"Indeed," the lecturer went on, in a quizzical way. "I believe I am justified in asserting that nine women out of ten practically propose to the men they become engaged to. As a test, I would ask all married men in the audience whose wives virtually popped the question to them to rise."

There was a subdued rustle in the auditorium and in the dense silence that ensued could be heard sibilant feminine whispers in concert, "Just you dare stand up!"

Faith and Good Works

The Rev. Father O'Leary was off to catch the Dublin express. On the way to the station he ran into his bishop.

"Well, what's the hurry, O'Leary?" said he.

"Sure, it's the Dublin express I'm after, your lordship."

The bishop pulled out his gold watch. "Well, there are seven minutes yet; let us walk together and both catch it."

They arrived at the station just in time to see the train steaming out.

"Do you know, I had the greatest faith in that watch, O'Leary," said the bishop.

"Ah! my lord, what is faith without good works?" replied the angry O'Leary.

BASEBALL IN BRITAIN

Game Described as "Pandemonium" in English Press

Two runs in an hour is too slow for the Englishmen, who want to see a hundred made in cricket in that time, says the London correspondent of the Toronto Globe. The accounts of the game, which is termed "glorified rounders," read as if it is that of some newly-discovered tribe in Central Africa, which is never played in a civilized country; but it must be pointed out that some members of the Giants and White Sox admit they know nothing about cricket.

Much admiration was expressed over the catching and throwing of the ball players, who gave an exhibition thereof which no English cricket team ever approached. One writer suggests, however, that in a short music hall turn, this kind of prowess would win delighted applause, but he adds that it becomes mechanical by its very perfection.

Umpire Klem's coolness and indifference to danger in his position was especially commended. "Only twice did he flinch," says one paper, "and that was when called upon to face the King and announce the score."

The Daily News' descriptive writer said, "For about two hours a foreign sort of pandemonium whirled in the arena. Wonderful deeds were no doubt accomplished when the world-famous White Sox of Chicago and the universally acclaimed Giants of New York met to fight out the best of nine games at the American national pastime, but they were all Greek to the crowd. After the show baseball still remains, and will remain, exclusively and peculiarly a transatlantic dish, such as clams, crackers and canvasback."

OLD TIME PUNISHMENTS

Roosters and Donkeys Were Tried in Court

Among the weird and horrible punishments inflicted in Quebec under both the French and English regimes were burning of women at the stake for petty treason, burning of the hand, branding on the forehead, and breaking on the wheel. No record is found in Canada, however, of such punishments as the "drunkard's cloak," a barrel with apertures for the head and hands, and the bridle and ducking pool for common scolds, a device the resurrection of which has been suggested by some critics of the militant suffragettes. In old houses in Britain there are still to be seen hooks by the fireplace to which a scolding wife was fastened after being bridled, the jailer performing this service at the request of the exasperated husband.

A feature of middle age jurisprudence, which was retained in France until the middle of the 18th century, was the indictment of domestic animals, principally oxen or swine, for injuries inflicted on human beings. A rooster was tried and executed for laying an egg, the prosecution proving that it was due to witchcraft, and the defence unavailingly claiming that a rooster's egg was a cure for certain diseases. The trial of a donkey in an English court in the reign of George III. was indicated by an old print and a humorous ballad of the period.

The jougs or iron collar was used as a punishment for disregarding parental authority or non-attendance at church. In France it was called the carcan, and one was formerly attached to a post at the door of the Basilica at Quebec. The pillory was used in England for at least 700 years, and in 1769 a prisoner stood in the pillory at Montreal for three days.

In 1765 two men and a woman were whipped through the streets of Montreal, 39 lashes being given each, the last at the spot where Nelson's monument now stands.

DOG SAVES HOUSEHOLD

Lord Morley's Private Secretary Loses His Home

How a pet Pomeranian dog averted grave risk to the lives of an entire household is revealed in the story of Denis Cunningham, the eleven-year-old son of Viscount Morley's private secretary, after a fire at Mr. Cunningham's residence, The Square, Fernhurst.

At three o'clock in the morning the boy was awakened by the dog scratching his cheek. He found the room full of smoke, and promptly gave the alarm. The house, a new one, was blazing furiously, and in the end it was burned to the ground, whilst the adjoining garage and a motor car worth $4,000 were also destroyed.

The Haslemere fire brigade found a scarcity of water, the nearest hydrant being two miles distant; but a pond a quarter of a mile away furnished a supply, and this was pumped dry before the flames were extinguished. Although much of the furniture was saved from the fire, it was drenched by the heavy rain. The total damage is estimated at $50,000.

"The utmost in power —with low fuel cost"

THAT is our idea—to produce cars that will develop more power than others selling at the same price—and that will go further on a gallon of gasoline.

That it's a good idea is proven by the number of McLaughlin-Buicks on the road—a number that is being greatly augmented this year.

In this season's models of this "more power—less fuel" idea is carried out to an even more complete extent than has hitherto been attained.

We have developed and improved the McLaughlin-Buick overhead valve motor until it is very close to mechanical perfection. The saving in fuel it makes possible is a feature that has caught the attention of Canada's motoring public as no other motor car development of the year.

The McLaughlin-Buick line for this season consists of eight models—including both 4 and 6 cylinder pleasure cars and a 1,500 pound truck. From the 2 passenger Roadster at $1,250 to the 5 cylinder Touring Car at $2,750, there is not a car in the entire line that can be equalled at its price.

Algonquin Park Addition Opposed by the Liberals.

Opposition Whip Bowman Gets Into Hot Water When He Charges that Purchase of Timber Limit in North Country Is For Benefit of Government's Friends — Timber Cruisers Have Made Appraisal.

TORONTO, April 9.—A high state of tension prevailed in the Legislature last evening when Hon. Mr. Hearst crossed swords with Chief Liberal Whip Charles Bowman regarding the proposed addition to Algonquin Park.

The trouble started when the North Bruce member, in attacking the Government purchase of the Pembroke Lumber Co. timber limits, declared that the whole deal was for the benefit of political friends of the Conservative party.

"We desire to protest," declared Mr. Bowman, "in the strongest possible manner against this transaction, and claim that it should not be consummated, that the principle is entirely wrong and that this old, worked-out limit should not be purchased from active political friends of the Government for $185,000."

Mr. Bowman moved in amendment that the purchase price be reduced to $25,000, which he considered a reasonable value of the limits.

"If this bill becomes law," he declared, "it means a most deliberate looting and plundering of the Provincial Treasury for active political friends of the Government."

This brought the Minister to his feet with a rush. "I am not at all surprised at the remarks with which the member has brought to a close his speech," he declared, "but if any man, either inside or outside the House, should not have used such language, it is the member for North Bruce."

Mr. Bowman instantly demanded "an explicit statement" of what was meant.

"Why does he ask when it is a matter in the public records of the House?" was the retort.

Again Mr. Bowman came back. "I presume that when the hon. member says it is a matter of public record that he refers to my connection with the Algoma Central Railway Co., and I want to say that if my connection had anything to do with the loan of two millions to the Soo company granted under the legislation of the Ross regime, all I have to say is this, that if I had anything to do with it, it was a most fortunate thing for the member from Sault Ste. Marie and the Province of Ontario."

"And more particularly the member from North Bruce," retorted the Minister.

"I have nothing to apologize for in that matter, and I repeat it was a most fortunate thing, and there is in that city to-day the largest and most successful company in the province, and if it were not for that the hon. Minister would likely be sitting in a deserted village with the green grass growing around him."

In reply to the charges which the Liberal whip preferred, the Minister said that the best timber cruisers in the north had been engaged in the appraisal of the land in question, and that persons from both political parties had agreed on the quality of the timber, and the value of the bargain. He quoted some of these in the House to back his argument.

Messrs. Proudfoot of Huron, Hartt of Simcoe, and others joined in the debate before the second reading was carried on division.

When W. K. McNaught asked the privilege of special expedition in handling Toronto's bill to enable the city to go ahead with its postoffice square scheme yesterday afternoon, Hon. Messrs. Lucas and Foy demurred until full explanation had been given. Permission was sought in the bill to allow the negotiations of the City Council with the Federal Government for the new postoffice square. The measure was allowed to go direct to the private bills committee.

Nationalist Move "Big With Danger."

LONDON, April 9. — The development of the Nationalist volunteers in Ireland is beginning to attract the attention of Unionist journalists.

After a tour of Nationalist Ireland one capable observer declares that the movement is "big with danger." The force has been organized since December by Sir Roger Casement, the consul who exposed the horrors of the slave traffic at Putumayo, and John McNeill, a professor at the Irish National University, who have spread the net so well that cities, towns and hamlets in all parts of Ireland are within its mesh.

On Nov. 12, Mr. Collins will be one hundred years old. His mind is clear, his memory almost a marvel. Nor is he bereft of agility and vigor.

Cabarets Fight For Life.

MONTREAL, April 9.—An array of legal talent has been engaged to put up a fight for the five Montreal cabarets, whose licenses have been cut off by the license commission. On behalf of the cafes writs of certiorari and mandamus have been applied for, the principal ground alleged being that the judgment of the commissioners was published in the evening newspapers before it was formally announced.

Rates Decision Benefits Other Cities More Than Manitoba Centre.

OTTAWA, April 9.—The decision of the Railway Commission in the western freight rates case has elicited less comment and discussion than might have been anticipated. There was no reference to it in the House yesterday, and members of Parliament outside of the House were quite reticent.

Generally speaking, the judgment extends the principal established in the Regina rates case, and places the shippers of Saskatchewan and Alberta upon an equality with the shippers of Manitoba and main advantage distributing points, like Regina, Moose Jaw, Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge, which heretofore have been discriminated against by the railways in favor of Winnipeg.

But if some relief is afforded Saskatchewan and Alberta, no advantage is gained by Manitoba, which, indirectly at least, is injuriously affected.

Evidence Taking Ends.

WASHINGTON, April 9. — Taking of testimony by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application of eastern railroads for a five per cent. increase in freight rates was concluded yesterday so far as the present phase of the proceeding is concerned. Protestants against any increase in the lake and rail rate closed their case with the testimony of Julius H. Barnes of Duluth, who urged that the lake and rail carriers were not entitled to an advance in rates, because their service was antiquated and unnecessarily expensive to shippers.

U. S. To Pay $25,000,000.

This was stated here yesterday at the Colombian legation.

BAR ABOLITION ASKED.

"No Booze" Petition Is Submitted to Ontario Government.

TORONTO, April 9. — Requesting legislation to abolish all liquor shop, bar and club licenses in Ontario, and one year later the submission of the question of prohibition to a plebiscite of the people, a deputation of the Ontario Young Manhood Association, headed by Dr. H. A. McKim of Toronto, presented a petition containing 9,000 signatures to the Ontario Government yesterday. In an address accompanying the petition it was pointed out that unless the Government would in some degree accede to their requests, the signers of the petitions who said they were all Conservatives, would have to ally themselves with the opposite party.

Hon. Mr. Foy, as acting Premier, replied. The Government, he said, realized the evils of intemperance as well as anybody, and wished to minimize them and check the use of liquor as much as possible, but he did not think abolition of bars would stop drinking.

Hon. W. J. Hanna said that the Government had further restrictions under consideration which could not be announced as yet.

Dominion's Aid and Sympathy Go to Families of Sealers.

OTTAWA, April 9.—When Parliament met yesterday afternoon Premier Borden announced that he had been in communication with Hon. John R. Bennett, acting Premier of Newfoundland, in respect to the recent disaster to the sealers and had volunteered to give practical evidence of Canadian sympathy by a grant to assist the families of the lost. He would accordingly ask Parliament for a grant of $10,000 for the purpose.

"The action of the Government in this matter is worthy of commendation," commented Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "and will have the hearty support of this side of the House."

King and Queen Contribute.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 9. — Premier Morris of Newfoundland cables from London that King George and Queen Mary have headed the subscription list in The London Times for the sealing disaster fund, with a donation of $750, and that generous contributions from other sources are being received.

The acting Premier has contributions of $2,000 each from the Dominion and Nova Scotia Steel Companies.

TORONTO, April 9.—A grant of $5,000 was made by the City Council to the survivors of those lost in the recent disaster off Newfoundland when a large number of sealers were caught in a blizzard.

NO CLUE SO FAR.

Murder of Robert Hayde Near Midland Still a Mystery.

MIDLAND, April 9.—A post-mortem examination on the body of Robert Hayde, the grocer at Tomahawk Point who was found murdered, was held here yesterday. He was killed by a charge from a shotgun, the charge entering at the base of the skull at the back of the head, and lodging on the inside of his left cheek. The inside of his head was riddled in a frightful manner, and the left jaw was broken. An inquest will be held at Port Severn to-day. When the body was found the pockets were turned inside out, and the money all gone, which is an indication that robbery was the motive for the crime. His watch had not been meddled with. No clue to the assassin has yet been discovered, but a provincial detective has been applied for to work on the case.

HEARINGS BEGIN TO-DAY.

Tolls Bill Will Be In Committee for Fifteen Days.

WASHINGTON, April 9. — Formal consideration of the administration bill to repeal the tolls exemption provision of the Panama Canal Act will begin on the Senate side of the capitol to-day, with hearings before the Interoceanic Canals Committee, to continue for 15 days.

While the committee preparations were under way yesterday, preliminary debate on the tolls issue occupied the greater part of the session in the Senate, where Senator Works of California held the floor for hours, concluding his analysis of the treaties involved, and his argument opposing the repeal.

Asserting that the United States had the right under the treaty to prescribe such tolls as it sees fit for its own vessels, Senator Works vigorously criticized the position taken by the President.

YOUTH KICKED A CAN.

And Explosive Therein Went Off Inflicting Serious Injuries.

TORONTO, April 9. — Peter John Bolahood, aged 12, of 123 York street, kicked a tin can in his back yard yesterday afternoon, and since then Peter John and all his family have been wondering what was in that can. Following the kick there came a tremendous explosion, which knocked the lad on his back, tore the left side of his face open, and cut open his leg from the knee half way to his thigh. He was conveyed to the General Hospital, where it is stated he may lose the sight of one eye.

Although careful search was made for any part of the tin can, not a particle remained to tell the police what had been placed inside. It is thought it contained explosive of some kind, but how it got there is a mystery.

Was Dead When Taken Out.

NIAGARA FALLS, April 9. — Mrs. C. E. Sanborn, of No. 445 Parkdale avenue, Buffalo, committed suicide in a sensational manner at the third Sister Island above the Falls at noon yesterday. She walked into the water and threw herself into the swift current, but was caught on a ledge of rocks.

Charles Martin, a policeman, who witnessed the woman's act, succeeded in drawing her to the shore with a pikepole after about ten minutes' effort. She was dead, however.

Religious War In Albania.

ATHENS, April 9. — An official communication says that Mussulman Albanians Tuesday entered Koritsa, in the vilayet of Monastir and, with the aid of the gendarmerie, who had previously disarmed the inhabitants, began a massacre of the Christians.

A Vienna despatch on April 2 said it was reported from Avlona that Greek irregular forces had fiercely attacked Koritsa but were repulsed by the Albanians.

Mackenzie King ought not to worry unduly over the redistribution in North York. It hasn't harmed his chances a bit; he would have been licked to a frazzle anyway.

So that you may use less flour, we do what a home cook would do if she were in our place.
From every shipment of wheat delivered at our mills we take a ten pound sample. We grind this into flour. Bread is baked from the flour.
We find that some samples make more bread and better bread than others. So we keep the shipment from which the more and better bread comes. The others we sell.
You save money by using flour that bears this name. And you get better bread.

WHERE TO MARRY

Quebec the Most Expensive of the Provinces

The Province of Quebec is the most expensive place there is in which to be married by license. This is because the Province puts a tax on marriage by license. Six dollars is drawn down every time a license is issued by the Government. The total cost is eight dollars. Two of these go to the issuer of the document. This money does not go into the general fund of the Province, but is devoted to the higher Protestant educational institutions, and is placed at the disposal of the Educational Board. It is given in this way because Roman Catholics do not marry by license.

The tax amounts to many thousands of dollars every year. In one office alone in 1913 no less than 800 licenses were issued. Undoubtedly the total would be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

In Ontario the Government charges nothing for the privilege of getting married. The license costs two dollars, but that goes to the official who issues the document. This, it is understood, is the usual method.

Another curious feature, and one, it is maintained, should not be struck from the code, is the fact that the happy couple must be bonded. The bridegroom going to the issuer of licenses is astounded, if he has not learned of the law, to find that he must bring two householders who will go bond for him for $800 each, to show that there is no reason why the marriage should not take place. It is to prove that neither of the parties have previously been wedded; that they are of age, or if not, that the consent of the parents has been obtained. It is merely a matter of form. There are no records known of any bondsmen being sued for the amount of the bond by the Province or by an irate parent. Nevertheless, the bond must be given.

MIXED FARMING POPULAR

West No Longer Devoted to Growing Wheat

"Western Canada is turning to mixed farming instead of exclusively raising wheat," said Geo. Bury, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific.

"I have seen no evidence for a long time that is more encouraging for the future of the West. The farmers are not pinning their faith to any one crop, and, what is more, they are not draining the fertility of their land by lack of rotation of crops from year to year.

"It is nearly certain that there will be about 9,000,000 acres more under cultivation this year than ever before, and although the effects of the money stringency have certainly been felt in the West as elsewhere, there is a solid foundation for the prosperity of the Western farmer that cannot be disturbed by the flutters of the stock market."

ICELANDERS ADAPTABLE

Professor Thinks They Discovered America

"Icelanders and their contributions to History" was the theme chosen by Professor A. Holmes, Ph.D., M.D., of Queen's University before the Ottawa Teachers' Association in the Toronto Normal school hall. "The Commonwealth of Iceland was created owing to the irresponsibility of a woman," quoted Mr. Holmes. "'Only will I say yea to being his sole and lawful wife,' said a maiden exceeding fair to Harold Hairfair, 'when he brings to subjection all Norway as freely as does King Eric rule the Swede realm.'"

After a brief historical sketch of the history of Iceland, and upon observations made during the course of a tour of the country last summer, Professor Holmes asserted that there was no doubt in his mind that the Icelanders were the first to discover America. "Their newspapers," continued the speaker, "excel in terseness, capacity of action and passion, and powers of description."

"It is no wonder that the modern Icelander should so excel in matters of learning after so many centuries of educated ancestors."

His "One-Hoss Shay"

When the history of London street traffic is written, it will probably be recorded that Lord Rothschild was the last person to ride daily through the City in a brougham. Motor omnibuses are all careful to give the blue brougham plenty of elbow room, for every driver on the road knows Lord Rothschild's carriage, and thinks kindly of the generous donor of phesants who rides inside. Although he is now in his seventy-fourth year, Lord Rothschild is regular as a clock in his attendance in the City. About four o'clock in the afternoon the blue brougham takes him home again to Piccadilly.

Lost For Ever

Little things can be very trying at times, especially when they happen to you. Mr. Fry thought something like this when, one wet morning, he could not find his umbrella. Like most married men, he believed in the maxim, "When in trouble blame your wife."

"I say, Mary," he shouted, "what on earth has happened to my new umbrella? I brought it home last night, and now it's gone; and, of course, it's raining like mad!"

"Why, it's hardly raining at all!" said Mary. "But last night it was simply pouring when the vicar left, and so I lent him yours."

"What an asinine thing to do! I shall never see it again now, so I may as well buy another to-day!"

"How can you be so wicked, Percival? As if the vicar would stoop to stealing your umbrella!"

"Stoop to stealing it be hanged! I borrowed it from him a couple of months ago!"

The Other End

"There, lad, 'tis a bonnie lass you've married, and I wish you both joy," said the old minister, as he gazed at the beaming faces of the young couple he had just united.

"You're getting to the end of all your troubles now," he added encouragingly to the bridegroom.

Time went on, as time will, and a few months later the old minister met the young fellow who had started matrimony with such a smiling face.

"You look pretty miserable, my friend," said he.

"Well I might," came the sulky answer. "I thought you told me in the church as 'ow I'd got to the end of all my troubles."

"Ah, so I did, lad," said the minister, with a glimmer in his eye, "but I didn't say which end!"

Susie Couldn't See How That Happened

"Papa," Susie asked, "was it a very wise person who said, 'the good die young?'"

"Yes," replied the father, "I suppose he must have been very, very wise."

"Well," said the child, after meditating for some time on the import of his answer, "I'm not really so much surprised about you, but—mamma—no, I don't see how mamma managed to get growed up!"

Popping the Question

Counsel (examining domestic in a breach of promise case): "Was the defendant's air when he promised to marry you perfectly serious or one of levity and jocularity?"

Plaintiff: "If you please, sir, it was all ruffled with him running his hands through it."

"You misapprehend my meaning," said counsel. "Was the promise made in all utter sincerity?"

"No, sir; it was made in the washhouse," replied the plaintiff, amid roars of laughter.

Only in Defence

"They're six fine sons ye have, Casey," said Denis Flaherty to his friend.

"They are," replied Casey.

"Do ye have any trouble with them?" inquired Denis.

"Trouble?" repeated Casey. "I've never had to raise my hand to one of them, except in self-defence!"

On the Street

"You bad boy! What do you mean by picking up that cigar butt? Right before my face and eyes, too."

"Why, did youse want it?"

ORIGIN OF DWARFS PUZZLES SCIENTISTS

Dwarfs have always been a puzzle to scientists, whether they are human beings, animals, or plants. Some of the difficulties of understanding the origin of the human ones were cleared away by Professor Hastings Gilford in his lecture at the Royal College of Surgeons, London. Of course, there are whole races of dwarfish human beings, but the kind of person who especially deserves the name is one who is conspicuously small amongst his own people. Most of these eccentric little folk, often called midgets, are really, according to Professor Gilford, endowed with the gift of perpetual youth—not altogether a desirable gift, as any reader of fairy tales will know. It was often thought, he said, that midgets were people whose growth had suddenly been arrested. This was not so. The professor pointed out that in many cases "the so-called dwarfs or midgets are not in reality the result of a stoppage of growth, but rather of a protracted delay in development, so that they remain infants all their lives. When they grow old, as they often do, their infantile characteristics still persist. Dr. Gilford gave many quaint instances Dr. Gilford gay many quaint instances where their smallness and their baby-like minds stood dwarfs in good stead. One mannikin, he said, travelled wherever he cared to go on the railway with half a ticket until he was 30 years old; another intelligent child of 14 years got through more easily still, for his mother or any other woman who cared to assume the responsibility could carry him about as a baby in arms.

This intense prolongation of the period of childhood was really something very much akin to a disease. The lecturer classified it into many forms, but said of the many specimens he had met and examined: "They seem to be intelligent and captivating little people, their intelligence being of the childish pattern, such as might be expected of young people who had gathered years of experience. They never seem to be spoiled or even embarrassed by the attentions they receive from the public, but show quaint childish traits and a charming naiveté which makes them great favorites with those who have dealings with them."

Science naturally divides dwarfs into many kinds, but two of these are quite distinct. In one class the bones grow harder with age instead of remaining, as in the other class, gristly like those of little children. When, as in the first case, the bones begin to harden, other changes often happen, and the midgets become a strange compound of adult and child. "They often rejoice," said Professor Gilford, "in beards and moustaches, and some of them have become the proud fathers and mothers of diminutive beings like themselves."

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

Herbert Morrah Thinks Difficulties of English Are Exaggerated

Mr. Herbert Morrah addressing the Authors' Club in London, thought they were all united in believing in the great mission of English literature, but he was afraid that was where their unity would end. For he did not believe it would go out that they were on the whole very much in favor of the scheme set forward by the Simplified Spelling Society, and this not because it was a reform. They were all conscious of the anomalies of the English language, but they were not prepared for a revolution. During the last day or two he had had the pleasure of reading pamphlets of the Simplified Spelling Society, and he gathered from these that there was a definite scheme for placing the whole English language into the melting pot. Education had largely to do with this subject, and he thought that the difficulty of spelling the English language was enormously exaggerated (cheers). It was not extremely difficult for the average child to learn any subject, and he was not convinced that the average child was stupid (hear, hear). He was convinced, however, that our education in English left much to be desired, and he was quite sure that that should be thrown into the melting pot before they tampered with the spelling. It was admitted that the body of our language had not altered in 150 years, and he supposed the man of all others to whom they owed most for this was Dr. Johnson. There were many people who believed that Dr. Johnson had given them a good working model, and that it would be a good thing to leave well alone rather than enter into a scheme which, whatever else it might do, would involve an indefinite number of complications.

"Noise concerts" are the latest feature of the much discussed "futurists."

The eastern end of the Trent canal, between Rice Lake and Trenton, is expected to be opened within a few months. For the western end, between Lake Simcoe and Georgian Bay, contracts are being awarded, and the work will probably be finished in about two years. Then it will be possible for barges loaded with wheat to travel all the way, without breaking bulk, from Midland to Montreal.

TYRANNY OF SUNDAY DINNER

"Men have many faults, women only two,
Nothing right they say and nothing right they do."

Why is it that in most households all the menfolk are supposed to have a claim to make Sunday a day of rest and idleness? Nothing is ever done by a man on Sunday that can possibly be put off until Monday, but it very seldom occurs to them that their womenkind do not have the same privilege. Always there must be a hot dinner, and an extra good one, and if there is no maid it means that the wife or mother has to spend the greater part of what should be her day of relaxation in preparing the meal, otherwise there will be grievances and grumbles at the table. Breakfast is generally later on Sundays and the morning is shortened thereby, so that immediately the one meal is over and the rooms tidied the dinner must be prepared, and the woman who can manage to get to church in the interim is a wonder and an envy to her sex. Here are a few tips as to engineering the church hour or the rest hour in the morning and still having the hot meal. Partially cook the joint or the chickens on Saturday and leave them in the pan, reheating them for half an hour in a hot oven on Sunday. If a sufficient number of potatoes are boiled the day before they can be browned in the pan at the same time. Green vegetables too can be boiled on Saturday, and if reheated with a little butter will be as good as if they were done the same day, while other vegetables can be warmed up in a white sauce. Very few men will tolerate a cold mid-day meal on Sundays, especially in winter, and some ingenuity must be exercised in arranging everything so that as little time as possible need be taken up in getting it ready on Sunday. I once heard of a woman who, when she was first married, was told by some friends that they only had two meals on Sunday, a late breakfast and a dinner at four o'clock in the afternoon. She determined to try the plan on her husband. The following Sunday they went to church, and on their return he asked how soon dinner would be ready. She said at four o'clock. He looked at her, but said nothing. But he went upstairs and shut himself into his room where he remained while the young wife prepared a sumptuous meal. At four o'clock she went to call him, and was greeted with the reply that if he could not have his dinner at the proper time he would not have it at all—and he didn't. It was her first and last attempt to interfere with masculine feeding hours. She is an old woman now but the memory of that experiment is as vivid as if it happened yesterday.

PEER'S WIDOW ENTERS CONVENT

True Romance Which Reads Like Fiction

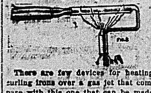
A fascinating romance of the peerage is recalled by the report that Julia Lady Lyveden, has entered a convent in Edinburgh.

Seventeen years ago Lady Lyveden was a pretty assistant of eighteen in a fancy shop at Eastbourne. Miss Julia Kate Emery, as she was then, attracted the attention of the late Lord Lyveden, who was seventy-seven years old and an invalid. He fell in love with her and was drawn in his bath chair every day to the shop.

After fulfilling an engagement as secretary to the aged peer Miss Emery consented at length to accept her patron's name and coronet, and in 1890 the marriage took place at All Souls' Church, Hastings. The marriage lasted only four years, the late peer dying in 1900, and as there was no issue the title passed to a nephew, the present peer. Eight years later the widow became engaged to Mr. Henry Hugh Maclean, but the engagement was broken off.

The present Lord Lyveden has had a most adventurous career, having been in his time a soldier, a market gardener and a ship's steward. When he was roughing it in America, without any apparent prospect of becoming a peer, he lodged over a stable and earned a precarious living as a cab driver.

Heating Curling Irons



There are few devices for heating curling irons over a gas jet that compare with this one that can be made at home out of metal tubing. The tubing should be made of a size that will fit the curling iron and the gas jet. It is cut out in the center, one end being left to fit over the jet and the cut out part bent so that the other end, left whole for the curling iron, comes over the flame. By using a device like this there is no danger of getting soot on the iron and the heating is done very quickly.

If two or three lumps of sugar are placed in kettles and teapots, they will absorb all moisture and will prevent rust and the "fusty" smell which is the result of their being left half dry.

IMPROVING THE ROADS

Autos and Farmers Responsible For General Zeal

The most conspicuous thing about the sessions of the Ontario Good Roads' Association was the business-like way in which the delegates discussed practical ways and means for road improvement. A few years ago it would have been necessary to have shown reasons why roads should be so improved, and what economic benefits would have been conferred upon the farmers by that improvement. All that is now admitted. The public interest is keenly fixed upon the practical side of financing and constructing improvements. The automobile is in large measure responsible for this awakening of general zeal, because to the natural desire it has added the energetic backing and influence of powerful urban associations and interests.

TYPHOID VACCINE

British Army Pathologist Tells Results of Studies

Col. Sir Wm. Leishman, F.R.S., K.H.P., professor of pathology at the Royal Army Medical College, London, England, who is generally recognized as one of the greatest men in the medical profession in Great Britain, told a meeting of the Association of Officers of the Medical Services of Canada at Ottawa many of the results of his experiments with typhoid vaccine, of which he has made a special study. He claimed that the success of the vaccine has been demonstrated in a remarkable way, especially in tropical countries where typhoid or enteric fever is more rampant than elsewhere.

Pulling His Ears

It is said that the German Emperor has a habit of gently tugging at his left ear when anything bothers him. One day, some years ago, when he was on a visit to England, he was handed a telegram. The contents of the message apparently displeased him, for he immediately began tugging at his ear. The Prince of Wales, then a small boy, watched the performance with considerable interest. "Uncle," he said at length, "why are you pulling your ear?" "Because I'm annoyed, I suppose," replied the Kaiser. "And when you're very annoyed," persisted the young Prince, "what do you do then?" "Then I pull somebody else's," announced his Majesty viciously.

Origin of "Deadhead"

The origin of the word "deadhead" takes us back to the theatres of ancient Rome. R. H. Broadhead, in "A History of Pantomime," gives the following realistic explanation. He says: "Persons were instructed to give applause with skill. The proficient hired themselves out to the poets, authors, etc., and were so disposed as to support a loud applause. The free admission tickets were small ivory death's hands, and specimens of these are to be seen in the Museum of Naples."

Why They Are Cold

Do you know why a dog's nose and a woman's elbow are always cold? Because, according to an old country superstition when Noah went into the Ark he found that he had forgotten his tools and had to use first a dog's nose, and then his wife's elbow, to stop a leak.

World's Output of Iron

According to a return of the British Board of Trade, the world's output of iron ore in 1912 was about 152 million tons, a figure which represents an increase of 10 per cent. on the previous year's production. The principal producing countries were the United States, Germany, France, the United Kingdom, and Spain, in the order named.

America, Germany, and the United Kingdom accounted for about seven-ninths of the world's output of pig-iron, estimated at seventy-two million tons, and for three-fourths of the aggregate production of steel amounting to about fifty-five million tons.

More Armed Liners

The Wilson Line, in conjunction with the Admiralty, are equipping several of their ships with 4.7-inch quick-firing guns. The liner Francisco, which left for New York recently carried a quick-firer for the first time in her stern. In each case the gun is fitted in a stern angle of but 20 degrees so it can only be used for defensive purposes and whilst being pursued.

The liners all run between Hull and New York, and carry grain and food cargoes, the idea being that guns would be useful for protection from small attacking craft.

Women Travel Alone

"More and more women are travelling alone every year," said the manager of a big travel agency. "Everything is made so easy nowadays that discomfort is reduced to a minimum.

"A woman can go round the world to-day, and can be under supervision the whole time if she cares to."

Women are becoming as enterprising travellers as men. These are some of the latest exploits:

Mrs. Blount penetrated to the heart of the Dark Continent.

Miss Edith A. Browne now proceeding through the vast depths of the great Amazon forests.

Miss Werner who has lived among the native races of the East African protectorate.

To Cure Colds

An incipient cold can often be prevented by taking ten or twenty deep, slow, full breaths in the open air or at an open window. The breath must be drawn through the nose very slowly till the lungs are filled, held a second and exhaled slowly till the lungs are emptied.

Oils distilled from the needles of spruce and fir trees are being used to scent petroleum floor oils which are sometimes objectionable on account of their odor.

New Cattle [illegible]

A new form of cattle-drive has been instituted in Blacksod and Belmullet districts of Ireland, when, on farms belonging to Messrs. R. Casson, P. O'Reilly, and D. G. Bingham, people have driven their cattle in among the owner's cattle—thus reversing the usual mode of procedure. No damage was done, and no violence used, and indignation is expressed at the drafting into the districts of a large force of police.

What to do for A Sore Throat

SOME GOOD ADVICE BY A SPECIALIST.

As there seems to be a regular epidemic of Sore Throats this winter, the following valuable recipe will be welcomed by many. A sore throat is a dangerous complaint to trifle with, as the bronchial tubes lead directly to the lungs and the disease often travels along these tubes into the lungs and there sets up an inflammation that invariably results in serious lung trouble.

At the first sign of soreness in the throat or around the tonsils you should secure from your chemist 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take this home and add to it ½-pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist sugar. Stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will give instant relief and will usually cure the worst throat within 48 hours. The healing and soothing of this formula are unequalled and every person suffering with a bad throat should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories 71 St. Antoine St., Montreal, who make a specialty of it.

Asquith Is Again in House.

LONDON, April 9.—Premier Asquith again became a member of the House of Commons yesterday, when he was returned unopposed by his old constituency of East Fife, Scotland. At noon, as no other candidate had put in an appearance, the returning officer of the constituency declared Mr. Asquith duly elected once more for the constituency he has represented in the lower House since 1886.

FIRST TEMPERANCE SOCIETY

No Organization Formed in Canada Till 1827

Canada's first known temperance society was organized at West River, N.S., in 1827 and the next year another was formed at Beaver River, N.S. These were both total abstinence bodies. The first temperance convention in the Dominion was held at Halifax in 1834. In 1840 the first non-drinking organization to be known as a "Temperance Society" was formed among Roman Catholics in the city of Montreal.

England felt the strength of the temperance movement to a greater extent than before when in 1832 the first organized movement was started by Joseph Livesy, who organized a band of workers at Preston, Eng.

Up to the present day the Church of England in Canada has moderation pledges which restrict only the use of ardent spirits.

The progress of temperance in the United States was more or less sporadic outcroppings of sentiment until in 1898 when Dr. Benjamin Rush of Philadephia took a firm stand and so earnest was his work that the feeling against liquor gradually grew until it reached proportions great enough to secure legislation.

THE HERRING FISHERY

Perils That Await the Newfoundland Fishermen

The west coast herring fishery of Newfoundland, which has an important international bearing, and which formed one of the chief features of the fishery dispute between Britain and America that was under arbitration at The Hague, occupies the months of October, November, December and January in each year, until the prevalence of ice in the St. Lawrence Gulf compels its abandonment, because it is impossible for vessels to risk ingress and egress at Bay of Islands, the chief centre of the industry. By that time midwinter with all its rigors prevails, and from all the bays and harbors on the Labrador coast great quantities of ice, which forms from day to day, are torn off by the off-shore winds and sent careering about the Gulf, they in their turn making other ice, until the whole vast body of water is heavily covered with the floes.

The only ships afloat to-day that can successfully navigate these waters are the Newfoundland sealers, which enter there early in March and pursue their quest for their oily prey until the end of April, by which time spring is returning, and the heat of the sun melts the ice and opens the area to general navigation again. Usually the last of the American herring vessels leave the region about the twentieth of January, but, of course, it depends somewhat on weather conditions and the presence or otherwise of ice.

PITCHING THE CAMP

A Space is Scooped Out Three or Four Feet Deep

Here is how R. J. Fraser, a traveller in Northern Canadian climes, describes "pitching the camp":

The moment the halt is called there ensues a scene of hustle and activity. Your Indian in winter is a far different being from the shiftless, indifferent loafer who lies about the summer wigwam. He must exert himself or freeze. As it is nearly sunset all hands must make the most of the short twilight minutes. Snowshoes are kicked off and used as shovels. A space only large enough to accommodate the members of the party when stretched at full length, side by side, is scooped out to a depth of three or four feet. Some of the men fell nearby trees, and a three-foot barricade is built to windward. While the others are scattered about the woods felling and gathering firewood, the guides carpet the interior of the camp with spruce boughs. Then, as the firewood comes in, they pile it in front of the shelter, crib fashion, the full length of the camp. For kindling, the top of a dead spruce cannot be beaten, and quickly the huge pile of resinous wood is lit, at both ends and in the middle. In a few minutes there is a aroaring blaze, breast-high, that drives one back to the bottom of the camp. With his mittened hands he is forced to shield his frost-bitten face from the terrific heat, and yet, at the same time, his back, exposed to the north, is freezing. When a sufficient quantity of wood has been gathered for the night, and one must not neglect to include a supply for the breakfast fire, the drivers drop their axes and give a little attention to their dogs, now well cooled off and shivering in their harness. The wearied brutes are released from the laden toboggans, and tied to convenient trees, out of reach of each other. Were they allowed to roam untethered, there would be but little sleep for the traveller. The night would be one continual battle amongst the savage brutes, and when the wolf-blood surged uppermost trapper and hunter might easily fall prey to the half-starved "huskies."

The King's Surgeon

The King's surgeon, Sir Alfred Fripp, is appointed to the household of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife.

The story of how Sir Alfred came into touch with the Royal Family is interesting. It is said that King George's brother, the late Duke of Clarence, had dislocated his ankle while quartered at York with his regiment. The Duke's soldier servant ran round to six of the town doctors on the morning of the accident, and all were out. But the seventh, the unknwn Mr. Fripp, was in, and he went post-haste to the Duke's "digs" to attend him. King Edward, then Prince of Wales, visited his son during his enforced laying up, and found the young surgeon in constant attendance.

"I like that fellow Fripp," the Prince said in an undertone one morning to his equerry.

Aloud he said, "What hospital do you belong to, Fripp?"

"Guy's, your Royal Highness," was the answer.

"I shall see that you get on, Fripp," said the Prince. And he did.

Judicial Nicknames

One of the many proofs of Mr. Justice Bucknill's popularity at the English Bar has been the familiar use of his Christian name.

The Bar, which has always spoken of Lord Alverstone as "Dick Webster," and of Lord Loreburn as "Bob Reid," has been accustomed to speak of the present Lord Chief Justice as "Rufus," and of Mr. Justice Bucknill as "Tommy."

Ambiguous Words

Many words in everyday use have quite a different meaning in remote corners of the country. An auction is a dirty or untidy place; and some rustics, when unwell, tell you that they feel "comical." A pig or piggy is a hot-water bottle—hence the story of a traveller who returned to civilization with a tale that in Northumberland the people slept with a pig in the bed for warmth.

Kissimmee

During the Spanish-American war, a number of cowboys going by train to Tampa to embark for Cuba, stopped at Kissimmee. One asked a girl on the platform, "Say, Missis, what's the name of this joint " She answered, "Kissimmee." The cowboy said, "You bet your life," and did it.

Jews in Canada

In 1881 there were only 661 Jews in the whole of Canada; to-day there are over 160,000, and they are coming in at the rate of 7,000 a year. In Toronto there are 30,000 Jews, and a good deal of the best town property is owned by them.

EXCAVATING SITE FOR C.N.R. TERMINUS

Steam Shovel Working on Site for Mount Royal Heights Station

TRAINS IN LESS THAN YEAR

Enlargement of Heading to Full Size Will be Finished by Fall—Preparing an Electrical Sub-Station Site

MONTREAL, April 11.—Since the joining of the two headings of the Canadian Northern tunnel, just four months ago, rapid progress has been made in completing the work, and already the excavation of the station site is under way, while a steam shovel is preparing the site for the Mount Royal heights station, and the site for the electrical sub-station in the model city is practically complete. By next fall, the enlargement of the heading to the full size of the tunnel will be finished, and trains are expected to be running in less than a year from the present.

The connecting up of the two sections of the two tunnels on December 10 last marked the completion of the most spectacular part of the building of the Mount Royal tunnel. Since then however, much has been accomplished and the remaining work will keep large gangs of men employed for a considerable time longer. For many months prior to the joining of the headings, or in fact almost as soon as a heading was well under way, the "break-ups," where the upper part of the tunnel section is opened to its full width and height, were commenced. As many of these were opened as was necessary to keep up with the heading progress.

These "break-ups" will be finished in the whole tunnel by the middle or end of next month. In this work, excavation timbers are placed across the heading, so that the rock is blasted down from above and can be run through these timbers into cars in the section below. The side benches below the timbers are taken out after the break-up excavation has been completed, by a shovel operated by compressed air. The benches are drilled and blasted well in advance, so that no time will be lost by the shovel. This part of the work is to be finished by next fall, when the tunnel will then be the full size of 22 feet high by 20 feet wide.

The tunnel will be lined with concrete. Near the Dorchester street end, however, where the ground is soft and heavy, a steel roof shield has been adopted. This avoids settlement of over-lying material, reduces the drainage and eliminates the heavy and expensive timber that would otherwise be necessary. A shaft has been sunk opposite the old Bath Hotel on Cathcart street, and the shield has just been taken into the tunnel through the shaft.

The shield consists of a cutting edge shaped to conform to the outline of the tunnel roof, which forms the front of a steel envelope, extending over the platforms on which the men work and back far enough to lap over the last ring or section of tunnel lining erected. The shield is supported on steel columns forming the centre wall and on side walls which rest on the solid rock. It is forced ahead by hydraulic jacks, under a pressure of about 6,000 pounds per square inch.

PASSOVER FEAST

Will be Observed by Jewish Race all over World for Eight Days

The Jewish Passover began at sundown Friday and will continue for eight days, during which time all the Jews of the city will celebrate the deliverance of the Jews from Egypt.

Throughout the whole week unleavened bread must be eaten to remind them of the tribulations of their forefathers.

The Passover is much older than is generally believed, and was known many years before Moses led the chosen people from out of Egypt; although after that time the feast took on a differen aspect, which resulted in the idenity of the feast being altogether changed. New symboys to express the great liberty which had come to the Jews were found. There is the Roasted Lamb Bone, reminding them of the lamb each Israelite slaughtered as a sacrifice of the Covenant; there is the Mazzah, or Matzoth, or Unleavened Bread, and the bitter herbs which keep those who partake of them from forgetting the bitter life of those who lived thousands of years ago in Egypt as slaves.

A KING'S BROTHER IN A PARIS PULPIT

Prince Maximiliam of Saxony Preaches in the Latin Quarter

PARIS, April 11.—In the tiny church of St. Julien le Pauvre, standing in a little courtyard hidden among squalied lanes on the edge of the Latin Quarter, the Good Friday sermon was preached today by a brother of the reigning King of Saxony and a cousin of the Kaiser.

For eighteen years Prince Maximilian of Saxony has been a simple priest; a teacher of canon law at a seminary in Cologne, and a preacher wandering from church to church. It has been said that a hopeless passion for a reigning sovereign broke his heart and turned him from earthly ambitions.

His sermon today dealt with the analogy between the Lion of the tribe of Judah and the Son of Man, and had little bearing upon the daily life of his hearers, being, indeed, largely a theological disquisition, but it was followed with close attention by the throng which packed the little church.

The Prince preached fluently without notes, standing in a little wooden pulpit. He is a tall, well set up and slightly stout man of 45, with a smooth face, light colored hair and aquiline nose. Outside in the rain waited many for whom there was no room in the church, and around the corner stood a long row of automobiles that had brought a fashionable congregation from all over Paris to hear the royal preacher.

KRAFCHENKO HAS FIT OF REMORSE IN A BAGGAGE CAR

WINNIPEG April 11.—Seated in an arm chair in the baggage car of the Canadian Pacific Railroad train from Morden, yesterday afternoon, sat Krafchenko, nerve-shattered, wrinkled, little old-looking man, his ankles fettered with shining links of nickled street chain. The shrunken form was bent over slightly; the once handsomely square, athletic shoulders drooped with the utmost pathos, as though the burden of impending doom had settled upon him with a weight that was beyond sustaining.

Clutched between the nerveless fingers of his right hand was a newspaper containing a report of the fatal finale of the trial, and the closing words of the death sentence seemed to stare out burningly from the page:—"And may Almighty God have mercy upon your soul."

Between the first and second fingers of his left hand hung the slowly smouldering butt of a cigar, but that was not all. To a casual observer he was merely a man dressed in a neat grey suit, and reading a daily newspaper. But a closer look disclosed tears welling up from the limpid depths of his big, deep-set, steel-blue eyes beneath heavy, handsome black beetling brows, and falling one by one upon the outspread newspaper before him. The eyes were unseeing, the shoulders heaving with something that could not be suppressed.

Such was the appearance of John Krafchenko convicted and condemned to die at Winnipeg on Thursday, June 9, for the murder of H. M. Arnold at Plum Coulee, on December 3 last.

With no longer a Court room crowd gazing upon his every fleeting expression, within the seclusion of a box car in the presence of only his guards and railway baggagemen, the former desperado gave full rein to his depression and wept bitter tears of remorse.

J. D. Suffield, defending counsel, states that the case will not be appealed, but that every effort will be brought to bear to have sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

KING ALFONSO NO WAITER

Drops Dish of Oranges Serving Madrid Poor

MADRID, April 10.—In accordance with the custom of Catholic countries, King Alfonso and Queen Victoria took part today in the ceremony of washing the feet of twelve poor people. The whole court attended.

The King and Queen then led two of the poor persons by the hand to a banquet, grandees of Spain leading the others. Members of the royal family acted as waiters. They all performed their duties well with the exception of King Alfonso, who dropped a dish of oranges amid a group of members of the diplomatic corps.

BIGGER ENGLAND IN SOUTHERN SEAS PREDICTED BY SIR GEORGE REID

Forbidden to Parade With Sacred Images, Italian Mob Invades Church Shouting "Death to Bishops" and the Clergy Had to Flee for Safety

LONDON, April 13.—Arriving back from Australia after a visit of several months in the Commonwealth, Sir George Reid, the Australian High Commissioner, admitted to an interviewer that the stream of immigration to the Antipodes was not commensurate with either the requirements or the opportunities of the Commonwealth, the chief object being its distance from Great Britain; but it was anticipated that, as the other countries now drawing immigration filled up, Australia's day would come. The distance was not altogether a disadvantage, as it was a deterrent to the lower types of immigrants, and Australia was getting some of the best British stock, so that there was a bigger England growing up in the Southern seas.

Sir George declared that the feeling of attachment to the Mother Country was growing stronger every year. The industrial and militray development of Japan and Germany has made Australia realize the importance of Imperial defence. Sir George said that he had seen and heard enough to assure him that the Australians were quite determined, even at a heavy cost, to bear their share of the burden, and they were proud of their first battleship, of which one half the crew are Australians. Although proud of their Imperial connections, the Australians were too self-reliant to lean thereon, and they were training every youth in order that they might defend themselves and also help the Mother Country if needed. The position in the Far East was unsatisfactory, declared Sir George. The time must come when the Indian Empire must help to maintain a fleet in the Pacific. So, too, with Canada, for while its position doubtless differed from that of Australia, many persons were surprised that the Canadian Parliament did not authorize the immediate building of three battleships, as it would have ample time while building them to decide upon a permanent Imperial policy.

ATTACKED BISHOPS AT MASS

ROME, April 12.—There was serious disturbance today at Cantanzaro, in the province of that name, just as the Bishop was about to begin the celebration of Pontifical Easter Mass in the cathedral. Last Sunday the Bishop issued an order forbidding the usual Easter processions and the abuse of sacred images, which are carried through the streets from morning till night during Holy Week. This caused great indignation among the people, and when the Easter services were about to begin they invaded the church. They rushed toward the altar and shouted, "Death to the Bishops." Their actions became so threatening that the Bishop and the clergy, who were to have assisted him in the celebration, had to flee to places of safety. It is most likely that the Pope will issue an edict forbidding the clergy from performing religious services or administering sacraments in Cantanzaro until the people repent of their action and promise submission to their spiritual superiors.

NO SALOONS, NO POLICE

Not Because Town is Orderly But Because it Can't Pay Now

CHICAGO, Ill., April 11.—As a result of going "dry" at the election on Tuesday, the town of Minooka, Ill., about 45 miles southwest of Chicago, will lose its public lighting, and its citizens, after May 15, will have to go home in the dark. Three able-bodied men who constitute the police department, and the city attorney will have to "go" also. The reason is that Minooka, having voted itself "dry," will no longer have funds to meet expenses.

"We're out of money," said Mayor Casser today. "Only a few hundred dollars coming in; not enough to keep the place going. You see, we had three saloons here, and when we voted them out we lost $2,000 in revenue."

Word also comes that Lockport, Ill., located at the end of the drainage canal, has discharged its police force. Lockport also voted "dry" and lost its saloon revenue.

SEEDING IN ALBERTA

Ground in Fine Shape With Excellent Prospects

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., April 11.—Reports from the surrounding country show that while in a few cases seeding has already started, it will be in full swing, next week. The ground has plenty of moisture, and is in fine shape, with excellent prospects for a good crop.

The present warm weather, should it continue, will make seeding practicable in areas where the soil has been saturated with moisture. This applies to the Cardston district particularly, where large falls of snow and rain have made the work of drills impracticable. Spring seeding acreage will be increased on the average by 10 per cent. over last year. There is not much winter wheat, but the crop is in fine condition.

The taking hold of mixed farming is shown by a large number of acres on the new Dayton district being sown to rape for feeding hogs.

J.J. HILL NOT DISTURBED

Feels Very Comfortable Over Situation in Canadian West

NEW YORK, April 10.—James J. Hill was not disturbed by the reduction of freight rates on lines in Canada and its probable effect on the Great Northern.

"The reductions will have no adverse effect on the Great Northern," said Mr. Hill. "In fact so far as I can see, there will not be the difference of a copper cent. Through shipments, for example, from Chicago to Vancouver, should not be affected because the adjustment principally has to do with rates between intermediate points in Western Canada.

"I feel very comfortable over the general situation in the Northwest which is as prosperous, if not more so, than any other section of the country. Business now is quiet, but good. There is a larger acreage ready for the spring planting, and with a normal season crop conditions will be entirely favorable."

SOUGHT TO DISCARD THEIR OWN CHILD

TORONTO, Apr. 13—Special—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, 4 Sullivan Place, attempted yesterday afternoon to rid themselves of their seven months old female child by handing her over to the care of the police. So vague were their statements and so excited their manner that Sergeant McFarlane, who was on duty at Agnes street station, thought it wise to question the couple before accepting the child. His verbal investigation resulted in the admission by the couple that they were the parents of the child, but that, as they had no affection for her, they had decided to give her to the police as a lost child. Sergeant McFarlane made the couple take the child home with them, and warned them that if anything happened to her, action would be taken immediately by the police.

THE FOUR GUNMEN ELECTROCUTED

WHITY LEWIS MAKES STATEMENT

(Intelligencer Special)

OSSING, N.Y., April 13—Special—The four men convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the New York Gambler, were electrocuted at Sing Sing prison at day-break this morning. Frank Seidensher (Whitey Lewis) was the only one of the four to make a statement. "Gentlemen," he said, "I did not shoot at Rosenthal. Those who said I did were perjurers."

DRANK CARBOLIC IN PHONE BOOTH

Woman With Poison Vial in Hand Collapsed in Uptown Tea Room

MONTREAL, April 11.—After having lunch in the Castle Blend Tea Room St Catherine street yesterday afternoon, a well-dressed young woman, said to be Miss Ellen Chalmers, 22 years of age, stepped into a telephone booth, consumed a quantity of carbolic acid, then returned to her table, where she presently became unconscious. The vial from which she had taken the acid was found in her hand. She was removed to the Royal Victoria Hospital and at first seemed on the point of death, but it is now thought that she will recover. Relatives of the young woman offered no reason for the young woman's act.

Miss Chalmers entered the tea room at about 12.30, seated herself at a table and in an abstracted manner asked for tea and rolls. She ate the food brought to her and then arose and went to the telephone booth, which she entered, reappearing a moment later.

Employees of the tea rooms noticed that she was pale and dazed-looking, but she went back to her table and sat down, staring in front of her, apparently about to faint. A watchful waitress approached and asked her if she would like a glass of water. She gasped out a negative answer and the next moment slumped unconscious in her chair. Employees and patrons, a large number of whom were eating at the time, who had been watching her on account of her strange actions, ran to her aid. A small vial, which still contained a quantity of carbolic acid, was found clasped in her right hand, and the startled people immediately realized what had happened and someone called an ambulance from the hospital.

GAVE LIFE FOR "DOLLY"

Little Girl Who Dropped Toy was Fatally Hurt by Runaway

NEW YORK, April 11.—Five-year-old Lena Cicione, the daughter of John Cicione, a tailor of 4413 Atlantic avenue, Richmond Hill, L.I., started to cross the street in front of her home yesterday afternoon to join other children. As she got to the middle of the street a horse owned by M. Jarvis, of Ridgewood, which was standing nearby, became frightened at a train on the Long Island Railroad and ran away. In her terror the little girl dropped a doll she was carrying. When she got to the sidewalk she realized her loss.

"My dolly, I must save her," she sobbed.

A man tried to save her, but he was too late. The child, forgetting her own danger, ran directly in front of the horse. Just as she stooped to pick up the doll, the horse crushed her to the pavement and the wheels of the waggon to which it was attached passed over her body.

The child was taken to St. Mary's Hospital at Jamaica in an ambulance. It was said there last night that she suffering from internal injuries and would probably die.

NEW YORK MODES DRAW CANADIANS AT EASTERTIDE

NEW YORK, April 11.—That New York is the Eastertide Mecca of fashion for the people of Canada is apparent again this year, for that city is being invaded by ten thousand persons from all parts of the Dominion. In the restaurants the most popular air played by the orchestra was "The Maple Leaf Forever," while the red ensign of Canada hung side by side with the Stars and Stripes.

The visitors for the most part, were women who came to see and purchase of the wealth and fashionable attire which only the metropolitan modistes and milliners have to offer. As the several special trains arrived and the thousands scattered to the hotels, residential arrangements were hurriedly completed after which women went to the shopping districts.

Their rosy complexions and athletic bearing revealed the nationality of the Canadian girls. Their appearance told of life in the open, and the brisk winter exercise on the ice which they have just relinquished to make their trip to New York.

From Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton, Ottawa, Quebec Nova Scotia and even far Alberta they came.

PREDICTS DROP IN IMMIGRATION FROM THE OLD COUNTRY

OTTAWA, April 11.—A falling off in Canadian immigration this year is predicted by Mr. W. D. Scott, Superintendent of Immigration. There will be plenty, he thinks, of the class that the country most wants, farmers, farm laborers and domestics, but fewer artisans.

"In the fiscal year just closed," stated Mr. Scott, "the total immigration, so far as the figures are available indicate, was about 390,00. This year I estimate the total at about 250,000. Farmers, farm laborers and domestics are the only people the Department in its literature advises to emigrate to Canada. We point out that others should get definite assurance of employment before leaving home and have nearly enough to support them for a time in case of disappointment.

"There are two reasons why we anticipate a falling off in the number of artisans coming. One is the fact that times in the Old Country are exceptionally prosperous, while it has been pretty well noised about that the labor market in Canada is well stocked. We expect the average immigration of homesteaders and farm laborers and that is the class we want."

IN QUEST OF INFORMATION

FREDERICTON, N.B. April 11.—The Canadian Government has been blamed by writers in the press on the grounds that Canadian immigration has been overdone and that more people have been poured into the Dominion than the country can absorb. As a matter of truth the facts are that last July the Government sent a circular to all booking agents urging strongly that only men who are willing to go on the land and domestic servants were to be encouraged to go to Canada, and that all other immigrants were to be discouraged and that full restrictions would be imposed upon them. It is a fact that there is no unemployment amongst immigrants who have come out under Government auspices, whose slogan has been: "Go to the land and keep away from the towns and cities." The people who are out of work are said to be either those who went out in defiance of this advice or those who left their work in the country to go to the town and cities. There are also two contributing causes to unemployment that have had to be considered this winter: "The real estate boom which had rawn many to the congested centres and the financial stringency which has curtailed municipal improvements and building operations which generally employ large numbers of men. The Government is still endeavoring to secure agricultural laborers and servants and so pressing is the need for these two classes that the Government has sent special agents to Great Britain in search of suitable immigrants of the above class.

A farm laborer who knows his work and is willing to do it is very much in demand in this province. If he has proven himself to be a conscientious worker during the spring, summer and autumn months, he need have no fear of getting out of employment during the winter. The wages vary according to the value the man gives and the length of his engagement. From $20 to $30 per month is paid a single man with board and lodging. A married man with a family would be provided with a cottage free of rent. He might get also his milk, vegetables, fuel free of charge with from $20 to $30 wages per month. A farm laborer coming to New Brunswick can always look forward to himself becoming a farm owner.

IMMURED IN DUNGEON

Daughters of Italian Noble Locked Up Eighteen Years Ago.

One Died After Fifteen Years and Other Is Insane From Long Imprisonment for the "Honor of the Family" — Brother of Victims Inherited Task and Is Now In Jail —Had Illegitimate Children.

NAPLES, April 13.—Investigation into the incarceration of the two sisters of Baron Domenico Camarda shows that the young women were placed in a dungeon in the Camarda castle by the father of the baron, who was arrested Friday, and that the latter on his father's death continued the treatment meted out to the girls because they had dishonored the family name.

The girls were placed in a dungeon in the family castle eighteen years ago, and one of them died after fifteen years' torture, while the other was found insane a few days ago.

It appears that Teresina Camarda was in love with an army officer, and that their child was killed by the order of the baron's father. Isobel, the other sister, also had an illicit love affair, but the father of her child is not known.

Both sisters were incarcerated in the dungeon of the castle near Mairato and ill-treated, being supplied with just enough food to keep them alive.

After the death of the old Baron Camarda, his eldest son, the present baron, took upon his hands the torturing of his erring sisters. In this he was abetted by his brother, Francesco, and his sisters Antonia and Garcia.

It was not until last February that rumors of the tragedy came to the ears of the police authorities. When the latter heard about the matter they demanded the keys to the castle on threat that if the keys were refused they would break down the walls. The police found Isobel in the dungeon completely nude and looking like a skeleton. There was at the time some plausible explanation of her condition, because she was handed over to her relatives with nothing more than a severe reprimand.

The investigating judge of Monteleone went to the place afterwards and found that Isobel had been again placed in the dungeon. She was taken from the castle and sent to the hospital of Girifalco, and the investigation into the whole circumstances of the case was begun. The physicians at the Monteleone hospital are endeavoring to ascertain from the woman in their charge the origin of the affair.

SUICIDE IDENTIFIED.

Brother Comes Across Atlantic to View Young Man's Remains.

TORONTO, April 13.—By means of a picture and a description published in local papers, the young lad who committed suicide at 920 Dundas street on the morning of Feb. 18 by shooting was identified by his brother, who came from Liverpool, England, for that purpose. The dead youth was Edward Johnson of Liverpool.

The lad's brother is unable to account for the suicide other than the fact that he was suffering from a religious mania when he suddenly left his home in England two years ago. Every effort was made by his parents to trace him, but without success.

Recently a newspaper with the lad's description was received by his brother. It tallied so closely that the brother at once left for Canada to claim the dead man's effects.

The suicide was one of the most peculiar that the police have had to deal with. Previous to taking his life Johnson destroyed all papers which would lead to his identity, and during the three days before he took his life he had occupied rooms in three different lodging-houses, all of which he paid for in advance and left without using. After his death a letter was received from a man in Hamilton, containing a quantity of religious tracts and offering some advice.

Bamford Goe To Asylum.

COBOURG, April 13.—Wm. Bamford, the lunatic who last week ran amuck and tried to shoot up a town, was Saturday, on a warrant issued by the Lieutenant-Governor, transferred from Cobourg jail to the Hamilton Hospital for the Criminal Insane. As Bamford's insanity is hereditary it is not likely that his condition will improve.

HENRY H. COOK PASSES

Widely Known Lumberman and Former Liberal M.P. Dead.

Torontonian Came Originally From Dundas County and Entered the Lumber Trade—Went Into Politics In 1872 and Sat For Simcoe Ridings Until 1890—Joined Laurier In 1896, But Left Him Later.

TORONTO, April 13.—In the death of Henry Herman Cook, which occurred yesterday at his late residence, 20 Dowling avenue, Canada loses one of its most conspicuous political figures.

Born in Williamsburg, Dundas County, Ont., on April 27, 1837, Mr. Cook entered the lumber business in 1858 and was at the time of his death president of the Ontario Lumber Co. He was one of the syndicate which offered to build the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1880. His family has been prominently identified with the lumber trade for many years.

Mr. Cook first entered Parliament in 1872 for North Simcoe, which constituency he represented as a Liberal in the Dominion House until 1878, when he entered the Ontario Legislature. He resigned his seat in the Legislature in 1882 when he returned to the Dominion House as member for East Simcoe, which seat he held until 1890. During this period he contested no less than eleven elections, winning six and being defeated five times.

He afterwards entered the House of Commons as a follower of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1896, and a few years later he came prominently before the public when he made a break-away from his party owing to the refusal of Sir Wilfrid to appoint him to the Senate, an honor he frankly believed to be due him. His criticisms of the Laurier administration created no small sensation at the time.

Mr. Cook's death came quite unexpectedly to his relatives and friends. He maintained his usual good health until Monday last, when he took to his bed with some slight ailment. On Friday he was quite well again, although still confined to his room. At three o'clock Saturday morning he was seized with apoplexy and never regained consciousness, expiring at 7.15 last night.

He is survived by two daughters and four grandchildren, the daughters being Mrs. Frank E. Macdonald and Mrs. Norreys Worthington, wife of the late Col. Norreys Worthington.

The funeral will be held privately on Wednesday.

Dr. McGill Discusses Chemistry Bureau at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, O., April 13.—That the system of the United States Bureau of Chemistry will be adopted by Canada, was the statement made yesterday by Dr. A. McGill, chief chemist of the Canadian Inland Revenue Department, with headquarters at Ottawa. Dr. McGill, who was one of the delegates to the convention of the National Chemical Society, is in this city on an inspection tour. He called upon Chief Chemist Leo Forst of the local Bureau of Chemistry in the Federal building Saturday and inspected the laboratory.

Dr. McGill, in announcing that he expected to follow the system in this country in the matter of branch laboratories, said that he is preparing to establish branch laboratories in Canada to facilitate the handling of imports. He stated that he intended establishing laboratories at Halifax, Vancouver, Winnipeg, and possibly Montreal.

Will Teach Bulgarian Nurses.

WASHINGTON, April 13. — Miss Mabel T. Boardman, head of the American Red Cross, announced yesterday the selection of Miss Helen Scott Hay, an enrolled American Red Cross nurse, now in charge of the Western Suburban Hospital at Chicago, as superintendent of the proposed school for trained nurses at Sofia, Bulgaria.

The appointment is the result of an appeal made to the American Red Cross by Queen Eleanora of Bulgaria, who is to visit this country next month. Queen Eleanora asked help in instructing Bulgarian women in nurse work. She herself was a Red Cross nurse during the Russo-Japanese and Balkan wars.

Robber Endangers Ships.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Sleeping passengers on the steamship Vauban approaching New York early Saturday off Sandy Hook were aroused by an explosion in the baggage compartment of the steerage. Fire followed the explosion, but was quickly extinguished. Investigation showed that a Syrian, rifling the baggage of a fellow immigrant, had opened a box of cartridges and in so doing set them off. He was badly burned.

ANOTHER CLUE TO TRAGEDY.

Floating Wreckage Tells of Disaster To Southern Cross.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 13.—Floating wreckage, believed to have come from the missing sealer Southern Cross, was reported by the sealing steamer Bloodhound, which arrived yesterday. The Bloodhound passed a large quantity of wreckage Saturday afternoon about 100 miles southeast of this port. It had apparently been washed from a sealer's deck, but as the crew of the Bloodhound had not heard of the loss of the Southern Cross no effort was made to identify it.

The steamer Kyle, which has been searching in the vicinity of Cape Race, was notified by wireless yesterday of the position of the wreckage, and started immediately for the scene.

EASTER SUNDAY

MUSIC AND SERVICE NOTES OF BELLEVILLE CHURCHES

In the various churches of the city yesterday the services were appropriate to the day, namely, Easter Sunday. The sermons were all based upon the resurrection, and the music was of an especial nature.

EMMANUEL CHURCH.

The Easter services in Emmanuel Church were most significant in hearty spiritual uplifting. The choir was supplemented in number by several friends from Toronto, and did excellent service. The seven hymns for the day were selected from among the Easter numbers in Beckesstiff's Hymnal Companion to the Book of Common Prayer. The anthems were "King of Kings," by Caleb Simper, and "Praise to Thee," by E. E. Hewitt. The salutation of Jesus to His friends was the subject of Rev. Mr. Hubly's sermon in the morning. With the greatest transparency of language the preacher led the congregation from the words of Jesus, "Ye are my friends," in the upper room, to the "All hail" of the risen Lord on the first Easter morn. The evening sermon was from the words: "And Jesus Himself drew near,"—the scene on the way to Emmaus.

The offerings for the day were $151.

ST. MICHAEL'S

The great festival of Easter was observed in the estomary solemn manner at St. Michael's. Huge congregations were in attendance at both Masses, and at the early celebration the number of communicants was noticeably large.

The Rector of the parish, Rev. C. J. Killeen, was the celebrant at the eight o'clock Mass, and the curate, Rev. J. Corrigan, at the 10.30 High Mass. A sermon appropriate to the day was delivered at each service. At High Mass the music selected was one of T. Marzo's productions and an exceedingly tuneful one. The choir, all men, rendered their several parts well, and, judging by the comments heard afterwards, the congregation was more than pleased at the young men's efforts. The soloists were Messrs. Tom Barrett, Ed. Brown, Jno. Fahey and R. Blaind, and those singing in the quartette were Messrs. C. J. Peppin, J. V. Doyle, T. Barrett, J. Roe, Jno. Fahey. At the offeratory, Mr. Tom Barrett sang "Regina Coelis" in a clear, strong voice. Miss Agnes St. Charles, the capable and painstaking organist of the church, deserves very much credit for the success of the Mass. At Benediction Mr. Jno. Fahey sang Bordese's "O Salutaris."

BRIDGE STREET.

The pastor, Rev. H. S. Osborne, officiated and preached to large congregations, his sermons both morning and evening being appropriate to the day. In the evening the musical programme was especially good, being as follows:

Anthem—"O Death Where is Thy Sting?" .. .. Turner
Soloist—Mr. Staples.
Anthem — "Worthy is the Lamb" (Messiah) .. .. Handel
Male Quartette from "The Crucifixion" .. .. Stainer
Anthem—"Hallelujah" (Messiah) .. .. Handel

JOHN STREET.

Excellent Easter music was furnished at both services yesterday by the splendid choir under the direction of Miss Stork. In the morning the choir rendered most effectively the anthem, "O Lord of Life and Glory," the soprano solo being sweetly sug by Miss Jean Sinclair. A quartette was sung by Misses Stork and LaVoie and Messrs. Ridley and LaVoie. A solo, "There is a Green Hill" was beautifully sung by Miss Eva LaVoie, whose soft, rich contralto voice made the lovely words doubly impressive. The splendid discourse by the pastor was most earnestly listened to, the text being "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept."

In the evening two anthems excellently sung by the choir—"Hosanna," with Miss Luella Curry as soloist; "Christ our Passover," with solos for bass and tenor ably taken by Mr. M. LaVoie and Mr. Rolls. A quartette, "Crossing the Bar," and solo, "The Resurrection Morn," magnificently sung by Miss Stork, whose clear, soprano voice was well suited to the song. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Frank Yeigh of Toronto, whose address on "Who is this Easter Christ?" was most interesting and impressive.

Miss Edna Wallace presided at the organ in a most capable manner and added much to the excellence of the music.

VICTORIA AVENUE.

The services in the Baptist church yesterday were both interesting and uplifting. In the morning the pastor's subject was "The Risen Christ," and in the evening his remarks were based upon the baptism of Jesus, his subject being "With Christ at the River Jordan." The service concluded with the ordinance of baptism, eleven candidates being baptised. Special music was rendered throughout the day by a large hoir under the direction of Mr. W. B. Riggs, which was much appreciated. In the evening the auditorium was filled to the doors.

ST. THOMAS

Holy Week was marked this year by the presence of the Lord Bishop of Kingston, who conducted a "Misson of Help," beginning on Palm Sunday. Throughout the entire week large congregations gathered daily to hear his quietly-spoken, but inspiring words on the strengthening and upbuilding of the spiritual life. On "Good Friday" the "Three Hours" of devotion was attended throughout by a throng of worshippers, who listened reverently to the "Seven Saying" from the Cross, and joined heartily in the hymns of the Passion and the intercessions.

Easter ay was joyously celebrated with services of the Holy Communion at seven, eight, and eleven o'clock, the latter service being fully choral with Easter Anthems and hymans. The Rector, Rev. Canon Beamish, preached on the theme "The Sure and Certain Hope of Immortality." The congregations were very large and the communicants exceeded those of last year in number.

In the afternoon the Sunday School held a festival service in the Parish House, and were addressed by the Superintendent, Mr. John Elliott, and by the Rector. The Mission boxes were presented, representing the Lenter self-denial of the children. During Holy Week and Easter Day he communicants numbered 438. The offerings on Easter Day totalled $328. At the Evening service Miss Walton sang the beautiful contralto Solo: "O Rest in the Lord" with much feeling and purity of tone. Mr. Wheatly and the choir are deserving of much praise for their excellent services.

TABERNACLE CHURCH

The services at the Tabernacle were most interesting and successful yesterday. Large congregations were present. The Rev. W. B. Tucker, B.A. B.D. of Campbellford at the morning service gave a well thought out and appropriate presentation of the Easter Hope. He spoke briefly also at the evening services.

The music at the morning, afternoon and evening services was of the usual very high order of merit and was rendered with splendid spirit. The choir gave several Easter Anthems rendering three at the evening service from Gounod's "Redemption". Mrs. J. Grant gave a beautiful solo solo during the evening service.

At the Alpha Club in the afternoon a special program was given, consisting of a brief address by Mr. Tucker, Instrumental solo Mrs. M. Duff, Vocal Solo by Mrs. Grant and the splended Quartette, Messrs. W. H. Wrightmeyer, J. Burke, H. R. Moorman and F. S. Rockwell rendered a couple of selections.

ST. ANDREWS

At the evening service the pastor Rev. A. D. Kerr preached, his text being from St. John, 20th chapter and 20th verse. The musical part of the service was as follows.

Anthem—King of Kings Solists Miss M. Waters, Mr. W. J. Beacon, Mr. G. Stallworthy.
Mixed Quartette—"The Magdaline" Mrs. Allen, Miss Ketcheson, Mr. Vermilyea, Mr. Dulmage.
Solo—"Hosanna—Mr. S. R. Burrows.
Male Quartette—"Blue Galilee"—Mr. Mitchel, Mr Brown, Mr. Stallworthy Mr. Dulmage.
Anthem—"Hallelujah"— Soloist Miss L. Sharp.

Morning

Anthem—"Awake Thou that Sleepest" —Soloist—Miss M. Sharpe.
Anthem—"The Resurrection Morn"—Soloist, Miss H. Ketcheson.
Solo—"Awake Triumphant Morn"—Mrs. A. P. Allen.

ELECTRIC SUB-STATION AT MADOC RUINED--VILLAGE IN DARKNESS

The village of Madoc was last night virtually in darkness, owing to the fact that fire did much damage to the sub-station of the electrical plant The first broke out in the afternoon, but was fortunately extinguished before the building was destroyed, but not before the lighting apparatus was put out of commission. This had the the effect of placing, not only the churches, hotels, and the street lighting out of commission, but many residences. The loss which amounts to several hundred dollars is covered by insurance. It is confidently expected that current for lighting will be in working vogue this evening.

AN ADDRESS OF CONDOLENCE

Dear Brother and Sister Egan,—We, your classmates and friends of the Tabernacle Church, with profound sorrow, have heard of the death of your dear daughter, Mrs. Elmer Luck. We have deeply sympathized with you during her long affliction. Our prayers unceasingly went up with yours on her behalf. Strong faith in God has given you a steadfast purpose to humbly say, They will, O Lord, be done.

The days of miracles are not passed. But even greater than the performance of miracles is the bestowal of grace sufficient to bear up under all the afflictions of life. Thus we maintain an unshaken confidence in the beneficence of the Divine mind and the love of God in all things affecting his trusting children. Your unfaltering testimony to the Divine goodness in this greatly enriched our faith as you have magnified the name of the Lord.

You have also been sustained by the knowledge that your dear daughter born the cross with patient endurance and even joyous hope. She has parsed on before to that world where no rolling ocean or mountain heights shall ever divide us from those we love.

Tell the fainting soul in the weary form
There's a world of the purest bliss
That is linked as the soul and form is linked
By a Covered Bridge with this.

Yet to reach that realm on the other shore
We must pass through a transient gloom,
And must walk unseen, unhelped and alone
Through that Covered Bridge—the tomb.

But we all pass over on equal terms
For the universal toll
Is this outer garb which the hand of God
Has flung around the soul.

Though the eye is dim and the Bridge is dark,
And the river it spans is wide,
Yet Faith points through to a shining mount
That looms on the other side.

To enable our feet in the next day's march
To climb up that golden ridge,
We must all lie down for one night's rest
Inside o fthe Covered Bridge.

Dear Brother and Sister, accept our heartfelt love and esteem in these hours of sore bereavement, and may those far across the sea realize that we are praying for them; and may we all reach the better shore and live in God's presence for ever.

Signed on behalf of T. F. Wills' class.

W. G. Clarke, Pastor.
T. F. Wills, Leader.

HOW TO KEEP ACTIVE

WHEN OLD AGE OVERTAKES US

Mrs. John Widmayer, of Jackson, Mich., says: "Although 69 years of age, and naturally, because of my advanced age, in an enfeebled condition, I can truthfully say that Vinol has done wonders to keep me as active as I am. It is the best medicine to create strength that I ever saw. This spring I was very much run down and worn out but I took Vinol and soon felt stronger and able to work about the house. I can recommend Vinol as a very invigorating tonic."

Should the system get run down—digestive organs weak — the blood thin and sluggish — take Vinol, which is a delicious combination of the medicinal — body-building properties of cods' livers, with the useless grease eliminated and tonic iron added. We regard Vinol as one of the greatest body-builders and strength creators in the world for aged people.

We wish every feeble old person in this vicinity would try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it fails to give satisfaction.—Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville, Ont.

THE TEMPERANCE ISSUE

A prominent Hamilton (Ont.) ministerial orator explains that when he extolled Mr. Rowell from the pulpit as "the hero of Ontario," and announced that he (the divine) would take advantage of the first opportunity to vote for him because of his "banish the bar" policy, he (the minister) was not speaking as a politician, but as a moralist. Province-wide prohibition he regards as a moral question, and he took the side of the right in the fight against wrong.
